Gen. Schomburg Is Promoted and Reassigned Gen. McMorrow Will Assume AOMC Command

Visitors Studying AOMC Logistics Data Processing

A study group from the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Installations and Logistics, headed by Alexis T. Bishop, acting director, Supply Management Policy, began a three-day visit to the Army Ordnance Missile Command Monday.

Maj. Gen. F. J. McMorrow, AOMC Vice Commanding General, welcomed the visitors Monday morning.

During their tour, the group will assess the capabilities of existing automatic data processing systems (ADP) at AOMC, with the objective of including this information in the design of a long range Department of Defense master plan and procedure for application of ADP to all aspects of materiel management.

Col. S. A. Hall, head of the AOMC Field Service Directorate, heads the team that will brief the group. Most of the ADP work at Redstone is done in FSD.

The members of the visiting party include representatives of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and the Defense Supply Agency. They are visiting all types of military installations where ADP systems are in use.

Transferring CG Named Chief of New Agency Established by Pres. Kennedy

Maj. Gen. August Schomburg has been given a promotion and a new assignment. Maj. Gen. Francis J. McMorrow will succeed him as Commanding General of AOMC.

Gen. Schomburg Saturday was nominated for three star rank and named to command the newly established U. S. Army Supply and Maintenance Command, largest element of the Army Materiel Development and Logistic Command created in the recently approved Army reorganization.

President Kennedy's nomination for General Schomburg's promotion to lieutenant general went to the Senate for confirmation Monday.

Maj. Gen. McMorrow has been serving as Vice Commanding General of AOMC. He was named CG on Monday.

AOMC is also an element of the Materiel Development and Logistic Command in the new Army set-up.

Gen. Schomburg has been chief of the Army's missile and rocket programs at Redstone since assuming command of AOMC on February 19, 1960. A native of Denver, Colo., Gen. Schomburg graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1931.

As first chief of the Army Supply and Maintenance Command, General Schomburg will assume control of an organization which includes some 100,000 civilian and military personnel and more than 50 Army depots, maintenance activities, ports of embarkation and supply agencies throughout the United States.

His new responsibility includes delivery and supply of all materiel to overseas commands and Army installations in the United States.

Among the 36 multi-mission Army depots in his direct charge will be Anniston Depot at Anniston, Ala.; the Atlanta Depot Complex based at Atlanta, Ga., and the Memphis Depot complex at Memphis, Tenn.

Gen. McMorrow, 51, has been vice-commanding general of the Missile Command since July 17, 1961. He is a native of New York City and was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1933.

Maj. Gen. Francis J. McMorrow named Commanding General of AOMC.

Law Day to Be Observed

Law Day USA is next Tuesday. Observance by the lawyers at the Army Ordnance Missile Command is anticipated.

The theme for the fifth anniversary of Law Day is "The Law-Well-spring of Liberty."

Maj. Gen. August Schomburg, Commanding General of AOMC, in referring to Law Day said, "We of AOMC should, in performing our military mission which is so vital to strengthening physically our country's bulwarks and arsenal, pause to cherish our legal and judicial systems upon which rest our representative government and to realize that such system and results flowing therefrom, in the way of individual liberties, are also powerful and important weapons in the eyes of the world."

Secretary Stahr Will Visit Sat.

The Secretary of the Army, Elvis J. Stahr Jr., will arrive by air Saturday for a one-day visit to the Army Ordnance Missile Command, Ordnance Guided Missile School and the Marshall Space Flight Center.

Dr. Frank Rose, president of the University of Alabama, is scheduled to accompany the Secretary. Stahr has a speech scheduled in Tuscaloosa Friday evening. He plans to return to Tuscaloosa after completing his visit.

Maj. Gen. August Schomburg, AOMC Commanding General, will greet the Secretary upon arrival at about 10 a.m. and then escort (See STAHR on Page 2)

BUSY MISSILE SECRETARY—Miss Freida Rice typifies all secretaries at the Army Ordnance Missile Command when, on occasion, the high-speed world of Army missiles and rockets seems to require a girl with six hands. Carter, chief scientist at the Army Ordnance Missile Command.

Freedom Bond Drive Will Be Launched Here Tuesday

Maj. Gen. F. J. McMorrow of the U. S. Army Ordnance Missile Command will officially launch the 1962 Army Savings Bond Drive at Redstone Tuesday in Rocket Auditorium, at 2:30 p.m.

Lt. Col. John Palsrok, Chief, Finance and Accounting Office, U. S. Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency, is overall bond campaign chairman. John L. Edgar, also of F&A, has been named savings bond officer this year.

Stahr Views Zeus Test Preparation on Kwajalein

Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr got a first hand look at preparations for advanced testing of the Army's Nike Zeus anti-missile missile earlier this month when he visited the Zeus test site on Kwajalein Island.

The Secretary stopped at Kwajalein for a day during a visit to major Army activities in the Far East.

Others in his party included Lt. Gen. William Quinn, Deputy Director, Defense Intelligence Agency, and Maj. Gen. C. G. Dodge, Army Chief of Information.

The party toured the entire Zeus test complex on the mid-Pacific island accompanied by Col. Martin L. Raines, Chief of AOMC's Pacific Field Office, and key personnel of the Zeus contractors who are assisting in the tests.

The Zeus site on Kwajalein is being readied for tests scheduled to begin later this year when the Zeus system will engage target vehicles fired west over the Pacific Missile Range by Air Force intercontinental ballistic missiles launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

Former Ordnance Chief Visits Here

The man who headed the Army Ordnance Corps when Redstone Arsenal first started to mushroom visited here last week.

He is Lt. Gen. Emerson L. Cummings, who retired from the Army just last month.

Gen. Cummings was Chief of the Ordnance Corps from 1953 to 1958 —when Redstone Arsenal was undergoing its maximum buildup. He was the youngest officer to hold that position since World War I.

Gen. Cummings, after his tour as Chief of Ordnance, went to the Far East as commanding general of the Army, Japan. He later became commanding general of the Fifth Army, a post from which he retired last month.

Born in Boston, Gen. Cummings was graduated from West Point in 1924.

Gen. Cummings was accompanied on his visit to the Arsenal by his wife, Louise. During his stay, he held informal conferences with general officers of the Command.

Dr. Wernher von Braun, Director of the Marshall Center, will greet the Secretary and escort him and his party to the Marshall Center Fabrication Laboratory. A look at a Saturn space vehicle booster there and a visit to the NASA facility's test area will complete the visit.

Secretary Stahr is scheduled to depart from the Arsenal airstrip at about 3 p.m.

Wage Survey Is Being Conducted in This Area

Pay Scales of 25 Private Firms Will Be Checked

The Army-Air Force Wage Board is conducting a wage survey to obtain information about wage rates being paid in this area for certain jobs.

This information will be gathered from some 25 private industrial establishments in Huntsville, Decatur, and the Tri-Cities area.

Wage rates paid Federal wage board employes, leaders and supervisors are derived from the information gathered in such surveys. Wage rates resulting from this survey will not affect the pay of Classification Act employes, as rates for these employes are established by Congress.

Team members to conduct the survey, which began on April 10, are from the Army Ordnance Missile Command and the George C. Marshall Space Flight Center. The information gathered will be submitted to the Army-Air Force

Wage Board. Specific information concerning the rates which result from this survey will be published at the earliest possible date.

MC, Gen. McMorrow will direct the activities of some 9,000 civilians and 1,400 military personnel. His command has the responsibility for managing 19 Army missile systems, including the Free World's only anti-missile missile, Nike Zeus.

A new, streamlined Missile Command will be taken over by Gen.

McMorrow. The Command a few months ago underwent its own streamlining process to make it conform more nearly to the needs of a mission scattered over half the world. The Command has elements as far south as Ascension Island in the Atlantic, west to Kwajalein Island in the mid-Pacific, east to Europe.

Prior to his assignment as vice-commanding general of the Missile Command, Gen. McMorrow was Director of Procurement, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, in Washington.

Gen. and Mrs. McMorrow now live on Redstone Arsenal with one of their two daughters, Margaret. The other daughter, Mrs. Paul G. Ruud, lives in Europe. A son Lt. Thomas F. McMorrow, is in the Army stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Troops Take Physical Combat Proficiency Tests

Endurance, Coordination, Alertness Are Tested

One Man Racks Up 474 Out of Possible 500 Points in Test

Troops in the troop area during the sunny and windy weather are being treated to a show every afternoon at 3 p.m.

Enlisted men and officers under 40 are either undergoing or training for the physical combat proficiency test unless the man's medical record precludes such training.

With a minimum of 300 points needed to qualify, men who don't succeed on the first try will continue to try until the required points are accumulated.

Lt. Joshua B. Shaw, Jr., of the Research and Development Directorate, registered perfect scores on the crawl, ladder and dodge run and jump. With grenades he scored 80 points and ran the mile in 6 minutes and 19 seconds for a 94 point score. His total is 474—eight points above the next highest man.

SP5 August Kaluzny, assigned to Special Services, chalked up 466 out of a possible 500 points. In the 40-yard crawl, Kaluzny snaked across the field in 20 seconds for a score of 100.

The test requires a man to crawl across a 20-yard course using his elbows, knees and feet as propellant. Still on his stomach, he must turn and return across the course. If it sounds easy, the reader might try this little maneuver.

Rangers designed the present test of endurance and fitness and used it in various locations under varied weather conditions before it was accepted by the Continental Army Command to replace the old type tests.

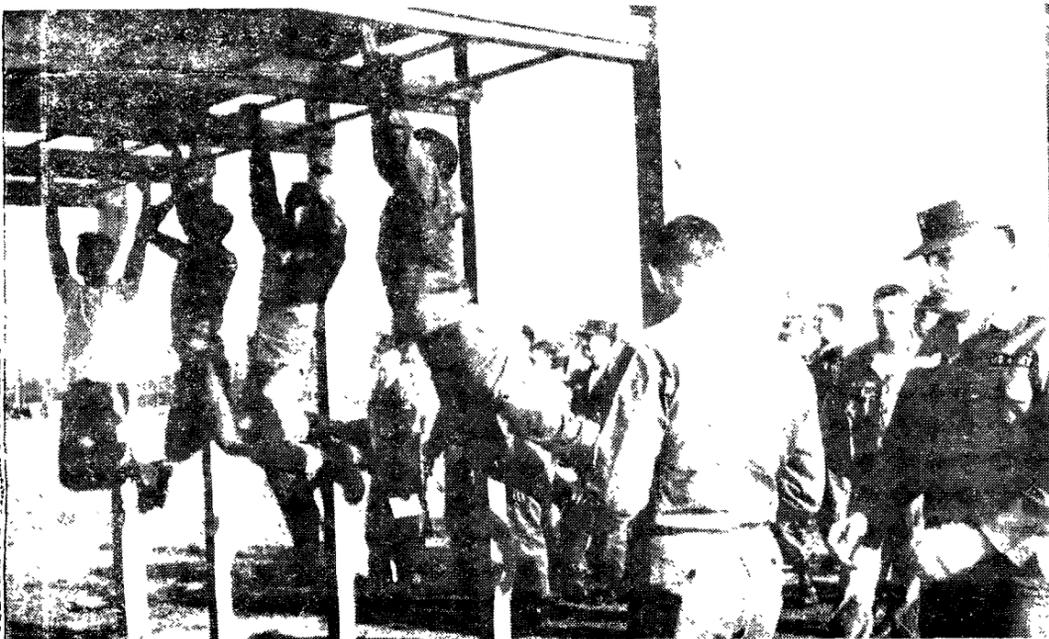

The second requirement is a test of body coordination and the development of the girdle of shoulder muscles. Horizontal ladders are set up so that the man

SWING ALONG for a minute—Using the horizontal ladder to test the proficiency of the men's coordination and the endurance of the shoulders, the Army test demands that each rung must be used with one hand only. Then the men must turn for the return trip along the bar. Scores are based on the number of rungs a man reaches by the end of a minute. At right is one of the officers in charge of the tests, Lt. John Coleman of the Troop Command S-3 Office.

SPEED AND ALERTNESS are combined in this portion of the Combat Physical Proficiency Test opposite Troop Command headquarters. Scores are based on time, obstacles must be avoided according to directional arrows and a six-foot ditch must be jumped four times. Timer Bullock is at left.

PASSENGER SECTION PERSONNEL ENJOY VICARIOUS GLOBE TROTTING

Colorful and exotic postcards from all parts of the world are a regular part of the mail received at the Redstone Transportation Passenger Section.

The cards come from as far south as Capetown, South Africa; as far north as Winnipeg, Canada; from Okinawa in the east, and Hawaii in the west. They are sent by Army Ordnance Missile Command employes to the six women who handle the more than 10,000 travel arrangements per year for the Command.

Although they do little traveling themselves, the women can "see" a variety of foreign countries through the cards sent to them by AOMC travelers.

Sometimes the travelers bring back souvenirs. A grass skirt, a metal pineapple paperweight, and a shell bracelet are among the souvenirs brought back to Redstone.

Postcards come from places such as Paris, France; Berlin, Germany; Liberia, West Africa; Amsterdam, Holland; and the island of Barbados in the West Indies.

Handling civilian travel to missile test sites and missile units in the field is a big part of their job, but the section makes other travel arrangements, too.

Transport of troop units to overseas terminals is handled by the office, as well as travel overseas of servicemen's dependents. They also arrange for movement of the deceased military to their hometowns for burial.

Perhaps the most difficult part of the job is handling travel arrangements for foreign military troops, training on Redstone Arsenal at the Ordnance Guided Missile School.

"Usually its a problem in communication," said Dorcas Thronberry, chief of the section, "But we always manage to solve it."

A man about to be electrocuted phoned his lawyer from the death chamber. "They're ready to put me in the electric chair. You're my lawyer—what can I do now?" The lawyer thought a while, then said, "Don't sit down."

CRAWL TEST—The field of competitors strings out as the more proficient at using hands, knees and feet to propel themselves forge ahead during the Physical Combat Proficiency Test.

Proficiency Tests

In the dodge, run and jump event, the men are required to pass through a series of obstacles following directional arrows, jump a six-foot ditch, and return. Two circuits are required.

With obstacles on the bias from the ditch, many pass to the end of the line for the second allowable try at the 58-yard course. This isn't considered an endurance test but is scored on a distance against time basis.

The fourth test involves hand grenades and the ability to throw for distance and accuracy. The men begin in a prone position, rise to kneel, and return to prone position, throwing at a target 90 feet away. Two practice throws are allowed before five grenades are thrown for scores.

The final measure of leg and wind endurance in a one-mile run. A maximum of eight minutes thirty seconds is allowed to complete the run on a measured course.

According to Maj. George Grace Troop Commander, approximately 300 men already have been tested. The continuity of testing was broken down when the rain inundated the field. Despite that some groups have been tested on a water-logged field where the clumsy splashed the agile and vice versa.

The whole test procedure requires approximately two hours to test 100 men.

Capt. William R. Shaw, S3 Officer, and Lt. John Coleman are monitoring the squad doing the testing. S/Sgt. John B. Bullock is conducting the tests with the assistance of nine scorekeepers.

The scorekeepers also work as demonstrators, coaches, and cheerleaders encouraging each man to exceed himself in his effort to beat the clock.

The nine men on the field in this capacity are: S/Sgt Irving G. Lyles, S/Sgt. Marvin C. Sunmitt, SFC James L. Whisenant.

Sgt. Osvaldo Yampierre, SFC Eddie J. Sweat, SFC Kenneth N. Gubert, Sgt. James M. Busby, Sgt. Bobby G. Shirley and Sgt. Clayton V. Rogers.

Why won't your wife let you buy this wagon?

"It looks like a bus."
"I wouldn't be caught dead in it."
Do these sound familiar? Your wife is not alone. It is hard to convince some women what sense the VW Station Wagon makes.
Its chunky shape, for instance, allows it to hold more than the biggest conventional wagon. (Yet it is a good four feet shorter, and a lot less exasperating to park.)
Your wife might like the easy way it loads. The wide side doors give her almost 16 sq. ft. for supermarket bags. Or an open baby carriage. Or an antique chest, standing up. Or delicate trees from the nursery. Or even an open playpen.

She can take eight or more Scouts, with cook-out gear.
She can give the family plenty of sun. (Why no other station wagon has a sun-roof remains a mystery.)
She won't ever have to worry about the radiator boiling over. There's no radiator, no water. (The VW engine is air-cooled.)
And if she likes to see where she's going, the VW Station Wagon has incredible visibility.
If these facts don't convince her, then you might as well give up gracefully.
But before you do, bring her in for a drive. (And don't be surprised if she does let you buy one.)

Able Legal Staff Watches Over AOMC

CONSULTATION—Mrs. Nina Thurelson, secretary to the AOMC General Secretary, consults with Mr. D. L. King, attorney on the staff of the General Counsel. Thirty-seven Congressional cases have been processed by the staff during the fiscal year.

Multimillion dollar businesses protect themselves and their clients with a battery of legal specialists. So does the Army Ordnance Missile Command.

Missile Command legal business falls into the broad categories of law administered by the General Counsel and by the Staff Judge Advocate.

THE FIRST OF THESE OFFICES is probably one of the largest law firms in the state of Alabama in volume of business. Frank J. Buckley, Jr. General Counsel, with a staff of 11 attorneys advises Maj. Gen. August Schomburg, the Commanding General, the staff and operating elements of AOMC on all legal problems arising out of the performance of the research, development, procurement, production and field service missions of the Command.

He also provides policy supervision and guidance for the two attorneys employed by the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency and the 17 patent advisors at the Army Missile Patent Center of AOMSA.

With the diverse legal activities in the General Counsel's Office, the Law Library is the most essential tool of these lawyers and it is one of the largest working law libraries in the State.

The library, and a great deal of research for which it is used, is handled by Miss Sherry Belew. Mrs. James S. (Leta) Haskins is the administrative officer who ensures that the work of the office flows smoothly and efficiently. Receptionist-secretaries, Mrs. Barbara Montgomery, Mrs. Laverne Adersholt, Mrs. Geneva Cranford, Mrs. Ann Stoddard and Mrs. Doris Kirkpatrick complete the secretarial complement in the office. (This is National Secretaries' Week—Law Day is May 1).

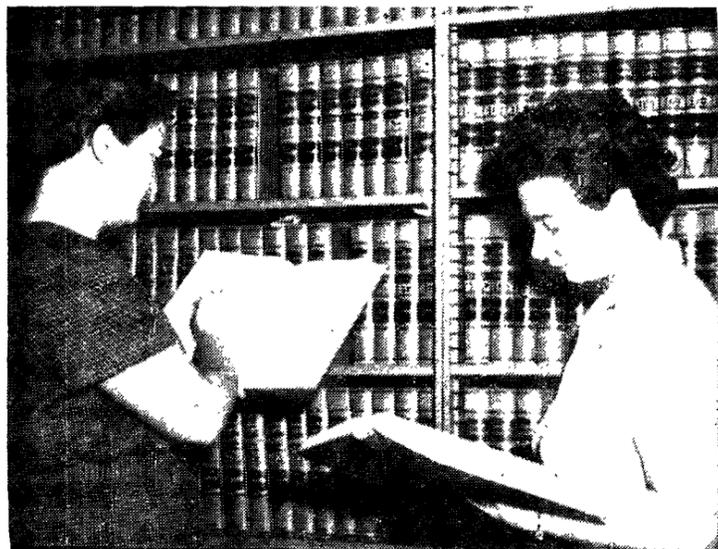

Since July 1, 1961 the Legal Offices have handled 2,897 questions relating to procurement and procurement actions throughout the Command in addition to providing assistance 753 times on statutes and directives relating to Small Business. Procurement documentation, or the lack of it, is one of the major headaches during review of the contract actions which aggregate hundreds of million of dol-

LEGAL STAFF

The General Counsel's staff has handled 37 Congressional cases this past year as well as 217 industrial relations and labor questions which are the work of William R. Hay a very experienced relations advisor.

The only woman lawyer in practice in the AOMC complement is on the staff of the General Counsel. She is Mrs. Shirley Miller of Huntsville.

THE TWO MEN on the staff of Col. Cooke, Commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency are George Cooper and John J. Murphy. They serve in much the same capacity at Agency level as the General Counsel does for the Commanding General.

All in all the total years of legal experience brought to bear on the problems faced by the 13 lawyers in the AOMC and AOMSA Legal Offices amounts to 266 years of the practice of law. This averages about 20 years per lawyer.

IN UNIFORM, the staff of Lt. Col. Willard W. Young serves the military personnel stationed here as well as acting as advisor to the Commanding General and all other commanders on matters relating to the military installation and activities.

His is the responsibility for the legal review of all summary and special courts martial convened by the Commandant, OGMS, and the Commander, Redstone Arsenal.

The General Counsel and the Staff Judge Advocate are both housed in the AOMC headquarters building.

The staff Judge Advocate is primarily the military Legal Advisor to the Commanding General and has on his staff men and women who serve in numerous capacities in the courtroom as well as render legal assistance to military members of the Command, their survivors and dependents.

These problems cover everything from claims on damaged furniture occurring during a change of station, to advising survivors on personnel affairs and benefits.

AT INCOME TAX TIME the legal assistance officer is swamped with individual questions and requests for help. During the past few months Pvt. John Brandow, a New York attorney, has handled the bulk of income tax problems.

At present a Jacksonville, Fla. attorney, Capt. E. E. Smith serves as defense counsel. He alternates with Lt. Ivan O. Poe, an attorney from Wichita, Kans., now assigned as trial counsel for general courts-martial. Trial Counsel acts for the Government while defense counsel represents the accused.

Lt. Poe also serves as prosecutor on the U. S. Commissioners Court for petty offenses occurring on post.

In addition to his courtroom activities, Capt. Smith handles military affairs such as tax problems connected with the Post Nursery.

Newly assigned to the staff is Lt. Merrill T. Landwehr of New Orleans who was practicing in Washington, D. C. with the Department of Justice prior to his active Army service. He is Military Affairs and Claims Officer, the latter involving mountains of paperwork.

ALL TRIALS BY GENERAL court martial are automatically submitted to the Staff Judge Advocate for review and recommendation before the Commanding General approves or disapproves the decision of the Court.

Maj. James M. Hutchison is the Deputy to Col. Young. Staff Judge Advocate is technically responsible for all military justice in the Command. He receives monthly reports from commanders on company punishment to ensure the rights of both Government and individual are protected.

Advice is also rendered the Commandant of the Ordnance Guided Missile School, Col. W. J. MacPherson, and the Commander of AOMSA, Col. T. W. Cooke who have authority to convene special and summary courts-martial.

With the Office of the General Counsel dealing with legal problems related to the civilian-oriented aspects of the Command Missions; the Staff Judge Advocate solving the legal problems related to the Military end of the Command Missions and both of these experienced offices working smoothly together in any problem with elements of both, the Army's

MATHEMATICIAN, TO RETIRE FRIDAY

Dr. Ralph D. Doner, a mathematician with the Future Missile Systems Division, Research and Development Directorate, will retire Friday after more than 10 years civil service with the Ordnance Corps, but does not plan to hang up his slide rule yet.

Since beginning work at Redstone Arsenal in January, 1952, Dr. Doner has concentrated on work in solid propellants, and has contributed to the success of several Army-Wide systems.

Dr. Doner's main concern has been lessening the harmful effects of imperfections in solid propellant castings, such as cracks, blisters, and separation of the propellant from the motor case. These imperfections are caused by aging or sudden temperature changes, and can cause motors to perform poorly or fail completely.

The R&DD scientist has a patent pending for a device and method for measuring the changes in a solid motor as it ages or is subjected to temperature changes. This could lead to improved propellants that would not be affected by aging or temperature changes.

Dr. Doner received the BS degree in physics from the University of Chicago in 1916, and did graduate work at the University of Illinois, receiving a PhD degree

HARRY F. VINCENT, project director of the Research and Development Directorate, helped prove this week that top management of R&DD is healthy. Vincent was awarded a certificate of membership in the "1,000 hour club," signifying an accumulation of over 1,000 hours of unused sick leave.

REENLISTMENT CEREMONY—SFC. Samuel H. Passero (right) has reenlisted in the Army in a ceremony conducted by Brig. Gen. John G. Zierdt, Deputy Commanding General, Guided Missiles, Army Ordnance Missile Command, Gen. Zierdt—then a captain—was Sgt. Passero's first company commander when he enlisted in the Army in 1941.

Veteran Sergeant Reenlists; Gen. Zierdt Presides

A veteran sergeant has reenlisted in the Army in a ceremony presided over by his first company commander who is now a brigadier general.

When Samuel H. Passero went into the Army in 1941, his first company commander was a young captain—John G. Zierdt. In the 21 years since, Passero has risen to the rank of sergeant first class and his former company commander is now Brig. Gen. John G. Zierdt, deputy commanding general, Guided Missiles, AOMC.

Sgt. Passero reenlisted for three years but will retire in June.

The 39 year-old sergeant entered the Army in March, 1941, and was assigned to the Panama Canal Zone where Gen. Zierdt was his first company commander. Later, he served overseas in the Pacific Theater and fought in the Battle of Okinawa.

Sgt. Passero's father, Samuel H. Passero, was also in the Army. He was killed in action on Saipan in 1944.

During the Korean conflict, Sgt. Passero was with the 723 MP Battalion from June, 1950, to April, 1951.

Sgt. Passero is assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment of the Army Ordnance Missile Command. He works in the environmental testing program of the Pershing ballistic missile. The sergeant is married to the

2 CONTRACTS LET FOR HERCULES, PERSHING WORK

Two contracts totaling $3,145,000 for work on items for the Nike Hercules and Pershing missiles were awarded Thursday.

The FMC Corp. received $1,995,000 for production of XM474 track-ed vehicles used as carriers for the Pershing ballistic missile. The work will be performed at FMC's San Jose, Calif., plant.

Pershing is a two-stage, solid propellant, inertially guided ballistic missile being developed to replace the operational Redstone.

A $1,150,000 award went to the General Electric Co. to cover production of components for the Nike Hercules, an air defense guided missile now on site around key cities and defense installations in the United States to defend against high-speed, enemy aircraft. The work authorized by the contract award will be done at G. E.'s Syracuse, N. Y., facility.

The New York Ordnance District will administer the G. E. contract, and the San Francisco Ordnance District, the FMC contract.

COMMISSARY Extends Hours

The Army Commissary will begin extended operating hours on May 1. Mondays and Fridays the Commissary will be open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., the balance of the week from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Over 500,000 are blue-collar workers employed at shipyards, air bases, industrial-type plants, missile-test centers, and various other installations here and abroad.

The Sports Car Buffs

By Pat Patterson

Activities have picked up slightly here around the Great Bend of the Tennessee with the Alabama Reg. SCCA Drivers School held at Courtland April 14 and 15. A number of local drivers attended and those who had little or no difficulty mechanically did right well for themselves.

Only one incident occurred during the weekend and this did happen to Leroy Barnes of TVR-SCCA. It seems that driving a front wheel drive Berkley is slightly different from a conventional auto and when Leroy lost power on the famous Courtland Hairpin his diminutive vehicle decided to play turtle and wound up on it's back just around the turn.

Leroy was not hurt other than a few scrapes and if nothing else this accident proved the value of roll bars, seat belts, helmets and gloves. I hate to think what would have happened had he not been equipped with these highly necessary items of safety equipment.

The Twickenham AC met last Thursday evening at Clark Steadman's with some 35 people making up the attendance. After the routine business was covered two new members were voted into the organization. Mel Bachman who just recently arrived from out Denver, Colo. way with his AC Bristol and Joe Walter of Huntsville. A hearty welcome to both of you.

Web Mayfield, nominations committee chairman, offered a slate of officers for next meetings elections that went as follows: for Pres. Vick Baucom; Vice-Pres., Bill McClain and Sec.-Treas., Betty Marshall. Nominations from the floor and then election of officers will be the order of the next meeting to be held on May 3rd so plan on that date, it's an important one for all members of TAC.

Coming events are both TVR-SCCA with the monthly meeting held on the 28th at the Crescent Motel, Decatur, and the following day the second of the five Slalom/Autocross Championship events.

This time the location will be the North Florence Shopping Center in Florence, Ala. I have no set time for a start at this writing. However, flyers should be in the mail this week so you can contact me anytime now for firm details. Let's all make the trip and help support this event, this is your event and your club and it's up to you to make it go. I'll see you at the start line.

M79 GRENADE LAUNCHER—

The Army's new lightweight M79 grenade launcher—which fills the gap between the hand grenade and minimum mortar range—is being issued to combat troops in Europe.

The new weapon supplements the Army's two other new lightweight weapons issued to troops in Europe earlier this year... the M14 rifle and the M60 machine gun.

90,000 Employes Salute Their Chief, Gen. Hinrichs

In a surprise and unprecedented ceremony held Monday, April 2, in the Pentagon, the civilian employes of the U. S. Army Ordnance Corps let their boss, Lt. General J. H. Hinrichs, Chief of Ordnance, know just how they felt about him.

They presented General Hinrichs with a letter actually signed by 90,000 Ordnance civilians marking the completion of his four year tour. The letter speaks for itself: "Dear General Hinrichs:

On this, your fourth and last anniversary as Chief of Ordnance, we, the civilian personnel of Ordnance want to express our deep appreciation for your leadership and the outstanding job you have done as our Chief. We are proud of you and of the Corps that you have so ably led.

We know that:

- * You have fought for Ordnance civilians: their opportunities their development and their recognition;
- * You have built our strongest civilian work force ever;
- * You have maintained and further developed a strong military-civilian team in the best tradition of the Ordnance Corps.
- * Your every decision involving human resources has been made in the best interests of ALL PEOPLE under your command.
- * For these things we are more than grateful to you.

You have inspired us to do our very best to keep the Army strong. Now—in the last days of the Corps that is so much a part of all of us—we want you to know that we need only the opportunity and your kind of understanding of people as individuals to continue to do this in all the days to come.

Sincerely,"

Some highlights of General Hinrichs remarks after the presentation of the letter are as follows:

"... We have had a lot of fun and hard work in the last four years and I think we have established the basis to continue the march... Any major reorganization likely to be rough... The main thing—I have written about this and talked about it many times... What we have to do is to insure that the Army in the field is supported..."

One of the things that has always impressed me about Ordnance is the fact that in the field... when the chips are down, whether it is in a depot, arsenal, or district, the field has produced what is necessary and needed to keep the troops going...

I have every confidence that you people in OCO and the tens of thousands of people in the field will keep the ball rolling and the troops equipped. This is a question of the interests of the nation and the Army, and not of Ordnance or you or me...

It has been a wonderful time with you. You have done a wonderful job and I know you will continue. In the words of Churchill and his imitators, there will always be an Ordnance Corps, if not in name, by spirit and by people,—and it's people who count."

AGENCIES TO OFFER SUMMER JOBS FOR SELECTED HIGH SCHOOL GRADS

Up to fifteen summer employment positions will be awarded this year to high school graduates from schools in Huntsville and surrounding areas in the form of "Junior Fellowship."

The announcement was made by Lt. Col. Earl J. Dotson, president of the Redstone—Tennessee Valley Chapter of the Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association.

"These Junior Fellowships will be awarded to graduating students who plan to pursue the engineering and scientific fields and who will enter colleges this fall. The summer employment positions will enable future engineers and scientists to earn hundreds of dollars to help defray college expenses and will be awarded in lieu of scholarships of lesser amounts," Lt. Col. Dotson said.

"Not only will the Junior Fellowship permit students to earn toward their educations, but will permit them to apply what was previously only academic interest in these fields to on-the-job-training under expert guidance," he added.

Participants in the "Junior Fellowship" program include the Army Ordnance Missile Command at Redstone Arsenal; Brown Engineering Co.; Redstone Division of the Thiokol Chemical Corp.; RCA Service Co. at Redstone Arsenal, and SPACO of Huntsville.

Nominees for "Junior Fellowships" will be selected among graduating students in high schools in Madison County, Morgan County, Limestone County, Jackson County, Marshall County, and Lincoln County, Tenn.

Winners of the "Junior Fellowships" will be selected by a committee including key persons from the Army Ordnance Missile Command, Huntsville industries, educators, and the Awards Committee of the Redstone—Tennessee Valley Chapter, AFCEA which sponsors the program.

Selection will be based on scholastic achievements, aptitude, and motivation.
