Nike Zeus Test Series Continues

Antimissile Is Launched From Pt. Mugu, Calif.

Nike Zeus was fired to a high altitude at Pt. Mugu, Calif., Thursday.

The test that included firing all three of the 48 foot missile's solid fuel rocket motors blazed away from its sea side launcher in a steep climb, the missile curved in an arc and went streaking over the Pacific. Its solid fuel booster and second stage motors fired in rapid sequence. The third stage motor was fired later in the flight. (See NIKE ZEUS on Page 2)

Semi-Annual Meeting Helps Improve Army All-Weather Missiles

Whims of the weather has been the main topic of conversation for more than 40 Army weather predictors meeting here yesterday and today.

The meteorologists, who are experts in the field of atmospheric effects on missiles, meet twice a year to compare notes on advances. (See WEATHER on Page 2)

General McMorrow Predicts Bright Future For Army Missile Command

He Forecast More Responsibilities And Personnel

A bright future for the Army Ordnance Missile Command has been predicted by Maj. Gen. Francis J. McMorrow, AOMC Vice Commanding General.

He forecast increases in both responsibilities and personnel, during a talk with about 200 members and guests of the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club last week.

Gen. McMorrow cited the Army reorganization currently being implemented as the reason for his optimism. He pointed out, however, that the impact of changes in the Army reorganization will not be felt here for several months. "When the reorganization was first announced," he said, "there were doubts and fears in some quarters about the future of AOMC. Now that we've had a better look at expected missions for the Command, there is every indication of a build-up at Redstone."

Gen. McMorrow revealed that the Army reorganization plan calls for Watertown Arsenal, Mass., to become an element of the Missile Command together with Redstone Arsenal.

"We expect to do more procurement of weapons and materials at the Command, once the new Army organization is set up. This also indicates more work at Redstone," he said. "Guided Missiles are here to stay. As science and technology expand, more and more weapons will be missiles. AOMC personnel can anticipate increasing responsibilities."

Secretary Praises Creative Thinking And Future Concepts

The competence and skill of Army Ordnance Missile Command scientific personnel were praised by Dr. Finn J. Larsen, Asst. Secretary of the Army for Research and Development, after his review of laboratory facilities here last week.

"I am particularly pleased with the work in creative thinking, future concepts, and pushing the state-of-the-art that is being done here," Larsen said.

Finishing his inspection of AOMC facilities from test tubes to complete missiles, Secretary Larsen left Wednesday after a two-day visit to major AOMC activities.

Greeted upon his arrival by Maj. Gen. August Schomburg, Commanding General of AOMC, Dr. Larsen received briefings on the mission of AOMC and its Industrial Directorate.

Accompanied by Col. Frank Napper, deputy director of the Industrial Operations Directorate, Dr. Larsen moved quickly to an inspection of the industrial engineering laboratory and witnessed a drop test on a missile container. The vast microfilm files of the industrial directorate were demonstrated for the Secretary on his next stop.

In the electromagnetics laboratory, Secretary Larsen was shown a variety of infra rad and microwave equipment being developed as guidance concepts for future missile systems.

He looked over the static test stand facilities at the test and evaluation laboratory and received a briefing on collection of test data.

Dr. Larsen moved on to the guidance and control laboratory where he saw the complex equipment used to develop inertial guidance for such missiles as the Pershing, Jupiter, and Redstone and talked with skilled personnel who developed the systems.

During his visit, Dr. Larsen tried his skill at operating a north seeking gyroscope exhibit in the laboratory.

In the research laboratory, Dr. Thomas Barr gave Dr. Larsen a preview of the large plasma jet facility AOMC is building for nose cone re-entry research.

At the launch and ancillary laboratory, Dr. Larsen saw a Pershing missile mounted on its XM474 tracked vehicle and a Littlejohn, mounted on its carrier trailer.

 ficers Club, also had reassuring words for the members on the possible impact of the Army re-organization on their husbands' careers.

"Military personnel at AOMC were handpicked for their assignments here. This group could compete in any environment. . . . There will always be a requirement for technically qualified officers," the General said.

The majority of AOMC officers are members of the Army Technical Services, whose Branch offices will be abolished in the new Army organization.

Citing a historical parallel, Gen. McMorrow recalled that several years ago when the Army abolished some of its combat arm branch offices, personnel in these branches feared that their individual capabilities might not be recognized in future assignments. These fears never materialized.

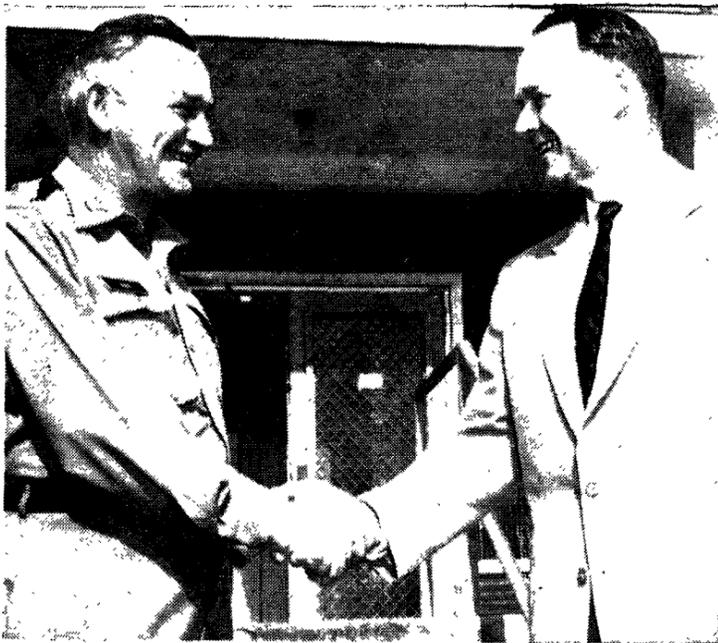

"It is evident now that combat arms personnel hold even more important positions. The outlook for technical service officers is just as good," he said.

Questions You May Be Asked When You're Overseas

Reprinted with permission from a responsibility to represent our Americans Abroad, copyright 1961 by American Council for Nationalities Service. Editors should use this acknowledgement when re-printing.

President Kennedy, in a prefatory message to the booklet "Americans Abroad" has written that "Every citizen of the United States who travels abroad is a spokesman for his country. As such, each of us who visits other lands has a responsibility to represent our country in a manner reflecting the best in our national traditions and ideals. Travelers are in a real sense the first line of our diplomacy and influence abroad."

"Americans Abroad" discusses questions which all who wear their country's uniform are likely to encounter while overseas. These questions will not necessarily be put to servicemen with hostility; in most cases they will probably find them being asked by people who have been misled and confused by Communist propaganda. To answer them effectively all must, as the President has stated, "be well informed on our national goals and objectives and be able to interpret them to others."

QUESTION — Do Americans really want peace?

We do—so much that the very question comes as a shock. Short of liberty itself, peace is foremost in the minds of all Americans.

So appalling is the idea of a nuclear war that the United States is trying by every honorable means to avert that catastrophe. We want to make today's uneasy peace a true and lasting one.

But we recognize that this is possible only when disputes between nations can be settled and wrongs righted without resort to force and violence. We seek a peace that is based on freedom, a rule of law, and the right of all peoples to choose their own form of government and way of life, without fear of interference or aggression. These are goals for which America has long been working.

There is not reason for any nation to fear aggression by the United States. In the period after WWII, when our country had un-disputed nuclear supremacy, we never made a single aggressive move against anybody.

We have no traditional enemies. We desire neither territory nor domination over others. On the contrary, we seek the friendship and understanding of all peoples.

There are, indeed, fundamental differences between the Communist bloc and the free world. Nevertheless, we are determined to seek peaceful solutions to present problems without compromising the principles on which our country was founded.

"Let both sides explore what problems unite us," President Kennedy has said, "instead of belaboring those problems which divide

Col. Hall Opens MILSTRIP Seminar

Col. Sylvester Hall, Director of the Field Service Directorate, AO-MC, opened the seminar on Military Standard Requisitioning and Issue Procedure held at the Rocket Auditorium in three sections, beginning Apr. 9 and running through Apr. 17.

Approximately 1000 AOMC employees participated in the seminar coordinated by Ray Strange and Herbert Tash, of the Operations Control Office, Field Service.

Col. Hall stressed the importance of the new supply procedure and pointed out the magnitude and urgency of implementation at AO-MC, now scheduled for July 1.

Speaking of the billions of dollars the procedure will save taxpayers, Col. Hall stated "Milstrip is your responsibility. Upon your shoulders rests the awesome task of implementing one of the most ambitious undertakings in the history of military logistics—creation of a uniform supply system which will girdle the globe and touch the life of every American in uni-

The Sports Car Buffs

By Pat Patterson

Somewhat more activity has occurred this past week with two events taking place here in North Alabama. One of these, the Alabama Region's Drivers School at Courtland Air Base, I will have to report on next week as the action took place after deadline. However, it looks as though it will be quite a success. Local drivers are planning of attending.

Saturday, Apr. 7 saw 12 cars, five of which were from Huntsville, gathered at the Denton-Smith Chevrolet Company in Downtown Florence for a short pre-meeting rally of the Bon Heur Car Club.

Organized by Dr. John Hardiman with an assist from Pete Walden, president and activities chairman respectively, this straight time-speed-distance event led us into the area Northwest of the city and covered 50 miles of roads that would have made good on the 5-States Rally; gravel, dirt, pavement.

The rally had two legs and divided participants into two classes. The "Pro's," those who had previously won a rally, and the "Amateurs," newcomers and non-winners. For the "Pro's" there were eight average speeds running from a low of 20 mph up to 50 mph while the "Amateurs" had one speed per leg. 29 mph on the first and 39 mph throughout the second.

For some reason or another these short pre-meeting rallies usually have a high percentage of DNF's and this event was no exception as only two of the twelve starters completed the entire route, one "Pro" and one "Amateur" and both of these from Huntsville.

The first car in was the Patterson-Mosling Porsche, in the "Pro" category, with 798 points while the Amoroso-Bauman Volkswagen completed the run with 1007 points to win the "Amateur" class.

"It was a good event, as far as we went," was most everyone's opinion and all seemed in good spirits as the meeting got underway with a discussion of the event. One thing for sure, having one car in each class finish, certainly simplifies the scoring.

During the meeting there were reports on past events including the Sebring Twelve Hour Grand Prix and all other local events for March. Future events were announced and the meeting closed with the showing of movies taken at the Sebring Races by Jim Baker.

Along the line of future events only one is scheduled for the rest of the month here in the Tennessee Valley. On Apr. 29 the second in the series of Championship Slalom/Autocross events of the Tennessee Valley Region, SCCA will be conducted at the North Florence Shopping Center at Florence. It has been a long time since there has been an event of this type in that area. Contact me a little later this month and watch this column for further details as to time, requirements and so on.

Twickenham Automobile Club holds the second meeting of April Thursday at Clark Steadman's. Dinner around 6:30 p.m., and business at 7:30 p.m. This is an important meeting. We are holding nominations for the officers. It behooves each and every member of the organization to be present for this event.

A call from Web Mayfield indicated that the 1962 version of the Secretary Association Schedules Observance Of Secretary's Week

In observance of Secretaries Week April 22-28, the Satellite Chapter of The National Secretaries Association (International) will hold its "Bosses' Day Luncheon" Wednesday, April 25.

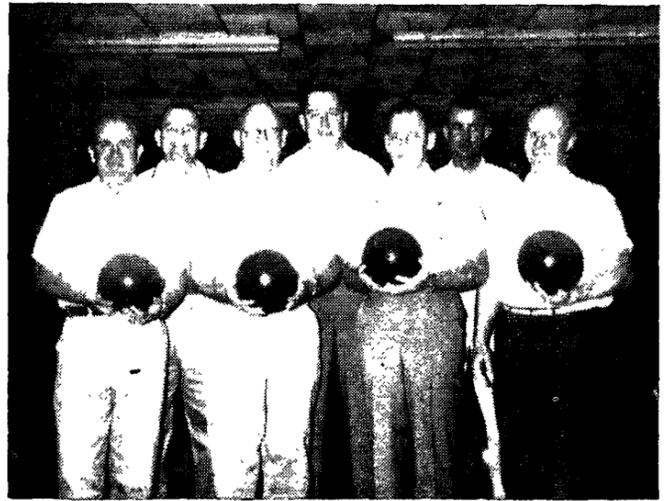

A skit on the trials and tribulations of secretaries and employers will be presented by the Huntsville Little Theater Group.

On Apr. 28, in cooperation with the North Alabama College of Commerce, a typing contest will be held at the college.

"In formulating our plans, we were guided by our slogan, 'Walk Worthy of Your Profession' and by our official NSA motto, 'Better Learning, Better Letters, Better Living,' said Miss Sarah Bentley president of the local chapter. We hope during Secretaries Week which is in honor of all secretaries everywhere, to bring to the attention of the community our continued dedication to the elevation of the secretarial profession in its vital role in business, industry, education and government."

Monte Sano Rallye is well on the way. Web and Vick Baucom have been spending a good deal of time searching out typical Monte Sano roads. They feel that they are going to have the best event yet. No details as to time and date are yet available but as the firm data filters through we will pass it on to you.

One last item this week we will borrow from the makers of Irvin Seat Belts who put a small sticker in with each of their belts that reads, "Don't get caught dead sitting on your seat belt." How true how true!

GRIM DETERMINATION sets the scene as the Riot Control Platoon of the 291st Military Police Co. limbers up for demonstration to be presented for Civil Defense members in Florence. This specialized platoon, under the command of 2/Lt. Joe Mills, receives requests from many locations in North Alabama about training Riot Control techniques as applied to Civil Defense situations.

the most aggressive of mobs. But what are we to do at home in wartime when only limited military help is available? National Civil Defense officials have recognized the problem and realized the need for an organized force to combat riot situations during attack in wartime.

In order to train their members, Civil Defense officials in Northern Alabama have enlisted the aid of the 291st Military Police Co. of Redstone Arsenal.

The Military Police, under the direction of Lt. Joe Mills, hope to have the Civil Defense men of Florence, Ala., in shape to cope with small scale riots and mobs of any type in three short weeks.

The instruction will consist of six two-hour periods of classroom work, demonstrations, and practical exercises. Included will be psychological reasons behind mob behavior; the various formations involved to break and turn rioters; and a detailed description of the chemicals that may be utilized.

This cooperation between civilian and military authorities will eventually lead to a stronger and broader national preparedness in time of an emergency or an aggressor attack. Echoes of "On Guard," should direct by-stander thoughts to the 291st Military Police Co. and their erstwhile Civil Defense counterparts.

Almost half of them are themselves war veterans—many still active in Reserve or National Guard units and making a double contribution to our "Power for Peace."

Civil Defense Ask For Aid In Training

In the past few weeks motorists and passers-by on Patton Road in the vicinity of the Post Theater have been treated to sharp commands of "Short Guard" and "On Guard."

This has not been a practice session for the post fencing team, but a drill for the Riot Control Platoon of the 291st Military Po-

Riot Control is the repelling procedure used against rioters and mobs by military forces in occupied areas during wartime. As the law enforcing element of the Army, all Military Police units are naturally well trained and proficient in Riot Control techniques and tactics.

Armed with shot guns and M-1 rifles, extra long bayonets, and certain chemicals, the Military Police present a stern looking picture to any riotous mob. By means of riot control formations, tear gas baseball grenades, and a cer-

Library Week Observance Held at Missile School

The free world's first missile library which opened at the Missile School four years ago during National Library Week, celebrated the anniversary and the week with some notable exhibits.

The current status of the Missile School library was surveyed by Mrs. Mabel Hoffmeyer, who presides over the unusual structure which is believed to be the first ever built specifically to house missile literature.

In addition to new literature added during the past year, all dealing with missilery and related topics, the school's library has installed TV sets so missile students can dial for special shows, and view them in private booths.

These programs come from a file of some 200 audio-visual lessons that show and tell how some of the nations most powerful weapons are kept in constant combat readiness. The shows are recorded on video tape in English and several foreign languages and missile students from the Army, Air Force, Navy, Marines and 14 foreign countries studying in the library can now dial and have a special TV program piped to them in a few minutes.

A feature during Library Week, was two exhibits, the first, "Atoms in Action" sponsored by the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies. This exhibit shows some of the many peaceful uses of atomic energy. The second exhibit, "Visual Aids in Education," prepared by the school's Training Aids Division, includes a pictorial display of the history of guided missiles.

An open house was held at the library, Friday, April 13th, for members of the Alabama Library Association, attending the state convention here, invited guests and students.

TOASTMASTERS TELL OWN STORIES

At the Redstone Toastmasters meeting Tuesday evening, three new members gave their "ice-breaker" speeches.

The ice-breaker is the first speech given by a member and is an autobiographical sketch. The fourth speaker of the evening was guest speaker, John Thomas of the Mason-Dixon Club. Mr. Thomas took home the first place cup.

Bored? Have An Accident

By Robert D. Gidel

Are you bored with it all? Are you looking for a new horizon? Have an accident!

Accidents can open up a whole new exciting world for you. You'll see places and experience sensations like way out there.

You'll meet pretty young nurses—and probing doctors.

You'll learn how emergency wards, operating rooms, surgeons and other specialists function — first hand.

You may get a stub or scar which will make an ideal conversation piece.

You can write a best seller on, "How I Was Brought Back from the Brink," or "How a Cripple Can Up His Income."

You may get your name in the paper. Maybe even get a headline like "Drunk Runs into School Bus."

You can collect on that accident insurance you've been pouring money down the drain on so long.

You may deduct your time lost from work on your income tax return.

You can sit around the house while recuperating and catch up on all the daytime TV shows.

You can solicit sympathy you'd never get otherwise, maybe even from the kids and spouse.

Your physical system will be injected with all sorts of drugs and stimulants.

The wife might get to go to work, the older kids drop out of school, and so enrich their experiences.

The doctor may have to put you on a regimen to cure some of your bad habits.

You might have to learn a new trade to replace the old one you can't continue and didn't like anyway.

So live modern. Have an accident. Experience can be a good teacher—if you live through it.

Lester: "Oh, I traded for a Hudson."

KNIT ONE, PURL ONE—SP5 Duane Berg, an instructor in the Ordnance Guided Missile School, found himself in isolation at the U. S. Army Hospital at Redstone Arsenal but wasted no time. He took along his knitting and fashioned a white sweater. SP5 Berg isn't the only member (male) of his family who knits. His uncle used this device to make time fly during World War II. SP5 Berg claims his mother gave him an instruction book and the yarn to keep him engrossed while he was supposed to stay in bed when he was about 12.

NEW SOCCER ATTIRE — Model Marilyn Ridges agrees that high-heeled shoes and a soccer ball don't go together. She took the opportunity to add a lively atmosphere during a London sports fashion show, wearing a colorful wool sweater that was especially designed for soccer enthusiasts.
