AUGUST 14, 1956

Levings Leaving Arsenal

Col. George E. Levings, Jr., assistant arsenal commander, is now attending the IBM School at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., prior to a permanent change of station later this month.

On August 20 Col. Levings will return to Redstone to officially end his tour here. His next stop will then be for TDY at Raritan Arsenal in New Jersey. He will leave for Europe on August 27.

Col. Levings, a 1927 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, also holds an LL.B. degree from the University of North Carolina. He came to Redstone in November 1953 as a legal expert for the National Procurement Division. Prior to this assignment he worked in the Legislative Liaison Office for the Department of the Army in Washington, D. C.

In July 1955 he was made assistant arsenal commander.

Orleans, France will be the new assignment for Col. and Mrs. Levings. His specific duties are somewhat indefinite now, but it is thought that he will be the commanding officer of the Supply Stock Control Agency in Orleans.

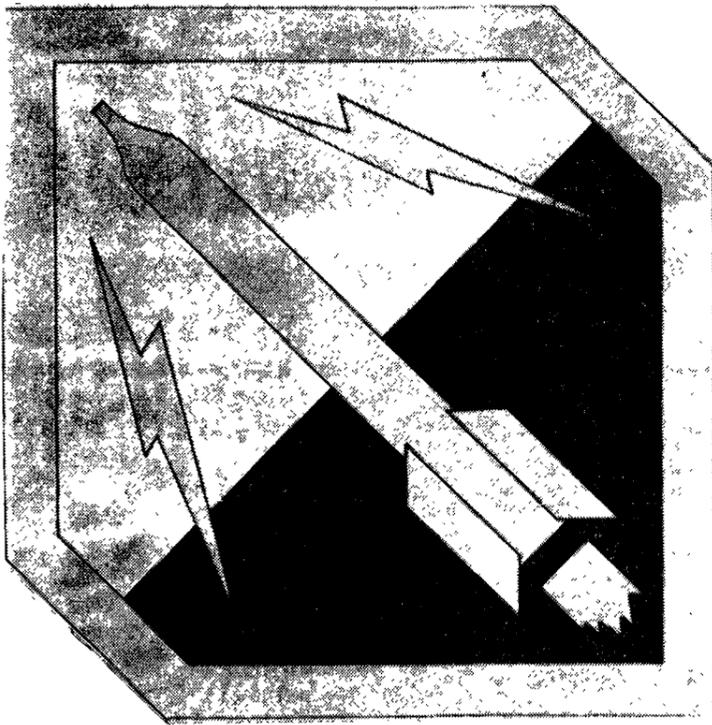

Mrs. Levings will go to France sometime this fall, and their son George will return to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.

NEW ABMA INSIGNIA — Military personnel of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency will shortly be wearing a new shoulder insignia which has been recently approved by the Department of the Army. The missile on the patch, as well as the border, is in yellow. Blue and red form the background. The new insignia is to be on sale in the Post Exchange.

Big Week on Agenda At New Service Club

BY RHODA STAMBAUGH

Public Information Office
Everything is new at the Rocket Service Club — including the program director and the recreation director. Tomorrow night they begin a gala week.

The new recreation director is Miss Kate Griffin who arrived just in time to help move the club records from the old location off Jordan Lane to the new building in the troop area.

Miss Martha Gage will be the program director. She was scheduled to arrive from Ft. Polk, La., tomorrow, where she was the club director.

Tomorrow night there will be a formal opening of the club. The program will include a reception from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m.

At 8 p.m., a semi-formal dance is scheduled with Tommy Tucker's orchestra furnishing the music.

Miss Molly Patterson, club director, announced that an invitation has been extended to all the single girls working at Redstone and all military personnel to attend the dance.

Also housed in the new building (officially it's Bldg. 691), is the post library Miss Ann Farrar, the post librarian, will also hold open house in the much expanded new library during the opening celebration.

Miss Patterson and Miss Farrar are well-known at this military establishment, but Miss Griffin will be meeting most of the people for the first time. She graduated from Mississippi Southern

REDSTONE WILL BE REPRESENTED IN TWO NEW NATIONAL MAGAZINES

Two new magazines covering fields of interest to a great number of Redstone employees will appear this fall—and the arsenal is to be represented in both.

"Missiles and Rockets," a magazine of world astronautics, will appear for the first time in October. The lead article is to be written by Dr. Wernher von Braun, director of the Development Operations Division, Army Ballistic Missile Agency.

Young 'Rocketeer' To Bring Product For Redstone Test

Probably one of the world's youngest rocket builders will visit Redstone Arsenal soon to test his product.

He is Jimmy Blackmon, 17-year-old high school student of Charlotte, N. C.

Jimmy read a few books about rockets and rocket fuels, and became deeply interested. While other boys were tinkering with hot rod automobiles, Jimmy busied himself in his basement workshop and came up with a six-foot, six-inch rocket, powered with liquid oxygen and gasoline, and complete with a fuel injection system.

When Jimmy finished his rocket last week, he found himself akin to the man who is said to have built a boat in his basement and couldn't get it out.

Instead of being hemmed in by solid walls, Jimmy was restrained by anxious members of the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce's Aviation Committee.

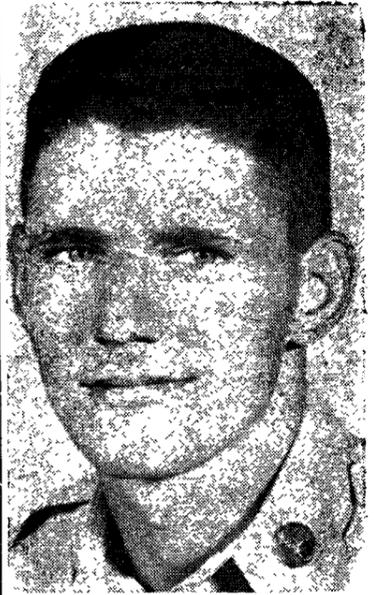

When he announced plans to test it on an isolated tract of land near Charlotte, the city airport manager joined the protests. Not knowing the range of the unguided missile, they feared that it might possibly hit a plane, or at least startle the passengers.

They consulted the Civil Aeronautics Administration in Washington. After deliberation, the CAA ruled that Jimmy's brainchild was technically an aircraft. They did not approve its flight under "backyard" conditions.

Maybe, Jimmy thought, it could be fired at some Army rocket testing grounds. And Redstone got the job.

Brig. Gen. H. N. Toftoy, arsenal commander, gave his approval last week for a static firing here. Date of the test will depend upon when Jimmy and his rocket can arrive here.

Meanwhile, Jimmy, somewhat bewildered by all the commotion,

TOP SOLDIER — Sp/3 George E. Adams, enlisted aide to Gen. H. N. Toftoy, has been chosen "Soldier of the Month" from the 9330 TU. Before entering the service in 1954 Adams attended Penn State College where he was majoring in Business Administration. He was assigned to Redstone in June 1955 and worked in the Industrial Division. He became arsenal commander's aide in February 1956.

has become something of a national celebrity. Newsweek magazine has already carried him in its columns, and Life and Look have expressed an interest in the Redstone "venture" coming up.

Decatur Trade School Supplies Workers for Arsenal

BY DON WORRELL
Public Information Office

Vital Redstone Arsenal needs skilled employees. The State Vocational Trade School at Decatur furnishes them. The increasingly important relationship between the two organizations can be summarized that simply.

About 450 Decatur Trade School graduates are presently working in various jobs at Redstone, the Army Ballistic Missile Agency and Ordnance Guided Missile School located there — making the three units taken together the school's largest single employer, according to Carlton Kelley, school director.

Of the 475 students (from 27 counties) now enrolled, practically all could qualify for arsenal employment upon graduation, Mr. Kelley points out. And a lot of them will, he adds.

Some 6,000 men and women have been through the school — learning their choice of the 20 different trades taught there — since its establishment in 1941. They're scattered throughout the country now, but many still write back to Mr. Kelley to let him know their training is paying off.

The Decatur School — comprising 13 buildings on a 20-acre million dollar plant — is one of six such institutions in the state. Others are located at Gadsden, Birmingham, Tuscaloosa, Dothan and Mobile.

Twenty-five qualified instructors teach these widely varied subjects: auto body and fender repair, auto mechanics, barbering, cabinet making and millwork, carpentry, Diesel mechanics, drafting mechanics, electricity, radio and television, piano tuning and repair, plumbing and pipe fitting, machine shop practice, office machine repair, upholstery and auto trim, watch repair, sheet metal, acetylene and electric welding, practical nursing, refrigeration and air conditioning.

All courses are 24 months long, except barbering and piano tuning which are 12. Six hours of instruction — four in the appropriate shop and two in a classroom — are given each day, five days a week. The two-year course consists of a total of 2,796 hours of instruction. Both day and night classes are held, since many of the students have regular (and often completely unrelated) jobs.

SOON, MAYBE, IN A REDSTONE MACHINE SHOP — Right now these State Vocational Trade School students are hard at work learning machine shop techniques in their shop-classes at Decatur. Someday soon, perhaps, they'll be hard at work — but for pay this time — in the huge machine shops at Redstone Arsenal, turning out vital components needed in the Army Ordnance installation's rocket and guided missile research and development program. Over 450 Decatur Trade School graduates are already employed by the arsenal. In the photo above, the school's director, Carlton Kelley (right), looks on as students Horace Johnson, Lawrence L. Baker, and Curtis L. Lindsey operate the machinery.

For the past five years, she has been a school teacher at Vicksburg. During the summers, Miss Griffin did YMCA work along the camp-director-playground-leader lines.

Capt. and Mrs. Frederick Davis will receive with the Service Club staff. Capt. Davis is the Special Services Officer.

Throughout the club the appointments are along modern lines. Music rooms, game rooms and a TV room with an oversized screen are all available to the enlisted men. The lounge doubles as a ballroom. The lounge has a stage which adjoins dressing rooms for formal entertainment. And for special parties, there is a fully equipped kitchen where amateur chefs can hold sway on scheduled nights.

Next week's schedule is typical of the variety of activities available at the Rocket Service Club:

On Tuesday night the Missilemen and Misslemaids will practice. Game rooms and TV are available.

Wednesday is the formal opening of the club.

Thursday there will be bridge instruction from 6 p.m. and dance instruction under the direction of Don Power will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Friday night a hamburger party was scheduled. However, it has changed to a steak supper with trimmings. The cost will be one dollar per person.

Saturday night there will be a watermelon cutting at 6:30 p.m. Games and TV are available every night.

Sunday morning coffee call is at 9:30 a.m. A "Moods in Music" hour is planned at 10 a.m. At 8:30 p.m., an evening of games will begin.

Monday night the square dancers meet at 7 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

SEVERAL EXAMS ARE ANNOUNCED

Announcement No. 5-35-16(54) calling for addressing machine operators, graphotype operators, card punch operators, booking machine operators, miscellaneous duplicating equipment operator and calculating machine operators closes on August 16. Grades range from GS-1 through GS-4 according to the position. Applications must be in the Redstone Arsenal office or postmarked before midnight of Aug. 16 or they will not be honored.

Announcement No. 5-35-20 (56) also carries the above closing date. This announcement called for a clerk in grades ranging from GS-1 through GS-3.

A new announcement No. 5-35-24(56) calls for gage checkers. The grades here are WB-12 at $1.97 per hour, WB-14 at $2.11 per hour and WB-17 at $2.32 per hour.

Nike Set To Guard Germany

Washington (AFPS) — Nike anti-aircraft guided missiles will defend key American military installations in Europe in the future, according to the Army.

The first Nike batteries will ring with the huge and complex air base at Kaiserlauten, Germany, the Army disclosed.

The Kaiserlauten command, with the world's greatest concentration of defense units and equipment packed into a 60-by-100-mile area, would be prime target for air attack.

Bounded by the Rhine, Moselle laced with supply depots, signal and ordnance repair shops, and gasoline and ammunition dumps, in addition to some 80,000 troops.

The Army will protect this vital depot network in West Germany with a chain of Nike sites similar to that now defending 18 principal cities in the U. S.

GROUP WORKS ON MEDICARE PLAN To Provide Better Care for Dependents

Washington (AFPS) — A Health Plan Advisory Committee will be formed as the first move toward putting the Dependents' Medical Care Act of 1956 into effect, the Defense Department has announced.

The Act, which will provide better medical and dental service for military families, was signed into law last June 7 by President Eisenhower.

The committee, to be chosen from members of leading medical and health associations, will assist Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson in setting up insurance, medical service and health plans for dependents of servicemen.

The Act gives the DOD authority to contract for such services to assure the availability of medical and dental care to dependents because of their location and circumstances.

Those covered under the plan would be permitted to choose between medical and dental care at military installations or facil-

1,000 Army Civilians Take Top-Level Study

WASHINGTON — Service in the Army is a constant educational process. When not studying full time at a service school, the officer and enlisted men is encouraged to attend evening classes or take correspondence courses.

Nor is the civilian employe of the Army overlooked when educational opportunities are offered. The Industrial College of the Armed Forces, a top school in the military education ladder, reports that nearly 1000 Army civilians are taking its correspondence course in Emergency Management of the National Economy. It is aimed at developing leaders for the management of the country's economy in case of mobilization.

Tuition and text materials are free. But the civilian student makes a free-will offering of his time—two or three hours of home study each week for 51 weeks.

Among the poisonous snakes that Malone has caught were rattlers, water moccasins, coral snakes and copperheads. He has been bitten by snakes, but never by poisonous species.

He catches his prey with a snake-stick, which consists of a noose at one end (to lasso the snake behind the head) and a fork

Q. Will I also have social security deductions taken from my pay?

A. No. The 6 1/2 percent is the only deduction for retirement purposes.

Q. Is my agency required to contribute to the retirement fund?

A. Yes. Beginning in July 1957 each agency will match the amount paid by the employe.

Q. Does the amount contributed by my agency get credited to my retirement account?

A. No. Agency contributions go into the general retirement fund to help pay for benefits and will not be credited to any employe's account.

Q. What are the various conditions under which an employe may retire?

A. An employe MUST retire at age 70 after 15 or more years' service. An employe may retire at age 62 with 5 years of service or at 60 with 30 years service to obtain the full benefit of the annuity. HERE'S INFORMATION ON CHANGES IN FEDERAL RETIREMENT PLAN

EDITORS NOTE — This is the first in a series of questions and answers on retirement benefits furnished by the Civil Service Commission.

The President has signed the bill passed by Congress on July 26 amending the Civil Service Retirement Act, which will make some important changes in the Federal retirement system.

Because of the great interest of Federal employes, the Civil Service Commission has prepared the following questions and answers explaining the highlights of the amendments. These changes become effective on October 1.

Q. What are the major changes made by the Civil Service Retirement Act amendments of 1956?

A. The major changes are (1) an increase in employes' retirement deductions, (2) a more liberal formula for computing annuities, which will result in higher annuities for retiring employes and widows, (3) a lower reduction rate in annuities for retirement before age 60, (4) a minimum disability annuity, (5) higher children's annuities, (6) survivor annuities for dependent widowers, and (8) no interest to accrue after December 31, 1956, on refunds to separated employes who have 5 or more years' civilian service.

Q. When does the amended Retirement Act become effective?

A. It will be effective October 1, 1956.

Q. To whom does the law apply?

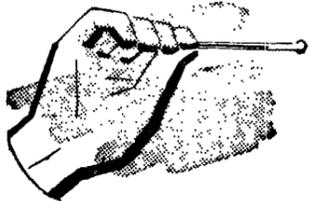

A. It applies to all employes subject to the Retirement Act who are in the service on or after its effective date. This covers most civilian employes of the Federal Government and the District of Columbia Government.

Q. How much will be deducted from my salary for the retirement fund?

A. Six and one-half percent of an employe's basic salary will be deducted.

Q. When does this increased deduction from my salary begin?

A. Salary deductions at 6 1/2 per-

Surprised Hotel Man Returns Officer's Bible

FORT RUCKER, Ala. — Capt. Robert H. McDonald of (204 Thorvald) San Antonio, Tex., is assigned to the Army Aviation School here. He also teaches Sunday School at a church in nearby Ozark.

Recently, while on Army business in Philadelphia, he brought along his Bible in order to plan next Sunday's lesson. In the rush to catch a plane back, he left it in his hotel room.

After considerable trouble—including a phone call to Washington—to get the proper address, a hotel manager nobody had ever left a Bible behind.

"That," he wrote, "seems reason enough to return it, at my own expense, as soon as possible."

BERLIN—Being in an army is not a new experience to Sergeant Ronald Tousignant, of the Berlin School's Command here. He had an army of brothers and sisters at home—16 altogether.

Tousignant, who is the youngest of 17 children, plans to have 12 himself.

"A round dozen would be fine," he says.

The three youngest children are now in Europe. One brother, Norman, is studying for the priesthood in Rome. The other, Roger, is a supply sergeant for a medical company in Stuttgart. They plan a reunion in Rome.

Tousignant, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tousignant of (88 Lovewell St.) Gardner, Mass., is 21 and his oldest sister is 45. He is an uncle 34 times—15 nephews and 19 nieces. He has 64 immediate relatives.

"At least, that's what it was at last count," he says.

Of the eight Tousignant brothers, all but the one studying for the priesthood have served in the armed forces. Five saw action in World War II, two in the Pacific and three in Europe. One was an Army captain and two others were Navy lieutenants.

All 17 children went to the same parochial grammar school, which means that there has always been a Tousignant there from 1914 to the present. After the sergeant left in 1947, his oldest brother's daughter entered to maintain the continuity.

All eight of the brothers and five of the nine sisters have gone to college. All told, the senior Tousignant has had to pay for 55 years of higher education.

The sergeant was graduated from Assumption College in Massachusetts, where he majored in philosophy. He wants eventually to go into the hotel business.

Tousignant recalls a humorous incident which arose out of having such a large family:

"One evening, my dad was mad at all of us kids. And so as we entered the dining room, he gave each one of us a spanking. Well, some of the neighborhood youngsters came in also, and they inadvertently got a spanking also. 'Hey,' said my dad, 'these kids aren't all mine.'"

"Now that all the children are grown up and have left home, my parents' house has become like a central news agency or an Army Message Center. We all write our folks and then dad sends out letters to us, telling what the others are doing. Some times, he gets mixed up, and also tells us what we are doing."

When the elder Tousignant, who owns his own real estate company, was asked on a television show if he wasn't financially drained by having so many children, he said, "Not at all. Each kid is worth a million to me. I'm a millionaire 17 times over."

on the outside.

Sixteen years is the minimum age limit for students, and there are no educational requirements. The school maintains a testing program to help would-be students determine just where their interests and aptitudes lie.

Starting in the Fall, the school will have a fleet of buses serving seven counties in the Eighth Congressional District, picking up students within a 50-mile radius of Decatur. Two of the buses will serve Huntsville.

The school has dormitory accommodations for about 50 single students and 10 couples.

Tuition for enrollment in the Decatur Trade School is $10 a month for students under 21, and $25 for those over. A small additional fee is charged out-of-state students.

Co-educational, the school has some 50 female students.

It isn't all work and no play—the school has its own baseball team and an orchestra which performs regularly on Decatur's Television Channel 23. The students also put out their own newspaper—in which they jokingly refer to themselves, according to their trades, in such terms as wood butchers, knuckle busters, tack spitters, lead stoppers, nut busters, tin benders, hot rodders, crew cuts, dial twisters, and tinkers of tick tock.

But these light-hearted self-references can't hide the hard-reassuring fact that these ambitious and industrious students are making the Decatur Trade School slogan come true: "Preparing Alabama Youth and Adults to take their Place in Industry."

For increasing numbers of them, that place is "right next door" at Redstone Arsenal.
