Previously, he had served as Comptroller of the U. S. Veterans Administration under General Omar Bradley.

During World War II, he was associated with Wainwright Shipyard at Panama City, Fla.

A native of Atlanta, Ga., he attended the Georgia School of Technology.

Comer served overseas in the Marine Corps during World War I.

Active in veterans affairs, he has been Commander of the Florida Department of the American Legion and chairman of the National Veterans Preference Committee.

Stamp Auction To Be Held by Local Club

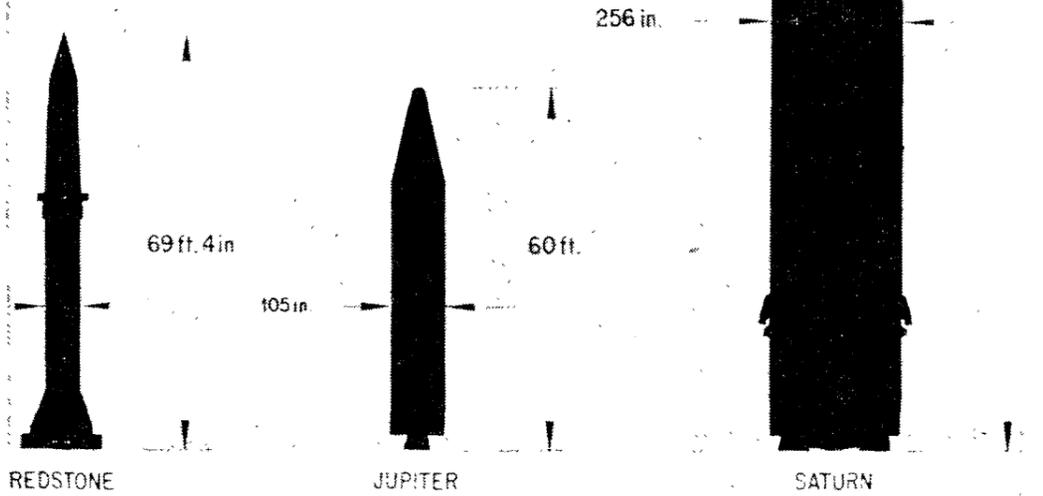

The first stamp auction in Huntsville will be held by the Huntsville Stamp Club at the Central YMCA on Green St., Thursday, July 23 between 7 and 9 p.m.

All interested stamp collectors are invited to attend and participate.

The success of the first auction will determine if auctions will be held on a regularly scheduled basis.

REDSTONE-JUPITER-SATURN COMPARISON

A graphic and dramatic impression of the size of the Saturn space vehicle, now under development by the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, can be gained from this drawing comparing it to the Redstone and Jupiter ballistic missiles. Selection of the second and third stages for the multi-stage Saturn vehicle were announced last week by the Advanced Research Projects Agency of the Department of Defense. A modified first stage of the two stage Titan ICBM has been chosen for the second stage of the Saturn. Third stage will be the new Centaur rocket. The Saturn will stand nearly 200 feet tall, as compared to 69 for Redstone and 60 for Jupiter.

Col. Furphy Is AOMC Comptroller

Col. Foster L. Furphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Furphy of Katonah, N. Y., has been assigned as Comptroller with the Army Ordnance Missile Command.

Col. William J. Durrenberger, formerly Comptroller with the Command, has taken up duties at Ft. McNair, Virginia.

Colonel Furphy was formerly with the Office, Chief of Ordnance, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C., where he served for three years as Chief of the Management Operations Office in the Research and Development Division.

He began his military career in 1929 with National Guard service, followed by four years at the U. S. Military Academy. Upon receiving his bachelor's degree in 1936, he served with the Coast Artillery Corps before assignment with the Ordnance (See COL. FURPHY on Page 2)

Federal Employees Establish A Council

Representatives of the American Federation of Government Employees, the International Association of Machinists, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the Postal clerks and letter carriers, all government employe organizations, met on June 30 to make plans for establishing a Huntsville Government Employees Council.

E. L. Lowther, president of the AFGE local, was elected temporary chairman until permanent officers are elected at the next meeting in Carpenters Hall, 2505 Clinton Ave., West, at 7:30 p.m. on July 30. The delegates will also draft a constitution and by-laws.

Lowther invited any government employe group in addition to those not mentioned above to attend to discuss the merits of a group such as the Huntsville Government Employees Council and to take part in the proceedings.

Juno II Destroyed By Safety Officer

An Army Juno II rocket bearing a 91½-pound satellite was destroyed in a launch attempt at Cape Canaveral last Thursday.

The missile was exploded by the range safety officer after it was determined that it was deviating from the planned trajectory.

The missile was airborne for about 5½ seconds and impacted some 50 yards from the blockhouse. There were no injuries, although launching personnel were detained in the blockhouse until the nearby flame was brought under control.

The failure was caused by the malfunction of a small inventor-generator in the missile's guidance and control system.

The satellite, sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, carried seven different experiments, four of which were devoted to radiation studies.

Gen. Colglazier, Logistics Chief, To Visit AOMC

Lt. Gen. Robert W. Colglazier, Jr., who was sworn in as Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics and promoted from major to lieutenant general last Friday, will visit the U. S. Army Ordnance Missile Command next week with a party of five other general officers.

The group includes Maj. Gen. John H. Hinrichs, Chief of Ordnance; Maj. Gen. Andrew T. McNamara, the Quartermaster General; Maj. Gen. Floyd A. Hansen, Director of Supply and Brig. Gen. Lawrence J. Lincoln, Director of Plans and Materiel, the two latter being on Gen. Colglazier's staff.

The general officers and several other officers from their staffs will receive briefings on the management philosophy of the Army Ordnance Missile program, briefings on all the Army missile systems, and will tour elements of the Command, including the Fabrication and Assembly Engineering Laboratory and the Test Area of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency.

Gen. Colglazier was the assistant to the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, Gen. Carter B. Magruder, now the Eighth Army Commander. He moved up to his present position when Gen. Magruder was reassigned.

3000 RECEIVE POLIO SHOTS SINCE MARCH

Approximately 6,000 immunizations for polio have been administered by the U. S. Army Surgeon staff at Redstone Arsenal since March, according to the Post Surgeon, Col. Harry C. McCain.

Continued efforts have been made to insure that all military dependents receive the series of immunizations.

Polio immunization is a requirement for all military personnel.

The series is sometimes begun here, and continued at another post. Or an individual and his dependents may have started the basic shots at another post and been transferred here.

Either way, the military community is encouraged to keep polio immunization current, according to Capt. John C. McBroom, executive officer for the Post Surgeon. The schedule at Dispensary B, Bldg. 3493 is set to take care of military personnel from 10 a.m. through noon and dependents from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. No appointment is necessary.

He also pointed out that the doctors in the community are prepared to administer polio immunizations to their patients and that the local County health authorities have been emphasizing the need for immunization, especially at this season.

OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE USES 'PREVENTION' PHILOSOPHY

The staff at the Occupational Health Service at Redstone Arsenal practice the philosophy: An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

The doctors there, in short, are responsible to see that some 12,000 AOMC civilian employes are suitably placed from the health point of view, and that they are allowed to work in the best and safest atmosphere possible.

So, the doctors consider the individual as a whole instead of the possible physical handicaps when recommending employment.

The first time the employee visits the Occupational Health clinic is for his pre-employment physical. Periodically, thereafter, he may receive a physical check up or treatment for an injury sustained on the job.

Dr. Burton S. Shook, chief of the Occupational Health Service, and his staff evaluate prospective employes and transfers from one organization to another.

Emotional and mental stability are tested along with any physical defects which might handicap the individual in completing one kind of a job happily, while on another job he could be a satisfied and capable worker.

With an average population of 12,350 Civil Service Workers in the Army Ordnance Missile Command, its two Agencies, Redstone Arsenal, and the Ordnance Guided Missile School, the doctors average 2,200 pre-employment examinations during a year.

Employees exposed to conditions which can be a hazard to health and safety are guarded by the industrial hygienist, C. L. Wyatt as much as possible. He has an arsenal of instruments to measure noise, gases in the air, radiation, dust, and other measurable but unseen minutiae in the atmosphere of a shop or office.

Workers exposed to hazards are given special examinations. For instance, the professional

ARS Members Will See AEDC Test Facilities

Members of the American Rocket Society who are cleared for confidential information have been invited to Arnold Engineering and Development Center at Tullahoma for lectures, demonstrations and a tour of the facilities on August 15.

AEDC is a three hundred million dollar installation located on a seventy square mile reservation 65 miles from Redstone Arsenal. The huge wind tunnels at AEDC can test missile and aircraft components at twenty times the speed of sound.

The Rocket Society group will hear talks and see demonstrations on the hypersonic rocket test work being carried out at this, the country's most complete and largest center devoted solely to high velocity, high altitude ground testing of missiles and aircraft. The Center has played an important part in the development of missiles for the Army and for other services.

The Arsenal and contractor scientists making the tour will see the three major wind tunnel facilities at AEDC and hear talks on high altitude rocket performance, missile base recirculation, jet spreading at high altitudes, and scale model rocket testing after being welcomed by the AEDC Commander.

The all-day trip on air conditioned busses will include a dutchtreat luncheon and dinner, and a social hour. Members of the newly formed Tullahoma Section of the American Rocket Society will accompany the Redstone group during portions of the presentation.

James J. Harford, executive secretary of the American Rocket Society, will be present to close-out the day's activities. Reservations can be made by sending $5.00 for transportation and a completed security clearance form to Rogers McCauley, Building 7605, Thiokol, by July 27, 1959.

Arsenal, a former member who was instrumental in organizing the local club and served as its first Vice President, was a guest at the meeting.

Recreation is as much a part of normal living as eating. When we stop playing, our minds become starved and something within us dies, for recreation gives meaning to life.

We need the social forms of play - picnics, parties, dances and other social gatherings that allow us to make new friends. Our program this month has been packed full of such recreation and we hope to enlarge our program monthly. We have many sixty-four-dollar events coming up on the August program.

HARRY WILLIAMS

Harry Williams Is Safe Supervisor

Harry S. Williams, Ordnance Missile Laboratories Division, ARGMA has been chosen as the safe supervisor of the week. Mr. Williams was nominated for the honor by the OML supervisors safety committee because of his long service at Redstone Arsenal without a disabling injury.

Williams started work at Redstone in September, 1950. His work with the Chemistry Branch consists of research and development work of solid propellants and propellant chemistry.

There are many hazards connected with this field of chemistry because of the nature of the elements and compounds used; extreme caution and care must be exercised at all times to insure complete safety.

Williams received his bachelor's degree at the University of South Carolina, and later, was awarded his master's degree from the University of Wisconsin. He is a veteran of World War II, having served in the Pacific campaign with the fighting force of the Marine Corps.

Williams attributes his fine safety record to an early experience in the laboratory which occurred while he was in graduate school. Mr. Williams stated, "At the time I was working with an acid in a separatory funnel; there was a reaction and the glass stopper blew off. I suffered skin burns from the acid about the face and neck. I had been taught to use my safety glasses as a part of my regular laboratory procedure, and thankfully, I was wearing them at the time. My eyes were protected from the glass and acid."

Williams and his wife, Marian, call 1101 Bluefield Avenue, Huntsville their home. They have two children—a boy, Harry, Jr., and a girl, Sylvia.

Owning a home occupies most of Williams' leisure time, work-

drivers are given depth perception tests and color blindness tests before being cleared for employment.

Special examinations are conducted on all workers exposed to the aforementioned hazards and periodic checkups are administered on a voluntary basis. Yearly, the doctors conduct approximately 1250 special or periodic examinations. There are three medical doctors on the staff, Dr. Shook, Dr. W. H. Stallings, the assistant chief of the Occupational Health Service, and Dr. M. L. Shaddix.

Where an examination reveals illness not due to the job, the individual is referred to his family doctor for treatment. Although all records are treated as confidential, along with the confidences of the patients, the medical men cooperate with each other to give the patient the fullest assurance of proper treatment.

Medical records are kept on each employee here. Mrs. Bernice Wood and Mrs. Janie Humphrey comprise the administrative staff. The same practices of doctors' staffs everywhere are followed, and only the doctor can impart medical information.

Another service important in placing employees on specific jobs is the evaluation of the clinical psychologist, Dr. Bartley Bess. It is the responsibility of the psychologist to determine individual emotional and mental stability. Sometimes this factor can be determined from a past medical record. For instance, a man with a record of black de-

IS NOISE NUISANCE OR HAZARD—Left to right Dr. Burton S. Shook, chief of the Occupational Health Service program; Dr. Bartley Bess, clinical psychologist; and G. L. Wyatt, Industrial hygienist, discuss the problem of noise level for employees. It is Wyatt's job to determine, with the aid of a battery of instruments such as the one above, the amount of clatter in a shop. The physical and psychological effects on the individuals is the concern of Dr. Shook and Dr. Bess.

A SHOT—Bill Roberson, student trainee in the Guidance and Control Lab at the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, receives a tetanus shot after running a splinter into himself while on the job. Giving the immunization is Mrs. Cherie Tyler, Occupational Health Service nurse.

pressions and moodiness would not be a suitable candidate on a job where he would carry a loaded gun; whereas, a man of more temperate moods might be able to perform the job though physically handicapped.

Job placement, after the doctors have seen the individual, are an educated evaluation. Despite the fact that a paraplegic or other individual appears handicapped, in the atmosphere of the office or shop where he is destined to work, he will adjust both mentally and emotionally to his surroundings and produce work expected of him.

Individuals whose emotional stability or mental maladjustment cause safety hazards, or are the disgruntled supplicant in the Inspector General's Office who announces all the world's against him, are often repeaters of small accidents and come to the attention of the Occupational Health Service. This kind of handicap doesn't often show on the surface. Sometimes the answer is simply changing environment without changing the type of work or the monetary gain.

All emergencies are treated by the doctors when they come in. They range in seriousness from skinned knuckles to the badly injured.

The U. S. Army Hospital provides certain services such as the processing of X-rays and furnishing bandages.

Throughout the year, approximately 17,300 visit the Occupational Health Service offices, an average of one and one-half visits per person employed by Civil Service.

On post, the attention of the Occupational Health Program staff may be called to a condition by the Safety Office, the supervisor, or the Inspector General.

Professional opinions are based on accepted medical practices and "although sometimes the decisions are rough, the facts support the opinions," Dr. Shook said. "The facts must be concrete enough to satisfy the Post Surgeon, the Medical Director of the 5th Civil Service Region, the Army Surgeon General, and the Medical Director for Employees Compensation for the Bureau of Labor."

Working hand-in-glove with safety which is responsible for protection of property, the Occupational Health Service protects people from health hazards. And part of the job is to decide whether the alleged hazard is really a hazard or only a nuisance.

GOLF ETIQUETTE

BY CAPT. CHARLES MAUCERI

Last week we discussed ways for alleviating crowded conditions and the steps that can be taken to speed up our play without sacrificing enjoyment.

Today we'll illustrate some situations that are inherent to golf.

It is not always possible to pick our fellow players and many times strangers will fill out a foursome.

Varied experiences stem from this situation, some pleasant and others not quite so pleasant. Definitely on the unpleasant side is being teamed with an irritable person. Doctors despair for this type and instead of finding relaxation usually hasten the way to their grave—the divot way.

Players Are Not Alike

Remember, we seldom find two personalities that are alike. Some people can play the game imperceptibly while others are bothered by just about everything. It's been said that one extremist insisted the other players stop breathing while he putted. This type is the exception, thank goodness. However, the prudent player will adhere to the rule of silence while others are addressing the ball.

Golf etiquette advises that players be introduced, all around, prior to teeing off. This is a casual ritual and only first names or nicknames need be given.

During the game address the others by name, whenever possible, complimenting them for good shots, sympathizing during runs of bad luck. Dale Carnegie was right when he said, "nothing is sweeter to one's ear than the sound of his own name."

Find the Lost Ball

If a ball is hit into the rough join in the search, it saves time and best of all, creates a friendly atmosphere. On the green develop the habit of picking up your ball and marking its position with a small coin or in some suitable manner while waiting your turn to putt. Another ball on the green is distracting to some players, especially so, when theirs is not quite as close to the pin. Do avoid stepping in the area directly in front of someone's putting path.

In the sharpshooter category SFC. E. M. Beeler was first in the 50 meter and second in the aggregate with iron sights; first in the Dewar with a telescope sight, and second in the grand aggregate.

Sgt. Herbert N. Fitzgerald took first at 100 yards with the iron sight.

SFC. Beeler and Pvt. Birman won the iron sight two-man team match in the sharpshooter class.

CWO Mann, PFC. Ackley, PFC. Anderson, and Pvt. Birman will shot at Camp Perry, Ohio in the National Smallbore Rifle Matches in August.

GOLFERS REACH STALEMATE IN THREE-WAY TIE

A three-way tie highlighted competition held Wednesday morning by the Golf Group of the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club.

Event was low score for five blind holes. Tying for first place in the first flight were Mrs. H. H. Wishart, Mrs. O. O. Roundy, and Mrs. R. O. Lehtonen.

Mrs. T. T. Paul took top honors in the second flight, Mrs. Robert Cuthill placed first in the third, and Mrs. S. C. Holmes was top in the fourth.

Next week the group will hold a Blind Partner Day. The group meets on Wednesday mornings at the Redstone Arsenal Golf Course. All members of the Wives Club are invited to participate.

cess. "The primary objective of AFGE is to represent its members, protect their rights, improve pay and working conditions, develop satisfactory employe management relations, and effect legislation benefitting government employes through the Congress," Lowther said.

TWO ARE SERVING INTERNSHIPS AT BALLISTIC MISSILE AGENCY

Two interns in public administration are spending a three-month period between academic assignments at the Army Ballistic Missile Agency this summer.

They are Mrs. Delores Sanders, assigned in the Management Services Branch of the Control Office, and Jerry Burkette, in the administrative office of the Fabrication and Assembly Engineering Laboratory.

The intern program is designed to prepare outstanding young people for careers as administrators in public service. The participating universities are Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Florida. Ten graduate students are awarded fellowships at these schools. Nine government organizations are participants in the program. ABMA is the first to have more than one intern at a time.

Mrs. Sanders, whose husband is studying law at the University of Alabama, is a graduate in education and taught high school history at Greensboro, Ala., commuting between the campus at Tuscaloosa where the couple lived while her husband, Robert D., continued his studies. This summer he, too, is working at ABMA and they are living in Huntsville. They visit their parents in Cullman on weekends. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sanders are concentrating in the field of public administration.

Burkette was studying business administration and economics at Furman University in Greenville, S. C., when he decided to take the competitive examination for public administrator fellowships. His reason was simply that working with people interested him more than abstract paper work. His interests are catholic and cosmopolitan. While an undergraduate, he was chaplain for the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, secretary of the Baptist Student Union and pledge trainer for the Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity.

He worked as a library assistant at the University library, found time to sing tenor in the church choir, play the cornet in the University band, and sing with the University chorus as well as a quartet affiliated with the Association for the Preservation of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America.

Both Mrs. Sanders and Burkette share interest in tennis as well as a passion for working hard in academic fields.

Mrs. Sanders plans to continue her studies at the Universities of Kentucky and Alabama; Burkette expects to attend the Universities of Tennessee and Florida. Both have a thesis ahead of them before they receive a master's degree in public administration; but at the end of the academic year, each will receive a certifi-

Jones Calls For Explorer Memorial

Alabama Congressman Bob Jones, Scottsboro, included the following statement last week in his weekly newsletter, "Report from Washington:"

WHERE HONOR IS DUE

"On January 31, 1958 at Cape Canaveral, Fla., Explorer 1 was launched at 10:48 p.m. America's first satellite to orbit the earth was sent into outer space by a Jupiter rocket made by the brains and brawn of Redstone Arsenal.

"Announcement of the successful launching caused relief and genuine rejoicing, not only among Americans, but in the entire free world. The Redstone-Jupiter rocket sent more aloft than our satellite. It took with it American pride and restored prestige for our country. It lifted our spirits and morals, which were low since the Russians beat us to the launching of the first sputnik.

"This week I introduced a joint resolution, asking the House and Senate to direct the Secretary of Defense to erect a memorial at Cape Canaveral to mark this historic occasion. Great honor is due Redstone workers, military and civilian, who won us a national victory for the world to applaud. I am determined that they shall get this national recognition.

"Hope for passage of my resolution is high. Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee endorses it and promises action in this session."

Pretty waitress: "Do you two gentlemen see anything you like?"

Sailors: "Yes, but we've got to eat sometime."

"How Lily Flagg Got Its Name"

The true significance that lies herein is not the derivative of the title implied, but beholds a story that you will want to know.

Lily as implied is not a flower, nor is Flag as signified a Flag, it has no stars or banners that continue to wave. The two together became a name "Lily Flagg." A little station once visited by the huge giants of steel known as the steam locomotive, yes the Lily Flagg Station stands in the memories of the Old Timers. The Huntsville of yester years.

The Lily Flagg of this story is not of a valley nor a railroad station or a huge terrifying giant of steel, it is the story of a COW. A cow? How now a tale of a cow. Oh yeah! just you listen to this, this was no ordinary cow.

The mother of this Jersey cow was brought over from England. A calf was born on William Mathews Plantation, the calf named, Signals Lily Flagg, was recorded and registration number 31035 was given her by the American Jersey Cattle Club. William Mathews and Capt. Milton Humes were listed as owners. General Moore was listed as owner in 1892 and it is not clear whether he was the sole owner or just acquired a 1/3 interest in her. Mathews being a friend of Moore placed the young cow on his 11,000 acres in the Whitesburg area.

This account was written in the local paper July 8, 1892.

"Wednesday afternoon under the shade of Monte Sano. The Monte Sano Dairy assembled. A crowd of at least 300 Ladies and Gentlemen which represented the Elite and progressive element of our county. The occasion, the completion of the greatest Jersey test known to the civilized world. At 5:40 P.M. the last churning was started and it required 21 minutes to convert the cream to butter. The scales were brought forth and the rich particles were weighed by the sworn Judges and finally the announcement came. The yield, of the churning was, 4 lbs. 9 3/4 ozs. of butter. This completed a one year test period.

"A speaker came forth, Mr. Valancy Fuller of Canada who was the owner of another great cow, Bisson's Belle whose record Lily Flagg had broken. In a loud distinct voice the tall Canadian announced that the record of Lily Flagg was 1,047 lbs. 3/4-oz. of butter and 11,339 lbs. of milk against 1,028 lbs. 15-5/8 ozs. of butter and 8,412 lbs. 7 oz. of milk of Bisson's Belle previous record. He then lifted his hat and said, "Three cheers for Lily Flagg, Queen of the Jersey's."

General Moore later that year brought his beloved Jersey cow Lily Flagg to the Chicago World's Exposition Fair and walked off with all the prizes, and Lily Flagg was officially announced the greatest butter producing cow of the world.

Samuel H. Moore known as General Moore, celebrated with the most lavish and possibly the strangest party on record in honor of his prize Jersey cow Lily Flagg. An old timer said, "It was the doggonest, dad blamedest party this part of the country has ever seen." The dance platform at the rear of the house was fifty feet square, the first electric system was installed for the lighting. Lily Flagg was placed on the platform draped in flowers, the mansion and grounds were blanketed in flowers, his cook, Zenie Pruitt was known far and wide for her pastry, prepared enough desserts for an Army. An Italian orchestra from Nashville, Tennessee furnished the music. Wine and Champagne was on hand, and one table was covered with over fifty different kinds of cakes. The party was given July 21, 1892, over 1500 invitations were sent out all over the South for this great event.

The first railroad station south of Huntsville, Alabama is, Lily Flagg, a pretty name and shall we say euphonic.

Upholding the standards of a true Champion of yesterday stands the Lily Flagg of today. A great producer, A grand champion of service. The symbol of tomorrow.

The Judge Advocate Advises

Punitive Discharge Has Adverse Effects

All persons lawfully inducted or enlisted in the Army must be furnished a certificate of discharge upon separation from the service. The purpose of a discharge certificate is to record the type of discharge earned by the individual and to specify the character of military service which he rendered.

Bad Conduct and Dishonorable Discharge are considered punitive discharges and may now only be adjudged as punishment for service offenses by general courts-martial.

Military personnel receiving a punitive discharge lose many of the benefits administered by the Army. For example, consider the case of a soldier who has sixty (60) days accrued leave and receives a punitive discharge. Ordinarily, upon discharge, he would be entitled to be paid for this accrued leave but, since he has received a punitive discharge, he loses this benefit.

A punitively discharged person is also deprived of the right to burial in a National Cemetery. Not only is a person who has received a punitive discharge deprived of Army benefits but he is also deprived of many other Federal benefits, some of which are administered by the Veteran's Administration.

Joe Didencare

For example, Joe Didencare had been in the Army for about twelve years when he got into a serious trouble. He was tried by a general court-martial and received, as a part of his sentence, a punitive discharge. Joe returned to civilian life and began to look for work. He applied for a civil service job knowing that veterans received preferential treatment because of an Act of Congress. Joe discovered, however, that his punitive discharge denied him the right to civil service preference under that Act. Joe finally obtained work but when his boss discovered that he had a punitive discharge from the Army, Joe was dismissed. Joe then applied for unemployment compensation but the kind lady at the unemployment office gave him the news — no unemployment compensation for persons having a punitive discharge.

No Veteran Benefits

Joe may also be deprived of the following additional benefits to which as a veteran, he would ordinarily be entitled had he not received a punitive discharge: dependency and indemnity compensation, pensions for service connected and non-service connected disabilities, vocational rehabilitation, loan guaranties, special housing, hospitalization, out-patient dental and medical treatment, burial expenses, farm loans, naturalization benefits and social security.

Many states also provide a variety of veterans' benefits which include bonuses; loans burial rights, employment preference and tax benefits. Although no general rule can be stated as to the eligibility requirements for such benefits, many of the states condition them on a discharge under honorable conditions.

All personnel should realize that a few days of AWOL vacation or a few dollars stolen from a buddy in the barracks are simply not worth the serious consequences, tangible and intangible, which flow from a punitive discharge. Even in those cases where a punitive discharge is not ordered by summary court-martial, a conviction by any court-martial becomes a permanent part of the individual's record and may adversely affect him in connection with subsequent personnel action.

Man Needs Pride

Aside from the foregoing, every individual should have sufficient pride in himself and in the Army as a branch of his Government to do everything within his power to avoid any action on his part which might disgrace himself or his service.

As the converse to the bad effects of a punitive discharge, the above indicates many of the tangible benefits which result from exemplary service. In addition, all should conduct themselves so as to deserve and receive the shared pride and congratulations of their neighbors and fellow-Americans for a job well done in the service of the nation.

OFFICER IS PROMOTED

Capt. James C. O'Donnel was recently promoted to his present rank in a ceremony at Redstone Arsenal, headquarters of the Army Ordnance Missile Command.

Capt. O'Donnel, who is Dental Officer at Redstone, graduated from Boston College in 1954 and from the Tufts University School of Dental Medicine, Boston, in 1958.

ALVIN W. POWERS

Powers Is Chosen Week's Safe Worker

Alvin W. Powers, truck driver, in the Storage Branch of the Consolidated Supply Division, at Redstone Arsenal was selected the Safe Worker of the Week by the Redstone Safety Division. Powers has not had a single accident or injury since he came to Redstone more than seven years ago. This is a very good record considering the type of work he performs. During the first five years at Redstone he operated a fork-life truck in the materials yard and the other time has been driving a truck for the receiving branch. His supervisors rate him as one of their better employees. They say he is a safe and dependable workman; follows instructions well and when he does not know how to complete a job he will always ask questions to find the right way. The Safe Worker of the Week was born in Limestone County, that at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. In the space of three years the Army has steadily reduced its disciplinary barracks population until now it is cut by 75 per cent. Lompoc is the fourth such installation to be vacated; the others were situated at Ft. Gordon, Ga., Ft. Crowder, Mo., and New Cumberland, Pa. The decline of prisoners is attributed to personnel policies that have raised the caliber of enlistees and reenlistees while getting rid of chronic troublemakers. The result are seen in the drop in Army courts-martial. Most of Lompoc's approximately 400 prisoners will be moved to Ft. Leavenworth.
