Zeus Test Stand Nears Completion

Monolith Designed To Withstand Thrust Of Motor Pressure

A 5,000-ton monolith of concrete and reinforced steel designed to hold the raging force of heavy solid propellant motors is nearing completion at the Army Ordnance Missile Command.

The two-million-pound-thrust block, a massive structure with two positions for firing missile motors, has been completed and instrumentation wiring to the block is now taking place.

Anchored deep in the bedrock of a hill overlooking the Tennessee Valley, the block will be used to static test heavy thrust Army missile motors such as the Nike Zeus, anti-missile missile.

Under construction for approximately one year, the thrust block itself is 36 ft. high with pads on the north and south side. The test pads are 30 ft. wide, 134 ft. long and 10 ft. thick.

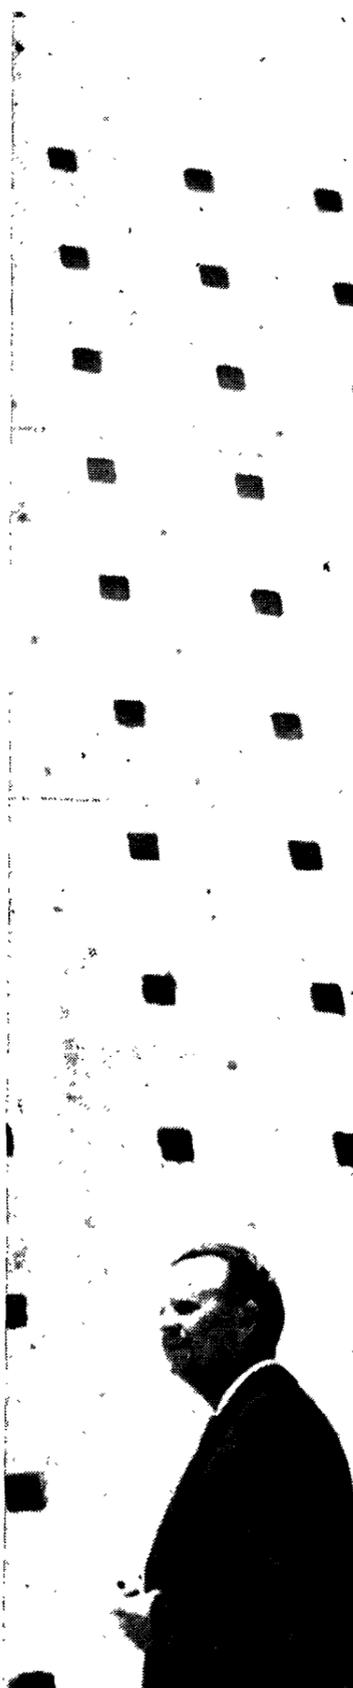

At each end of the pad two heavy concrete and steel bars extend thirty feet down into the hill with pilings going another 16 ft. deeper.

Missile motors to be tested will be tied down on their side with the exhaust flame pointed away from the thrust block. Heavy guage cables attached to hooks in the thrust block will place a restraining hand on powerful missile motors as they fire. The facility can be adapted to test a missile in the vertical position, nozzle pointed skyward.

A heat resistant concrete apron composed of crushed firebrick and calcium aluminate serves as a fire buffer zone on both ends of the pad area.

The stand is reinforced with 328 tons of 2 1/4 inch steel bars and over 4,900 tons of concrete have been poured into the structure.

The block was built by S and E Contractors, Inc. of Dallas, Texas. Instrumentation was installed by Actron Co. of Covina, Calif. During the site excavation—performed by Ashburn and Gray of Huntsville—a fissure was discovered in the rock that went down 200 ft. to clear, cold water. Since the fissure did not affect operations of the test stand it was sealed with concrete.

MONOLITH FOR MISSILES—William Lloyd, Chief of the Test and Evaluation Laboratory at the Army Ordnance Missile Command, looks over the two-million-pound-thrust block just completed on Redstone Arsenal. The face of the block is checkered with black patches that hold cable hooks. When a missile motor is placed on the stand, heavy cables tie the solid propellant engine to the hooks. The block is scheduled for operation in the Fall.

Guided Missile School Changes Name and Status

The Army's missile training activity at Redstone Arsenal has acquired a new name, a higher status and a different chain of command effective July 1.

The official title is now "U. S. Army Guided Missile School," according to Col. William J. Macpherson, commandant. The word "Ordnance" is dropped from the title under the current reorganization of the Army which abolished the post of Chief of Ordnance.

"However, there is no change in the strength, mission or location of the Guided Missile School," Col. Macpherson said.

The school also becomes what the Army calls a Class One activity, he explained. Heretofore, it was listed as Class Two, along with the other Army agencies at Redstone Arsenal.

Col. Hirshorn, Col. Pickett To Transfer

Two Army Ordnance Missile Command officers who were nominated in May for promotion to brigadier general, have received orders assigning them to new posts.

They are Col. B. J. Leon Hirshorn, who will leave about the middle of July to become Ordnance Officer for the U. S. Army, Pacific, in Hawaii, and Col. George E. Pickett, who has been assigned to 8th U. S. Army Headquarters in Korea effective in September.

Col. Hirshorn is chief of the Redeye-Mauler Project Office at AOMC and Col. Pickett is chief of the Signal Office on the staff of the AOMC Commanding General Maj. Gen. F. J. McMorrow.

Col. Hirshorn came to Redstone in July, 1961, from the Office, Chief of Ordnance, Washington. D. C. Col. Pickett was assigned here in August, 1959, following duty in Taiwan.

Both the Hirshorns and Picketts reside on post at Redstone. Mrs. Hirshorn will accompany her husband to Hawaii. Mrs. Pickett and children plan to reside in Huntsville while Col. Pickett is in Korea. The Picketts have four children, George E., Jane, Thomas and Sharon.

First Dirt Turned . . .

Col. Raymond W. Burkett (right), Chief of the Army Ordnance Missile Command's Research and Development Directorate, hands his technical director John L. McDaniel (left), the first shovel of dirt to start construction of a new $4 million dollar research and development facility. Col. Thomas W. Cooke (center), Commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency, looks on during the groundbreaking ceremony Monday. AOMC's new research and development facility, slated for completion in December of next year, will contain 205,000 feet of floor space and will house four laboratories and facilities for a variety of research. Greenhut Construction Co. of Pensacola, Fla., will build the facility.

Work on $4 Million Lab Is Started for R and D

Construction of a $4 million research and development facility for the Army Ordnance Missile Command began here Monday with a groundbreaking ceremony.

Col. Raymond W. Burkett, Chief of the AOMC Research and Development Directorate, turned the first shovel of dirt to set in motion the wheels of construction.

Construction of the new building with its 205,000 feet of floor space is expected to take 18 months. It is scheduled to be opened in December of next year.

The new research and development building will house four laboratories and provide facilities for a variety of research. Laboratories which are scheduled to be moved into the building are the Guidance and Control, Launch and Ancillary Equipment, Structures and Mechanics, and (See WORK ON LAB on Page 2)

Enrollment Is Up At Huntsville University Center

Summer enrollment at the Huntsville Center exceeds that of the Summer 1961 by about 100 students.

A total of 875 students are enrolled in the entire center. Of this number 346 are enrolled in the College of Arts & Sciences, 93 in Commerce & Business Administration, 266 in the Engineering College, 41 in Education. Plus 37 graduate students and 92 in special non-credit activities.

A large proportion of the student body this summer is made up of students from the University's main campus and from 75 different colleges reaching from Massachusetts to California and Florida to Wisconsin.

The summer term began June 11 and will close August 31.

Electromagnetics Laboratories.

The Greenhut Construction Company of Pensacola, Fla., will build the new R and D facility. It will be located across Martin Road south from AOMC headquarters in the area behind the new Computation Center now nearing completion.

Also present at the groundbreaking ceremony were Col. Thomas W. Cooke, Commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency; Col. Henry J. Katz, Deputy Commander, AOMSA; John L. McDaniel, technical director of the R and D Directorate; Virgil B. Cagle, R and D Programs Coordination Office; Jeff B. Huff, director of the Guidance, Control and Aerial Ballistic Laboratory; Holm Henrichs, Director of the Structures and Mechanics Laboratory; William C. Watson, Director of the Launch and Ancillary Equipment Laboratory; and William W. Yoakum, deputy chief of the Electromagnetics Laboratory.

himself. Col. Dooley was assigned to Kwajalein.

As chief of PFO, Col. Dooley will have the responsibility for administering the Army's $125 million investment on the 600 acre coral island, almost 5,000 miles from California's coast.

It is on Kwajalein that the Nike Zeus system is to reach the ultimate in its development program. In a series of development tests Zeus will attempt actual intercepts of target vehicles boosted by Air Force intercontinental ballistic missiles fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

The 41-year-old Col. Dooley has been in the Army 18 years, all of it spent in Ordnance. He is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati with a degree in mechanical engineering. He also holds a master of science degree in engineering administration from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Other Army assignments for Col. Dooley include tours of duty at Springfield Armory, Mass.; Air Command and Staff School, Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.; and Europe during World War II.

During World War II, Col. Dooley was on the staff of Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris — then a colonel—who later was commanding general of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency at Redstone Arsenal during the historic days when the Army put the Free World's first satellite into orbit. Later Col. Dooley was assigned to Redstone and once again was on the staff of Gen. Medaris.

Col. Dooley is married to another native of Cincinnati, the former Miss Martha Petry. The Dooleys have one son, Tom, 14.

MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY

To All Members of the U. S. Army:

As I assume the grave responsibilities of the Secretary of the Army, my first thoughts are of the people stationed in our homeland and throughout the world who make the United States Army the powerful and effective force it is today.

You are doing a magnificent job for America and for the cause of human freedom. I now share with you the Army's matchless heritage and I shall do everything in my power to ensure that the Army remains more than equal to any task.

Guided Missile

Col. Macpherson said the net effect of the upward classification is to place the Guided Missile School in the direct chain of command of the six field armies based in the United States. These are the combat forces that comprise the Continental Army Command.

The Fort Monroe, Va., headquarters of CONARC, as it is known, will now exercise operational control of the Guided Missile School which had previously reported to the Ordnance Training Command at Aberdeen, Md. Four-star Gen. Herbert B. Powell heads the Continental Army Command which traces its history to 1775 and Gen. George Washington.

Many administrative and logistical requirements of the Guided Missile School will now be handled by headquarters of the Third Army in Atlanta, Macpherson said. Lt. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell commands the Third Army which embraces seven southeastern states. The Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency at Redstone will continue to supply some housekeeping needs of the school.

Col. Macpherson pointed out that the reorganization associates the Guided Missile School directly with 26 other Army schools under tember, 1960. Col. Dooley had been his deputy since last August.

A native of Cincinnati, Ohio, Col. Dooley has been involved in management of the Nike Zeus program since its inception. He is one of two officers still in the service who can claim this distinction.

Col. Dooley first started working on the program in 1957 when it was administered under a contract for the Hercules missile system. In 1958, he organized the Anti-Missile Missile Office at AOMC and was its chief until 1960. After attending the War College

CONARC.

"We believe the change will give the Guided Missile School more direct access to the experience and facilities of the Army's world-wide training program which under CONARC are geared to the most urgent needs of the combat forces," Col. Macpherson said.

The 27 CONARC schools annually train 150,000 students in various phases of the use and support of Army weapons and equipment. The Guided Missile School enrolls more than 5,000 men per year from all branches of the U. S. armed forces and 14 foreign nations.

PROPELLANT INFORMATION DISCUSSED—Three British rocket men met with members of the Army Ordnance Missile Command Research and Development Directorate to discuss properties of solid propellants last week. Conferees were (left to right): Dr. William R. Maxwell, Superintendent of Propellant and Rocket Motor Production, Rocket Propulsion Establishment, U. K.; Niles White, AOMC Propulsion Laboratory; Philip Reginald Freeman, Guided Weapons Group, Defense Research Board with offices at the British Embassy in Washington, D. C.; Raymond Heron, Principal Scientific Officer, RPE; Frank James, Director, Propulsion Lab and Dr. David Sayles, of the laboratory technical staff.

I beg your pardon," said the man returning to his seat in the theater, "but did I step on your toe when I left?"

"You certainly did." came the reply.

"Good, then I am in the right row."

Seat Belts Save Lives

Safety Division Joins Jaycees in Promotion

"Seat belts are no longer just a fad," Dillard K. Womack, Safety Division Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency, said.

The Safety Office is promoting the use of seat belts to help save injury to automobile passengers, and is working closely with the local Jaycees to educate all automobile owners to the need for such safety devices. The local Jaycees annually sponsor a campaign on safety in July.

Womack said, "Seat belts were previously believed to be used only by an exclusive few cranks in conventional passenger cars and by drivers of sports cars. Wherever the subject of traffic safety arises, their value is no longer considered to be just a good conversation piece.

"Seat belts have taken their rightful place in modern society as insurance against the needless loss of life and disabling injury. They should be installed in every automobile from the 'fish tail' Cad on down to include the old 'clunker.'

"Extensive research through scientific experimentation and engineering has been expended by experts in traffic safety to develop the seat belt to its present role as a useful servant. The need for seat belts is like many other safety devices and safety regulations which people have come to accept as a way of life. It spawned from someone's misfortune.

"It is estimated that at the present time over ten lives are saved each day in motor vehicle accidents plus countless injuries, through the use of seat belts. It is thought-provoking to visualize the additional number of lives that might be spared through the increased use of these life saving devices.

"Seat belts have proven their value and are here to stay as evidenced by the interests of federal and state governments, private industry, and civic groups working in the interest of community safety," Womack said.

"Consistent with the Department of Army's policy toward promotion of safety off-the-job among civilian employes and alignment of efforts with that of civic groups in the conduct of accident prevention, the Safety Division is encouraging vehicle owners to make their slogan 'Stay alive after five' and install the seat belts," Womack continued.

He pointed out that the Jaycees and the Humble-Esso stations have obtained and will install the seat belts for a little more than half the usual retail cost. The belts may be purchased from any Jaycee or at the Service stations. Those requesting free installation, who purchase the belts from individual Jaycees, must present them at the station in the original Jaycee box.

Army to Be Cited For Safety Program

For the third time, the President this month will present the Army the President's Safety Award, earned in CY 61. The Army is the only Federal Agency to receive this award three times.

Sharing honors this year will be the Department of the Treasury.

The award is made to Federal Agencies with over 75,000 employees and is based on progress in developing management leadership; assigning responsibility for safety programs; maintaining safe working conditions; establishing safety training and education programs; reporting and analyzing accidents; and organizing medical and first aid systems.

The Army won this award in 1959 and in 1957. Other winners include the Air Force, the Navy, with freedom, for ourselves and our children.

"May God bless you all."

Secretary of the Army

BREAKING GROUND—Col. Thomas W. Cooke, commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency, and Mrs. William F. Kaiser, president of the Golf Group sponsored by the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club, use a ceremonial shovel to break the first ground for the club house scheduled for completion in approximately 60 days at the Redstone Arsenal Golf Course. Participating in the ceremony left to right are: M. S. Snyder, contractor; Lt. Col. D. R. Capstick, Golf Committee; Mrs. William Kaiser, president of the Officers Wives Club Golf Group; Col. Cooke, and Col. R. P. Davidson, Post Engineer.

Sec. Stahr Says Farewell

HEADQUARTERS THIRD U. S. ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — The following is the text of the farewell address of Secretary of the Army, Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., to all members of the United States Army.

"As I prepare to leave office, I want to express my sincere appreciation to the men and women of the United States Army for the loyalty and support you have given me as Secretary of the Army since 24 January 1961.

"The Army — Regular, National Guard, and Reserve — in recent months has grown in strength, readiness, and capability to a degree unparalleled in its peacetime history. As a result, the nation can now face the future with increasing confidence and carry on the noble work of establishing a just and durable peace from a position of greater strength than ever before in this troubled era of crisis.

"All of the members of the Army, whether in or out of uniform, have had a part in its splendid achievements, and each of you has the right to take individual pride in them.

"It has been a great privilege to serve with you, and to enjoy your comradeship. I leave the Army with full confidence that under the leadership of my able successor it will continue to grow in spirit and power every day, and will remain a major instrument to bring about and preserve peace,

BOATS & MOTORS (Special Services Supply)

Special Services has just purchased four new 5-HP motors to be used on the Special Services boats. Motors can ONLY be rented when used with Special Services boats. Rental for the Boat and Motor is $1.00 per day. The time element for rental of the motors will be 72 hours. Use of boats and motors can be made thru Special Services Supply Bldg. 3491, 876-1418.

If by chance, no boats are available, it is because of the renovation now taking place on the boats, thus making a shortage at the present time.

BASEBALL

Things are going strong for the teams in the Post League.

Hq OGMS is pushing the Officers team for first place with a 6-1 record. The Officers team has played two less games and holds a record of 5-0. With the coming "heat" spell the Officers may slow down and one of the OGMS teams slip into first place.

Remember the team members of the teams in the league are getting the experience and know-how so they will make the Redstone All-Stars. This year the team can't miss. The field is in "big league" caliber and the players are in "A-1" shape.

Note on your calendar August 27-31, 1962, for the 3rd U. S. Army Baseball Tournament to be held here at Redstone Arsenal, with Redstone being the host team.

Somewhere in the count of 200 players from all over the 3rd U. S. Army will be here to try for the coveted Championship.

The Post Level Baseball standings are as follows:

Team	Won	Lost
Officers	5	0
Hq OGMS	6	1
Co. A OGMS	4	2
Co. B OGMS	2	5
291st M. P. Co.	1	5
Hq AOMC	0	5

SOFTBALL

So far Hq AOMSA has controlled the Post Level Softball League for 1962. With a 16-0 record they will be hard to beat. Only over confidence or a "hot streak" by the second place team Hq AOMC with a 13-2 or the third place team SIGNAL Det with 10-4 can dethrone Hq AOMSA.

Teams that have improved and might knock the leaders out could be the surprising fourth place team Medical Det or even the seventh place team 291st M. P. Co. who have done wonders in the second round of league play.

Remember spectators can make the worst team play better, so come out and root for your favorite or any team for that matter.

The standings in the Post Level Softball league are as follows:

Team	Won	Lost
Hq AOMSA	16	0
Hq AOMC No. 2	13	2
Signal Det.	10	4
Medical Det.	9	6
Co. A OGMS	8	6
Co. B OGMS	8	7
Officers	8	8
291st M. P. Co.	8	9
Hq AOMC No. 1	5	10
Hq UTC	3	12
3rd ETC	1	14
Hq OGMS	0	11

PICNIC AREAS

(Tennessee River-Normandy Farm)

During the summer months when personnel go out to join the nature club, which in itself includes boating, swimming, sunbathing, ball playing, camping or even just a little picnic, certain rules and regulations apply.

This is for the safety and well-being of all concerned.

Sometimes these rules and regulations become a second nature or a habit to those who use them. But as time goes on, they are neglected by forgetfulness. A lot of pamphlets and booklets are put out each year for the benefit of all concerned. Some are on water safety, some on how to save a life in drowning or how to handle a snake bite etc., and they are good references and are readily at hand if you do happen to forget part of the rules and regulations for survival and safety, and enjoyment of the outside. Even with these references and aids, what about the forgotten rules and regulations on self cleanliness, and cleanliness around you; that should be a habit with whatever you do.

The Picnic Areas at Redstone Arsenal are for the benefit of the troops and their dependents, but they can't be for long if the uncleanliness continues.

Military personnel or their dependents should not need a chaperone to know when to clean a table, put garbage in the cans available for that purpose, or even when not to use the latrines because of bad plumbing.

Why do personnel delight in leaving watermelon rinds or seeds lying on the table or in the open,

WIVES GOLF

The Golf Group sponsored by the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club is winding up play in the Ginna Medaris tournament which ends on July 13.

Today the group plays two club tournament using a putter and one other club.

Joe: What is the definition of an alarm clock?

Jack: Something to scare the daylight into you.

SON'S O' BROTHERHOOD—The SOB's were the winning team in the Field Service Directorate Men's Bowling League. Trophies were presented during a banquet to (left to right) Bob Pruitt, Paul Kennedy, J. Hartley, Bob Adams, Mike Shupert and Jim Haight. Twelve teams comprised the league which went five rounds to complete the tournament. Bowling in the League usually begins in September and winds up in the Spring.

GOLF TROPHIES—Open Division winner in the Arsenal Golf tournament was S/Sgt. Walter Dye of the Ordnance Guided Missile School. The winner of the Senior Division was CWO Ralph Moore. Dye had a total of 295. Moore scored 335. Trophies were awarded winners and runners-up in both divisions by Col. Thomas W. Cooke, Commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency in a ceremony at the Arsenal Golf Course last week. Holding their trophies (left to right) are: PFC Phillip Sharp (315); Lt. Edward Kronenberg (324); CWO Robert Granger (341); S/Sgt. Dye and CWO Moore. A trophy also went to Pvt. Everett Comstock whose score was 301.

Sports Car Buffs

By Ray Mosling

The SCCA races at Courtland, conducted on June 30 and July 1, provided an exciting outing for sports car enthusiasts. Ten races, climaxed by a one-hour grand prix, demonstrated very well the serious competition and hard work necessary for a sports car event of this caliber. Over 100 competition drivers from places as far as Missouri and New Jersey attended, making this event one of the most interesting seen in this area.

One accident marred the week-end of racing. Dr. Carpenter of Birmingham, driving a TR-3, received head and arm injuries when his car blew a tire while turning a corner. The car rolled over. Although the roll bar was broken, the seat belts held the doctor in the car and undoubtedly prevented more serious injuries.

The extensive safety precautions taken at SCCA races usually eliminates accidents on the course, especially of this nature. Personnel stationed around the course visually inspect each car as it passes. If a discrepancy is noted, the car is flagged off the course to be repaired. Safety is the number one consideration in any sports car event.

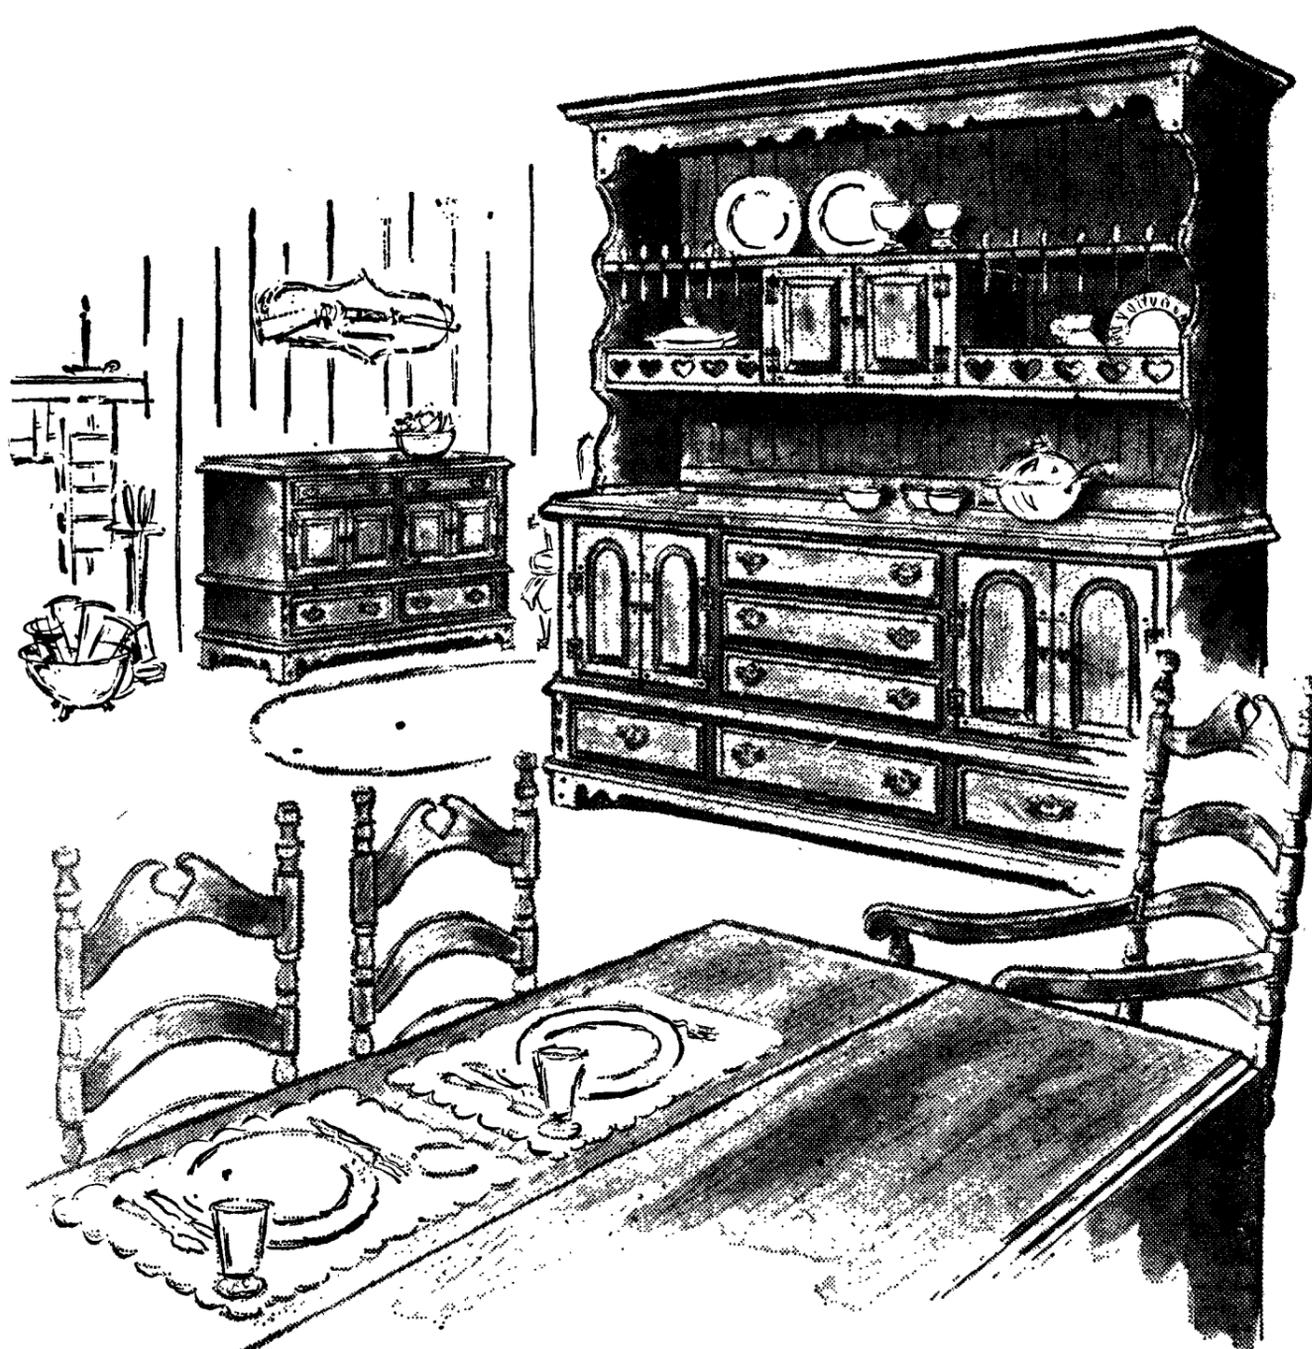

Another recent event was the "Rally Around the Flag" rally held in Florence on July 4th. Twelve entries completed the 135 mile course through the very interesting and beautiful hills of north-west Alabama and south central Tennessee.

Rallymaster A. Lynch and his wife, Jean, provided an interesting outing for all who attended. A picnic lunch beside the Tennessee River near Waterloo, provided by Jean Lynch, was enjoyed by the rallyists before continuing along the course.

Trophies for the event were given immediately after the results were in and winners determined. First place was won by Dr. and Mrs. John Hardiman of Florence. The team of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Adams, also of Florence, placed second, and Joe and Suzy Davis of Pulaski placed third. Three Huntsville teams attended the event.

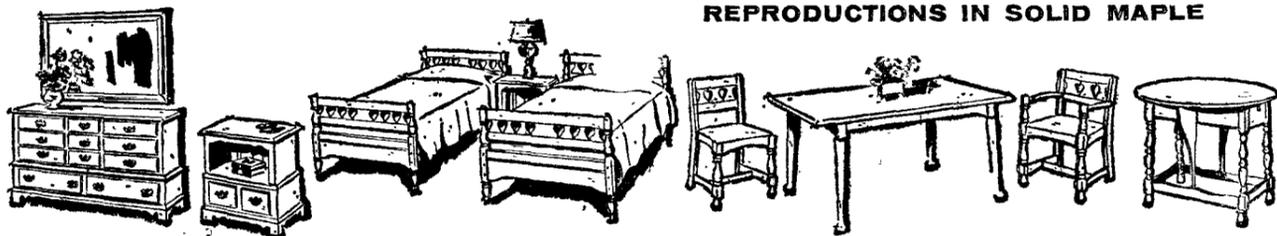

Scheduled for July 14th is the Twickenham Auto Club's Treasure Hunt and Pizza Party Rallye. The starting line will be located at 3811 Triana Boulevard, and the event will begin at 6 p.m. See you there.

Shakespearean Guild Loses Charter Member

The Redstone Arsenal Chapter, Shakespearean Literary Guild, said goodbye to its two longest term members in simple ceremonies last night at the Officers Club.

Col. Glenn Crane, the sole remaining charter member, and Colonel William F. Kaiser, who joined the group at its second meeting, were the honor guests. Col. Crane is leaving to attend the Armed Forces Industrial College. Col. Kaiser has been ordered to a new overseas assignment.

The group normally meets every second Thursday in members' homes for a discussion of the classics and selected readings.

Persons interested in cultured aspects of Army life—enjoying good fellowship and desiring to join the group, should contact Lt. Col. W. W. Cobb, custodian of the chapter records and artifacts. Col. Crane told the members last night that a former member, Major General J. A. Barclay, (Ret.), may soon establish permanent residence in Huntsville and rejoin the group.

Other former members include Maj. Gen. John G. Shinkle, Col. R. O. Lehtonen and Col. Charles Payne.

Current membership includes Col. Cobb; Col. C. H. Fuller; Lt. Col. H. W. Attaya, Jr.; Maj. Rex Javins, Maj. Wesley Scott and Maj. R. J. Quantz.

Maj. Quantz is to deliver reports on "Twelfth Night" and "The Merchant of Venice" at the next regular meeting.

Rocket Society To Meet July 11

The American Rocket Society will meet at 7:15 p.m. at the Huntsville Country Club July 11.

Principal speakers for the evening will be Francis E. Evans, manager of the NASA Marshall Space Flight Center's Centaur space vehicle development program and Grant L. Hansen, vice president and Centaur program director of General Dynamics, Astronautics Corp.

Both will discuss the Centaur program.

At the Service Club

Lots of good times are in store for those of you who come to the Service Club activities. Entertainment this week includes a special show, a record dance, and an ice cream party.

Tonight the dance classes will begin for the beginners at 1800 hours. The advanced classes will start at 2000 hours in the Main Lounge.

Too many of you say you can't dance: now is your opportunity to learn. Don't put it off any longer.

The Theatre Workshop Group will meet on Thursday 12 July and Monday 16 July at 1930 hours.

Pvt. Art Kabin, the Entertainment Director, and several members of the workshop group will present a big show on 12 July at 2015 hours. They have given the show a special name, "An Evening of Question(?)." Your guess is as good as mine as to what will happen Thursday night. Come out for the show and find out what the big Question Mark (?) means. Prizes will be given to those who can name the familiar tunes when we play "Stop the Music" on Friday 13 July at 2000 hours. Friday 13th may be your lucky night for naming the popular tunes.

Badminton, croquet, deck shuffleboard are some of the outside games which will be played on Saturday 14 July at 1700 hours.

After everyone has had a chance to participate in the games, Brenda will serve delicious home made ice cream at 1830 hours.

Brenda will also serve you hot coffee and donuts on Sunday 15 July at 0930 hours.

Jump Tunes is the theme for the record dance on 15 July at 2000 hours. This will be the last record dance for one of the Disc Jockeys, PFC. Joe Arata. Come out and bid Joe farewell and thank him for the fine job that he has done each week.

The evening of games will be played on Monday 16 July at 2015 hours.

The Junior Hostess Group will meet on Tuesday 17 July at 1930 hours. The girls will help plan future Service Club programs. If any girl is interested in becoming a Junior Hostess, I suggest that you come to the meeting. Light snacks will be served at 2000 hours.

Miscellaneous

Pvt. Willard Thompson, 26th Ord Det, and Pfc. Peter Kazak, 1st ETC, were the winners of a table tennis contest which was held recently.

Mary Kay Neil, Pfc. Walter Macielag, Emmy Lou Neil, and Pfc. Bob Tretter were among the group who decorated the Service Club lounge for 4 July.

Two big orchestra dances and a Post-Wide Pool Tournament are coming events for this month. See you at the Service Club.

The Post Library

ANNA LEE FARRAR, Librarian

Music in America today is booming, according to the country's music critics and experts. And, with the prospect of increased leisure in the years ahead, it is probable that an even greater number of people will be finding pleasure in music. To meet the continuing demand for material on this subject, the Post Library in recent months has purchased numerous books on all aspects of music.

Lee Allen, "The American League Story."

Jack Bell, "Mr. Conservative: Barry Goldwater."

B. J. Blaustein, "How to Have More Money to Spend."

Paul Boesch, "Road to Huertgen, Forest in Hell."

Jim Brosnan, "Pennant Race."

Jon Cleary, "The Country of Marriage; A Novel."

Milovan Djilas, "Conversations With Stalin."

Theodore Draper, "Castro's Revolution; Myths and Realities."

William Faulkner, "The Reivers; A Reminiscence."

Erle Stanley Gardner, "The Case of the Blonde Bonanza."

Edward P. Hamilton, "The French and Indian Wars; the story of battle and forts in the Wilderness."

Thomas Helm, "Monsters of the Deep; illus. with Photographs, and with drawings by Alexander Key."

William M. Kunstler, "The Case for Courage."

Grace Langdon, "Teaching Moral and Spiritual Values; A Parents' Guide to Developing Character."

Anne Morrow Lindbergh, "Dearly Beloved; a Theme and Variations."

Allan MacKinnon, "Cormorant's Isle."

Alistair MacLean, "The Golden Rendezvous."

Ralph Moody, "Shaking the Nickel Bush."

Hubert Monteilhet, "The Praying Mantises."

D. B. Olsen, "Night of the Bowstring."

Floyd Patterson, "Victory Over Myself."

Hanns Reich, "Children and Their Fathers."

Richard H. Rovere, "The American Establishment and Other Reports, Opinions, and Speculations."

Robert Ruark, "Uhuru; A Novel of Africa Today."

Isaac Bashevis Singer, "The Slave; A Novel."

Gherman Titov, "I Am Eagle!"

William L. White, "The Little Toy Dog; the Story of the Two RB-47 Flyers, Captain John R. McKone and Captain Freeman B. Olmstead."

Brad Williams, "The Well-Dressed Skeleton."

David Wise, "The U-2 Affair."

Herman Wouk, "Youngblood Hawke; A Novel."

"How long have you been down here?" asked a new visitor at an Arizona ranch.

"Five years," drawled the man lazily. "My doctor sent me down here for arthritis and I'm going to stay until I get it."

Pershing Training Begins at School

The Army Guided Missile School started its first classes on the powerful new Pershing ballistic missile Monday, July 9th.

Col. William J. Macpherson, Commandant, said the first classes will enroll twenty soldiers in two courses lasting 29 weeks each. They will study digital computers which make operation of the missile virtually automatic and test equipment that electronically checks the weapon for possible malfunctions.

Hundreds of officers and enlisted students are scheduled for training during the Army's current fiscal year on maintenance of the Pershing's propulsion and structural elements and inertial guidance and control.

Col. Macpherson said the start of the classes "means that a highly advanced nuclear weapon is now only months away from joining the nation's field armies here and abroad."

The Pershing is a two-stage, solid-propelled missile with a widely selective range. It is much smaller, lighter and more mobile than the "Old Reliable" Redstone missile that it is to replace. It has been under intensive development by the Army Ordnance Missile Command and Martin-Marietta Corp. since 1958.

Almost simultaneously, the Guided Missile School began training 74 instructors and technicians and preparing the textbooks and lesson plans for courses.

The Pershing is the ninth missile system now included in the school's curriculum.

NEW DECAL—Paul Pace of the Transportation Division, Army Ordnance Missile Command, receives a new decal from SP4 Clarence Williams in the Vehicle Registration Unit of the Provost Marshal Division.

PASSPORT—in and out of Arsenal gates is the security badge. Mrs. Sara Ann Watson, Leader of the Identification Unit, shoots a picture of Virgil Rains for a new badge.

Registrations, Badges Keep Staff on Alert

Security badges are passports to work!

Daily, thousands of people pass in and out of the Redstone Arsenal gates. Those without a decal and a badge stop at the Security Guard shack and obtain badges and passes for themselves and their vehicles.

In the latter group are visitors from other military installations and activities, contractors, concessionaires, and in some instances sightseers on guided tours.

For newly arrived military and civilian personnel, security badges and vehicle decals are issued from the Provost Marshal Division where the individuals are fingerprinted, photographed, and handed laminated badges in approximately five minutes.

Driver's permits, state vehicle registration certificates, and auto liability insurance papers are examined before a decal is issued for a vehicle.

L. D. Bentley, Acting Chief of Identification and Registration, said that over 90,000 security badges have been issued since February, 1959. At present, contractors are undergoing complete rebadging of their personnel. This will be done for Missile Command personnel in the near future.

The average number of vehicle registrations at all times is 20,000.

Since March 1, 1962, about 26,000 decals have been issued.

Marshall Cowart heads the vehicle registration unit which keeps two file indexes (cross-referenced) current at all times. Cowart estimates an average of 1500 cancellations each month, and 1000 changes other than cancellations posted to the records.

Temporary permits for vehicles average 3,000 a month. In addition, the division issues boat permits and processes nearly 2,000 new applicants for vehicle registration a month.

New badges to contractors since May 25 total 3300 according to Mrs. Sara Ann Watson, head of the Identification Unit. She estimates another 3000 are yet to be issued.

Annually, this unit also processes 15,000 vehicle and personnel passes at the gates. For retired and active military personnel, approximately 400 new identification cards are handled monthly in addition to 1200 new badges to both civilian and military personnel. Another field is the visitor and exchange badge used in controlled areas. To keep the unit going, one military and seven civilian personnel are assigned, but at peak periods the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency lends people to the identification unit in order to accomplish mass-rebadging. The record for processing these is 475 in seven and one-half hours.

Sometimes the unit is called on from outside sources. When the National Guard units in the vicinity were called up for active duty during the Berlin crisis, not only the men but their dependents were provided with I.D. cards.

VEHICLES REGISTERED—Marshall Cowart (foreground), leader in the Provost Marshal Vehicle Registration Unit, and Pvt. Dale Miller work the files which enable them to locate any vehicle owner registered at Redstone Arsenal within seconds. Approximately 26,000 registrations have been processed since March, 1962.

FINGERPRINTS—They are filed in the Intelligence and Security area but are taken by L. D. Bentley, Provost Marshal Office, when security badges are issued. The badges also carry the bearer's fingerprints. Alvie Gooch, P. M. Division, is being fingerprinted.

Blood Given To Californian

Twenty-two soldiers and civilians at Redstone Arsenal have stretched their arms across country with blood donations to assist a California youngster they've never seen.

The donors, including several from the Marshall Space Flight Center, gave blood to be deposited to the credit of 10-year old Keith Hinrichsen of La Mesa, Calif., who underwent surgery July 3 to correct a congenital heart defect.

Need for the blood was learned by Maj. George Grace, Troop Commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency, who is the Arsenal's Blood Program Chairman. Einar R. Christopherson, a representative of Ryan Aeronautical Company, San Diego, Calif., a donor in the blood line, mentioned young Keith's surgery in a chance remark.

Maj. Grace relayed the information to the blood donors and on June 13 a group of 22 volunteers contributed blood to be deposited to the little boy's credit in a California blood bank.

Ten days later, this letter was written to Maj. Grace by Keith's father, George H. Hinrichsen:

"I just received information from the Public Relations Department at Ryan Aeronautical Company that 22 pints of blood have been donated by your group and deposited in the blood bank for our son's credit toward his coming open heart surgery on July 3rd. Please convey to your group our deepest appreciation and thanks for a noble deed on behalf of Keith and his parents.

"God willing, this surgery will correct a congenital defect which promises to make him completely rehabilitated and able to carry on the work he so desires to do.

"Please accept our warmest gratitude."

A telephone call to Keith's parents this week brought good news. The operation was a success and a little boy from California is recovering nicely, thanks, at least in part, to the hand of friendship extended by 22 persons at Red-

BRAZILIAN GREETED—Rear Adm. Vasco Murillo (left) is welcomed to the Army Ordnance Missile Command by Brig. Gen. Richard M. Hurst, Deputy Commanding General for Ballistic Missiles. Center is Maj. William Kiser, AOMC Protocol Officer. Adm. Murillo led a group of 39 members of the Brazilian Command and Staff College who were briefed on activities at the Missile Command and the Ordnance Guided Missile School last week. Included on the agenda was a Redeye missile demonstration.

Brazilians Get Orientation On Missilry

Thirty-nine members of the Brazilian Command and Staff College were briefed on activities of the Army Ordnance Missile Command and the Ordnance Guided Missile School July 5.

Led by Rear Admiral Vasco Murillo, the group of officers received orientation on the family of Army missiles from the Nike Zeus, anti-missile missile to the hip pocket M-72, tiny tank killer.

On arrival at AOMC headquarters, the group of South American visitors were greeted by Brig. General Richard M. Hurst, Deputy Commanding General, Ballistic Missiles, AOMC.

The Brazilians received a demonstration of the Redeye missile launcher and how it tracks and kills high performance aircraft.

Five other missile systems were explained in the afternoon as the group toured OGMs. Systems briefing were given on Nike Hercules, the Army's improved anti-aircraft missile; the Hawk, a mobile anti-aircraft weapon, the Redstone, liquid fuel ballistic missile; the Lacrosse, hard-hitting field artillery rocket, and the Sergeant, short range ballistic missile.

SAFETY OFFICERS WARN OF DANGER IN INFLAMMABLES

The AOMSA safety office says extreme caution should be used in transporting inflammable liquids in cars and trucks equipped with two-way radios.

The warning was issued by E. H. Haynes, safety director, after a reported incident in which a spark from a two-way radio transmitter almost caused an explosion.

The transmitter was also installed in the trunk and when the operator started to use the hand mike he found the transmitter sparked the gas fumes, almost causing an explosion.

Haynes said that since many of the cars and trucks used here are equipped with two-way radios, extreme caution should be used in transporting inflammable liquids. They should not be stored in the same compartment with radio transmitters.

Another good rule, he said, is "Don't smoke, use a match, or have any other ignition source present when you open a car trunk or truck compartment where gasoline or liquids have been stored and inflammable vapors may have accumulated."
