SPARKMAN, HILL HEAD GROUP

Ala. Legislators Tour Arsenal

A delegation of Alabama's U. S. senators and representatives, and possibly several Congressmen from other states as well, who are in Huntsville to attend the opening of the Norton Company's brand-new multi-million dollar electric furnace plant were scheduled to tour this installation today.

Alabama Congressmen who have accepted invitations for the post tour this morning include Sens. John J. Sparkman and Lister Hill, and the following representatives: Bob Jones, Scottsboro; Armistead Selden, Tuscaloosa; George Huddleston, Birmingham; Albert Rains, Gadsden; Kenneth Roberts, Anniston; and Carl Elliott, Jasper.

In addition to this morning's tour for the Congressional group, post tours are scheduled this afternoon for other guests of Norton Co., and Wednesday morning for Norton Co. officials.

Norton is the world's largest manufacturer of abrasive products (whetstones, pumice, etc.). The company will manufacture electric furnace products in its new Huntsville plant, plus special fusion-stabilized materials for the atomic energy program. The plant, designed by G. W. Jones & Sons of Huntsville, is laid out to provide for ready expansion of production facilities to meet future needs, officials said.

Among the distinguished guests invited to participate in tours of the arsenal are the Alabama dele-

GOAL EXCEEDED BY SOME $4,000

First Unified Campaign Success

The goal has been passed in the post's One-Time Fund Drive.

An estimated $74,000 was raised in the three-week effort, bettering the goal by some $4,000, Chairman Kermit Day said.

Approximately 90 percent of the 12,000 persons employed by all organizations on the post contributed to the fund raising drive, the first such united campaign ever conducted here.

At Rocket deadline late last week, cash receipts and pledges totaled $72,534.54. It was estimated that at least $1,500 had been collected but had not yet been reported to drive officials.

Two-thirds of the intake was in cash payments, Chairman Day said, with the remaining third to be made in payments throughout next year.

Major participants in the drive were Redstone Arsenal, Army Ballistic Missile Agency, Ordnance Guided Missile School, Thiokol Chemical Corporation and Rohm and Haas Chemical Co.

"Over 75 organization elements scattered over the arsenal had 100 per cent participation in our first One-Time Drive," Mr. Day said as the drive drew to an end.

"There were many others that came very close to making the 100 Per Cent Club. The hard-working solicitors who did such a magnificent job are to be commended for such a fine showing. The campaign executive committee is issuing citations to all the groups that attained the 100 per cent level."

Notable among the 100 Per Cent Club were several large organizations (See $74,000 on Page 12)

Post Actors Have Top Roles in Play Set by Little Theater

Ben Marguglio of RDD and Jim Dwyer of Field Service Division, Redstone Arsenal, play two of the most important roles in the Huntsville Little Theater's production of "Hansel and Gretel" to be staged next Saturday (Dec. 15) in the Huntsville High School Auditorium.

Hansel will be played by Ben Marguglio, while Jim Dwyer will be seen as the father.

The play, under the direction of Mrs. Roy Martin, will be seen twice. The first performance will be staged at 10 o'clock in the morning and the other at 7:30 p. m.

The version of the play being used by the group was written by Madge Miller and published by The Children's Theater Press of Anchorage, Ky., for use by adults who wish to bring alive the folk tales of the past for the children of today. All parts in the play are being characterized by people from Redstone Arsenal, OGMS, ABMA, and the City of Huntsville.

One-Time Drive Balloons Launched Here Reported Seen

The high-flyin' weather balloons sent up last month to help publicize the post's One-Time Drive didn't go altogether unnoticed.

One was found and apparently another was spotted—still heading for unknown horizons.

Al Taylor of Alabama City, Alabama, near Gadsden, wrote The Rocket that he found one of the balloons between Altoona and Attalla. He requested, and is getting, his free, one-way trip to the moon, courtesy of Redstone, ABMA, and OGMS.

Northward, the Nashville Banner recently carried a story headed: "Unidentified Object Seen In Weststate; Believed Balloon." It reported that hundreds of west Tennessee residents had seen an object which the CAA said apparently was a balloon flying at about 75,000 feet.

GEN. MEDARIS URGES SCIENTIFIC PREPARATION BY NATION'S YOUTH

Maj. Gen. J. B. Medaris, ABMA commander, warned the American Ordnance Association last week that adequate preparation in mathematics and the sciences for American youth is essential to the national defense.

Gen. Medaris delivered the luncheon address on "Armament Preparedness" at the Association's 38th annual industrial preparedness meeting in the Waldorf Astoria in New York City. He was introduced by Lt. Gen. Leslie Groves, who commanded the historic Manhattan Project which perfected the atomic bomb of World War II.

Making a strong plea for better scientific and technical offerings in public schools, Gen. Medaris declared that Army weapons "are only as good as the men who use them." For their efficient use in the nuclear missile age, he said the Army "must have a continuing supply of men capable of absorbing specialist training in minimum time."

"That means young men who possess basic technical preparation," the general added. "Time will not be available after our liberty is endangered to begin teaching rudimentary science and mathematics. The responsibility to provide the right kind of preparation on a nationwide scale is not the Army's alone. It is the challenge facing all to whom the preservation of liberty is worth the price of adequate preparedness."

Reviewing Army progress in the development of tactical rockets and long range missiles, Gen. Medaris declared that rapid advances of science and technology "not confined to the U. S. alone" requires that "today's concepts be translated into deployed weapons in an absolute minimum of time."

"I must suggest that speed of progress demands that all programs in the complex, modern weapons area be crash programs and telescoped to the maximum extent possible if this objective (See MEDARIS on Page 2)

PA. SOLON VISITS POST TO LEARN ABOUT PROGRAMS

Rep. James E. Van Zandt, (R., Pa.) visited the Army Ballistic Missile Agency and Redstone Arsenal last week to obtain firsthand information on Army missile programs.

The Congressman is a member of the House Armed Services Committee and the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy. He has represented the 20th Pennsylvania District in the 83rd and 84th Congresses, and prior to that was elected from the 22nd Pennsylvania District for the 76th through 82nd Congresses.

Having been briefed on ABMA's ballistic missile developmental work, which covers the Redstone and Jupiter programs, and the multi-faceted rocket and missile programs being pursued by Redstone Arsenal, Rep. Van Zandt declared the Congress will examine the impact of the recent Department of Defense decision regarding roles and missions when it reconvenes early in the new year.

Rep. Van Zandt is touring Army, Navy and Air Force installations to brief himself at firsthand on their requirements, capabilities and programs before the Congress meets.

He also was briefed on the Ordnance Guided Missile School while here.

Maj. Gen. J. B. Medaris, ABMA commander, greeted the Congressman at Redstone Airport. With Gen. Medaris were Brig. Gen. J. A. Barclay, deputy ABMA commander; Brig. Gen. John G. Shinkle, deputy Redstone commander; and Dr. Martin Schilling of the Arsenal. Rep. Van Zandt reviewed an MP guard of honor with Gen. Medaris.

ABMA briefings were presented by Col. J. G. Zierdt, chief of the Control Office, and Col. D. Hallock, chief, Engineer Office.

The missile agency commander cited the "manpower emergency" which, he said, "will have consequences of the gravest importance unless a solution is found." Both industry and the military need men equipped by training, skill, and experience to maintain and operate intricate equipment, he said.

Gen. Medaris cited a World War II achievement to support his contention. He said the U.S. Army depended heavily upon superior mobility by trucks, jeeps, and tanks in that conflict. One reason for the Army's success was that most of the men drawn into military service had basic knowledge of automotive equipment. "The Army no less than industry can be equally prepared for possible conflict only if assured a reserve of manpower to whom the basic principles of mathematics, chemistry, physics, and electronics are just as familiar as the screw driver, pliers, and automobile were to the inductee of World War II," he continued.

Asserting that education is preparation for the future, Gen. Medaris pointed out that it "takes lead time to develop skilled manpower just as it does to produce tanks, guns and missiles."

"The nation's future rests in great part on our ability to catch up and forge ahead in the international race for technically trained manpower. It is high time for real action in this field."

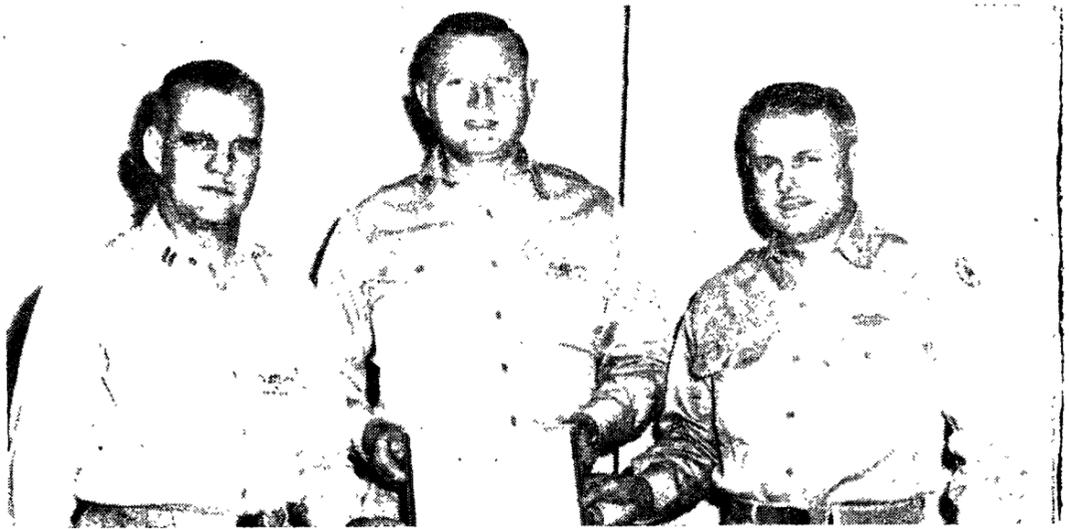

Describing the physical facilities of the Army Missile Agency and the capabilities of its personnel, headed by Dr. Wernher von Braun, Gen. Medaris predicted their current undertaking in development of the Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile will be successful.

"The Army's record of weapons systems deployed in the field per dollar invested is superior," he declared. "Every schedule is being met; some milestones are being surpassed. In every case the means to the end are clearly within the known state of the missile art."

The Agency commander touched briefly upon a recent Defense Department announcement which gave the Air Force operational employment of the IRBM.

"As a government agency," he observed, "my organization must at all times be flexible and responsive to the needs of the country. The Army has a long history of serving others than itself, we have no predilection about whom we serve. The Army wants to ensure maximum return for every tax dollar invested."

"Your Army today has available rocket and missile firepower which greatly extends its range of destruction, which carries more destructive force than any land weapons of the past. The potential of the guided missiles as a superior delivery system will be exploited to the limit of available resources. The Army well understands that time is of the COMMENDED — Duties of the 291st MP Company at this installation require that the 12 square miles on which this installation is situated, be motor-patrolled 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. This includes all three Class II activities located here (ABMA, RSA, and OGMS). For performing these duties in an excellent manner and for a period of three months (9,000 man-days) without a reportable accident (including off-duty and off-post time), a commendation was presented recently to the Company's commanding officer, Captain J. M. Hancock (left), and the first sergeant, Sgt. James Shelton (center) by Captain Jesse Garner, the commander of Special Troops.

IN FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS— Young John Stuart Cook, 18-year-old English-born stepson of Redstone's deputy post commander, Col. Keith T. O'Keefe, seems to be following in the colonel's footsteps—he's going into the Army Ordnance Corps, too. Cook is shown above being processed for enlistment into the U. S. Army by Sgt. John T. Lindsey, local recruiting sergeant. He was sworn in at the state's main recruiting station in Montgomery recently and has been granted a reservation by the Department of the Army to attend the Army's Ordnance Electronics Course at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., upon completion of his basic training at Ft. Jackson, S. C. The young soldier, who has taken out his initial U. S. citizenship papers, signed up for a three-year enlistment under the Regular Army's "Reserved For You" program, which enables high school graduates to apply for technical schools of their choice before enlisting. He graduated from Lorastown High School, Ohio, last June.

sound and said, "Lady, look at that." Well, it was only a toe that had been broken and never straightened. He hopped up, called the foot doctor, (whatever they call them) and points. The foot doctor sat down, grabbed my leg, hit on the ball of my foot, pulled each toe and shook his head. By then I just knew I would have to have my foot amputated. He left, came back with what I thought were inner soles and placed them in my shoes. I thanked him and started out of the store when all of a sudden he gave a lunge and grabbed me by the shoulder and said, "Lady, those things in your shoes will cost you $7.50. By that time I was ready to lose both feet, so I sat down, took my shoes off and took those little things out of my shoes, handed them to the man and decided to go barefooted. This could really go on and on — some you would believe and some of you wouldn't believe, but it all really happened.

Gee, it is tough to be the low man on the totem pole. Have you ever heard of sour grapes? Well, these are pickled grapes. I have to stay here and work this week while one of my co-horts (Marty) goes to Atlanta for a gay conference. That's okay, I'll make PFC before I retire, then I can go.

Man, just think, one whole week at home for Christmas. I hope I don't flip my mother's cushions every night before the company leaves. That is really a habit with me (I developed it when I went to work at the Service Club).

NEVER AGAIN! No never again—W H A T? Never will I go on a shopping trip to Birmingham again with anybody beside myself. W H Y? Have you ever had to meet three or four people at the same time at a different place? Well, one comes up and says, "Stand here while I go get so and so". While you're standing there trying not to look conspicuous (middle of the floor) people having to go around you to pass people coming up and staring (thinking you're a manakin) feeling to see if they like the material in the clothes you are wearing—others thinking you're a floor walker, giving out information, asking where this is and where that is (when you don't know where you are) and then the second party comes along and says, "I just saw the first party who told you to stand there so it's okay if you go with me. You two split up to meet someplace later at a given time and they forget where.

Oh, if only I had worn a mileage meter. In Loveman's alone I know I put a good ten miles on —man! I was fit to be tied. Then all of a sudden you hear a scream and see someone that you act like is a long lost friend you haven't seen for years and there they are standing, grinning, unconcerned and unconscious.

Well, you find out they gave up a long time ago and you were just chasing yourself around the store for nothing. I know one lady thought surely that I was a permanent fixture on the escalator because she tried to hang her purse around my neck while adjusting her hat. It's great, man, great. You should go on a Service Club Shopping Trip. You haven't lived until you do, and you don't live for a while afterwards, either. Anyway, to make a very long story short, I didn't get any shopping done.

Coming back, Ricky Nakamura kept everyone in stitches with his "knock knock" jokes. It's just like turning on a water faucet. It never shuts off—goes on and on. That boy is a bird. Get him to tell you the one about Santa.

Oh please, I must tell you this. Have you ever, very innocently, walked into a store to purchase a simple pair of shoes and caused an uproar? Well, let me tell you, if you have any missing toes, broken toes, crooked toes or too many toes, please hide them before you buy. We walked in and asked to see such and such a type of shoe and the man smiled, measured my foot, and tipped off to go get what I wanted. He tipped back, singing, "Oh, I'll get your money and you rascal, you". He sat down and very tenderly picked my foot up. Boy! I screamed . . . shoe hurt . . . he rared

ENLISTED BOWLING NEWS

BY CULP

29 Nov.— The Launchers led the league in the win column tonight by a four to nothing stomp on the Bugouts. Led by Hickey, the Launchers rolled games of 835, 769, 765 for a 2369 series, against which the Bugouts could muster games of 627, 703, 693 for a 2028 plus 44 pins handicap per game, for a 671, 752, 737, 2160. With this win the Launchers moved into a tie for first place in the league standings.

The Commodores with an 84 pin handicap, whopped up a three to one win over the Zebras, registering games of 783, 716, 672, scratch for a 2171 series. It was the handicap which won for them in every game, as the Zebras rolled an 892, 749, 770, 2312 series winning only the final game of the three. Seems the Zebras need a shot in the arm to get back into the winning column.

The Split Kings rolled well in picking up three wins to one over the Alley Cats, spotting the Alley Cats 17 pins per game. With a 736, 693, 730, 2159 series, the Kings lost only the second game, as the Cats rolled a 691, 761, 637, 2089 series. It was touch and go most of the way, though, as the final pinfall total for the Kings was only 19 pins over that of the Cats.

The Strikers continue to roll heavy, winning a three to one series over the Signaleers. With Miller leading the way, the Strikers bowled games of 813, 739, 805, for a 2357 series. It shows that this team is 'one team to beat' in this league of ours. The Signaleers were fairly steady, even with a 28 pin handicap, but the 717, 755, 711, 2183 scratch wasn't quite enough to win any except the second game.

The Jesters jumped up and bowled for a change and split even with the Transients as a result. Rolling their best series of the season, the Jesters came up with games of 733, 777, and 692 for a 2202 series. This, plus an 8 pin handicap per game (their lowest of the season, by the way), gave them the first and second games and they lost total pins by only 13 pins. For the Transients it was a 734, 720, 785, 2239 series, just about average for them of late. They are having a hard time staying even since losing two of the starters they had early in the season.

High series for the night was rolled by Marlin Miller, who hit games of 167, 187, and 198 for a 552. Others in the '500 Club' for the night were Tobias with a 187, 177, 161, 525; Bollenbacher with 167, 133, 209, 509; Culp with 171, 170, 166, 507; and Hickey with a 177, 172, 155, 504. There were many highs in the 470's and 480's, but too numerous to mention in this article, since it's too long as is.

1 Dec.— In makeup games on 1 Dec. the Alley Cats led the way with a four to nothing win over the Transients. With games of 754, 767, and 783, for a 2289, the Alley Cats were steadier than at any other time since the season began. The Transients pushed them, but the 37 pin handicap on top of the scores listed above proved too much, since the Transients rolled games of 746, 768, and 720 for a 2234. Just a case of too many cats ganging up on a group who doesn't plan to stay too long.

The Commodores continued their winning string with a three to one win over the Bugouts. With games of 662, 779, and 637 for a 2078 the Commodores were hard pressed, but with an additional 22, 14, 14, 50 handicap proved the masters. The Bugouts, who have had trouble fielding five men at any one time, dropped on games of 657, 667, and 706, for a 2030, as low as any series they have had this year. However, with some additional assistance, scheduled for next week, they ought to be back in contention pretty quick.

The Jesters rolled two makeup series today, the first against the Split Kings, which series the Jesters came out on top three to one. Again they hit a new team high with games of 780, 777, and 793 for a 2350. They even went so far as to spot pins, the first this year for them, with a 42, 35, 32, 109 to the Kings. The Kings were lower than normal with 769, 693, 728 for a 2190 scratch series, taking only the first game. This goes to prove that the Jesters, even though they are in the cellar, are hot contenders to knock off any of the league leaders at any time.

In the Jesters' second series of the day they managed to come out two and two against the league leading Strikers. After dropping the first two games the Jesters came back to win the third and pulled out total pins by one pin over the Strikers. It was a 744, 846, 812, 2402 for the Jesters.

Mason-Dixon Toastmasters Meet

The Mason-Dixon Toastmasters Club, No. 2186, met for their weekly meeting at the Elks Club on Monday night at 6:15 p.m. Toastmaster for the evening was Games Graylee. Chuck Garigues was awarded the "Best Speaker Trophy" for his enthusiastic sales pitch entitled, "Berie You Buy That Car." Dick Haskins of OML was welcomed as a new member. Guests were Chuck Walker and Cecil McAllister, both from the Redstone Civilian Personnel Office.

another new high series to continue their high rolling, and with the 18, 21, 18, 57 pin handicap they managed to sneak through on total pins.

High rolling was seen from Smith of the Transients with a 156, 189, 170, 515; Trowbridge of the Alley Cats with two games of 210, and 205; Greener of the Jesters with a 189, 146, 167, 502 and a 213, 165, 149, 527; Morgan of the Jesters with a 176, 176, 174, 526; Miller of the Strikers with a 195, 193, 159, 547; and Gundy of the Strikers with a 157, 200, 165, 522. Jouppi of the Strikers almost made the 500 Club with a 494, as did Francis of the Split Kings with a 498 and his team mate Kerska with a 491; again, there were a few 480's.

The league standings saw numerous changes, with the final result as indicated:

Team	W	L	GB
Launchers	29	19	—
Strikers	29	19	—
Zebras	26	22	3
Signaleers	26	22	3
Transients	25 $\frac{1}{2}$	22 $\frac{1}{2}$	3 $\frac{1}{2}$
Alley Cats	25	23	4

Bugouts	20 $\frac{1}{2}$	27 $\frac{1}{2}$	8 $\frac{1}{2}$
Commodores	20	28	9
Jesters	17	31	12

The weekend bowling saw Marlin Miller moving into first place in the individual standings. As I said, as soon as he hits his stride he will start to move, and move he has. The Top Ten are as follows:

Name	Games	Avg.
Miller	16	175
Varney	24	172
Hickey	34	170
Smith	29	168
Ross	30	167
Gundy	24	166
Trowbridge	23	165

NEW STRUCTURES AND MECHANICS LAB --- Here is an architect's view of the new Structures and Mechanics laboratory which is to be erected at ABMA. J. A. Jones Construction Co. of Atlanta has been awarded a $4,280,000 contract for the job. The lab, located across from ABMA headquarters, will include four buildings and provide 183,000 square feet of floor space. This project is one of several under way on the post which total more than $20,000,000 in new construction.

PATENT GRANTED FOR MORTAR MOUNT — Col. Merlin L. DeGuire, Industrial Division Chief at Redstone Arsenal, congratulates Edgar C. Roberts, of Industrial, who has received a patent for his part in developing a mount for mortars. It is now the Army's standard mortar mount, and features a simple effective shock absorber. Its use relieves our government from paying royalties to France on the French mount previously standard. Mr. Roberts and Saul Weiss of Washington, D. C., invented the mount while working at the Office of Chief of Ordnance. This is Mr. Roberts fifth patent granted, and he has several others pending.

DEPENDENT HOUSING INFORMATION RULES FOR YULE FIRE SAFETY GIVEN

The following policies will govern the assignment of on-post housing during the transition period from now until the first increment of the Capehart Project is completed.

All officers and warrant officers presently quartered in Redstone Park will be required to vacate that project not later than 31 January 1957. These individuals will be tendered quarters in Weeden Manor or Buildings T-158 and T-159. It is not contemplated that any additional officer personnel will be assigned to Redstone Park.

After the above personnel have been relocated, the remainder of the units available in Weeden Manor, as a result of personnel moving to MCA Housing, will be assigned to officer personnel who have definite hardship cases for housing.

After the above categories of personnel have been housed, future vacancies in Weeden Manor will be filled by officer personnel in the following priorities:

1. Newly arrived officers.
2. Hardship cases.
3. Personnel presently on housing list for Weeden Manor.

Upon completion of the first increment of the Capehart Project, it is contemplated that Weeden Manor will be utilized to house non-commissioned officers of the first three grades.

Only enlisted personnel will be assigned quarters in Redstone Park. Assignment to this project will be made by grade and date of rank, i.e., all master sergeants will be housed prior to sergeants first class, etc., throughout the enlisted grade structure. In the past such assignments have been made based on the date of application without any consideration having been given to grade.

Military personnel desiring assignment to housing on this installation should contact the Billeting Officer, Room 27, Building A-101. Personnel who have already made application to the Billeting Officer for housing need not re-apply.

Arsenal Cub Scout Pack 234 Holds Its Monthly Meeting

Redstone Arsenal's Cub Scout Pack 234 held its monthly pack meeting at the Youth Activities Center at the Arsenal on Thursday night, Nov. 29.

During the month of November, the study project for all Cub Scouts was the island of Puerto Rico. Feature speaker at the meeting was Sp-2 Francisco Sanchez, chez, from Aguadilla, Puerto Rico, now stationed at the arsenal. He described the colorful customs of the children in Puerto Rico at Christmas time, and told of the many different games in which the children found amusement. Afterwards, Sp-2 Sanchez answered questions asked by the Cub Scouts.

Dens 2 and 4 presented skits on life in Puerto Rico and the characterization of employes in representative industries found there. Dens 1, 3, and 5 displayed exhibits of the agricultural and manufactured products of this important territory of the United States.

Awards were presented by the Scoutmaster, Lt. C. H. Christian, to the following: LION badge, Randy Eders, Carl Hanson, Jackson Kaenel; BEAR badge to Jeffrey Cowan; Silver Arrow point for BEAR badge to Mac Pearce; WOLF badge to Frank Stenstrom, Mac Love, Dickie Thomas, Kip Jean; Gold Arrow point for WOLF badge, Frank Stenstrom, Dickie Thomas, Gene Brymer; Silver Arrow point for WOLF badge to Michael Becker, Burt Shook, David Pearce, Gene Brymer, Ronald Davis and Billy Kurtz.

Den 4 was awarded the blue ribbon as the outstanding den of the meeting.

Cordiner Committee Watches

Washington (AFPS) — The Army's need for combat leadership as a highly specialized skill was demonstrated realistically and convincingly to the Cordiner Committee recently at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

The Ft. Bragg demonstration climaxed 90 days of first-hand investigation of the necessity of retaining technicians and critical skills in the Armed Forces by committee members at bases in the U. S. and Europe.

Ralph J. Cordiner, chairman of the Defense Advisory Committee on Technical and Professional Compensation, in July at Ft. Carson, Colo., expressed the conviction that one of the big jobs his panel faces is the identification of combat leadership skills required of the fighting man and then to make sure that these men are receiving fair pay for their vigorous and hazardous duties they must perform.

A full meeting of the committee was slated at the Pentagon to shape its conclusions and recommendations resulting from the field studies and proposals originated by the various services.

It has been reported that these suggestions offer a plan to expand grade structures and add in-grade step increases similar to Civil Service pay scales.

In the enlisted structure, the grades would be upped from seven to perhaps ten, with three or four "steps" in each rank.

The greatest portion of any added costs of such pay increases would come from a revision of the present longevity system.

Committee members, including Mr. Cordiner, who just returned from a fact-finding tour of air bases in Germany and fleet units in the Mediterranean, witnessed a full-dress display of combat leadership in a battalion strength air assault by paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division at the sprawling North Carolina post.

Their introduction to the operation began with the airborne infantrymen drawing "chutes" and donning field equipment for the nylon-assisted drop into battle.

The committee, divided into several groups, then boarded Air Force C-119 transports carrying advanced elements of the assault team.

Enroute to the drop zone and during the tension-packed tumble of the paratroopers from the "flying boxcars," the panel was given an opportunity to see and feel the pressing demands of the highest form of personal leadership.

The military and civilian questioners saw the jump-master platoon commanders inspect each man's gear and carefully check the hook-up of the static lines from the parachute packs to the plane during the final minutes before the "green light and go!" command was given.

And they watched the platoon sergeants working throughout the flight bolstering the spirit and "readiness" of every soldier.

Immediately after the jump, the committee, which will recommend measures or legislation for stemming the exodus of skilled men from the services to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, landed and was whisked into waiting H-21 Army helicopters for their own assault on the area hit minutes earlier by the troops.

By the time the group arrived, the 82nd troopers had performed their "pathfinder" mission and were standing by to explain their individual duties in the transition from planes and ground combat.

Overheard in Hollywood: "Everytime I meet a really good looking girl, either she's married or I am."

CAPT. STRAIN IS AF DEVELOPMENT FIELD REPRESENTATIVE AT RSA

(Editor's Note: This is another in the series of articles on the several officers who are serving at this installation in liaison capacities from other commands).

Capt. Bailey T. "Skip" Strain is the Air Force Development Field Representative at Redstone Arsenal.

This is his daytime business, but after hours he's the Area Governor for Toastmaster's International in North Alabama. He's also active in the American Rocket Society and the Huntsville Junior Chamber of Commerce with time off for golf and bowling when other hobbies don't interfere.

His office is one of 27 established by the Air Research and Development Command at key Army and Navy installations, the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, educational institutions and in industry to coordinate U. S. Air Force Res. and Dev. projects and to serve as contact points for persons who need technical information from the USAF.

To carry out the 16 primary reasons these liaison offices were established to keep the USAF abreast of all the new scientific trends developed by the government and industry. Capt. Strain reports technical accomplishments of significance to the program, provides a channel of information to assure a continuous flow of technical information and progress, and provides personal engineering coverage of specific projects.

He is a 1946 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy and was awarded a master's degree in aeronautical engineering by the University of Michigan.

Capt. Strain helps establish research and development tests affecting material that will be used by the Air Force but is developed either by other government agencies or industry and keeps the ARDC headquarters abreast of developments as well as witnessing engineering tests so that he can judge the adequacy

It's his business to investigate the technical capability of R&D contractors and to find new capable sources for R&D work.

Sometimes he initiates actions to eliminate delays in the R&D program or provides preliminary engineering analyses of ideas and proposals made by prospective contractors or inventors. He sits in on technical meetings when asked to represent ARDC for technical discussions or to give the Air Force point of view or opinions on technical problems.

He also arranges conferences between the Air Force and other government, military or industrial scientists to solve existing technical problems.

Sometimes he's a one-man public relations department smoothing the path of visitors 100 PER CENTERS— An unusual member of the One-Time Drive "100 Per Cent Club" is the Technical Material and Equipment Branch, Headquarters Commandant, ABMA. Although 83 of the 178 employes reside outside Madison County, each employe contributed in the drive, for a total of $782.25. Solicitors shown above, left to right, are: Benjamin Sadler, Mrs. Wanaa Young, Miss Dorothy Burns, Miss Vaughn Bridges, Mrs. Vivian Bell (team captain receiving the award), Maj. William R. from the Air Force so that their time isn't wasted in reaching the man they need to see or finding some place to stay. In this same field he helps make the working relationship with the people here cooperative and the ARDC philosophy understood.

Capt. Strain furnishes technical information to government agencies and others when it is needed for the mutual benefit of the services.

With this ambitious program (plus other duties as assigned as per all job descriptions) Capt. and Mrs. Strain still find time to pursue other hobbies or avocations. Capt. Strain is a former flight test engineer who holds a senior pilot rating and has a commercial pilot's license for power planes and gliders. Mrs. Strain is an accomplished musician. With her family of three children, the Strains now reside in Thornton Acres in Huntsville.

Capt. Strain opened his office in the Headquarters building at Redstone Arsenal in March, 1955.

Egypt Pictures Crowd Out Article About Post in N. Y. Times

The two-page picture story about the post which was scheduled to run in last Sunday's edition of the New York Times Sunday Magazine Section was postponed to a later date, according to word received here from Times editors.

He shares offices with other liaison representatives at Redstone in Room 41 of A-101. His telephone extension is 3825.

The article was crowded out at the last minute, they said, in order to make room for some exclusive pictures from strife-torn Egypt. However, the editors added, the story is being held in a ready-to-use condition and will no doubt be run in the very near future.

Basketball season is now in full swing. For those inclined to run five miles nightly chasing after what resembles a rubberized moon-missile, two competing outlets are available. One, promising benefits of a military nature, is the Redstone Post Team, and diametrically opposed is the Hunts-natch Industrial League, promising civilian-type benefits chief among which is free "lager." The more enterprising of the hoop enthusiasts would prefer to chance running themselves ragged for both teams thereby reaping a bountiful harvest of "inducements." But, unfortunately this is not permissible... the military organization demands that a choice be made—something about serving one master faithfully. This cannot be quarrelled with but initially it is working to the detriment of the military coup. Incredibly, many of those players most generously endowed with basketball know-how prefer to barter their talents for beer.

A sport is in a sad state when it attracts proponents only on the condition that something material is given as a reward for participating. Unfortunately the blight

FIRST TO REACH MARK— The Facilities and Resources Branch of RSA's Industrial Division was the first Redstone Arsenal group to join the "100 Per Cent" Club in the post's One-Time Fund Drive. Members of the branch, who averaged more than $17 each, are (first row left to right): Mrs. Jaunita Hodgkin, Mrs. Barbara W. Moon, Mrs. Pat Johnson, Mrs. Becky Smith, Miss Martha Hooper and Mrs. Ozell Barnes. Second row: J. Frank Neely, Edwin Goss, Emmett Mayes, Ruth Tetrault, Bill Fetzer, John Grehon, George Gambrell. Several members were absent when the picture was made.

...s Comptroller Office. The internal review office provides the arsenal commander with a continuing appraisal of the areas of financial management and operating responsibilities.

Mr. Platt comes to Redstone after 10 years as a federal employee in Washington, D. C.

He received his Associate in Arts and Bachelor of Arts degrees from George Washington University, where he was also a candidate for special honors in accounting.

The new chief has extensive background in his field, having worked on the departmental audit staffs of the General Accounting Office, the Department of the Navy, and the General Services Administration. He was selected for the executive development program conducted by the U. S. Civil Service Commission in 1948.

Mr. Platt was formerly an officer in the Army Finance Corps. He recently has been made a lieutenant in the Coast Guard Reserve, in the finance specialty.

Mr. and Mrs. Platt and their two children live at 15 N. Dallas Ave., Huntsville.

f professionalism holds a death grip on almost all present-day sports.

Several of the SP-3s have been hunting that they may move their families into the orderly room since they seem to be on CQ more often than at home.

"Lulu" Kiefer and "Tab" Hunter have invented a new game called "T-DY For Two." It's played with rubber travel vouchers that bounce between Finance and Personnel. The object is to see who can bounce the travel vouchers the greatest number of times. The loser, or better, the one that lets the voucher bounce last, must pay a specified sum of money. The best thing about this game is that it can go on for months without loss of excitement (only money).

We were informed of a tragic accident in the Industrial Division. One poor troon got the point when he parked his posterior on an M-1 pencil.

Nothing since the fateful letter from our "friends and neighbors" has caused such a furor among the troops as the announcement that waivers for time in grade would be accepted for PFC's aspiring to a Specialist ranking. Suddenly we see superlatively wonderful gods standing in the shoes of formerly average PFC's. Jobs once described in "next to custodial terms" astonishingly become key links in the chain of national defense and security. Out from under the short leg on the desk pops the critical little publication on everyday soldiering. The other uniform is carefully unwrapped from around the jack handle and promptly dispatched to the cleaners. Even the fine coating on the brass is scrupulously inspected for glitter-distorting dust particles. Amid such an electrified atmosphere tempers quicken, long-time friends fall to bickering, and bitter pals are made.

What is the root of this evident force of evil clutching our souls? Simply, money. But it is not solely avariciousness; it is the mad-deningly frustrating quest for a living wage. Let's hope the dieties that rule show compassion for our plight. Quote, the Old Philosopher, "... Keep your head up high and never give up... that ship."
