Zeus Firing at WSMR Is Complete Success

All Stages React As Predicted by Missile Handlers

The Army successfully fired another early test model of its Zeus anti-missile missile Wednesday at the White Sands Missile Range, N.M.

On the basis of initial data, all test objectives, including the operation of the booster motor, separation and sustainer motor, were fully met in the firing.

Wednesday's test was one of a series of test firings to evaluate the aerodynamic characteristics and rocket motors of the only anti-missile missile currently under development. The development program is progressing on schedule.

As in previous tests, the Zeus traveled a ballistic trajectory. The booster and the sustainer motors both performed successfully. The booster developed approximately 450,000 pounds of thrust and is the most powerful single grain solid propellant motor ever fired in the Free World. It is produced by the Thiokol Chemical Corporation.

The Zeus prime system contractor, Western Electric, and subcontractors Bell Telephone Laboratories and Douglas Aircraft Corp., supervised Wednesday's launch. Douglas did the actual firing.

The test demonstrated the ability of the Zeus to operate successfully at speeds far in excess of those of any other air defense missile. The Zeus utilized the most advanced power plant designs and special techniques for protecting the missile structure against the very high temperatures encountered in its high speed passage through the dense portion of the earth's atmosphere.

The sustainer motor is produced by the Grand Central Rocket Company, Redlands, Calif.

COL. ZIERDT TELLS GRADUATES ABOUT ZEUS PROGRAM

Redstone Arsenal is becoming the center of a vast military communications network being extended from Ascension Island off the coast of Africa to Kwajalein Island in the mid-Pacific in preparation for testing of the Zeus antimissile missile, the Army's most urgent missile project.

The top expediter of the Zeus program made this disclosure Friday in an address to sixty officers and men graduating from the Army Ordnance Guided Missile School.

The speaker was Col. John G. Zierdt, Deputy Commander of the Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency, who has top-priority responsibility for the nation's only weapon now under active development against the threat of hostile intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The hemispheric communications network also links Redstone Arsenal with the factories of 40 major industrial firms and hundreds of smaller sub-contractors participating in the Zeus program in 20 states. All are directly connected with remote sites across a 10,000-mile span over which the Zeus will be launched and tracked by radar in complicated tests to begin later this year.

Col. Zierdt also said that videotape facilities originally used for closed circuit instruction at the

Health Benefits Made Available

A Federal Employees Health Benefits program has been adopted by the U. S. Civil Service Commission. Studies of the program to go into effect July 1 are being made by Leonard Brockman, Army Ordnance Missile Command Personnel office, and a group of representatives from each Agency in the Command.

The committee includes: Howell Riggs, Army Ballistic Missile Agency; Rufus Porter, Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency; Jesse Stutts, Redstone Arsenal; Horace Williams, AOMC Comptroller Office; Roy E. Fox, Finance and Accounting Office, Redstone; James L. O'Hara, F. and A.; and P. F. Shortridge, AOMC Legal Office.

Participation in the program is voluntary on the part of the employees. The aim is to give government employees more health service protection for each dollar he spends. The program will be paid in part by the Government and the balance by the individual.

"Rates for this protection have not been announced," committee members said, "but the announcement is expected in the near future."

The Health Benefits plan was devised to give a group health benefits plan with better rates and better protection than similar plans offered on an individual basis.

Participants will not be required to undergo a physical exam, and age will not be a factor. The plan will be financed through payroll deductions.

There are two plans available: Government-wide Service, and Government - Wide Indemnity. Each of these plans will have two options, one offering a higher level of benefits at a higher cost, and the other offering a lower level of benefits at a lower cost.

Courses of study will be held for everyone at the Arsenal to fully acquaint each individual with the various types of services offered under the Health Benefits program.

The amount of medical cost will depend on the plan an indi-

Electronic Lab Men Operate Station, Receive Signal

The United States' space probe satellite, Pioneer V, is being tracked in its elliptical orbit around the sun by the Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency's tracking station at Redstone Arsenal.

Signals from the 94.8-pound satellite, launched Friday by a three-stage Thor-Able rocket from Cape Canaveral, Fla., were acquired shortly after launch by the tracking station. Contact continued for four minutes until the satellite disappeared over the horizon.

The tracking station, operated by Wade H. Todd of ARGMA's Missile Electronics Laboratory, regained contact at noon Friday and tracked the sphere intermittently for approximately eight hours, when it again vanished behind the horizon.

William Yokum, chief of the Missile Electronics Laboratory, said that the extremely strong signal being received by the station, which is using new equipment, including a parametric amplifier developed by the Ordnance Missile Laboratory of ARGMA, indicates that the station will be able to track the satellite over one million miles out into space before losing contact.

Signals from the satellite's solar-powered radio equipment transmitting on command at hourly intervals, were reacquired at 4:32 p.m. Saturday, at which time Pioneer V was 240,000 miles away from earth. Contact was made once more at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, and again at 7:00 p.m. Sunday, when the satellite was 400,000 miles out in space.

This is the same tracking station, located on Anderson Road behind the Redstone Airfield, that tracked the Army's Pioneer IV into the first solar orbit a year ago.

STUDENTS FILE APPLICATIONS

The chief of the Army Education Division, Paul R. Fisher, announced that military personnel planning to attend the University of Alabama, Spring Quarter, under the Government Tuition Assistance Program, must have their request approval in the Education Division office, Bldg. 3655, by Friday.

Armed Forces Day Chairmen Named

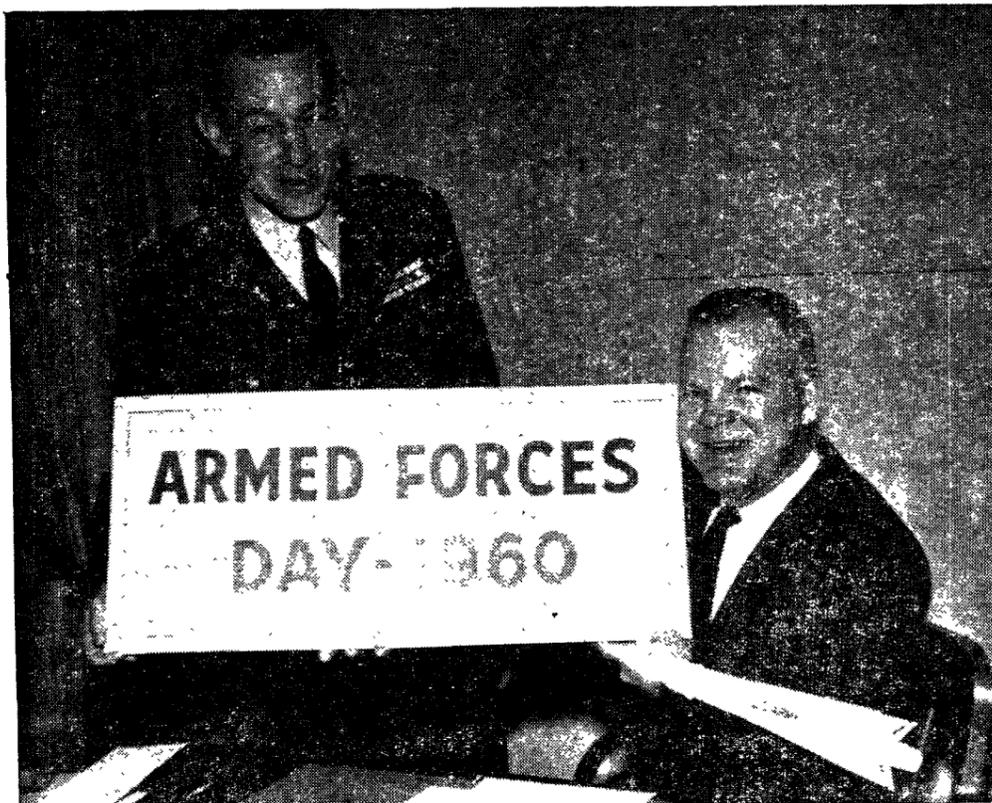

Armed Forces Day will be celebrated in this community on May 21. Chairman for the event is William H. Stevens, Standard Oil Company, Huntsville.

Lt. Col. W. J. Fries, assistant to the Assistant Chief of Staff for Industrial Operations, Army Ordnance Missile Command, has been named co-chairman. Announcements were made simultaneously by Mayor R. B. Searcy of Huntsville and Maj. August Schomburg, Commanding General of the Army Ordnance Missile Command.

Col. Fries has also been named AOMC project officer. Maj. Jesse A. Garner, Troop Commander for the U. S. Army Garrison Troops at the Arsenal, was appointed project officer for the Arsenal.

The slogan, "Power for Peace," has been retained to identify this year's celebration as it was last year and the year before.

RESERVE SCHOOL STARTS 7 CLASSES

Many reserve officers are now qualified for Command and General Staff course due to constructive credit being allowed for active duty service.

Lt. Col. Angelo Ferranti, Commandant of the 3385-4 Huntsville United States Army Reserve School announces that seven new classes will be offered this fall to officers in the army reserve. Courses will be offered for these branches of service: Command & General Staff (C&GS), Military Intelligence (MI), Military Government (CAMG), Guided Missiles (Air Defense), and Ordnance.

As a result of the recent Officer Board's examination of 201 files, there are many reserve officers who have received constructive credit for the advanced courses of their respective branch schools; these officers are now qualified for enrollment in the 1st year Command & General Staff Course. For example, a captain or a Lt. Colonel who has received the credit for the advanced ordnance course may enroll now as a student in the C&GS course if he is not over 45 years old. If a lieutenant has received credit for the basic course he may enroll in the advanced courses planned.

The instruction is designed to parallel the resident associate courses at the regular schools such as the Command & General Staff School at Ft. Leavenworth. The purpose is to provide progressive branch training for reserve officers in the duties of Unit Commanders and Staff Officers. Seven years are required to complete the basic and advanced courses to be eligible for C&GS. Assigned students receive 48 hours of classroom instruction followed by 15 days active duty training with pay during the summer for practical exercises of principles learned in the class rooms.

Spring Fashions Shown NCO Wives

A combination of fashions and entertainment made "Rocketing Into Space with Fashions of 1960" a very successful show last Saturday at the N. C. O. Club.

The Club was transformed into a fashion center when ten beautiful models presented this years most becoming styles to an audience of three hundred. Everyone was held spellbound as Mrs. Thomas Twitty aptly narrated the show.

Bill Sloan supplied soft organ music with appropriate "themes" as the models made their entrances.

Fashions were supplied by William J. Thrift Company of Nashville and the local Thrift store on Memorial Parkway. The show was directed by Mrs. C. H. Sargent, "Marilyn Maury", Fashion Editor of The Nashville Tennessean.

Working with Mrs. Sargent were Mrs. Harry Bullard, Mrs. Melvin and Mrs. Harry Keever of the N. C. O. Auxiliary.

The beautiful coiffures for the models were created by Miss June McInnish of the Charm Beauty Shoppe.

The hostesses, Mrs. R. W. Cunningham, Mrs. Evon Arnold and Mrs. Oliver Coker, served refreshments at the cocktail hour prior to the show. Hilding Holmberg's orchestra provided music for a dance after the show.

Mrs. Warren, a personnel specialist at Redstone Arsenal and the immediate past president of the Huntsville Toastmistress Club, studied dress design under Mary George, one of Hattie Carnegie's top designers, and was also a student at the Chicago Art Institute. Discussing "Styling the Belle," she pointed out to the more than 125 ladies attending the luncheon, that while fashion is essentially conformity, style is individual expression. "Don't lose your personal identity on the runway of fashion" she cautioned.

The party bridge group meets weekly on Thursdays at the Officers Club from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. All members of the Wives Club are invited to participate. Reservations should be made not later than Wednesday noon with Mrs. R. S. Macy, JE 9-2531.

"Take stock of yourself," she suggested, and then determine the dress lines which will "conceal the faults and enhance the virtues." The result, she concluded, will be "a belle resonant with your own personality."

To illustrate her talk, Mrs. Warren employed a large drawing of the "composite" woman, which she dubbed "Norma." Fitting Norma with a selection of styles, Mrs. Warren illustrated how dress design can make a woman appear taller, shorter, thinner, or plumper.

Luncheon decorations were carried out in a St. Patrick's Day theme. Bouquets of green and white carnations graced the head table and the sherry table and were

Birdwell Is Named Week's Safe Worker

Boyce R. Birdwell, Jr., Aircraft Metal Worker, Sheet Metal Shop, SSEL, ABMA, has been selected as this week's safe worker.

Birdwell was born in Guntersville, Ala., graduated from Marshall County High School in 1953. Following graduation from high school he attended API for one quarter and then worked in the Fisher Body Division, General Motors at Pontiac, Mich., until his employment was terminated through a reduction in force.

Birdwell began his employment at Redstone in July 1954 as an apprentice in aircraft sheet metal work. In his present job he is a worker leaderman, works from blueprints performing layout, operates power tools utilized for bending, forming and rolling of aluminum, stainless steel and other type metals.

As advised by his supervisor "Boyce is an extremely careful worker. He evaluates each work assignment to determine how it can best be accomplished without risk to his personal safety, the safety of his fellow workers and the equipment involved." He has never experienced a disabling injury.

Birdwell is married and has one child, Mitzi Carol, age 17 months. His wife formerly Peggy Harrison of Arab, Ala., previously worked at Redstone, but now devotes full time to the project of being a housewife. The Birdwells' reside at 310 Cullman Road, Arab.

As a hobby Boyce plays baseball and enjoys all other types of sports as a spectator.

Greens Fees Will Go to Charities

Men and women golfers, civilian and military, are invited to join members of The Military Police Association (MPA) in promoting local charity and international good will by entering the MPA 1960 International Golf Tournament to be held at Redstone Arsenal Golf Course and ends on April 6.

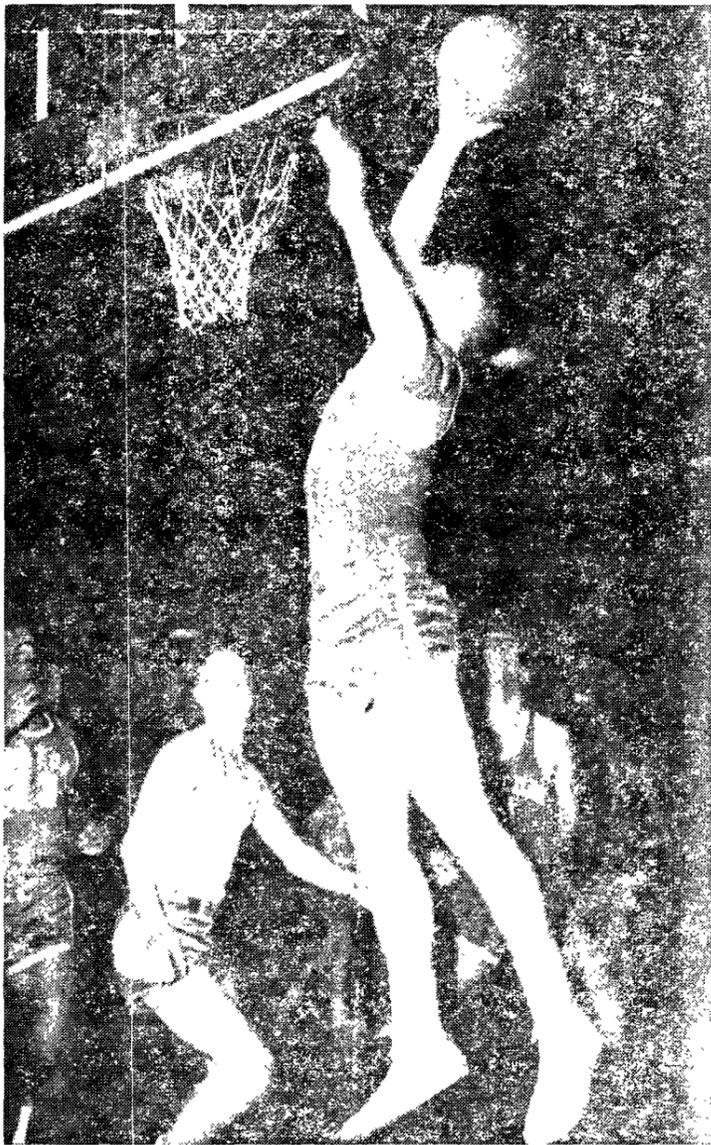

Competition is open to all personnel of Redstone Arsenal to compete in this tournament which is designated 'Beat Art Wall, Jr.'

Wall won the 1959 Masters Golf Tournament and scores, computed via Callaway Handicap System, will be recorded against Wall's first day of play in the 1960 Masters Golf Tournament which is scheduled to be played between March 15 and Apr. 7. Therefore, all rounds must be played and scores recorded not later than April 6. Entry tickets are available at the Redstone Arsenal Golf Course.

Civilians may play provided they are sponsored by a military individual playing at the same time. In addition to the one dollar ($1.00) entry fee, all civilian guests must pay $1.50 green fee week days, $2.50 on week-ends.

Three-fourths of all monies collected for entry fees will be given to local charity and one-fourth to charities (International) designated by the MPA.

Pro. Art Wall, Jr. was the leading money winner in 1959. Since this is a handicap tournament everyone has a good chance to beat him. This year's prize to each winner is a useful trophy, a lasting memento to victory

Ft. Gordon, Ga. — JLT ASSIGNED SHOOTOFF—Harry Nichols (15) Redstone Arsenal, grabs a rebound as team mates Morris Smith (23) and Ken Hunsicker (Richard Nichols) wait. Don Ellis (17) Ft. Jackson All Star, seems ready for anything. The All-Stars defeated the Rockets, 71-59 in the first day of the Third Army Basketball Tournament. The next day, Redstone beat Ft. Rucker 72-70, and was finally eliminated by Ft. Jackson, 71-59.

Redstone Beats Rucker In Basketball Tourney

REDSTONE DOWNS RUCKER IN 3A TOURNEY
BY LT. ED BUCKLEE

Redstone Arsenal's All-Star Basketball Team bettered Redstone's standing sports-wise in Third Army by handing Ft. Rucker a 72-70 set back at the Third U.S. Army Basketball Tournament held last week at Ft. Gordon, Georgia.

The Rockets drew Ft. Jackson in the first round of the Third Army Classic, but lost the opener by a 71-59 decision. After trailing throughout most of the first half, the Rockets neared the gap in the closing minutes of the first half to take a 30-24 half-time advantage.

Jackson came alive in the early stages of the second half, regaining the lead at 36-25 after six minutes of play. After picking up a fast 10 points, Jackson then watched the Redstone All-Stars rally to a 6-point deficit with 5:25 remaining. In closing minutes, Jackson came up with two clutch baskets to ice a 71-59 triumph over the Rockets. Pfc. Harry Nichols, "A" Det. OGMS, turned in a fine performance for Redstone (adding 16 points and clearing the boards for numerous rebounds.

After a rather slow start, scoring wise, Redstone snapped back in their second tournament outing to defeat the Ft. Rucker Flyers, 72-70. Rucker, who held a 13-0 record prior to tournament play, were eliminated after taking-it-on-the-chin from Redstone.

Publicized as one of the few "thrillers" in the 3A Tournament, the Redstone Rucker game turned out to be a 'crowd-pleaser' right up until the final gun. Redstone held a 39-32 half-time margin, but it was anybody's ballgame with both teams trading baskets during the second half. The Rockets held margins of one to seven points in the hectic, see-saw second half, but Rucker maintained the pressure.

Redstone led 60-63 with 15 seconds remaining when Redstone's Pfc. Morris Smith was fouled as he dropped through a crucial lay-up. He connected on the charity toss to give the Rockets a 72-63 lead with seconds to play. Rucker scored as the final buzzer rang, but had put on their first victory performance in two tournaments by a score of 72-70.

Pfc. Chuck Collier, Hq. Det. USAG kept Redstone's hopes alive by collecting 19 points against Rucker. Four other Redstone cagers hit in the double figure with Pfc. Morris Smith, Hq. Det. USAG, getting 17; Pfc. Ken Hunsicker "A" Det. OGMS, hitting for 12 and Pfc. Harry Nichols, "A" Det. OGMS, scorching the net for 12 points.

After a day's rest, Redstone met Ft. McPherson for their third outing in the tourney, but Redstone was handicapped as far as rebounding went due to their Ace Rebounder, Pfc. Bill Huffstetter, "B" Det. ABMA, suffering an ankle injury in the Rucker game and unable to excel for this all-important contest.

After a see-saw first half, a second half McPherson spree pushed the Colonels way out in front of Redstone's undermanned All-Stars. Half-time score favored McPherson 37-35, but the Rockets couldn't match the Colonel's on the boards.

Redstone's two-man combination of Lt. Harry Nichols and Pfc. Chuck Collier fired 28 and 22 points, respectively, to tally 75 percent of Redstone's total output. The 81-74 decision went to McPherson, eliminating Redstone from the double elimination tournament.

Redstone, coached by Pfc. Michael Cassidy, Hq. Det. USAG, was no doubt out-classed gathering from their competition's season records. Ft. Benning sported a 25-0 record going into tournament play and Rucker carried a 18-0 record. Ft. Gordon held a 32-6 record with an 11 game winning streak going into the tournament.

Although outclassed and undermanned, Redstone would no doubt have reached the semi-finals if "Lady Luck" had not turned her head on the Rocket team, (Continued on Next Page) thru losing the services of Ace "Beard Cleaner" Hultstetter with an injured ankle.

The Redstone Rockets were made up of All-Stars picked from unit-level teams who competed in the recent Volleyball League sponsored by Special Services Division, Special Section. This is the group which will play the Basketball Banquet in honor of the Championship and All-Star Teams at 8 p.m., March 22 in Mess No. 2, Bldg. 3481.

Redstone's All-Star team deserve a word of praise in that they did more than merely represent Redstone in the Third U.S. Army Tournament. This team's showing was much improved over last year's and may very well be a sign of sterner and better sports in the future at Redstone Arsenal.

Skin Divers Qualify For More Lessons

The Redstone Arsenal skin divers group took their first instruction last Friday night in the YM-CA pool.

Fourteen members arrived for the qualifying trials for skin diving. Each member was required to swim 300 feet free-style; float for five minutes; swim 60 underwater; and administer artificial respiration using the back pressure, armlift method.

The group will continue to meet on Friday nights at the "Y" pool from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m.

The next instruction will include use of the basic equipment for skin diving: face mask, fins and snorkel.

The group held its initial meeting on March 3 to determine whether or not there was sufficient interest in skin diving by both military and civilian personnel at the Arsenal to make regular meetings and instruction worthwhile.

When the weather turns warm, expeditions to the bottoms of Guntersville Lake and Wheeler Dam Lake are planned to study the flora and fauna underwater.

Sitting still and wishing Makes no person great
The Good Lord sends the fishing
But you must dig the bait.
—Anom.

Speaking of bait, for those servicemen who prefer the live variety here is a list of the more common types used and the fish they tempt.

Earthworms are the alltime favorite. The more lively they are, the better they entice hungry fish. They are good for practically any variety of fish, especially fresh water.

Minnnows can be caught in nets or on tiny hooks baited with dough or bits of worm. They work well for many fresh water fish and can be kept alive for days in fresh water.

Grasshoppers and crickets, or bugs of any kind, can be caught by hand or netted. Hook them carefully so that they are alive and wriggling when placed before your quarry.

Small frogs make good bait, especially for bass. Hook them carefully and let them kick around on the surface.

For salt water species, sea-worms and clams are good for catching cod, rockfish, sea bass, channel bass and flounder. Both can be found by digging on tidal flats.

Crabs are used for striped bass, channel bass, bluefish and other salt water types. They will live several days out of water if kept in a cool place.

Shrimp and squid are both excellent all-around bait for salt water and can be used live or cut-up, depending on the size of fish you are after.

mon types used and the fish they tempt.

Who who Father is certain has taken romantic advantage of his daughter. We follow the family to Sevilla, Spain, where Mr. Dean sees his first bull fight and is wooed out of the stadium. We travel with them to Rome, where Mr. Dean learns to understand Europe — and his own family! The romance of the two girls in the atmosphere of Latin Europe supplies the chief involvement of the comedy.

King Harrison of the Post TV Branch is director of the play and is being assisted by Carol Harrison and Pat Brandenstein. Stage manager is Bob Davies, assistant director Bob Bess.

The cast consists of Connie, Dot Worley; Marv, Ginger Thomason; Bob, Burke Lilledahl; Joe, Dave Hall; Paul, Guy McAllister; Meg, Mary Todd; Henri, Joe Rimsky; Betsy, Christine Leonard and French Maid, Carol Laxson.

Show Production Group Presents 'Holiday For Lovers'

By Frances B. Harold
Ready! Lights! Places! The Curtain will be going up at the Rocket Service Club, March 24 and 25, at 2015 hours when the Show Production Group will present a romantic comedy "Holiday For Lovers."

The play was written by Ronald Alexander author of the enormously popular "Time Out For Ginger."

The play is a gay, carefree story of the Dean family, father, mother, and 20-year-old daughter Betsy from Minneapolis, who embark on their first European holiday, to soak up some old world charm and visit with a 23-year-old daughter, Meg, who's been studying music abroad for three years.

The situation becomes hysterical when they arrive in Paris, and the quick tempered Mr. Dean discovers he does not speak enough French to make the elevator man understand he wants to get to the lobby, his wife discovers the fabulous fashions, Betty discovers a handsome American painter—and love, and the plot complicates when beautiful Meg arrives with a charming, suave, French naes-

INTERSERVICE COOPERATION IS PROVED IN HANDLING JUPITER

Army-Developed Missile Is Now Air Force Weapon

Critics of interservice cooperation can be demolished with one word: Jupiter.

Jupiter was born in Huntsville, an Alabama boom town where German-born rocket scientists teach astronomy at night to high-schoolers. Jupiter came into the world at Redstone Arsenal, site of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency. ABMA's team of experts presided at its birth, spanked it into life, and started it on the road to being America's first successful intermediate range ballistic missile.

And then, after the U.S. Army had nursed Jupiter through its early research and development stage, contracted with Chrysler Corporation's Missile Division to produce it, and test fired an early model at Cape Canaveral . . .

Department of Defense ordered it turned over to the U.S. Air Force's Strategic Air Command for operational use.

DOD directed ABMA and USAF to join hands and work together to develop Jupiter into an operational weapon system for eventual deployment to tactical squadrons.

To the die-hards who look upon rivalry between services as a continuing fact of life, joint management of Jupiter was — at its best — a shotgun wedding.

The Air Force sent the Mobile Air Materiel Area to the wedding as Executive Manager of Jupiter. MOAMA clasped hands with ABMA, and vice versa, and then lived happily ever afterwards.

Mutual agreement and superb cooperation have existed throughout Jupiter's life.

Monthly meetings between ABMA Commander, Brig. Gen. J. A. Barclay, and Maj. Gen. Dan F. Callahan, MOAMA Commander, illustrate this splendid relationship.

They rotate meetings between Huntsville and Mobile to discuss their baby. By DOD directive, the two men are Jupiter's guardians, and together they agree on how to guide it via the concept of concurrency to operational manhood.

The "concept of concurrence" is the accepted rule on raising America's missile program to the point where it will guarantee the free world's security. Concurrency inoculates ballistic missile systems against the dangers of built-in obsolescence.

In other words, concurrence makes sure that the growing child reaches manhood physically sound, able to compete on equal terms.

So, Gen. Barclay and Gen. Callahan constantly review the whole Jupiter program, making sure that modification, manufacture, production, crew-training, logistics support and all the other complicated prerequisites come to a point at the same time and at the same place. They even prepare joint monthly reports to the Secretary of Defense.

To bring this about, the Air Force Jupiter Liaison Office (AFJUPLO) was set up by MOAMA early in Jupiter's career. AFJUPLO, physically across the hall from the Army Jupiter Project Office in ABMA Headquarters at Redstone, reports to Gen. Callahan. But since the two offices must reach joint decisions on most Jupiter details, office geography is ideal.

Represented at AFJUPLO are SAC, ATC, Ballistic Missile Division of Air Research and Development Command, MOAMA, U.S. Air Force Europe, Jupiter European Field Office and Jupiter Huntsville Office.

All these Air Force organizations needed the close cooperation of ABMA if they were to successfully fulfill their assignments in the job of taking Jupiter out of the R & D stage and putting it in the weapon system category.

"All made claims," AFJUPLO officials said, "on Army Jupiter capabilities. These claims," they added, "were completely and satisfactorily met."

Conferences at ABMA headquarters between Army and Air Force spokesmen reached joint agreements on all sorts of requirements.

For example, the ground support equipment and other tables of organization had originally been set up by the Army for Army use. Joint conferences modified these initial plans to meet Air Force specifications. This, ABMA spokesmen said, was done by mutual agreement.

The thumb-and-finger type of cooperation is best shown in the field of training. ATC and SAC had to insure that Air Force personnel were trained to use Jupiter. It was mutually agreed that the Army was best qualified to meet the training requirements timewise by use of existing facilities and instruction force at Redstone Arsenal.

SAC and ATC AFJUPLO people sat down with ABMA's Training Division people and came up with a training program that would meet pre-fixed Jupiter squadron deployment dates. At this stage, Jupiter equipment was not available, but the Air Force was willing to get the training underway by using Redstone equipment.

SAC personnel arrived when the Training Division asked for them and a steady flow of Air Force students got the maximum use of the available training equipment.

To meet deployment dates, training was a "crash program." ABMA trained Air Force students on two shifts, six days a week. And, since the troops were training to use a weapon system still in the development stage, each modification brought about immediate changes in the training procedure. The latest data on Jupiter was always presented to the classes.

On January 15, 1958, the 864th Strategic Missile Squadron, and on April 15, a second squadron—the 865th—were activated. OGMS worked with ABMA to set up 16 new courses to meet the AF training requirements, obtaining some instructors and training equipment from Chrysler Corp. The Ordnance Guided Missile School (OGMS) first gave officers and airmen individual training, and supplemented this with training of integrated crews. In addition training at OGMS, personnel of the 864th were allowed to participate in numerous Army conducted R & D firings at Cape Canaveral.

Since ABMA developed Jupiter, ABMA procures it. ABMA's prime contractor is the Chrysler Corp. Chrysler provides the bird itself, ground support equipment, and related engineering, field and logistics support. On many logistical support matters, MOAMA deals directly with Chrysler.

This brings about those monthly meetings between Gen. Barclay and Gen. Callahan because Callahan's command, MOAMA, is executive manager for the Jupiter, and has the job of providing for its logistics support in the field.

Chrysler works closely with MOAMA and ABMA in setting requirements for modification and spare parts, modification kits, supply, and other matters.

MOAMA works with ABMA to set up specialized training programs, procedures to effectively support missile squadrons in the field.

MOAMA has direct lines between Chrysler and Mobile to correlate data, speeding shipment and insuring that spare parts and information to keep Jupiter in constant readiness are on hand.

needs. The Army retained this responsibility, because both groups agreed that as the developer of the weapon system; the Army knew it best, and had already set up a procurement organization.

But, the Air Force set production requirements, need dates and other criteria — always mutually with ABMA — and repays the Army for all its procurement operations.

Cooperation at the working level in budgeting and funding is continuous, ABMA officials said.
