Two AOMC Officers Recommended for General

Cols. Hirshorn and Pickett to Get Star

Two officers at the Army Ordnance Missile Command, Col. B. J. Leon Hirshorn and Col. George E. Pickett, are included in a list of 45 names sent to the Senate for approval for promotion to brigadier general.

The Department of Army announcement said the colonels nominated for advancement to one star rank, will receive their promotions as vacancies occur.

Col. Hirshorn is chief of the Redeye-Mauler Project Office, at AOMC.

Col. Pickett is chief of the Signal Office on the staff of AOMC Commanding General, Maj. Gen. F. J. McMorrow.

First assigned to AOMC in July, 1961, as deputy commander of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, Col. Hirshorn is a native of Pine Bluff, Ark. He received his bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from the University of Arkansas in 1933. He came to Redstone from the Office, Chief of Ordnance where he headed the Guided Missile Systems Branch in the Research and Development Division.

He had spent three years previously at the Ordnance Research and Development Division. (See TWO on Page 2)

DROPPED TEETH CLAIMED

The Armed Forces Day observer who lost the teeth at Redstone Arsenal has them again.

A woman from Iowa wrote to the Lost and Found Section of the Provost Marshal Office and reported she had lost her partial plate while watching a missile firing.

The Provost Marshal's Office, holding the teeth until someone claimed them, wrapped the plate and shipped it to the Armed Forces Day visitor.

Bond Campaign Boosts Payroll Savings Plan Here by 18 Per Cent

Payroll savings in the Freedom Bond campaign this year showed an increase of more than 18 per cent participation and brought the total participation among the Military and Civilian community here to almost 70 per cent according to the tabulations made when the drive ended last week.

Nike Zeus Fires Successfully in Test at Pt. Mugu

Nike Zeus fired out from Pt. Mugu, Calif., Saturday and blazed a path down the Pacific Missile Range to mark another success for the anti-missile missile.

All three of the solid fuel rocket motors were fired. The two main propulsion motors fired in rapid sequence during the launch operation, the third later in the flight and at high altitude.

Brig. Gen. John G. Zierdt, Deputy Commanding General, Army Ordnance Missile Command, said the test of the Zeus missile and its electronic guidance components went as planned.

Saturday's firing was another in the development test series being conducted at Pt. Mugu, Kwajalein Island in the mid-Pacific and White Sands Missile Range, N. M.

BLOODMOBILE WEDNESDAY

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit the Arsenal on Wednesday, June 13 between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. in Bldg. 7110.

"The need for blood increases during the vacation months," Maj. George Grace, Redstone Arsenal Blood Program chairman, said. "There are more accidents."

Army Sets Policy On 'No Show' Airline Penalties

The Army has outlined the procedure for handling "no show" penalties exacted by the airlines from individuals who fail to cancel confirmed reservations and fail to make the flight.

The outline also covers overbooking by the airline, and the refund the line issues in this case.

The traveller is required to pay the penalty for "no show" from his own funds. He may ask for reimbursement when he submits his voucher if he can show that the failure to cancel was caused by official business which also created a situation in which he did not have an opportunity to cancel.

The substantiation of the official business which created this "no show" penalty must accompany the voucher and will require the approval of the installation commander or his designated representative.

If the airline is overbooked and the ticket cannot be honored, the airline will issue a refund commensurate with the penalty exacted from passengers when they fail to appear. This refund, and the receipt for it, must be attached to the traveller's voucher when he submits his request for payment.

The funds returned for overbooking will be kept in a separate account by Finance and Accounting.

DODD ROAD CLOSED

The portion of Dodd Road that goes through the Marshall Space Flight Center test division was closed to traffic beginning Monday morning, May 28.

The road has been opened to north bound traffic from 6:30 to 3 a.m. daily to relieve congestion on Patton and Martin Roads. Construction of water lines and a tunnel under the road necessitates closing for an indefinite time.

Billy Graham Scheduling Arsenal Visit

World-famed evangelist Billy Graham will visit the home of Army missiles and rockets Aug. 26.

Dr. Graham is scheduled to speak in the late afternoon of Aug. 26 at Redstone Arsenal's airfield before an expected 50,000 visitors.

A 2,000-voice choir is being assembled from churches throughout the Tennessee Valley area for Dr. Graham's visit.

This will be the first time the internationally-known minister has spoken in Alabama. An invitation to him was extended by the Huntsville Ministers Association and Col. Thomas W. Cooke, commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency.

Lt. Col. J. E. Batterson, post chaplain, and the Rev. Elmer C. Johnson, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Huntsville, are (See BILLY GRAHAM on Page 2)

Many Top Officials Are Visitors Here Early This Week

A host of distinguished visitors descended on the Army Ordnance Missile Command early this week.

Lt. Gen. Frank S. Besson, Jr., Commanding General of the Army Materiel Command, visited AOMC for the first time since he assumed command of the new AMC. He was briefed on AOMC activities Tuesday and was special guest at a dinner Monday night. The Missile Command is a segment of the Materiel Command under a new Army-wide reorganization.

Gen. Besson was accompanied by his deputy, Maj. Gen. William J. Ely, and Brig. Gen. Fred P. Campbell, AMC chief of staff.

The group looked at AOMC management techniques and reviewed the Army's missile program, including the research and development, industrial, field service, and financial management phases.

The AMC commander left Redstone Tuesday afternoon after an intensive morning of briefings by top AOMC personnel.

Dr. J. L. McLucas, deputy director for defense research engineering in the Department of Defense, also received briefings on the mission of the Missile Command. He talked to research and development managers on tactical missiles (See GEN. BESSON on Page 2)

Researcher Plays Game of Chance With Electrons

An Army Ordnance Missile Command scientist is gambling for technical information in Atomic physics and making it pay off.

Dr. James Perkins, a research physicist in AOMC's Research Laboratory, is using the Monte Carlo method to predict the path of fast electrons through various materials.

The fast electron, unlike its less agile brother, the proton, bounces around much harder when it strikes an atom. During its progress through a metal, it bounces off resident atoms like a cue ball on a pool table.

The process known in the scientific world as "scattering" is a random event. According to Dr. Perkins, where the electron bounces is essentially a matter of chance.

SCIENTIFIC GAMBLING—No dice or cards are used by Dr. James Perkins of the Army Ordnance Missile Command Research Laboratory to compute the odds of fast electron behavior. But he has to gamble, nonetheless. However, scientific gambling is strictly a pencil and paper or computer proposition.

THE COMMANDER'S LETTER

U. S. Army Ordnance Missile Command

22 May 1962

TO ALL AOMC PERSONNEL:

We have just observed the first Armed Forces Day Open House held at Redstone Arsenal since I assumed command. It is therefore doubly gratifying to me that it was so very successful.

The effort which goes into such an activity is reflected in the end result. And our end result, judging from the number of visitors we had and their comments, was shining as brightly as the sun on May 19.

I know the extra effort put forth by everyone involved in Open House was demanding of both work and personal time, but it is such dedication to our mission in general that has made the Missile Command what it is today. I particularly want to commend the men and women who worked on exhibits and booths in the display area. They contributed immeasurably to the success of our program. Certainly, that dedication paid dividends on Armed Forces Day.

I wish it were possible to thank each of you personally, but that, obviously, is impossible. Therefore, with this letter I want to express my sincere thanks for a job well done, a job which showed once again the caliber of all our people.

The Redstone Rocket

The Redstone Rocket is a privately owned newspaper published every Wednesday at no expense to the Government by Jack W. Haffhaus, Huntsville, Alabama, with exclusive rights for the reader interest of personnel at Redstone Arsenal, Alabama, in accordance with an agreement between the publisher and the Information Office, Army Ordnance Missile Command, Redstone Arsenal, Alabama.

The Rocket is NOT an official or semi-official Army or Ordnance Corps publication. Policies and statements reflected in its news and editorial columns represent the views of the individual writers and are not necessarily those of the Department of the Army, the Ordnance Corps, or any organization at Redstone Arsenal, Alabama. Appearance of advertisements in the Rocket does not constitute an endorsement of the advertising matter by the Department of the Army, the Ordnance Corps, or any organization at Redstone Arsenal, Alabama.

The publisher will accept editorial comment for publication in the Rocket only through the Information Office, Army Ordnance Missile Command, Redstone Arsenal, Alabama, Bldg. 5250, Room A-145, E. Building, 376-4191. All advertising copy and payments therefor are received by Mrs. Zula T. Heath, Huntsville, Alabama, P. O. Box 246, telephone 534-1701 as representative of the publisher.

The Redstone Rocket is distributed free of cost to personnel at Redstone Arsenal. Mailing rates for the Rocket are $7.00 a year or $2.93 for six months, Alabama sales tax included. Mailing arrangements may be made with the publisher.

"The amount of scattering that results from an electron striking an atom is a pure game of chance," Dr. Perkins said. "Our object is to duplicate mathematically what goes on in nature. Of course the dice that we roll are loaded, because we have reduced the odds."

As an example, Dr. Perkins says an electron bounces off an atom about 10,000 times as it goes through a sheet of tinfoil.

Using a high speed computer and the laws of probability Dr. Perkins reduced the 10,000 collisions to 100 to simplify the process of finding out how and where an electron scatters.

Research in the field has already been done, but only with a few materials. The advent of the high speed computer has cut the tedious job of mathematical calculation and provided new information quickly.

The payoff will come in the field of radioactive shielding, and in a better knowledge of the working of diodes and transistors in a missile system.

"Although I'm not a gambler," Dr. Perkins said, "in this case, it pays off to figure the odds by playing the game often enough."

Brig. Gen. David C. When the drive began on May 1, the participation at the installation stood at 51.3 per cent. During the drive it jumped 18.3 per cent to 69.6 per cent of the employees enrolled in the program.

"This exceeds the requirements of the Army Regulation governing participation in the Payroll Savings Plan for Freedom Bonds, but it does not quite reach the expectations of the committee who aimed at a higher goal," according to Col. John Palsrok, chairman of the committee. "However, the results are gratifying," Col. Palsrok said.

MAJ. GEN. J. G. SHINKLE

General Shinkle Is Transferred to Station in Europe

White Sands Missile Range, N. M. — Maj. Gen. John G. Shinkle, the commanding general of this overland missile range since June of 1960, has been reassigned to a station in Europe and will be leaving White Sands in June.

The name of his successor as commanding general here has not yet been announced.

Gen. Shinkle's new duties will be with the U. S. Army Element, North Atlantic Treaty Organization International Staff in Paris, France. He is to arrive in Paris on July 2.

A 1933 graduate of the United States Military Academy, Gen. Shinkle has served in many capacities with the Army. Since 1937 he has been in the Army Ordnance Corps.

Gen. Shinkle has served as executive officer for the Assistant Chief of Ordnance for Research and Development in Washington and was commander of the Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency here.

This was Gen. Shinkle's second tour of duty at White Sands.

He was promoted to brigadier general on July 6, 1956, while serving at Redstone. He received his second star in June of last year.

Gen. Shinkle is married to the former Emily Harris of Pacific Grove, Calif. They have three RETIRE—Nine men were on the Reviewing stand Friday afternoon to witness a Retreat and Review in their honor. The nine are retiring from active Military service. They are: Lt. Col. Robert W. Larroux, Lt. Col. James B. Clift, Lt. Col. Harvey J. Sorenson, Maj. John V. Yelverton, Maj. James M. Breece, Capt. Paul E. Rogers, CWO Thomas C. Gross, M/Sgt. Wilfred Wilson and M/Sgt. Billy Campbell. Brig. Gen. John G. Zierdt (front) was the reviewing officer.

RETREAT PARADE HONORS MEN RETIRING FROM SERVICE IN MAY

Nine of the 13 men retiring from the Armed Forces in May stood retreat and watched the troops pass in review during ceremonies at the Redstone Arsenal parade field Friday afternoon. Brig. Gen. John G. Zierdt, Deputy Commanding General, Guided Missiles, was the reviewing officer. Among the retiring men was Air Force Lt. Col. Harvey J. Sorenson. Army men included Lt. Col. James B. Clift, Capt. Paul E. Rogers, Maj. James M. Breece, Maj. John Yelverton. Capt. Rogers has been assigned to the Ordnance Guided Missile School, the other three to the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency. CWO Thomas Gross was a member of Headquarters. School troops: Lt. Col. Robert W. Larroux has been a member of the 55th Army Band; M/Sgt. Billie Campbell was with the Support Agency; and M/Sgt. Wilford A. Wilson was a member of Co. A, OGMS. Five others, SFC John Bolerjack, also of Co. A., OGMS; Maj. Harrelson E. Blackwell, AOMSA; M/Sgt. Billie Campbell, AOMSA; M/Sgt. Wilber T. Jones, Sr., Army Ordnance Missile Command; and SFC Vernon S. Kirkness, Signal Unit, OGMS did not stand the re-retreat and review. Troop commander for the parade was Lt. Col. H. L. Gotzian. On the reviewing stand with Gen. Zierdt were Col. Henry J. Katz, Deputy Commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency and Col. W. J. MacPherson, Commandant of the Ordnance Guided Missile School.

The 55th Army Band led the assembled troops stationed at the Arsenal.

R&DD LAB EMPLOYEE RETIRES AFTER THIRTY YEARS OF GOVERNMENT SERVICE

A veteran employee of the Research and Development Directorate has retired after more than 30 years of government service, 19 of which were spent at Redstone Arsenal.

Thomas T. Kirkpatrick, who worked with the Electromagnetic Laboratory at the time of retirement, came to Redstone in 1943, long before the name was connected with space and the guided missile industry.

A letter of appreciation from Col. Raymond W. Burkett, R&DD Director stated: "... your job required extensive knowledge of a multitude of parts and raw materials... You deserve a share of credit for the great number of successes in the Directorate and the Command while you were employed here."

Kirkpatrick was guest of honor at a retirement party Friday afternoon, given by employees of the Electromagnetic Laboratory.

Kirkpatrick and his wife live in Trenton, Ala. The couple has six daughters: Mrs. Clark Steadman and Mrs. Johnnie Atchley, Huntsville; Miss Etta Mae Kirk-

ADVANCED TRAINING ESTABLISHED FOR ARMY MEDICAL SPECIALISTS

Washington (AFPS) — The Army has established a training course to improve the professional skill of advanced medical specialists and prepare them for wider utilization in their field. The training program was set up by the Army Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel as a result of a national shortage of professional nurses and the effect of this shortage on obtaining nurses for the Army Nurse Corps.

Both classroom and practical experience in all areas of patient program are provided by the 46-week program, which is being conducted at the following five Army General Hospitals: Brooke (Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.), Fitzsimmons (Denver, Colo.), Letterman (San Francisco, Calif.), Madigan (Ft. Lewis, Wash.) and Walter Reed (Washington, D. C.). Womack Army Hospital, Ft. Bragg, N. C. is also offering the course.

There have been insufficient numbers of medical specialists to fill all authorized positions, the Army said. About 550 course graduates are classified in the specialty (MOS 9116 and 9117).

Formal training will be given to more non-commissioned officers as well as specialists in MOS 9113 to meet personal requirements. The number being trained was increased to 350 this year and will be further increased to 550 annually beginning in FY 1962.

Miss Patricia Kirkpatrick and Mrs. John F. Cullens, Atlanta; and Mrs. Brooks Wilhelm, Orlando, Fla.

Immediate retirement plans include a tour of Florida, after which the couple plans to take things easy for a while.

graduates, measures are taken to insure the development and maintenance of technical ability and skills. Graduates of the course also continue their training to keep pace with advancing medical science.

On duty, the medical specialist can administer only those medicines or narcotics which do not require calculation of fractional dosages or research observation.

Within this limitation, the specialist may prepare and, with the permission of a physician or nurse, administer narcotics and make entries in the narcotics register and on the patient's clinical chart.

PRE-FLIGHT PHYSICAL—PFC. Bruce Bente gets ready to apply a special type of stethoscope to the skin of TIM, Test Instrumented Missile, in a pre-flight checkout of the missile's components. TIM will be fired on Redstone Arsenal to provide in-flight information on new guidance components.

Test Missile to Be Used For Study of Guidance

Scientists at AOMC are building a test bed for guidance components to put missiles of the future right on target.

The bed is called TIM, for Test Instrumented Missile, by the Guidance, Control and Aeroballistic Laboratory where it was designed. TIM is 14 feet long and one foot in diameter. It is a true experiment for the laboratory since this is the first time a missile actually has been constructed in its entirety by the laboratory personnel. The laboratory people usually are more concerned with components than an entire missile.

"TIM came into being to provide a realistic in-flight test of guidance components," said Russel Gambill, the guidance expert who can be called TIM's godfather. "We need to test new guidance components in actual conditions of vibration and stress and TIM is better than a rocket sled and more economical."

The parts that make up TIM have been gathered from surplus parts on almost every Army missile system. The motor is a solid fuel Zuni rocket, and the launcher was brought from White Sands Missile Range, N. M.

When TIM is fired on the Arsenal test range, it will carry small components that will actually guide the missile instead of riding as "passengers" on the flight.

The experimental rocket will be fired by a sister facility, the Test and Evaluation Laboratory. TIM's range is approximately one mile. After the rocket motor has burned out, a parachute will be deployed and the missile and its val-

"Parachute descent is another economical feature of TIM," said Gambill. "With a new motor we can use TIM's airframe on another test."

Although most scientists at the laboratory have been to Cape Canaveral for Pershing and Redstone ballistic missile shots, they have a special interest in the homemade product.

"When launch time comes we'll try to put as many people in the blockhouse as safety allows," Gambill said. "Everyone in the laboratory is interested in the success of TIM's maiden voyage."

Swimming instructions for military dependents ages 6-14 will begin June 18. Registration for classes will be from June 4 to 8 at the swimming pool, Bldg. 3469. For further information call 876-6428.

WORK-OUT FACILITIES

The hours of operation for the Special Services Work-Out Facility have been changed due to lack of week-end use. Monday through Friday will remain the same: 10:00 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and holidays will be 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

BASEBALL

Mark your calendar as a reminder that the Third U. S. Army Baseball Tournament will be held at Redstone Arsenal on Aug. 27 through Aug. 31. Teams throughout the Army area will be here and good baseball will be in store for the spectators. Many "big leaguers" got their start in Army ball, so maybe you will be watching another Mantle or Dean in the making this August.

The standings of the Post Level

Baseball League follow:

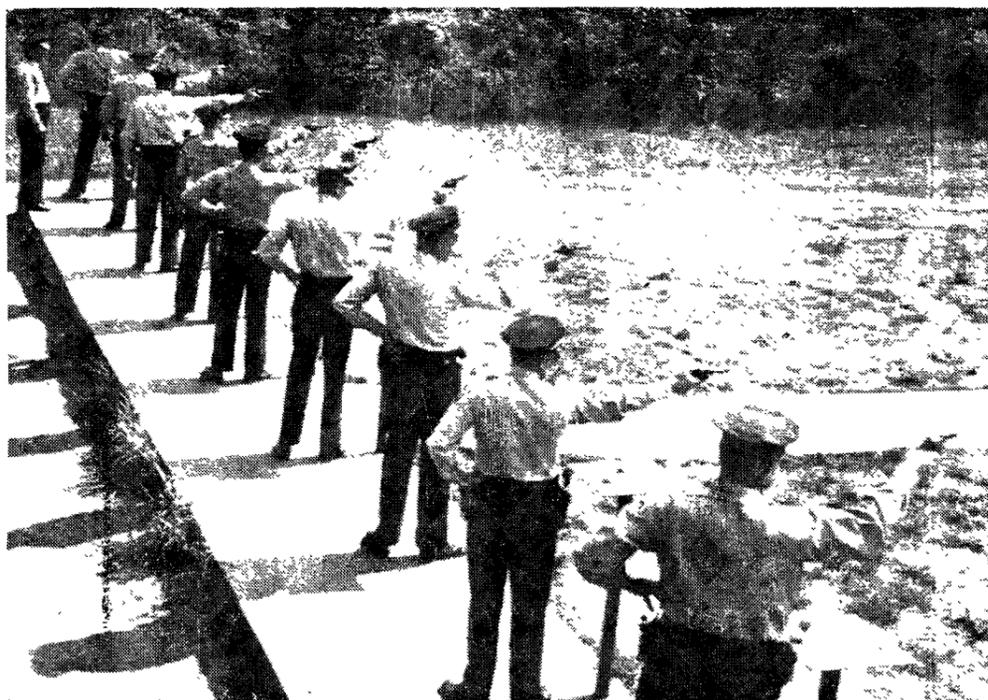

Team	Won	Lost
Co. B, OGMS	1	0
Hq. OGMS	1	0
Co. A, OGMS	1	1

SOFTBALL

The weather is still holding for us and all games scheduled have been played. The teams are settling down to mid-season form and good softball is in store for the spectators. Close games, close plays, good umpiring, and good sportsmanship has taken over the Post Level Softball League for 1962. The following is the standings May 22.

Team	Won	Lost
Hq. AOMSA	6	0
AOMC No. 2	5	0
Co. A OGMS	4	1

The PX stands will not be at the ball games in the future, due to the slow sales.

MEMBERS OF THE CIVILIAN POLICE BRANCH, Provost Marshal Division, take turns at hitting the Bulls-Eye on the Redstone Arsenal Pistol Range. The range firing is the first phase of an extended training program initiated by the PM Division for the Civilian Police Branch during the coming months. Standing at the far left observing the proceedings is Assistant Chief, John E. Branum.

came through in his usual style by winning the 1600-2000cc class with a time of 1:43.10. Very close behind were Bob Cortner and Joe Davis, also driving TR-3's, with times of 1:43.50 and 1:43.68, respectively, another really close duel. The 2000cc and over class was led by his Healy to a time of 1:40.47. Only 0.21 second behind Gene was J. J. Carlin, also driving a Healy. He turned in a time of 1:40.68. As is easily seen by these results, the competition was quite close.

Fastest time of the day was turned in by Ray Mosling running in the Porsche class with Leroy Barnes and Curt Flurry, both running in the 0-1000cc class, taking second and third over-all, respectively. Ray turned in a 1:36.15, and Leroy and Curt turning in 1:39.45 and 1:39.60, respectively. Everyone considered the course excellent and organizers John Schlosser and Don Franke deserve a big hand for the sterling performance. Trophies for this event will be presented at the next Twickenham Auto Club meeting on June 7th at Clark Steadman's.

On other past events, quite a few local enthusiasts ventured to Birmingham for the Grand Prix held on May 27th. Results of this event will be presented when they become available.

On the sheet for future events is one we have all been preparing for. This year's running of the Tennessee Valley Region SCCA Regional Races will take place Saturday and Sunday, June 2-3, at Courtland airbase. This event promises to be one of the largest and best to date. Racing entries are expected from all parts of the southeast, making competition tough and a thrilling outing for the spectator. This is one of the rare chances you have to see some of the fast machinery that you hear about at Sebring, Daytona, and the other famous courses. Why not join us with our straw hats and water jug at Courtland this weekend for a really exciting time?

I would like to ask some readers who are interested in fast automobiles and would like to get a close-up look at the Courtland races to help the local organization stage this event. Help is needed in all areas—flagging, communications, safety inspection, spectator control, and many others. Pitching in would not only be a big help to the people conducting this event, but it would also be an excellent opportunity to see the races from a viewpoint much better than usual. If interested, call either Web Mayfield at 534-

Arsenal Pistol Team Is High Scorer at Memphis

Redstone Arsenal's Pistol Team recently copped 17 awards out of a possible 34 in a shooting match at the Memphis Naval Air Station. And in the Alabama State Outdoor Pistol Championship at Birmingham, two members of the team scored outstanding records.

In the Memphis shooting match, a total of 34 persons participated, including six men from Redstone

Arsenal who took the 17 awards. Those participating in the Memphis competition included Capt. Peter Neilson, OGMS; 2nd Lt. John Coleman, AOMSA; 2nd Lt. Ralph Mudgett, OGMS; M/Sgt. Francis Guereki, AOMSA; SP/4 Peter Gregg, OGMS; and SP/4 Rudolph Planthaver, OGMS.

In the Birmingham championship match, M/Sgt. Roland Martin, AOMC, won first service expert award, firing best of all military personnel participating in his division. In taking the top place, Martin placed first in the military section with the .22 caliber pistol. 2nd Lt. John Coleman, Pistol Team captain, won first in the open sharpshooter .22 caliber aggregate division and placed second in the service sharpshooter centerfire aggregate.

The pistol firing matches are used as practice exercises for the National Shooting Match at Camp Perry, Ohio, scheduled in July and early August of this year.

Sports Car Buffs

By Ray Mosling

I appreciate the honor of being asked to continue this column by Pat Patterson, who had been transferred to White Sands. I hope I can do justice to the column Pat originated almost a year ago.

Pat's leaving is a great loss to the sports car folks for he has undoubtedly done more for the sport in this area than any other person. During the two years Pat was stationed at Redstone, he sponsored innumerable sports car events. These events demonstrated his unique ability to come up with something interesting and different every time. In addition to writing this column, Pat wrote the local SCCA Newsletter, one of the finest sports car publications seen in this area. The door to his home was always open to anyone interested in the sport and I am certain he will be long remembered.

On May 20th, 36 contestants gathered in the 92-degree heat at Parkway City for the Twickenham Auto Club "May B" Gymkhana conducted by John Schlosser with the assistance of Don Franke. The course, which was laid out with rubber pylons, included four "garages," two reverse-gear runs, and a tricky slalom that got progressively tighter. This slalom accounted for quite a few comments from the contestants. Mechanical difficulties were experienced by more than a few entrants, mostly concerning reverse gears and associated shift mechanisms.

When the smoke and dust cleared and everyone had cooled off a little, the following trophy winners were determined: In the Sedan class, Phil Mellor took first in his Renault with a time of 1:47.42, while the Ladies' class was won by Martha Barnes in a Sprite with a time of 1:46.21. Leroy Barnes took the honors in the 0-1000cc class by maneuvering his Sprite to a time of 1:39.45. This class was extremely close, with less than 0.5 second between the first three places. The capable handling of his MGA brought Tom Moore first place in the MG class with a time of 1:40.32, with Bill McClain and Guy Thompson taking second and third places with times of 1:42.55 and 1:43.80, respectively. The Porsche class was taken by Ray Mosling and Mike Barbush with times of 1:36.15 and 1:43.32, respectively. Dr. John Hardman driving his tried and true TR-3

Ga. Tech Alumni Elect Redding Pres.

The Huntsville Chapter of the Georgia Tech Alumni Association elected new officers May 26.

New officers include Paschal E. Redding, Jr., president; Vern Hutchens, vice president; Bill Fiser, treasurer; and Bob Puckett, secretary.

Dr. M. J. Goglia, Dean of the Georgia Tech Graduate School, was guest speaker.

Dr. Goglia told the group about the current research activities at Georgia Tech and how a long-range program is being developed which will insure the academic and research growth of the Institute.

Georgia Tech Graduate School recently received approximately $200,000 in research funds from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to sponsor scientific research scholarships in space engineering.

This scientific space study effort in the graduate school is part of a long range NASA program which is expected to increase progressively each year.

Other selected colleges in the United States with qualified research institutes established will also participate in this program.

Public Invited to 'Ole Time' Concert

The 55th Army Band will present an "Old Time" band concert out of doors beside the Redstone Park Chapel June 4 between 6 and 7:30 p.m.

The concert is being sponsored by the Redstone Park Men of the Chapel. The audience is advised by the sponsors to bring a blanket. No chairs will be provided but the invitation to hear the concert includes everyone.

ARS TO MEET

The American Rocket Society will meet at the Huntsville Utilities auditorium tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m.

Highlight of the meeting will be a film showing the flight of "Friendship 7," Lt. Comdr. John Glenn's space capsule.

SOCIAL and CLUB EVENTS

Catholic Women's Sodality To Install New Officers

The Redstone Catholic Women's Sodality will hold a breakfast meeting on Friday in the Chapel Social Room after the 9 a.m. Mass. Mrs. Francis McMorrow will speak on her experiences as a Catholic Army wife.

New officers and committee chairmen will be installed at the meeting. Mrs. Stanley Frage will assume presidency of the sodality; Mrs. Edward Blydenburgh will take over as vice president; Mrs. Ellis Pierce as secretary; Mrs. Earl Otto, organization and development; Mrs. Kenneth Gubert, Confraternity of Christian Doctrine; Mrs. Robert Sullivan, spiritual development; and Mrs. Grady Poole, international relations.

FRIENDS HONOR MAJ. BREECE AT RETIREMENT

Dinner honoring Maj. James M. Breece, retiring tomorrow, was sponsored by friends from the Calibration Center of the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency on Monday night at the Squirrel Hill Officers Club.

Approximately 65 people attended the event. Maj. Breece was acting director of the Center when it was organized.

Mrs. Maurer Gives Farewell Party

Mrs. Charles J. Maurer was honored Monday night with a farewell party given for her by Mrs. G. B. Parmelee, Mrs. Carroll J. Corne and Mrs. Louis DeMicheale at the Noncommissioned Officers Club.

Approximately 25 friends attended the event. M/Sgt. and Mrs. Maurer are going to Taiwan for a second duty tour on that island.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL WILL BEGIN MONDAY

The annual Protestant Vacation Bible School begins June 4 and will run through June 15 with sessions Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 11:30 a.m.

Classes will be for youngsters now in the first grade through junior high school.

"Lack of space and staff make it impossible to provide classes for pre-school children," Lt. Col. John E. Batterson, Post Chaplain, said.

"Busses will operate from the housing areas to the Chapel Annex each day the school is in session," the Chaplain said.

Wives Bridge Group Enjoys 'Party Day'

The final meeting until after Labor Day, of the Bridge Group sponsored by the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club, was a "Party Day" at the Squirrel Hill Officers Club.

Seven tables were in play during the morning and afternoon, with Mrs. Paul W. Simpson gaining high score and Mrs. K. V. Washbourne second high.

Slam hand prizes went to Mrs. Orlando Garcia and Mrs. Edward Schorsten. Mrs. Jerry Kives won the red deuce prize.

Arsenal Thrift Shop Moves to Larger Quarters

SUMMER DRESSES—Mrs. Charles Maurer, Jr., examines a dress on the rack at the Thrift Shop at the Arsenal. The shop may be used to buy or sell by anyone. Only seasonal clothing is accepted for sale. However, the shop now has more space and can handle a greater volume of items though it limits the number submitted at one time.

The Redstone Arsenal Thrift Shop, which is open to everyone, military or civilian, has moved from its old location to Bldg. 3740 behind the cafeteria in the Quonset area at the Arsenal.

Expanded space makes it possible to handle many more items. Things that are particularly needed according to Mrs. H. L. Gotzian, manager, are furniture, television sets, tape recorders, chests of drawers and bicycles.

The Thrift Shop is open on Wednesday and Friday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Mrs. Gotzian also said she needs volunteer workers at present. Volunteers receive free lunch, free nursery service, and ten per cent off on all purchases.

Merchandise is accepted at the Thrift Shop until 1 p.m.

Clothing, linens, dishes, lamps, musical instruments and many other items are handled by the Thrift Shop.

A limited number of large appliances such as stoves, washing machines and refrigerators are handled. Any mattress brought in to be sold must first be sterilized," Mrs. Gotzian said.

THIS IS NO LIVING ROOM—It's a corner of the Thrift Shop in the new location, Bldg. 3740, behind the cafeteria in the Quonset area off Patton Road. Sitting on the davenport is the Thrift Shop manager, Mrs. H. L. Gotzian. She is also searching for more volunteers to help run the shop which contributes to charity.

MP Sergeant Is Presented Army Commendation

In recent ceremonies at Post Headquarters, Sgt. Henry T. Asselin of the 291st Military Police Company was presented the Army Commendation Medal by the Post Commander, Col. Thomas W. Cooke.

Sgt. Asselin received the award for meritorious service rendered while at his last station, Fort Clayton, C. Z.

While a member of the 534th Military Police Company (Svc) stationed at Fort Clayton, Sgt. Asselin was assigned as a supervisor of the Caribbean Command Armed Service Police Department and worked out of Panama City, Republic of Panama.

His duties included the supervision and direction of a joint service organization, comprised of members of the Panama National Guard. Sgt. Asselin engaged in direct liaison and coordination with senior representatives of all of these services in a manner which commanded full respect and appreciation of his abilities and position.

His recommendations for refinement and new procedures in increasing the effectiveness of the Armed Service Police were instrumental in effecting considerable reduction in the Command capital offense rate, and in the furtherance of better relations between Military personnel and the residents of the Republic of Panama.

At Redstone Arsenal Sgt. Asselin is assigned to the Training and Public Relations Section of the

Painter of Indians Catlin, Unique Artist, Preserved Old West

The World of art has no more romantic legend than the story of Paul Gauguin, the Frenchman who threw up his clerking job for the vagabond life of a painter which eventually took him to the South Seas. Lesser known than Gauguin is America's own George Catlin, the Philadelphian who abandoned a law practice to take up the brush and, in his own words, "rescue from oblivion the looks and customs of the vanishing races of native men in America."

Says John C. Ewers, Catlin authority at the Smithsonian Institution. "George Catlin holds a unique position in the history of American art. No other artist painted as many pictures in the trans-Mississippi West before the development of photography. All who enjoy learning about the old West and about the Indians in the day before the covered wagon and the Indian wars should be grateful . . . for his vision and accomplishment in preserving a pictorial record of a picturesque era in history is forever gone."

Catlin, born in 1796, was self-taught. In his Philadelphia period, before he went west, he developed considerable skill as a portrait painter for whom such notables as New York's Governor DeWitt Clinton sat. But the work for which he is best remembered dates from the late 1820's when he did an unfinished likeness of the Seneca orator Red Jacket at Buffalo.

Moving westward to St. Louis, Catlin in 1830 fell in with William Clark who, 25 years earlier, had made the historic overland expedition to the Pacific with Meriwether Lewis. It was Clark, now Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the western tribes, who introduced Catlin to the braves of the Iowa, Missouri, Sioux, Omaha and other tribes.

In 1832 Catlin made his most notable field trip, traveling up the Missouri River more than 2,000 miles to Ft. Union at the mouth of the Yellowstone. The fruits of this expedition were a rich harvest of portraits of warriors and scenes today in the Smithsonian's extensive Catlin collection.

For the people of the East, Catlin's work was a colorful and fasinating introduction to the bizarre world of the western tribes. Between 1833 and 1852 he exhibited them both in the United States and in Europe.

You get more folks in a Volkswagen

There is no other station wagon like this one. It is functionally designed to get more happy folks and their things inside, with comfort and stretching room. Although the VW carries more folks than conventional station wagons — it is four feet shorter. Think of this for parking convenience. In addition its great maneuverability and economy of operation make VW the true "Fun Wagon."

THE FLAG BOOK by Preben Kannik (Barrows, 199 pp., $3.95)

Have you ever wondered what the flag badge of the Seychelle Islands is? Do you know how to tell the flag of the Naval Chief of Staff of South Africa from that of a rear-admiral? Or had a bet on the composition of the coat-of-arms of the Mongolian Republic? If so, this book fills your needs.

book which goes far beyond the exotic. There are 860 illustrations in color of national flags, coats-of-arms, pennants, ensigns, the flags of the states of the United States, the flags of the Red Cross, the United Nations the Council of Europe and NATO. Flags of the new African nations are included.

Following the illustrations is a narrative section on each, giving the date of adoption or approval and in many cases, interesting capsule facts. A very handy little volume, interesting to leaf through and of particular value to traveling military, protocol officers and the like.

Actually, this is a fine reference

Concentrating on Ajax Now—

Inter Service Exchange of Obsolete Missile Parts Effects Big Savings

When the Army retires its missiles from service, it's the job of the InterService Supply Support Agency to make sure they don't end up in the scrap heap.

A tri-service effort to do some horse trading in missile supplies, ISS is designed to save more taxpayer dollars on missile equipment that has served long and well defending the nation.

The one-man ISS coordinator for the Army Ordnance Missile Command is Costa E. "Gus" Apostolakis, who has spent more than 20 years in Army supply work.

"Our big effort in ISS now is with the Nike Ajax," Apostolakis said. "As we phase the Nike Hercules into missile defense sites, certain Ajax equipment comes out as excess."

"Sister services, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and the Advanced Research Projects Agency have already taken almost $13 million worth of equipment.

"The equipment taken is usually radars, instrument vans, and communications material rather than the missile itself.

"Components that have defended our Nation's key metropolitan areas from enemy attack for more than five years are getting further use instead of being tossed on the scrapheap."

A pamphlet, illustrated with photographs of the equipment offered, is circulated through government channels. When an agency sees an item it can use, a telephone call to the ISS coordinator starts a chain reaction that results in advantageous transfer of material to an agency that can use it.

The Army's Redstone, scheduled to be replaced by the smaller, lighter Pershing, is expected to receive the same ISS treatment. In return, the Army receives material from other services. Equipment obtained through this program by AOMC during 1961 resulted in savings of $221,675.

"We offer more hardware," Apostolakis said, "Trading experience in missile system operation is just as valuable as trading material. Any way we do it, the taxpayer benefits from the continuing use and exchange of resources by the services to fill in the missing time between obsolescence and the scrap pile."

Site of U. S. Capital Was Hotly Debated

George Washington never lived to see the great city that bears his name become the nation's capital, for he died the year before Congress authorized the removal of government departments from Philadelphia to the new city on the Potomac in 1800. Thus, of all of Freedom's Cities, Washington played no part in the Revolution that gave birth to an independent nation.

But the Father of His Country did, however, personally select the site for the city which has the same boundaries as the District of Columbia and covers 69 square miles. The decision was made only after the issue had boiled up into violent disputes, with Northern and Southern states hotly competing for the honor of accommodating the national capital.

Indeed, one contemporary wit,

Francis Hopkinson, proposed erecting a capital on wheels which might be moved from one place to another and satisfy everybody. "The business of the house might be going on," he wrote, "while the house itself was going on; and motions not only be made in the house, but the house itself make motions."

The name of one man, Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, will always be associated with the capital's history of growth. This visionary architect and military engineer had left France in 1777 to fight in the American Revolution. Severely wounded at Savannah and taken prisoner at Charleston, he remained in his adopted country after the war and put himself at George Washington's service.

When Washington asked L'En-fant to survey the site and draw plans for the new capital, the Frenchman devised a pattern of streets that crossed each other to form regular squares, with only a few main avenues breaking up the design. Streets and avenues all began at the flat-topped hill, 83 feet above the Potomac, which we know as Capitol Hill.

But as the new city took shape, L'Enfant's grandiose plan — and the cost it involved — vexed the federal commissioners who asked for his resignation. He spent much of his time subsequently trying to get compensation for his work, but Congress balked at granting the $95,500 he thought he deserved. When he died in 1825 his personal effects were valued at $45.

It was not until 1901 that L'Enfant's brilliant plans for Washington were properly appreciated when the Park Commission used them in developing the capital. In a much-belated tribute to him, the Frenchman's remains were removed from an unmarked grave to rest in Arlington National Cemetery.

L'Enfant lived long enough to see the national seat of government go up in flames. If the city had missed America's first war with Britain, it did not come through the second unscathed. The War of 1812 saw the young nation suffer a series of setbacks that was climaxed on Aug. 24, 1814 when the British swept into Washington and put it to the torch.

Previously, Adm. Sir George Cockburn had burned and sacked the town of Havre de Grace, Md., in his depredations of the Chesapeake Bay area by land and sea. He now determined to avenge the American burning of York (Toronto) the previous year and moved on Washington with a force of 5,000. He scattered the defensive militia in the Battle of Bladensburg and sent them fleeing into the Georgetown hills.

It was a black day in the nation's military history and one person who came out best was the spirited and indomitable Dolly Madison, wife of the fourth U. S. President. Cockburn's troops proceeded to burn the Capitol, the White House and almost every other public building, and only a sudden cloud-burst prevented the whole city from catching fire.

President Madison, thoroughly drenched, took refuge in the hills. Dolly also fled the White House, but before getting out she took everything of value—silver, paintings, papers—she could carry in a cart. One of them was a Gilbert Stuart Portrait of Washington which now hangs in the East Room of the White House.

So close was the Madisons' escape that a dinner prepared for them in the presidential mansion was eaten by British officers. When Dolly returned to the city two days later she found the 22-year-old building a blackened shell. The Madisons never again lived in the White House; by the time repairs were completed in 1817, James Monroe was President.

During the Civil War the nation's capital was threatened after the Battle of Bull Run in July 1861 when Confederate troops under Gen. Pierre G. T. Beauregard and Gen. Joseph E. Johnson joined forces to rout Gen. Irvin McDowell's Union army. The demoralized bluecoats streamed back into Washington in confusion and the city was gripped by fear that it would fall into Confederate hands. But the fear was unwarranted.

Confederate Gen. Jubal Early also menaced Washington in 1864 when he moved into its outskirts after defeating Gen. Lew Wallace at the Monocacy River. But the arrival of Union reinforcements caused Early's withdrawal.

Today, as one of the great world capitals, Washington is a city of splendor — of great shrines and monuments, stately public buildings, magnificent museums and parks and gardens, befitting the nerve center of a great nation. Pierre L'Enfant, discredited in his own time, would glow with pride to see the metropolis that was born in his fertile brain.

Yet Washington's face is far from unchanging. When the 35th President of the United States is sworn in on Jan. 20, he will take the oath of office on the steps of the enlarged Capitol Building's new East Front. Nearby on the left he will see the new Senate Office Building. On the right he will see the new House Office Building going up.

The year ahead will see more than 12 major buildings added to the capital scene, including the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of History and Technology and the National Aviation and Space Agency Building. From the Potomac to Capitol Hill the face-lifting of Washington will go on keeping pace with the machinery of government.

JUNGLE HELIPORT—Four members of an Army crew clear out remaining logs and underbrush from a heliport they have carved out of the dense Panama jungle. The HU-14 Iroquois 'copter behind them has just made the first landing in the clearing. The men had been lowered on the ground by other helicopters, a technique which cut to five hours the two weeks previously required for a crew to locate a suitable area and clear it.
