Annual Open House On May 19

Army missilemen at Redstone Arsenal will open their gates to the general public for their traditional once-a-year open house on Saturday, May 19, Armed Forces Day.

Maj. Gen. Francis J. McMorrow, newly designated Commanding General of the Army Ordnance Missile Command at Redstone, set the date for the open house.

Last year an estimated 50,000 visitors from throughout the southeast took advantage of the event to get a first-hand look at the interior of the 40,000 acre installation, closed to the general public the remainder of the year.

Several new events have been added to bolster last year's banner show according to Lt. Col. James O. Green, who heads the Arsenal's Armed Forces Day Committee.

The NASA Marshall Space Flight Center will participate in the day's program. Visitors thus will be able to see the full spectrum of Army missile activities and top it off with a look at the gigantic Saturn space booster at the Marshall Center.

2 Zeus Firings Reported Normal

Two successful firings of Nike Zeus are on record, one on Friday and another Monday in the continuing series of tests of the Army's anti-missile missile. Both firings were conducted at White Sands Missile Range.

In Monday's test, the Zeus missile launched from an underground cell, successfully intercepted an electronically simulated target.

Under positive control of its ground guidance elements, the missile was launched, controlled in flight and successfully steered to its simulated target in a completely automatic operation.

The intercept occurred high above the desert and far up range from the launch point. The Army said the altitude and ground range of the intercept varied from other similar tests recently accomplished, but did not reveal figures.

The target was simulated by programming a magnetic tape, with characteristics of a diving ICBM warhead traveling faster (See ZEUS on Page 2)

PERSHING FLIGHT FRIDAY IS TERMED SUCCESSFUL

Another Pershing ballistic missile was fired from Cape Canaveral, Friday.

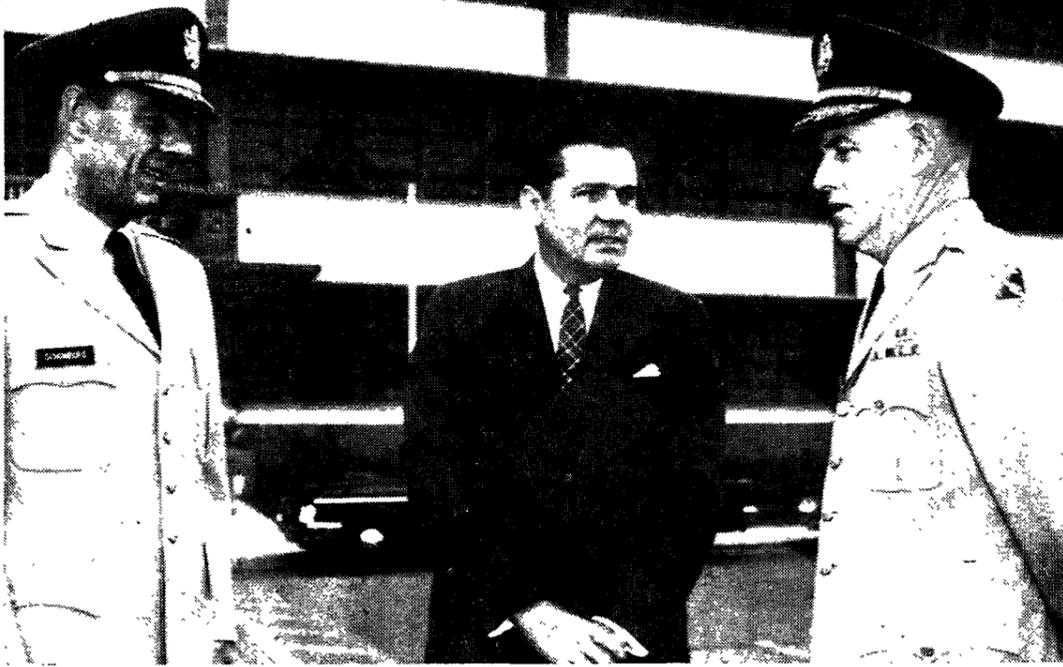

Preliminary data indicated that all test objectives were met. Brig. Gen. Richard M. Hurst, Deputy Commanding General, AOMC, said the missile went on a short range mission.

The Pershing was fired from its mobile erector launcher, mounted on its XM474 vehicle.

Test objectives included further evaluation of the missile's guidance and control, and the two stages of Pershing's solid fuel propulsion system.

Both stages ignited and burned as scheduled, sending the nose (See PERSHING on Page 3)

Secretary Stahr Lauds AOMC 'Team'

A CHAT WITH THE SECRETARY—Maj. Gen. August Schomburg (left) and Maj. Gen. Francis J. McMorrow chat with Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr. during the Secretary's one-day visit to Redstone Arsenal. Mr. Stahr was given an orientation tour of AOMC, OGMS and facilities of the Marshall Space Flight Center Saturday.

Army Chief Visits Here; Is Honored By Civic Leaders

Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr. visited Redstone Arsenal during the weekend and had some kind words to say about the people here.

Touring the Arsenal after a speech at the University of Alabama's Law Day observance, Mr. Stahr was hosted at luncheon by civic and business leaders of Huntsville and personnel of the Army Ordnance Missile Command.

In a brief address at the luncheon, the Army chief said:

"It is a pleasure to share such a pleasant occasion with so many of the military, civic and scientific leaders of this area who have accomplished so much together for the Army and the Nation during the past several years.

Congratulates Gen. Schomburg
"I am particularly pleased to be here in time to congratulate Gen. Schomburg on his recent promotion and assignment as head of the newly created Army Supply and Maintenance Command.

"His work here is too well known for me to try to embellish it with words, but I do want to extend a public expression of appreciation for his leadership as Commanding General of the Army Ordnance Missile Command at Redstone Arsenal for the past two years.

"I also want to congratulate Gen. McMorrow for being selected to take over where Gen. Schomburg leaves off. This in itself is no small task, but I am sure his experience as Vice-Commanding General, following his many years in Army Ordnance work, more than qualify him for the task."

The reference was to new assignments for both Maj. Gen. August Schomburg and Maj. Gen. Francis J. McMorrow. Both generals greeted the Army Secretary when he arrived at Redstone for the one-day orientation tour.

Thanks Huntsville People
Mr. Stahr also had some bouquets for the people of the Huntsville area:

"This is my first opportunity to (See STAHR on Page 2)

Maj. Gen. Francis J. McMorrow's Message To All in Army Ordnance Missile Command

A few days ago you were informed that I had been appointed to succeed General Schomburg as Commanding General of the Army Ordnance Missile Command.

This message, then, to you, the men and women, in and out of uniform, who comprise the Army Ordnance Missile Command, is my first Command-wide official act since my new appointment.

I say "comprise" because you are the Army Ordnance Missile Command. From your hands, from your minds, from your works and dedication flow all the good and great things which I now have the honor to command.

General Schomburg is leaving a great organization; he made it great. But he also made it great with your help. I can aspire to no more—to continue this greatness and this fine AOMC team—but only with your support. I ask this continued support of you, of each and every one of you. Circumstances may sometimes make it necessary for me to ask the very difficult of you, perhaps the seemingly impossible. But if your country's security demands this, I shall so ask. And I know you will come through.

As your new Commanding General, I greet each of you with a full heart and with the greatest of well founded expectations for our common future.

Freedom Bond Drive Launched Here Tuesday

The 1962 Freedom Bond Drive was officially kicked off yesterday when Maj. Gen. Francis J. McMorrow addressed more than 400 Army employees at Rocket Auditorium.

The Commanding General of the U. S. Army Ordnance Missile Command told the Savings Bond Drive executive committee, field chairmen and canvassers that he wanted this year's campaign to aim for maximum participation with consideration of the individuals resources.

Gen. McMorrow said he wanted canvassers to stress participation in the Savings Bond payroll deduction plan as a sound personal investment as well as a patriotic act.

The 1962 Freedom Bond Drive is scheduled to be concluded in about two weeks with reports due in from the various divisions of (See BONDS on Page 3)

GERMAN OFFICIALS TO VISIT ARSENAL TOMORROW

Four visitors from the German Federal Ministry of Defense, headed by Dr. Hans G. Schiffers, Chief of the Budget and Finance Division, will arrive tomorrow at Redstone Arsenal for a one-day visit.

The visitors will be given an orientation tour of the Army Ordnance Missile Command, and will receive briefings on the missions here.

They will also visit the Ordnance Guided Missile School to meet German students now in training there, and to map plans for additional German units to attend the school for training on advanced weapons.

Those who will accompany Dr. Schiffers include: Dr. Erwin C. W. Wenz and Dr. Herbert E. Eckholdt, Ministerial Counselors; German Army Col. Edward Ackerman; and U. S. Tour Director, Lt. Col. F. X. Westermeier. Col. Westermeier is assigned to the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff for Intelligence, Washington, D. C.

KEY TO THE CITY—Huntsville' Mayor R. B. Searcy presents a be-ribboned key to the city to Maj. Gen. and Mrs. August Schomburg at a reception at Squirrel Hill Officers' Club. The reception was held for the Schomburgs prior to the general's leaving Redstone Arsenal to assume command of the newly-created Army Supply and Maintenance Command.

OPEN HOUSE

Missile Support Agency and the Army Ordnance Guided Missile School will have their best missiles forward for their visitors.

Col. Green said two massive air supported domes—some of the world's largest inflatable structures—will be set up in the main display area to house a variety of missile exhibits.

Also new this year will be a mass parachute jump by the 20th Special Forces Group of the Alabama National Guard. Col. Green said an estimated 200 guardsmen will participate in the jump.

Other activities will include live television shows by the Guided Missile School, Post Signal, AOMSA enabling visitors in the main display area to also view live missile and rocket firings which will be carried out on a regular schedule elsewhere on the Arsenal throughout the day.

Army buses will operate throughout the day on a regular shuttle service to enable visitors to hop about the installation.

Armed Forces Day activities will begin with the traditional parade in downtown Huntsville, scheduled to get underway at 10 a.m. The Open House at Redstone and the downtown parade are a joint effort by the city and Army.

Col. Green said that an additional hour had been added to Arsenal activities this year to accommodate the expected visitor turnout. Arsenal gates will open at 12:30 p.m. Missile and rocket firings on the Redstone test ranges have been scheduled for 1 p.m.; 1:45 p.m.; 3:30 p.m.; and 4:15 p.m. The parachute jump has been set for 2:30 p.m. Scheduled activities will wind up at 4:30 p.m.

Col. Green cautioned visitors not to bring cameras. Army security restrictions will make it impossible to admit persons with cameras.

Maj. Gen. Lu Visits Chinese at OGMS

Maj. Gen. Fu-ning Lu, military attache of the Chinese Embassy in Washington, arrived Friday by air to confer with the Chinese student detachment at the Ordnance Guided Missile School.

Gen. Lu was officially greeted at the city airport by Lt. Col. Raymond Hanscotte, chief of training research and development at the Missile School, and Lt. Col. Richard T. Hu, Chinese Liaison Officer here.

Gen. Lu spent all of Friday afternoon in sessions with the 28 Chinese officers and four enlisted men studying the Nike-Hercules air defense missile here. He was guest of honor at a reception given Friday night by Lt. Col. Hu at the Redstone Arsenal Officers Club. He returned to Washington by air Sunday morning.

Thank the good people of this community for the support, cooperation, and hospitality you have extended the Army men and women, in and out of uniform, who have come here over the last several years to 'place America in space.' The story of the Army's part in lofting the Free World's first artificial satellite, the Nike family of ground-to-air missiles, and a host of tactical missiles, for our mobile modern Army is well known. I want to emphasize, however, that the Army's effectiveness always increases in direct ratio to the understanding and support it receives from the American people, especially those who are its next-door neighbors.

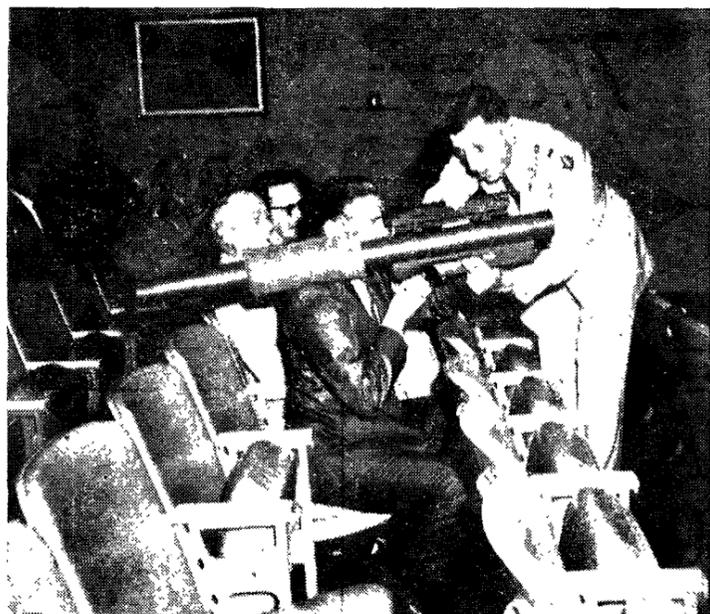

"Having enjoyed so much success together," it is only natural to ask ourselves, 'what of the future?'

"In the fast-breaking events and technical advances of today's world, I would certainly hesitate before crawling out on the limb from an above-the-ground-rail used in development testing.

The two solid fuel motors of the missile's main propulsion system functioned normally in rapid sequence. Operation of the third stage came later in the flight.

Ignition of the third stage occurred as planned on ground command from the missile system's target intercept computer.

ARMY SECRETARY TESTS REDEYE—Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., aims a Redeye missile with the help of Lt. H. M. Watson, Jr., who briefed the Army chief at the Ordnance Guided Missile School. Lt. Watson, of Knoxville, Tenn., demonstrated a variety of ultra-modern training aids used to speed missile training.

of prediction, except, perhaps to go this far: the future is going to be a busy one, especially in the realms of international affairs, national defense, and related activities.

Freedom Threat Enduring

"I would predict further that freedom will be in jeopardy throughout the lives of all of us here, and our future will be influenced to a great extent by our willingness to acknowledge that fact and plan accordingly."

Mr. Stahr also visited the Ordnance Guided Missile School where he was given a training aids demonstration and facilities of the Marshall Space Flight Center. His host for the tour was Brig. Gen. Richard M. Hurst, Deputy Commanding General, Ballistic Missiles, AOMC.

He was accompanied to Redstone by Dr. Frank A. Rose, president of the University of Alabama; Dr. Alex Pow, director of contract and grant developments for the University; Brig. Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, deputy chief, Legislative Liaison, Office of the Secretary of the Army; Maj. George L. Miller and Maj. John R. Davies, aides-de-camp.

Static Test Men Recognized For Perfect Safety Record

For more than five and one half centuries of accumulated time, personnel of the Army Ordnance Missile Command Test Operations Branch have been conducting accident-free static firing tests on Army missiles.

A group working with the tremendous energy of rocket motors on a daily basis, the 69 personnel received safety award pins last week recognizing their service.

Pins for ten years of testing without accident were given to 45 employees, and 24 received five-year pins.

The group now handles the operations of test facilities capable of testing rocket motors with 1.2 million pounds of thrust.

Frank Bunn, chief of the Test Operations Branch, said no one has ever been killed or injured while testing missiles at the Army facilities on Redstone Arsenal.

Personnel receiving 10 year safety pins were: William Bass, Joseph Black, James Brooks, Jack Childers, James Cooper, Leon Ivy, James Dunham, Robert O'Bryan, Hugh Reed, Alvin Reid, Clifford Spearman, Chester Stephens, Manuel Garcia, James Williams:

Time-Conscious Secretary Is a Jewel, Says Attaya

"The secretary who wisely manages her boss' time is a jewel indeed and plays a leading role in missile development," an Army Ordnance Missile Command officer told Atlanta members of the National Secretaries Association and their bosses at a luncheon Wednesday.

Lt. Col. Henry E. Attaya, Jr., executive officer of the Research and Development Directorate of AOMC, praised secretaries at Redstone Arsenal for their contributions to Army missile development during a National Secretaries Week address at the Dinkler Plaza Hotel in Atlanta.

"If a secretary helps her boss fill every minute of his working day with the most important business, culling out those things that she or someone else can do, she has made a great contribution," Attaya declared. "I found out what my secretary really thinks of bosses. The girls say this: 'Our bosses want us to look like a girl, act like a lady, think like a man, and work like a dog.'"

Secretaries of the missile command at the giant Redstone Arsenal complex find themselves involved in more than just handling appointments, correspondence and answering the telephone, Attaya said.

"They get involved in everything from missile firings to escorting important visitors to sew-

OFFICIALS SURVEY DATA EXCHANGE PROGRAM HERE

Paul Hyman and R. J. Dintaman from Office of Assistant Secretary of Defense for Installations and Logistics, A. J. Allott, Office, Chief of Ordnance and Mr. J. E. Teter, Office of Navy Materiel, visited AOMC Wednesday to survey progress of Improved Data Interchange Program (IDI) being service tested by the AOMC for the Department of Army.

A. A. Stewart, Deputy Director, Field Service Directorate welcomed them and Knox P. Griffin, AOMC Director of IDI, conducted a tour through Industrial Engineering Division, Industrial Directorate and the Maintenance and Supply Divisions, Field Service Directorate.

The group observed present provisioning methods and made comparative analysis in the functional areas of provisioning, design change notification and due-in asset reporting.

The Middletown Air Materiel Area (MAAMA) is conducting a similar test for the Department of the Air Force. The Navy is participating as an observer. Maring on buttons. He said one AOMC secretary told of her boss ripping his trousers just before an important meeting, but she patched him up with masking tape and sent him on his way."

The Attayas moved to Redstone Arsenal first in 1945. They left in 1946 when Attaya was reassigned, but returned in 1960 when he was again assigned to the missile command.

We also sell a funny-looking car.

We sell a car that looks like a beetle. And a station wagon that looks like a bus. But we (and all our fellow VW dealers) think of them a little differently. We think both VWs look just like what they are.

The VW Sedan carries 4 people. The station wagon carries 8 (bag and baggage). The wagon also handles a staggering amount of just stuff. (It has 170 cubic feet of space, compared to about 105 in conventional wagons.)

Both VWs have air-cooled rear engines. (No water or anti-freeze needed; terrific traction on ice and snow.) Both park in practically the same space. (The wagon is only 9 inches longer than the sedan.) Both defy obsolescence. (Nobody knows what year Volkswagen you drive. Except you.) And both have restored a sense of proportion to the size of cars.

The VW Sedan is a pretty familiar sight, so not too many people laugh at it any more. But the VW wagon is still good for a few chuckles.

Suggestion: have some fun yourself. Come and take either or both for a ride today.

Nike-Hercules Equipment Course Scheduled Here

A new equipment training course on the Improved Nike-Hercules Anti-Jam Display Modifications is scheduled to commence May 14 at Redstone Arsenal.

AOMC, as Weapons System Manager for the system, is responsible for the initial transfer of knowledge in maintenance and operation of new or modified Ordnance equipment to key military and civilian instructor personnel.

This training course will be under technical supervision of the Liaison and Training Office of the Field Service Directorate.

Six classes, each of two weeks duration, are scheduled. The first class starts May 14, and the sixth class will end Aug. 3.

Approximately 150 key military and civilian instructor personnel will attend classes. The various Army areas of CONUS, U. S. Army Ordnance Guided Missile School, U. S. Army Air Defense School, CONARC, Army Depots, WSMR and AOMC will be represented in this course.

The classes will be in the Guided Missile School area by contractor instructor personnel.

Books In Review

ALL ABOUT AMERICAN HOLIDAYS by Maymie R. Krythe (Harper, 275 pp., $4.50).

If you have ever wondered what Candlemas Day is, or stuttered over explaining to your children about Groundhog Day, or tried to tell a foreign friend the origin of Memorial Day, you will find this book invaluable.

Mrs. Krythe has assembled interesting data on more than 50 "Days" observed by Americans, including such little-known celebrations as Chinese New Years, Cinco de Mayo and American Indian Day, as well as the major religious and secular holidays.

Of particular interest to military personnel, she relates the story of the choosing of the first Unknown Soldier by Sgt. Edward F. Younger after World War I, the genesis of Armed Forces Day, Flag Day and other holidays especially observed by the Armed Forces.

There are many miscellaneous facts presented: in 1288 Scotland had a law permitting every woman to propose to a man during Leap Year (if he refused he had to pay the lady); the setting up of mangers at Christmas began in Italy in 1223 when St. Francis of Assisi assembled a scene with real people and live animals; egg rolling at Easter is said to symbolize the rolling away of the stone from Christ's tomb.

Red Cloud, Neb., has an Easter egg 12½ feet long and 9 feet wide; a West Virginia minister's granddaughter is responsible for Mother's Day; October 15th is Poetry Day; the first Tournament of Roses in Pasadena was in 1886; comedian Garry Moore once hired four planes to skywrite a Valentine heart three miles high, with a six-mile-long arrow.

The value of the book, however, does not lie in the collection of curious miscellany, but in the detailed information on the major patriotic and religious holidays which are so much a part of the American scene that we sometimes forget the "why" of their existence.

BURN AFTER READING by Ladislav Farago (Walker & Co., 319 pp., $4.95).

"While this book," writes the author, "is the history of espionage during World War II, it also covers the whole curriculum of clandestine operations, the several forms of intelligence, espionage and sabotage, subversion and counter-espionage, the whole secret contest conducted apart from the formal and conventional operations of modern war."

Farago, once Chief of Research and Planning in the Navy Special Warfare Branch, considers espionage the major implement of the Cold War, the use "a something designed as a temporary expedient as an enduring instrument of national power."

His book is a fascinating potpourri of the clandestine operations of the several powers during World War II, written with much color and, at times, a touch of humor. While one wonders now and then about the authenticity of detail, the author himself remarks in his preface that he can "only point to the obvious difficulty of getting everything straight in a business that is so crooked."

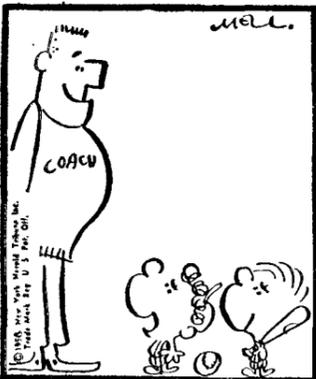

Part of the book is a defense of Adm. Ellis M. Zacharias (with whom Farago collaborated on "Behind Closed Doors"), who the author feels was transferred out of the Office of Naval Intelligence just as he was getting the wheels of psychological warfare spinning. Farago also believes that the surrender of Japan could have been accomplished by psychological means.

Disregarding the obviously controversial points, the description of the machinations of the various intelligence agencies, allied and enemy, makes interesting reading. E. Phillips Oppenheim's fictional agents aren't even in it when compared to the real thing.

PROMOTED—Jack R. Marsh receives a hug from his wife during a promotion ceremony last week from captain to Maj. Marsh. The ceremony took place in the office of Col. H. H. Wishart, Director of AOMC Industrial Directorate. Maj. Marsh is the executive officer for the Directorate. During his tour at the Arsenal he has been assistant to the chief of the Quality Assurance Division of ARGMA Industrial Operations, executive officer in the same division, and in his present assignment. He is a graduate chemical engineer from Michigan State University and the U. S. Army Language School at Monterey in Japanese. He also studied the Far East at Stanford University. Maj. and Mrs. Marsh have three children, Dorrie, Gordon and William.

'Beat Player' Golf Winners Named

Six golfers playing on the Redstone Arsenal course in the "Beat Gary Player, 1961 Master Champ" tournament scored higher than Player's first round score in the 1962 Masters Tournament.

Winners were: Mrs. John G. Zierdt, 67; Mrs. Henry H. Wishart, 67; Mrs. William F. Kaiser, 66; Mrs. Frank E. Napper, 65; Mrs. Charles Payne, 67; and Mrs. Charles H. Birdsall, 64. Winners received engraved cigarette lighters.

Maj. Franklin M. Conway, Provost Marshal, said that he sincerely appreciated the contributions from golfers who participated in the tournament which is sponsored annually by the Military Police Association. Three-fourths of the proceeds are donated to local charity—this year to Huntsville Lodge 6, Fraternal Order of Police for charity projects.

Mrs. T. T. Moxley and Mrs. Charles Payne tied for Low Gross; Mrs. J. R. Miller scored Low Putt; and Mrs. Moxley and Mrs. H. L. Claterbos tied for Low Net. The Chrysler Cup tournament

The Sports Car Buffs

By Pat Patterson

What with Easter occupying the weekend of the 22nd this has been just about the quietest two weeks we have seen in a long time, at least as far as motor sport is concerned.

Things are bound to change however as this last weekend found the members of TVR-SCCA journeying to Decatur for their April meeting and then the following day to Florence for the second in the Championship series of Slaloms. Again my deadline prohibits any coverage of these activities in this week's column so next week we should be in good shape.

Also along the line of events, tomorrow night, at Clark-Stedman's, will be one of the most important meetings of the Twickenham A.C. This meeting marks the end of winter season and new officers will be elected and placed in office at the meeting.

These are the people who will direct the club for the very active summer season, so it behooves each and every member to be present and express a choice in this matter.

Along with this will go the presentation of the High Point Awards to the top competitor and worker for the past six month period. Let's all get out and support the club on this very important night.

On the International scene the item of news that even hit the local papers, which was of great interest to the sports car set was the crash of Sterling Moss in England.

Moss, driving a Lotus V-8, spun off the course at over 100 mph and lay trapped in his car for over one-half hour while rescuers tried desperately to free him. When it was finally accomplished, he was taken to a hospital near the track for preliminary examinations and then to a hospital in Wimbleton that specializes in brain surgery.

participants have completed the qualifying rounds and are scheduled to finish all matches by May 11.

Doctors said they were contemplating an operation. Besides the head injury, Moss suffered from an injured leg and lacerations. Latest reports indicate that he is slightly improved, however is still unconscious. I am sure that everyone here, as well as around the world, prays that England's Number One will recover rapidly and suffer no lasting ill effects from this tragic accident.

One item of good news is that Dan Wright, member of BHCC, is out of the hospital in Florence and is reported doing very nicely. Sure hope to see him back in our activities soon.

Retirement Punctuates Colorful Career Of Gustav Ingold, Field Service

Awards and good wishes highlighted the banquet and reception honoring Mr. Gustav Ingold, 70, upon his retirement from Government service on April 30.

The reception was held at the Towne House Motel Friday night with 90 fellow-employees and well-wishers in attendance. Mrs. Ingold shared the honors extended her husband, including a shower of more than 100 telegrams from all over the world, sent by former associates.

Until the reorganization of AO-MC in January, Mr. Ingold was Chief of the Technical Assistance Division in Field Service. Pending his retirement, he has been an assistant to the chief.

Master of ceremonies for the retirement program was Mr. Joseph F. Flaherty, long-time associate of Mr. Ingold. Other participants in the ceremonies were Col. Robert W. Van Wert, Col. Frank E. Napper, Mr. A. A. Stewart, Lt. Col. Gordon B. Borin and Mr. Gilbert Workman.

Among the awards to Mr. Ingold was an Outstanding employee performance award, a 20-year pin, and a plaque. Well-wishers also presented Mr. and Mrs. Ingold with a six-piece silver service for tea and coffee.

Mr. Ingold does not anticipate sitting and rocking in retirement. "I have a lot of boating and fishing to do," he stated. "Mrs. Ingold is also a capable boat hand." The couple plans to live in Florida, probably at Sarasota. Hurricanes don't dismay them, Mr. Ingold said, because they have already ridden out three.

While living on the Eastern Seaboard, they owned several yachts. Looking forward, Mr. Ingold said he has a lot of living to do before he reaches 90 and after 90. He anticipates cruises to the Bahamas, in the Gulf of Mexico, and to other Caribbean islands.

Mr. Ingold came to Redstone Arsenal from Raritan Arsenal in 1955. He has been associated with the Ordnance Technical Assistance Support program since he helped organize it from the Pentagon in 1950.

MR. GUSTAV INGOLD Retires After 20 Years

The original scope covered fire-power and fire control, was expanded to service and maintain automotive and tracked mobile equipment, and more recently was expanded again to cover missiles.

After his assignment at the Pentagon, Mr. Ingold went to Aberdeen Proving Ground where the headquarters for the program was established.

Now scattered, some retired, approximately 120 of the technicians who were personally known by Mr. Ingold during his employment with Ordnance will receive letters of appreciation from him as one of his last official acts.

Mr. Ingold began his career with automotive concerns—first in trucking, then on the European continent as an American representative of an automobile and airplane manufacturer.

When World War II clouds began to gather, Mr. Ingold was the export manager for the firm. His travels took him across the European continent from the Scandinavian countries and the British Isles, south into the Balkan countries, many of which no longer exist. He also had the Near East and the Union of South Africa as a part of his "territory."

The Ingolds returned to the United States in 1938 to enjoy two years of boating and leisure. Then, he became the director of the Aviation Mechanic Training School at Plattsburg, N. Y.

The school was training aviation mechanics to increase the number in the U. S. from 5,000 to 50,000 as a part of the Defense build-up, and was run with three eight-hour shifts five days a week.

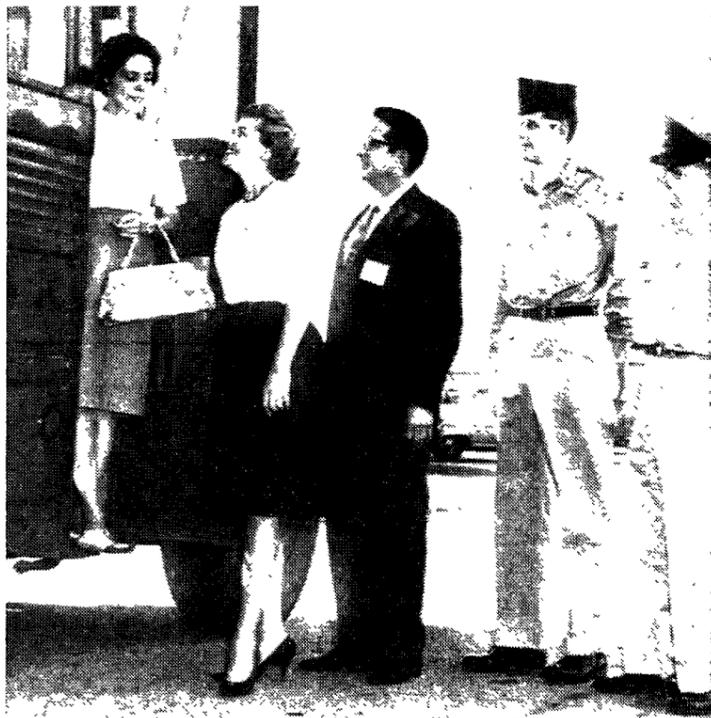

Since coming to Huntsville, both Mr. and Mrs. Ingold have been active in civic affairs and in their neighborhood. Their home is in the Lakewood subdivision on a knoll overlooking the city and gives a sweeping view of the surrounding mountains. One of their hobbies is beautifying the landscape.

The hobby Mr. Ingold didn't pursue while here is teaching boat owners "rules of the road." He is thinking about this possible avocation as a future project.

Art Exhibit and Playlet Planned for Wives Club

Highlights planned for the May 8 meeting of the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club are an art exhibit in the Redstone Room of the Squirrel Hill Officers Club and a one-act play about husbands called "They're None of Them Perfect."

This will be a luncheon meeting with sherry served in the Redstone Room at noon and luncheon in the Hawk room at 12:45 p.m.

Exhibitors are members of the Art Class sponsored by the Officers Wives Club.

Reservations are being handled by Mrs. Bruce Packard, 877-5035 and Mrs. Robert Reynolds, 877-5057.

Mrs. William J. Nelson will take cancellations until 10 a.m. on Monday, May 7. Reservations deadline is Friday, May 4. Nursery reservations may be made by calling 877-5745.

Theme of the meeting is "Spring Fantasy."

The cast for "They're None of Them Perfect" is composed of club members and include Mrs. J. C. Baer, Mrs. Edward Billings, Mrs. Vern Laver, Mrs. S. L. Nyhan, Mrs. R. S. Dotson and Mrs. W. C. Renaudin. The play is directed by Mrs. H. L. Gotzian.

The art exhibit will include ink, oil and water color works. Mrs. Arthur C. Blake is the art class instructor.

IRE and AIEE Sections Will Entertain Students

The Huntsville Sections of the Institute of Radio Engineers (IRE) and American Institute of Electrical Engineers (AIEE) will be host to their respective student chapters on May 4 at Redstone Arsenal.

Approximately 125 students representing the University of Alabama, Mississippi State, Tennessee Polytechnic Institute, Vanderbilt University, and Christian Brothers College are expected.

A joint dinner and technical meeting for both professional groups, including the students, will be held at the Officers Open Mess at 5:30 p.m. on the same day. Dr. Oswald H. Lange, Director of the Saturn Systems Office, Marshall Space Flight Center, will present "Saturn and the Coming Space Programs." The presentation will be accompanied by slides and film.

Reservations may be made for this meeting by calling Major C. W. Goldey, 877-2146; Don E. Denton, 536-5536; or Francis A. Priestner, 539-8360.

GOODBYE AND GOOD LUCK—Mrs. August Schomburg (right), wife of Maj. Gen. Schomburg recently named to head the newly-organized Supply and Maintenance Command, receives a farewell gift Friday from members of the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club. Mrs. S. C. Holmes, Wives Club president, made the presentation on behalf of the members. At left is Mrs. Francis J. McMorrow, wife of Maj. Gen. McMorrow who succeeds Gen. Schomburg as the Commanding General of the Army Ordnance Missile Command. The gift is a gold pin fashioned in the form of a four-leaf clover with a pearl instead of a dew drop on its surface.

ASTME Will Meet Tomorrow Night

The American Society for Tool and Manufacturing Engineers will meet tomorrow night at the Holiday Inn at 6 p.m. for a dinner and a technical session.

Louis C. Robinson, Process Engineer for Turco Products, Southeastern Region, will be the principal speaker. He will talk on Cleaning Techniques for Braising Cress Steel Honeycomb Structures.

Mr. Robinson deals with all phases of metal cleaning in aircraft and missiles. He is a graduate from the University of Alabama in metallurgy and chemistry.

SODALITY TO MEET

Redstone Catholic Woman's Sodality will have a breakfast meeting following the 9 a.m. Mass at the Post Chapel, on Friday, May 4. Election of officers for the coming year is on the agenda. The Rocket Nursery is available for care of small children.

ORIENTAL FLOWER SHOW TO BE HELD SATURDAY P.M.

An oriental flower show will be held at the Huntsville Community Center on May 5 from 1:30 to 5 p.m.

The show is being sponsored by a prospective chapter of Ikebana, International Japanese non-profit cultural organization for flower arranging.

Flower arrangement will be in Sogetsu style and is the first public activity of the group.

Mrs. Donald England, a native of Japan, is the instructor.

AOMC Speakers Heard Coast to Coast

Public speaking engagements filled by members of the Army Ordnance Missile Command carry the story of Army missiles and rockets from coast to coast, border to border and to a variety of audiences.

Pyramiding public interest in Army activities, brought about by President Kennedy's revitalized emphasis on the Army's role in national defense is credited as the basis of increased speaking invitations to military and civilian people of AOMC.

Speaking engagements filled by AOMC people during the past month ran the gamut from addresses before grammar school science groups to large metropolitan civic and professional clubs, not including numerous briefings at official seminars and conferences. Speakers from AOMC, in addition, represented a wide range of responsibilities and professions — from the Commanding General to project officers, and management, logistics and technical jobs.

During the first quarter of 1962 more than 80 AOMC speakers carried the story of Army missiles and rocket development to public audiences in major U. S. areas such as Oxnard, Calif.; Andover, Mass.; Atlanta, Ga.; Syracuse, N. Y.; Princeton, Ill.; Memphis, Tenn.; and Birmingham, in addition to numerous local communities. Audiences range upwards from 25 persons to 400.

According to reports from speakers after making a presentation, public speaking not only helps to get the Army's story to the tax-paying public, but serves as a valuable tool in leadership and executive training.

One AOMC speaker remarked, "Questions from the audience really keep you on your toes. Generally, the questions are a reflection of sincere interest in our missile program, but often take the shape of a real curve ball that sometimes you just can't answer."

Another speaker commented, "I really learned fast not to try to bluff an answer. I learned never to mislead the public as to our job here at AOMC and if a question borders on classified information, I tell them it's classified."

Filling speaking engagements for AOMC not only provides speakers with a wealth of opportunity to develop leadership talents and helps tell the Army story, but provides many opportunities for unusual experiences.

One speaker reported a noon speaking engagement to a civic group in a moderate size community boomeranged into four separate presentations plus a radio interview before the day was over.

"I never realized the public was so interested in our missile program. I felt like a real celebrity," he said, following his three unscheduled presentations to a grammar school, high school, church group and the radio interview.

Speaking engagements are handled through the AOMC Public Information Office.

Q. Must a $10,000 GI term insurance policy be converted to permanent plan type insurance all at once?

The Veterans Administration says a veteran may convert as

RETREAT PARADE HONORS FOUR MEN OF AOMSA

Four men were honored at the Review and Retreat Parade on the Redstone Arsenal parade field Friday afternoon.

They are Maj. Joseph A. Myers, from the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency's Provost Marshal Division; Capt. Phillip J. Robertson, CWO James R. Hartley and M/Sgt. Kenneth H. Seifert, all assigned at AOMSA.

Col. Thomas W. Cooke, AOMSA Commander, was the reviewing officer. The parade was sponsored by the Ordnance Guided Missile School. On the reviewing stand with Col. Cooke were Col. Robert little as $1,000 (or more, of course) to a permanent plan while retaining the remainder as term insurance. In this way, he can stretch the conversion over several years in keeping with his own financial condition.

Military Dependent Travel To Europe Re-Authorized

WASHINGTON (ANS) — Resumption of authorized travel of dependents of military personnel assigned to Europe was announced last week by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

The suspension of such travel was instituted Sept. 9, 1961, to free sea and air transportation for actual and prospective movement of supplies, materiel and troops to Western Europe. Transportation availability is no longer a problem.

It is the general policy of the Department of Defense that service personnel serving overseas should not be separated from their families except during emergencies or for short tours. Such a restriction has adverse effects on the morale and career incentives of military personnel.

Resumption of dependent travel will not immediately increase the number of dependents in Europe. When dependent travel was suspended, there was a simultaneous extension of tours of personnel in Europe. Consequently, there has not been the normal flow of returning dependents. With resumption of dependent travel, those returning dependents will approximate the number arriving until Dec. 1962. Thus, for the first several months there will be little increase in the dependent population.

Industrial Officers Receive Promotions

A promotion ceremony was held at the Industrial Directorate Monday, Apr. 23, to announce the promotion of 1st. Lt. Robert F. Sullivan to the grade of captain, and 2nd Lt. R. R. Jackson to the grade of first lieutenant. Col. Frank E. Napper, deputy director, Industrial Directorate, made the presentation to these officers and their wives.

Capt. Sullivan serves as special assistant to the chief, technical staff, Industrial Directorate. He is a graduate of Boston University, US Army Air Defense School, Ft. Bliss, and the Ordnance Guided Missile School, Redstone Arsenal.

Lt. Jackson graduated from the Georgia Institute of Technology in 1960 and has completed the ordnance officer basic course at the US Army Ordnance School, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. He is currently assigned as a special assistant to the chief, Intermediate Range Weapons System Division, Industrial Directorate.

Contracts Given for Missile Components

Award of two contracts totaling $2,617,851 to cover production of components for the Hawk and Pershing missile systems was announced Friday.

The Eclipse-Pioneer Division of the Bendix Corporation received an $1,467,851 award to provide replacement parts for the Pershing ballistic missile guidance and control system. The work will be done at the company's Teterboro, N. J. plant.

A $1,150,000 award went to the Raytheon Company for manufacture of components to support the Hawk air defense guided missile program in NATO countries. The work will be performed at Raytheon's facilities in Andover, Lawrence and Lowell, Mass.

Raytheon, prime contractor for the Hawk, is providing engineering and technical assistance to five North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries, Belgium, France, Italy, the Netherlands and West Germany. These five countries are pooling funds, industrial resources and manpower for production of the complete Hawk system.

The New York Ordnance District will administer the Eclipse-Pioneer contract, and the Boston Ordnance District, the Raytheon contract.

TWENTY YEAR SERVICE AWARD—Mr. Hugh J. Finnegan accepts congratulations from Lt. Col. E. V. Lau, Chief, Engineering Division, who presented a 20-Year service pin and certificate. Mr. Finnegan is an engineering technician in the Documentation Branch.

ARMY SCIENTISTS DISCOVER 'LASER' COHERENT LIGHT

Washington (AFPS) — A beam of light so powerful it will widen only two feet in a mile and with a peak of power of three million watts has been developed by Army scientists at Ft. Monmouth, N. J. By way of explanation, the Army points out that ordinary light or radar with the best possible focusing will disperse at least 100 yards in a mile.

The newly developed powerful beam of light has only the width of a pencil and holds "tremendous potential" in the fields of communications, range finding, space vehicle guidance and special purpose illumination.

It is called LASER, or Light Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation.

Although the LASER is not new in itself, this new 3-mega-watt development is said to be 300 times as powerful as others in general laboratory use.

Light from ordinary sources, such as the sun or an incandescent bulb, is "incoherent," with its light waves radiating in an unpredictable pattern.

LASER light is "coherent" and ordered, with one precise wavelength and one ultra-pure color.

The Army said the secret of the buildup of tremendous power is that a rotating mirror limits the pulse peak power to less than one-millionth of a second.

Safety Director Attends Safety Management Clinic

E. H. Haynes, Arsenal Safety Director, has been selected by the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel D. A. to attend the 80 hour Advanced Safety Management course at the Center for Safety Education, New York University.

The course emphasizes improvements in safety management for top civilians who direct safety programs throughout the Army.

Mr. Haynes, a veteran of 20 years civil service, came to Redstone Arsenal in 1960 from Anniston Ordnance Depot where he served as Safety Director for twelve years.

Mr. Haynes received his schooling at Jacksonville State College, Jacksonville, Ala. He is an active member in the American Society of Safety Engineers.

How Congress Works:

Most-Asked Question Answered by Booklet

"Each of you in the Armed Forces has a personal stake in our Government. This calls for knowledge and understanding of how our Government functions."

So wrote Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in an introduction to a special booklet prepared by Scholastic Magazines entitled Congress at Work.

"Personal knowledge of the organization and operation of the Congress," he continued, "will not only broaden your understanding of our Government, but will help you to be a better spokesman abroad for the United States."

Congress at Work devotes a section to questions that are most frequently asked about the Legislative branch of government — basic queries about the size and makeup of the two houses and the rules under which they operate.

The question most often asked is "How large is Congress?" Under the Constitution the Senate is composed of two senators from each state. The House, however, determines its membership by the population of each state based on a national census taken every 10 years.

The 87th Congress opened on Jan. 3, 1961, with a membership of 100 senators and 437 representatives (the first Congress convened in 1789 and consisted of 22 senators and 59 representatives).

In 1912 Congress froze the number of representatives at 435, partly because it was thought more members could not work together efficiently, and because the House chamber would not seat more than that number. The granting of statehood to Alaska and Hawaii raised the number temporarily, but with the 1960 census tallied, the states will have to reapportion their representatives to return the membership to 435 before the 1962 elections.

How are Congress numbered? The numbers are determined by elections to the House, which occur every two years. Thus, Congress gets a new number each time a new House meets. The first Congress met in 1789; the present one is the 87th.

How is Congress elected? Senators are elected for six-year terms directly by the voters in each state. (Prior to 1913, senators were chosen by state legislatures). One-third of the Senate seats come up for election every two years; thus the entire membership never changes at one time.

Representatives are elected for two-year terms in elections held in even-numbered years. Each House member represents a Congressional district, the size and shape of which are determined by the state.

When a state gains representatives through a census but chooses not to change its districts, it may elect the extra representatives "at large." This means they do not represent any one district, but are elected by all the voters.

What are the qualifications for membership in Congress? A senator must be 30 years old, a citizen of the United States for at least nine years and a resident of the state in which he is elected. A representative must be 25, a citizen for at least seven years and a resident of his electing state. The first woman was elected to Congress in 1916—four years before women won the right to vote.

How much are members of Congress paid? A representative receives a salary of $25,000 a year. In addition, he is allowed $50,000 a year to pay his staff, a two-room office suite and an office in his home district.

A senator receives the same salary as a representative, but is allowed from $70,000 to $130,000 annually for staff and office expenses, depending on the size of the population he serves.

GOOD NEIGHBORS—Maj. Gen. August Schomburg is congratulated on being named commanding general of the Army Supply and Maintenance Command by long-time neighbor at Redstone Arsenal, Dr. Wernher von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center. Dr. von Braun was one of hundreds who attended a farewell reception for Gen. Schomburg at Squirrel Hill Officers' Club.

FAMOUS RELATIVE — Acting certainly runs in the Fonda family. Both her proud father, Henry, and brother Peter, are not surprised that Jane is a successful actress. After winning critics' praise for her performance in two Broadway plays, Jane is taking her turn at movies, playing in Columbia's "Walk on the Wild Side."
