

Stahr Is Named as New Secretary of the Army

Washington (AFPS) — Elvis J. Stahr Jr., educator, lawyer, Army veteran of World War II and former Special Assistant to Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, is President Kennedy's selection as the new Secretary of the Army.

A native of Hickman, Ky., Mr. Stahr was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1936 where he won a Rhodes Scholarship. He attended the University of Oxford from 1936 to 1939.

In 1947 he returned to the University of Kentucky as an Associate Professor of Law and in 1948 became Dean of U. K.'s College of Law, a position he held until 1956.

He was granted a leave of absence from his duties as Dean to become Special Assistant to the Secretary of the Army for Reserve Forces during 1951 and 1952. He currently holds a reserve commission in the Army as lieutenant colonel.

Mr. Stahr, who at the age of 32 was selected as one of "America's Ten Outstanding Young Men of 1948" by the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce, comes back to the Pentagon from the University of West Virginia where he has been president since 1959. Prior to that he was a vice chancellor at the University of Pittsburgh.

Commissioned a second lieutenant, infantry, in 1940, Mr. Stahr served more than four years during World War II and was discharged a lieutenant colonel.

During the war he spent two years in North Africa, India and China. Previously, in 1943, he received a diploma in Chinese languages from Yale. In the Orient he served as combat liaison officer with the Chinese Nationalist Forces. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal with an Oak Leaf Cluster and received three decorations from the Chinese.

A member of the bar in New York and Kentucky, Mr. Stahr received his LL.D. degree from West Virginia Wesleyan College. Just prior to and following World War II he practiced law in New York City.

Pershing Is Fired Successfully At Atlantic Range

The successful test firing of a Pershing ballistic missile at Cape Canaveral, Fla., was announced last Wednesday.

"Both stages fired as planned and all test objectives were met," Brig. Gen. Richard M. Hurst, Commander of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, said.

Instrumentation in the sharp-nosed surface-to-surface missile measured the reaction of its inertial guidance system components to determine shock, temperature and stress, Gen. Hurst reported.

The solid fuel Pershing is immune to counter measures once it is fired because its guidance system is completely self-contained.

The missile was fired from its transporter-erector-launcher (TEL), a self-contained unit designed to carry and erect the missile in the field.

The Pershing system will be transportable on tracked ground vehicles, by helicopter or fixed wing aircraft. Its high mobility will enable it to go anywhere with the field Army.

ABMA is technical Supervisor of the Pershing development program. (See PERSHING on Page 2)

EXPLORER I IS 3 YEARS OLD; STILL GOING STRONG

The Free World's first scientific earth satellite, Explorer I, was three years old yesterday.

Fired into earth-circling orbit by the U. S. Army, January 31, 1958, the 18.13 pound satellite has traveled approximately 425 million miles.

Signals from Explorer I ceased 63 days after launch due to battery exhaustion. The satellite is still under visual observation.

Orbital data are released regularly by the National Space Surveillance Control Center at Bedford, Mass., and the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, Cambridge, Mass.

The satellite circles the earth 13 times a day and is expected to remain from four to seven years longer. Its apogee is now 1,133.2 miles and its perigee is 219 miles. The latter is the closest it approaches the earth's surface.

Secretary's Farewell Message

Before leaving office on Jan. 20, Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates, and Deputy Secretary of Defense James H. Douglas requested that all members of the Armed Forces receive the following message:

"We deeply appreciate the opportunity to have worked closely with the U. S. Armed Forces and we are most grateful for the friendliness and the many courtesies and kindness extended to us.

"We consider our association with the members of the U. S. Armed Forces during our service with the Defense Department one of the most stimulating and satisfying experiences of our lives.

"We will continue to follow with keen interest the problems on National Security and the activities of the U. S. Armed Forces and will strongly support them in carrying out their vital missions of defending the United States and the Free World."

Hawk Kills Corporal, Test At White Sands

Nike Zeus Course Will Run 8 Weeks

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N. M.—An eight week course to train Nike Zeus test personnel for future phases of the U. S. Army's anti-missile missile development program started Jan. 16 at White Sands Missile Range.

The school trains military and civilian personnel in missile handling and firing techniques and in the operation of the electronic brain designed to guide the Army's Nike Zeus to intercept attacking intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The first week of general orientation in the Nike Zeus program is followed by seven weeks of detailed instruction with a class split into two student groups. One group spends the seven weeks learning missile handling and firings; the other studies the ground electronics of the system.

The course will be followed by a week's study of a missile warhead and a one-to-two week familiarization with the type of Nike Zeus facilities being installed at Ft. Mugu, Calif., and at Kwajalein (See COURSE on Page 3)

Test Is One Part Of Series to Learn Missile Capabilities

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N. M.—An Army Hawk guided missile displayed new anti-missile talents today when it killed the fastest ballistic it has ever faced, a Corporal, last week.

The Army said the Hawk successfully intercepted the Corporal as the ballistic missile plunged earthward from the fringes of space in the terminal dive of its trajectory.

Closing speed of the two missiles was several times the speed of sound.

Hawk made its kill in a brilliant explosive flash high above the desert. Only the Hawk carried an explosive warhead.

Army troops fired the Corporal as part of a routine training exercise. The Corporal, operational with troops in Europe for almost five years, curved high above the earth as it followed its ballistic path.

The Army said the test underlined the extremely quick reaction time of the Hawk system. The defending missile battery had only a few seconds to acquire the target missile as it began its downward plunge and fire the defending missile.

The Hawk system has now killed three different surface-to-surface missiles. These are missiles of the general type that could be expected to be fired against our ground forces in battle.

Previous Hawk kills involved the Army's Little John and Honest John free flight rockets. These offered slower but smaller targets than the Corporal used today.

Originally designed to defend against low altitude attacks by high performance aircraft, the 17-foot-long Hawk has displayed its versatility in the missile against missile tests at White Sands which are being carried out to determine the full capability of the Hawk system.

The firing crew that launched the Hawk today was composed of personnel from the Raytheon Company. Raytheon is prime contractor for the Hawk system under the supervision of the Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency.

ARGMA is also supervising the Army-industry team engaged in work on the Nike Zeus anti-missile missile system, the only project under active development to defend the Free World against the threat posed by intercontinental ballistic missiles."

Bloodmobile Is Scheduled February 8

Goal for the Dec. 8 visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile is 1100 pints of blood, Maj. George Grace, Redstone Arsenal Bloodmobile coordinator has announced.

The Bloodmobile will be set up at the Post Gymn, Bldg. 5663, from 8:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.

A special award is planned for the 16,000th donor at Wednesday's visit. One of the means of special recognition will be the award of an extra six months of security in case of need for the 16,000th donor. His card will be honored for one year for himself or his family instead of six (See MOBILE on Page 2)

HONORED BY BOY SCOUTS—Maj. Gen. August Schomburg, (left) Commanding General of the Army Ordnance Missile Command, receives a set of bookends from Col. Harry C. McClain, post surgeon, who made the presentation on behalf of the Tennessee Valley Council of Boy Scouts. Gen. Schomburg, who was a Boy Scout for many years, was chairman of the highly successful 1960 "Pershing-Zeus Boy Scout Round-Up." The Round-Up was designed to interest boys in the scouting program. All Scouts who recruited at least one new boy into scouting were guests of the Army at a Redstone Arsenal "open house." Over 1,400 boys joined the Scouts during the drive. Col. McClain accepted the bookends during a Scout Council meeting Jan. 13 on behalf of Gen. Schomburg, who was out of town. The bookends are inscribed with the Boy Scout Law and are monogrammed "To Maj. Gen. August Schomburg, Chairman, 1960 Pershing-Zeus Roundup, Tennessee Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America." They also bear a model of a Boy Scout.

He stated that loan activity must be increased in order to maintain our current dividend rate and that membership failure to respond to this situation by fully utilizing the loan service of the Credit Union may necessitate reduction in the dividend rate at the end of 1961.

Supervisory Committee member John D. Stephenson summed up his report by stating that "you can be assured that the assets as reported in the Financial and Statistical Report presents an accurate picture of the financial

TOOL ENGINEERS MEET

The American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers will meet at Michael's Restaurant at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow night.

Jay C. Gorham, Midwest Regional Manager for Bendix Corp., Detroit, will speak on "Feasibility of Numerical Control for Custom Design and Prototype Engineering."

The technical session begins at 8 p.m.

The Group will receive a chart-belt of atomic radiation. Information was also provided by Explorer I on cosmic radiation, micro-meteorites, and the outside and inside temperatures of the satellite.

The cost per mile of Explorer I's journey through space is now about one-half cent based upon the total cost of the experiment, including the rocket vehicle.

The pass of the orbit carries the satellite over the United States, Africa and Indonesia. It is inclined to the equator at an angle of 33.32 degrees. Its orbit ranges between 33 degrees North and 33 degrees South latitude.

Huge Tires Made For Use by Army In Alaska Exercise

Akron, Ohio (AFPS) — The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. here has turned out the world's largest tires — each 10 feet high — for shipment to Alaska where they will be used in the Army's Exercise Deep Freeze.

Including the rim, each tire tips the scales at 3,200 pounds. They will be used for cargo trailers built by the Army Transportation Corps.

An Army spokesman said the trailers will replace heavy, slow-moving sleds that up to now have served to haul cargo across snow.

"By using tires instead of runners," he added, "the cargo carriers can operate over any type of off-the-road terrain instead of just snow."

VALUE

Borum and Estler stated that Value Engineering techniques used at Convair could be applied by Redstone Arsenal Engineers to realize additional cost savings beyond those normally achieved through good engineering practices.

At Convair a technique is employed to break down the "mental blocks" that engineers often have such as: (a) I'll design the part this way, because this is the way it has been done before. (b) I can't do it that way, because it wouldn't follow department policy. (c) It looks like a good idea, but it would be hard to sell. (d) It can't be changed because it's in the specs. (e) Etc.

Next, the function of the component is thoroughly evaluated.

"Brainstorming" techniques are used to obtain several simple solutions for accomplishing the necessary function.

The engineer then selects the best solution, and armed with sound and accurate facts, he can usually get this idea accepted.

While at the seminar, Borum and Estler worked with Value Engineering teams to redesign an item of the B-58 Bomber. This team achieved a cost reduction of 34%.

Borum and Estler are convinced that the Convair Value Engineering technique really works and they intend to apply these techniques at ABMA.

At the Service Club

We have a good variety of programs scheduled for you in the weeks ahead. Take a glance through this column and I am sure you will find several that you will enjoy.

The Enlisted Men's Council will meet at 1330 hours on Wednesday, 1 February. Later in the evening Ray Pisani will instruct on the fine points of the Foxtrot at 1930 hours, followed one hour later at 2030 hours by further dance instruction on the Rhumba.

The Shutter Club will meet in the small lounge Thursday evening at 1800 hours. I am anxious to get started on some photo-snapping trips around the local countryside as soon as the weather permits. So if your inclinations lie in that direction, come by and sign up for the Shutter Club.

On Friday, here will be a Table Tennis Contest at 2000 hours. Don't be afraid to join in these Service Club contests because you aren't an expert, as few of us are.

We have a TV Features Session scheduled at 1800 hours Saturday the 4th placing special emphasis on our TV Room. We would like you to become familiar with all of the facilities of the Service Club. That way you won't miss anything just because you didn't know it was available. At 2000 hours there will be a Cardboard Capers featuring card games of all types.

Our regular Coffee Call is at 0930 hours Sunday morning when hot coffee and donuts will be served from the kitchen. Sunday afternoon a pinochle contest will be in progress at 1330 hours. I don't understand pinochle myself, but I plan to lurk around the tables and pick up some pointers. Later Sunday night at 1900 hours we will have our weekly Record Dance under the theme of Popular Dance Night.

Monday night "Grab Bag" evening of games will get underway at 2000 hours.

The Bridge Club meets on Tuesday night the 7th at 1930 hours in the small lounge.

HISTORY

The evening of Jan. 19th saw all sorts of weird creatures converging on the Service Club. This was the night of our Sadie Hawkins Costume Dance and the Dog-patchers were out in force. Winners of the Best Costume awards were Robert D. Rice and Telette Van Valkenburg.

The Birmingham tour to the Art Museum, which Molly conducted on the 21st, ended at the "Y" where the Birmingham hostesses had prepared a buffet supper.

Books in Review

The Army Blue Book, The Navy Blue Book, The Air Force Blue Book (Military Publishing Institute, Inc., paper, $1.50 each).

Produced with the assistance of the Services, these three volumes follow a similar pattern and fill an often-expressed need for a paper-bound current almanac of Service information for ready reference.

The first half of each book consists of a series of articles and vignettes, some original, some reprints or abridgements of material which has appeared elsewhere, concerning different aspects of the Service concerned.

For example, the Navy volume contains articles on Polaris, the Seabees, Hanson Baldwin on atomic war, the Battle of Leyte Gulf, the Naval Academy. The Army book has an article by General Lemnitzer, one on

There will be another Art Museum tour coming in February as there were so many who wanted to go on this one, but were left behind due to the lack of space.

Speaking of the future, we have some unusual programs taking place in the next few weeks. Among these are: A special showing of the Nurnberg Trials, the Art Museum tour, and a gala Sweetheart Ball. Keep in touch. See you soon?

STRAC, another on the Pentomic Division, one on the Army in Europe and another on the Ength in Korea.

The Air Force volume covers such subjects as SAC, USAFE, space, General Schriever on "The Shape of Things to Come," and the Air Force chaplains.

Practically every aspect of the Services is covered, from People-to-People to stories of individual heroes to Service education to J. Edgar Hoover on the battle for men's minds.

The second half of each book is a compilation facts on earth Service — strengths, organization charts, Medal of Honor winners, details of Air Force engines, locations of installations, a synopsis of Army history, military abbreviations. Navy missiles. One very useful item is a list of sources for further information on each Service.

Well illustrated. Available in hardbound at $4.95 each.

CITED FOR PERFORMANCE—Lt. Col. Henry R. DelMar, U. S. Army Ordnance Missile Command, Redstone Arsenal, Alabama, post transportation officer for several years, was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for exceptionally meritorious service by Major General August Schomburg. The presentation was made before Col. Del Mar departed for a new assignment in New York. Mrs. Del Mar and their two children, Debra Sharon, 2, and Patricia, 4, were present for the ceremony. They are natives of New York.

BOTH SIDES USED VARIETY OF ARMS IN CIVIL WAR

From the beginning of the War between the States, 100 years ago, to the end of the conflict in 1865, the major problem of both the Union and Confederate Armies was one of supply—ammunition and arms supply to be exact.

Some of the arms used dated all the way back to the Revolutionary War, such as the French Model 1763 Charleville Musket, sometimes called the Lafayette.

In fact, about midway through the war, the Union Army listed as "official" 79 different models of rifles and muskets, 23 models of carbines and musketoons (shorter than the rifle and musket) and 19 various pistols and revolvers. To add to the confusion, practically every one required different ammunition.

The situation in the Confederate Army was similar. In addition, many individuals and even whole units purchased and carried a large variety of unofficial arms, needing still more types and sizes of ammunition to make them usable.

Practically anything that could be fired was put into service, some of the weapons being more dangerous to the shooter than to the enemy.

Despite the many different calibers, the basic bullets fired in the muzzle-loading shoulder arms were "Minie balls" named after the French Army captain who developed them in 1847.

The original idea was to have a loose-fitting round ball that could easily be pushed down the barrel of the weapon and then enlarged by striking it several times with the ramrod. The bullet that evolved from

FOCUS ON GROUND FORCES FOR ARMY IN 1962 BUDGET

Washington (AFPS) — President Eisenhower's 1962 budget, as far as the Army is concerned, provides for a further increase in the field of procurement for the ground forces.

In this field the Army estimates it will spend $1.6 billion. Broken down, the Army plans $156 million for procurement of some 261 aircraft, $507 million for missiles and $948 million for "other."

Expenditures for research, development, testing and evaluation stand at $1.1 billion for the Army.

About a quarter of a billion dollars will be provided to continue development and testing programs for the Army's Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile. Full scale system tests are expected in the summer of 1962.

In addition, substantial funds will be devoted to the continued development of the solid-fueled tactical Pershing missile. Procurement funds in 1962 will provide the first significant production quantities of this missile.

Besides rifles and machine guns employing the standard ammunition of NATO, the M-113 armored personnel carrier will be made available for high priority active Army forces.

The Army and Marine Corps will continue to buy a wide variety of tactical guided missiles and rockets, including the Pershing and the Davy Crockett, which provides infantry units with a close range atomic support weapon.

the experiments was conical and had a hollow base that expanded against the rifling when fired. Using the Model 1855 rifle of .58 caliber in connection with the Minie ball, marksmen of the era were able to hit man-size targets up to 400 yards, and the rifle was capable of putting 10 consecutive shots in a four-inch bullseye at 100 yards.

Even with this accuracy, it is amazing to today's rifleman that the weapons were ever fired. And often in the heat of battle they weren't. After one battle many weapons were retrieved that hadn't been fired but sure were loaded — one rifle had 23 loads in the barrel.

GETS COMMENDATION MEDAL—Lt. Col. John Johnson, who has been serving as Deputy Inspector General at the U. S. Army Ordnance Missile Command, receives the Army Commendation Medal from Major General August Schomburg (left) commanding general of AOMC. Mrs. Johnson and their two children, Craig, 10, and Ka'hy, 7, were present for the ceremony. Col. Johnson has been reassigned to Fort Carson, Colo., after serving at Redstone for three years.

John Paul Jones, one of the most colorful U. S. Naval heroes, commanded the first and only crew in naval history to lose their ship while winning a battle, and then sail home in the ship they captured.

COMPANY A WINS PLAYOFF 53-52

Hq. Det. USAG won the 1960-61 Redstone Arsenal Basketball League Championship Jan. 21 when they defeated Co. B, OGMS

THE ARMY'S OLD GUARD—First Battle Group, Third Infantry—has contributed much to America's military heritage. Here it carries on the tradition of the Senior Service in the Inaugural Parade.

Playoff Game Won By Co. A, OGMS

Co. A, OGMS No. 1 downed Det B, ABMA in the playoff game for second place in the Redstone Arsenal Basketball League by a score of 53 to 52. This was one of the finest games played this year with both teams playing superb ball. The game was close all the way with the biggest point spread being seven points.

ABMA took the lead in the first quarter 17 to 15.

In the second quarter Company A, OGMS took the lead and held a 30 to 24 half-time advantage. At the end of the third quarter the score stood Co. A, OGMS 39 and ABMA 35.

The fourth quarter was nip and tuck as ABMA caught up and the lead changed hands with each basket. Co. A, OGMS took the lead with 14 seconds left and managed to run out the clock.

High man for Co. A, OGMS

No. 2 45 to 36.

Garrison completed the season with a perfect record of 11 wins against no defeats.

Offensively they placed second to ABMA with a total of 677 points and a 61.7 average per game.

Defensively Garrison finished first with 397 points against them, holding the opponents to 36.1 points per game.

The scoring throughout the season has been balanced among four of the five main players, Ruterford 16.6, Nichols 11.3, Smith 11.0, Apke 9.6 and Matienzo 5.1. Collier was another leading scorer, before being separated from the Army at mid-season, scoring an average of 14.8 points per game.

Ruterford, Nichols, and Smith were selected to the 1961 Redstone Arsenal All-Star team.

Propose Extra EM Pro-Pay For Military

Washington (AFPS) — The Defense Department has released a proposed proficiency payment figure that would see some 222,226 servicemen drawing P-1 at $30 a month and P-2 at $60 a month by June 30, 1962.

Included in the fiscal 1962 budget submitted to Congress by President Eisenhower, funds were requested for the following number of authorizations:

Army—P-1, 79,400; P-2, 7,000—total 86,400. Navy—P-1, 49,346; P-2, 960—total—52,306. Air Force—P-1, 66,736; P-2, 8,333

was Hunsicker with 19 points, 12 of these coming in the first half. Morris was the next highest man for Co. A with 10 points. High man for ABMA, and the game, was Huffstetler with 22 points followed by Zubow with 11.

These are two of the leagues top teams and will certainly finish high in the up and coming "Little Dixie Classic" to be held Jan. 30 thru Feb. 31.

MESSAGE FROM SEC. STAHR

"Deeply conscious of the gravity of the obligations which I have assumed as Secretary of the Army, I greet all its members world-wide, both military and civilian, in humbleness of spirit, but with high confidence that together we shall go forward to achieve the goals to which the Army is committed by the nature and urgency of its mission.

"I shall ever exert by best efforts on behalf of the United States Army as a primary element of our national defense, and in turn I shall count upon the full support of the Army in carrying out to the best of my ability the duties and responsibilities of my office.

—total—75,069. Marine Corps—P-1, 9,007; P-2, 1,444—total—10,451.

This year's authorization request is slightly less than the 230,000 requested in fiscal 1961, but the P-2 payments far outnumber the 10,000 asked for last year.

Last year the P-2 program was yet to get underway on full steam. At that time it was still subject to approval by DOD for implementation.

This year's fiscal budget, however, clearly authorizes 17,737 for the $60 a month P-2 payments.

'HAM' STATION NETWORK —

MARS 12 Years Old With Service Proven

Washington (AFPS) — Although the world as an every-ready emergency radio net. record of amateur radio operators' cooperation with military communications dates back to WWI, the joint Army-Air Force Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS) is now entering its 13th year of service to the nation and 15,000 is varied — about 70 per cent civilian — ranging from high school students to such high-ranking military officers as the Air Force Vice Chief of Staff, Gen. Curtis E. LeMay.

MARS, since it began late in 1948, has played a role in scores of disasters, supplementing Civil Defense communications facilities or operating alone when no such facilities were at hand. World-wide, it transmits about one million messages a year.

It helped fire fighters when the Los Angeles area suffered disastrous forest fires in Christmas week of 1948. Its operators went into action in the emergencies caused by hurricanes Cindy and Debra which buffeted the Southern states from the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico in July 1959. They helped organize rescue and relief work when areas of Morocco and Chile were rocked by earthquakes and tidal waves last year.

Membership in MARS is voluntary. A member must be at least 16 with an amateur radio license and a station that can operate on two or more MARS frequencies with an accuracy within one 100th of one per cent.

A member getting MARS authorization receives operating manuals and, as available, operating crystals. He also is given on-the-air training in military communications procedures and the use and modification of military communications equipment.

He is eligible, after six months, for extension subcourses in electronics from the Army Signal Corps School. He may also, after six months, be issued excess and obsolete electronic equipment.

Except in periods of emergency, the majority of the messages transmitted by MARS are from servicemen to their families back home. Last December some 25,000 such messages went out from the Army MARS station in the Pentagon.

SOLDIER OF THE MONTH—SP4 Jack D. Williams and Mrs. Williams sign in at the Charron Motel on North Memorial Parkway, where the Williams's spent the weekend as guests of the Chamber of Commerce and Lions Club Soldier of the Month Program. This is the first month the "soldier of the month" has been a guest at the Charron, where Mrs. Herschel Watson, the manager's wife, is helping the Williams's register. In addition, the couple spent Saturday night as guests at the American Legion Club. The Williams's, who have been at Redstone since February, 1960, are natives of Michigan. He is in the Special Services Sports Office, and Mrs. Williams has been teaching at Westlawn School. The weekend "on the town" also coincided with their wedding anniversary.

Quirks of Fate Catch up The Innocents Very Quickly

Lesson in Hand-Carrying

A young man, whom we shall call Lawrence to preserve his remaining shreds of dignity, was recently the victim of a startling chain of circumstances. Lawrence had come to the LACROSSE Division, Industrial Operations, ARGMA, almost directly out of high school. Like many of his elders he had much to learn about the Arsenal—in what buildings the various elements are housed, new terminologies and procedures in a Government office, names, faces—in fact a whole new world. Lawrence picked up a familiarity with this new life with commendable speed. He soon proved to be most useful and willing employee.

that morning, instead of the little red Volkswagen which he actually had driven to work. As Lawrence tested a Chevy or two until he found one that the key fit, he was closely observed by three witnesses, including the owner, who watched in amazement as Lawrence drove away. They were ready for him on his return, with an officer of the law of this Arsenal and demanding a full explanation.

It took a little while to satisfy all concerned that no trick or felony was intended. Lawrence is gradually regaining his composure and his pristine faith in humanity.

One day an urgent need arose to hand-carry some documents to Field Service Operations, a distance of about a mile from ARGMA's new headquarters, Building 5250. A fellow employe handed Lawrence the keys to his car, describing it as a tattle-tale-grey Chevrolet sedan and indicating where it was parked.

"She looks like a million dollars."

"Yeah, and she walks like it was all in loose change."

Lawrence dashed off on his mission.

Soon he returned to the office, mission accomplished. But who were the people panting on his heels—that MP and those three irate men?

Unfortunately, the generous car owner had described the car which he had left with his wife

The announcement emphasizes that continual use of moonshine whiskey may become a serious health hazard, and that while the effects vary in individuals, death has been known to occur.

Govt. Agency Cautions on Use Of Moonshine

New York (AFPS) — The Internal Revenue Service warns that drinking of moonshine whiskey may result in disability or even death.

Tests conducted by the government show the presence of dangerous amounts of lead compounds in illicit whiskey due to the use of crude or makeshift stills.

ALTERED, EXPANDED, TWICE-REBUILT —

Presidents, Families Proud of White House

"Strangely, my husband and I have lived in this home longer than in any other."

The words were those of an Army wife, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, on taking leave of the presidential mansion where she had lived for the past eight years—the White House, "national symbol and private residence" in the words of one of its historians.

President John F. Kennedy and his family, moving into the handsome mansion, will occupy a residence that has seen 32 American families come and depart, and none of them has failed to be moved by its serene beauty.

"There is a wonder about living here which has never grown dim," Mrs. Eisenhower wrote as her husband's presidency drew to a close. "I have always looked upon it with a reverence and pride which I am sure all Americans share."

The White House has borne the stamp of every U. S. President—even George Washington, for although he never lived in it our first Chief Executive chose its site and approved its design. Since it was first occupied by John Adams and his family in 1800, it has been altered, expanded and rebuilt twice until today it has a total of 150 rooms and a service staff of 70.

"I never forget," President Franklin D. Roosevelt said, "that the house I live in belongs to all the people." Today the White House averages a million visitors a year, for the historic first floor is open to the public at certain hours.

Its first floor rooms, furnished in styles of the 18th and 19th centuries, cannot be changed even by the President unless the presidentially appointed Fine Arts Commission gives it approval. A First Lady can, however, redecorate the residential second and third floors to her taste, and they are now due for changes to suit the new occupants.

Despite its historic atmosphere, modernization has made the White House a comfortable and efficient operation. Among its 150 rooms are a barber shop, a solarium, a movie theater, and doctor's and dentist's offices. The service staff, ranging from engineers to gardeners, works in eight hour shifts; some are always on duty.

Yet even this home of Presidents is not without its household crises. Last August when the Eisenhowers gave a garden party, the President decided at the last minute to invite 2,000 extra guests. There wasn't time to call in caterers; as a result the White House ran short of food.

Since enlisting in the Army on September 17, 1940, Col. Reiter has served in Washington D. C.; Detroit, Mich.; Aberdeen Proving Ground; Texarkana, Tex.; Europe during WWII, and again during peace time. Armed Forces Receive New Medical Standard

Washington (AFPS)—A revised and uniform set of medical standards for enlistment and retention in the Armed Forces has been announced by the Department of Defense.

The revision is the first major overhaul of medical fitness standards since WWII. It reflects advances in medical science and examination techniques. It is designed to minimize the number of individuals who must be separated for medical reasons during the early part of their military service.

Primary responsibility for administering the new standards has been delegated to the Army.

Permanent Grades Due for Army EM

Washington (AFPS) —The largest semi-annual quota of permanent enlisted grade appointments since the Army's permanent promotion system was reinstated in 1958 has been released to major commands.

Over 12,000 enlisted men of grades E-4 through T-8 will receive permanent grades during the period Jan. 1 through June 30, 1961.

Permanent appointments do not result in a change in pay grade, but are designed to give recognition to those individuals who are best qualified in the temporary grade.

The Judge Advocate Advises

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONER

It is not sometimes clearly understood that persons, even though not subject to military law, are subject to Federal prosecution for offenses committed on Federal reservations or installations, such as the Redstone Arsenal complex.

This is true even though the offense is not specifically covered by a Federal enactment. Sections 7 and 13, title 18 United States Code, provide, in effect, that whoever is guilty of any act or omission on a Federal installation or reservation under the exclusive or concurrent jurisdiction of the United States which act or omission, although not made punishable by any enactment of Congress, would be punishable by state law if committed or omitted within the jurisdiction of a state, shall be guilty of a like offense and subject to a like punishment.

These provisions of law, commonly known as the Federal Assimilative Crimes Statute, adopt the criminal laws of a state as Federal law where there is no specific Federal statute covering the matter.

Redstone Arsenal is Federal property and the major portion thereof is under the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States. Accordingly if any offense, such as driving while intoxicated, is committed on Redstone Arsenal the offender would be subject to Federal prosecution since such a violation of state law which has been adopted as Federal law by the mentioned Assimilative Crimes Statute.

The foregoing is background for a brief discussion of the functions of a United States Commissioner with particular reference to his relationship to a Federal installation such as Redstone Arsenal.

Under the provisions of sections 3401 and 3402 title 18, United States Code, a United States Commissioner specially designated for that purpose by the court by which he was appointed has jurisdiction to try and to sentence persons committing "petty offenses" in any place over which the United States has exclusive or concurrent jurisdiction and within the jurisdictional district for which such Commissioner was appointed.

"Petty offenses" over which the United States Commissioner has jurisdiction are defined as misdemeanors, the penalty for which does not exceed imprisonment for a period of six months or a fine of not more than $500.00 or both.

The Supreme Court of the United States prescribes rules of procedure and practices for the trial of cases before United States Commissioners and for the taking of appeals to, and hearing by, United States District Courts.

However, any person charged with a "petty offense" may elect not to be tried before the United States Commissioner but to be tried in a District Court of the United States which, for this district, is located in Birmingham, Ala. Under procedures worked out by the Department of the Army and the Department of Justice Army officers are authorized to file complaints against petty offenders (when the offense was committed at an installation under the exclusive or concurrent jurisdiction of the United States) and prosecute such offenders before the United States Commissioner where the United States Attorney for the particular district is not able to handle such prosecutions.

From the foregoing, it can be seen that a person who, for example, speeds or drives recklessly on the installation at Redstone Arsenal may be tried before the United States Commissioner since both of these offenses are in violation of the Alabama law, which has been adopted by the mentioned Federal Assimilative Crimes Statute as Federal law. These type offenses and other misdemeanors are "petty offenses" over which the United States Commissioner for this area has jurisdiction.

Trials before the United States Commissioner may be held in the Commissioner's office or he may elect to conduct such trials at the installation concerned.
