Defense Announces First Antimissile Intercept

Nike Zeus Downs Atlas in South Pacific Test

Following last week's test of the Nike Zeus from Kwajalein, the Department of Defense issued the following statement in Washington:

"The Department of Defense announced that the U. S. on July 19 made the first successful intercept of a special target vehicle launched by an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile from California. The intercept was made by the Army's Nike Zeus missile.

"Today's successful intercept test is a part of a continuing development series to determine the full capabilities of the Army's Nike Zeus anti-missile system.

"The Nike Zeus installation used in the test is on the island of Kwajalein in the Southwest Pacific.

"The ICBM target vehicle designed for the test was launched into an ICBM trajectory at ICBM speed using an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile booster launched by the U. S. Air Force at Vandenbergh Air Force Base, Calif.

"Neither the intercepting missile nor the target carried a nuclear warhead. The intercept test used extremely precise tracking equipment."

Secretary McNamara issued the following statement:

"This event evidences the extensive and continuing nature of the U. S. program to understand the capabilities and limitations of anti-missile systems. It shows that we speak of such matters from knowledge.

"Concurrently and in coordinated fashion the U. S. has been carrying out a program to insure that our missile will penetrate any missile system which might be encountered.

"These programs give us confidence that our missile would be able to penetrate any such system which has been developed by anyone."

Patrol Cars Have Radar

The Provost Marshal Division at the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency now has radar equipment ready for use in gauging the speed of moving traffic.

"It is not the desire of the Post Commander, Col. T. W. Cooke, nor of the Military Police to make arrests," Col. Robert M. Allgeier, Assistant for Intelligence, Operations and Security, AOMSA, said.

"We hope that everyone governs his speed according to the zones as posted. However, if an MP does stop a speeder, he now has an absolutely accurate method of determining speed and will be governed accordingly."

The radar units are mounted on the driver's left in the same position as a rearview mirror would be on the hood.

Signs are being erected outside the gates and on the main Arsenal highways as a reminder to motorists that the Military Police are patrolling and have an accurate method of checking speeds.

The radar equipment was thoroughly checked before installation to assure that it would not interfere with any missile testing occurring in the open.

Clearance has now been given by the Safety Division, AOMSA, and operation will begin as soon as all signposts are erected.

Six Missile Scientists To Get Award

A team of six Army Ordnance Missile Command scientists who have probed new fields of research will receive the Army's highest research and development award Thursday from Maj. Gen. Horace F. Bigelow, Chief of Ordnance.

The Army's R&D Achievement Plaque will be given to AOMC's Research Laboratory team by Gen. Bigelow after an address at the Rocket Auditorium at 3:00 p.m.

The team, competing Army-wide, received one of the 15 Army R&D Achievement Awards given in 1962. Their outstanding contributions came in the field of high energy pre-packaged liquid rocket propellants.

Led by Dr. Walter W. Wharton, the group planned, organized and conducted this Army liquid propellant and propulsion research and development program that will enable designers to simplify missile design.

All members of the team will receive a gold achievement pin in addition to the plaque for their team effort.

The other five members of the team are: Joseph W. Connaughton, Barry D. Allan, Edgar F. Croomes, Harvard Eng. and John R. Cain, Jr.

The awards were established by the Department of the Army Chief of Research and Development to give annual recognition for outstanding engineering and scientific achievements by Army civilian employees. This is the second year for the awards program.

Ambassador Sees First Missilemen Graduate at OGMS

Japan's first missilemen took up duties at the Unit Training Command of the U. S. Army Ordnance Guided Missile School this week, following their historic graduation ceremonies last Friday.

Ringed in their ears was the advice of their Ambassador, Koichiro Asakai, to become "beacons of international understanding" in a world that is "more and more international-minded."

The Ambassador awarded diplomas to the 62 officers and men who will form the First Japanese Missile Support Detachment and continue training here for three months as a team.

The Nipponese could take pride also in the fact that they shattered every existing academic record at the Missile School.

General Dick Visits Arsenal

The Commanding General of the Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM), Maj. Gen. William W. Dick, Jr., and members of his Command visited the Army Ordnance Missile Command Monday.

He was welcomed to AOMC by Brig. Gen. Richard M. Hurst, Deputy Commanding General, Ballistic Missiles, on Monday morning. During his visit Gen. Dick discussed coordination of ARADCOM and AOMC activities.

The class, including U. S., Swedish, German and Danish officer and enlisted personnel, is the second largest to graduate this year from the world's largest missile academy.

The Swedish are the first from their traditionally neutral nation to be trained in the HAWK air defense system under a special purchase agreement.

The ceremony will be held at the Redstone Arsenal Post Theatre, beginning at 10:00 a.m.

Gen. Hurst will be introduced by Colonel William J. Macpherson, Missile School Commandant.

Kontoleflas, 32, of Athens, Greece, also qualified for an AUSA plaque with a 96 average.

The previous record was established only last month by Pvt. Frederick J. Schonberger, 23, of Forest Hills, N. Y., who was retained as an instructor at OGMS.

The graduation climaxed a series of events that began Thursday afternoon (19 July) with the arrival of the Ambassador and his wife and members of the Embassy staff from Washington. They were escorted by Lt. Gen. T. J. H. Trapnell, commander of the Third U. S. Army, and Mrs. Trapnell. The Missile School is now an agency of the Continental Army Command and the Third Army.

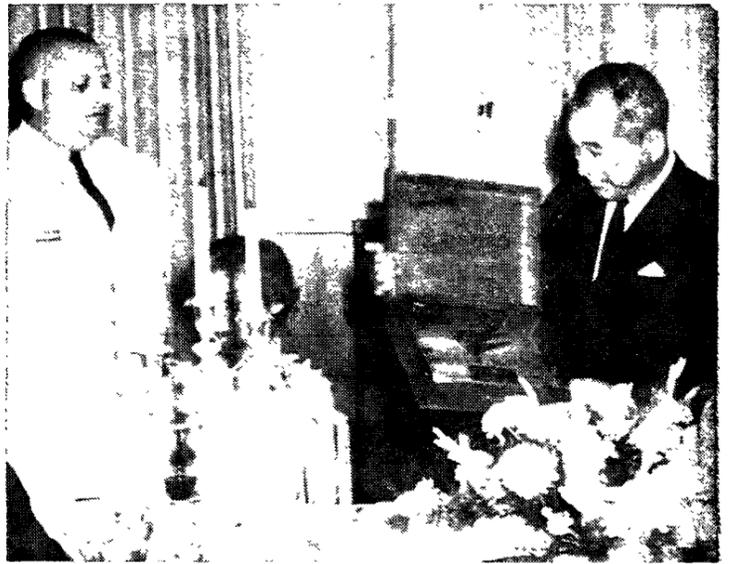

Madame Asakai and Mrs. Trapnell were honored at a tea at the Redstone Officers Club Thursday afternoon by Mrs. William J. Macpherson and ladies of Huntsville and the Army agencies here.

The entire Japanese party made a helicopter tour of dams of the Tennessee Valley Authority later in the afternoon, landing at Guntersville.

The Ambassador and Gen. Trapnell were guests at a dinner Thursday evening at the Officers Club. The event was sponsored by OGMS

Members of Gen. Dick's party included Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dunn, Colonels Glen P. Elliott and J. P. Goetti, Lt. Col. Richard M. Gardner, Capt. T. E. Anderson, and CWO C. R. Davenport.

AMBASSADOR HONORED—His Excellency Koichiro Asakai, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, accepts a plaque from Col. William J. Gen. Bigelow will be introduced to AOMC personnel by Brig. Gen. Richard M. Hurst, Deputy Commanding General, Ballistic Missiles.

The retreat parade at which Gen. Bigelow will be guest is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. at the Arsenal Parade Field. Gen. Bigelow will present scrolls to the military men who are retiring from the service.

Gen. Bigelow is a native of Boston. He was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1932.

All but ten of Gen. Bigelow's service years have been spent in Ordnance. His earlier assignments prior to his transfer to the Ordnance Corps in 1942 were with various field artillery units.

Following World War II, Gen. Bigelow attended the Army War College and after graduation served in the Office of Chief of Ordnance. He commanded Letterkenny Ordnance Depot, Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, for a period and then was transferred to the Far East where he handled various Ordnance assignments.

In 1958 he returned to the Office, Chief of Ordnance where he served as Assistant Chief of Ordnance, Manpower. Gen. Bigelow was appointed Deputy Chief of Ordnance in February, 1960, and a month later was promoted to major general.

He became Chief of Ordnance last June.

Among the decorations held by Gen. Bigelow are the Bronze Star, Italian Crown of Italy and the Italian War Cross for Merit.

Subjects such as language technology, documentation requirements in the fields of design engineering, research and development, maintenance engineering and personnel training will be discussed and evaluated.

Coordination is being accomplished by the Department of Defense and International Standardization Office, Engineering Division, Industrial Directorate, AOMC.

MAKING HAY IN THE MISSILE WORLD—All is not missiles and rockets at Redstone Arsenal. Many of the 40,000 acres on the Arsenal are leased as cattle grazing land which also supply winter feed for cattle raising lessees. Here a crop of hay is loaded on a truck. In the background is the headquarters building for the Army Ordnance Missile Command.

Engineers Develop Rocket Minesweeper

A rocket propulsion kit, which can breach obstacles better than the former Army standard, has been developed at the U. S. Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories, Fort Belvoir, Va.

The new rocket propulsion kit adds a means of self-propulsion and remote detonation to a 100-foot train of standard bangalore torpedoes for breaching a personnel path through mines and barbed wire obstacles.

The kit contains a rocket motor, tail end detonating assembly, 24 slip-on couplings to join together the kit components and bangalore torpedoes, anchor stake and coupling tighteners. The kit, less bangalore torpedoes, weighs 122 pounds. In operation, a wire cable in the detonator assembly is attached to the anchor stake and triggers the firing mechanism after the rocket motor pulls the bangalore torpedo train a distance of 400 feet over the ground. The rocket motor uses a solid propellant, generating high thrust for a short duration.

The nose of the rocket motor is tapered to help it glance off any object as it moves over the ground.

The kit has been type classified Standard-A and the logistics responsibilities have been assigned to the Ordnance Corps.

Maj. Fellers Is Named Supply Chief

Maj. Albert G. Fellers recently was transferred from Troop Command duties to become the new chief of Consolidated Supply for the Army Ordnance Missile Support Agency. Prior to his assignment, he attended an eight-week management maintenance course at Ft. Lee, Va., where he was the honor graduate from the U. S. Army Logistics Management Center course.

He became the commanding officer of the Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, AOMSA, in September, 1961, following an assignment with the 881st Ordnance Company in Germany. He also served with the 8th Ordnance Battalion in Germany for one year.

During 1947-49, Maj. Fellers was in Japan.

Among his assignments in the U. S., he was at the Ordnance School at Aberdeen Proving Ground from March, 1952, to October, 1954, as Logistics officer. During World War II, he was a member of an Ordnance Detachment with Armor in Europe.

In Korea in 1954-56, Maj. Fellers was an ordnance supply advisor with the Korean Military Advisory Group.

He is married to the former Mary Siviero. The couple celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary on July 18. They have two daughters, Mary Jo, 15; and Teresa, 9.

Life Insurance Applications Close July 31

The opportunity to join the Group Life Insurance plan sponsored by the Redstone Civilian Welfare Council without taking a physical examination ends next Tuesday, July 31.

No further applications under the present ruling will be accepted after that date.

The life insurance is payable on death from any cause, but it carries "double indemnity" (twice the amount) if the death is accidental.

There are no age restrictions under this insurance plan, and if the individual becomes totally disabled before he reaches the age 60, all future premiums are waived.

Payments to beneficiaries can be paid in a number of ways: lump sums, held at interest and paid at a future date; fixed amounts of money until the principle is depleted, or time period fixed at a specific number of years (5, 10, 15, 20 years).

The full amount of the insurance may be converted if an individual terminates his employment. Under these conditions no medical examination will be required and insurability is guaranteed.

Dividends after the first policy year probably will reduce the first costs considerably. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has had the plan in effect for more than ten years and has successfully reduced the cost to the individual.

Employees of the Missile Command, the Missile Support Agency and the Missile School are eligible under the present setup with the exception of individuals on limited or temporary appointments.

The plan enables the person who has Federal Government Life Insurance to insure himself for twice his earnings and provides protection to families such as redemption of a mortgage, income for a wife, children and dependent parents, education and other emergency expenses.

Questions will be answered by personnel at Ext. 877-4124.

HAPPY ISLAND FAMILY—Living on Kwajalein Island almost 5,000 miles from the United States agrees with this Alabama family—the Myron Pops. They have been on Kwajalein for several months where Pope works on the Army's Nike Zeus antimissile missile program. Craig, 3, particularly enjoys the tropical island life.

Transplanted Family Likes the Life In South Seas on Kwajalein Island

KWAJALEIN ISLAND — Take one North Alabama family and transplant it to a tiny spit of coral 7,000 miles from home and what do you get?

In at least one instance, you get a happy family. . .

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Pope and their son Craig were transferred to Kwajalein Island in the mid-Pacific last December. Pope is an Army Ordnance Missile Command electronics engineer who works on the Nike Zeus missile system which is undergoing development tests in the Pacific.

As the saying goes, they have taken to "island living" like the proverbial fish to water. There are no rolling Alabama hills on Kwajalein, no red clay and many of the conveniences associated with living in the continental United States are missing. But the Pops like their new home immensely.

Surprisingly perhaps, Mrs. Pope often finds the days too short to complete a busy schedule, one that would be the envy of many women back home. She has a full day despite the fact there is only one general store on the island, one commissary for groceries and she has no automobile.

"You don't miss a lot of the things back home," she said. "No, we don't have a car, but then we don't need one. Actually, we enjoy getting about the island on bicycles or walking."

Kwajalein is only 600 acres in size and just about everything is within walking distance or within easy distance of the hundreds of bicycles used by the "permanent party" residents.

Of course, Pope's day is taken up with work on Nike Zeus. Mrs. Pope's day, however, is spent, first, looking after Craig, who is three. This in itself is a job for he is a typical American youngster — 7,000 miles removed.

Much of the entertainment of Craig centers around the dependents' swimming pool on Kwajalein. Mrs. Pope and Craig take a swim and loll in the warm tropical sun almost daily.

"We even have a nursery school here if I want to do something and leave Craig in good hands," Mrs. Pope said. "And of course with no traffic problem here, we don't worry about his playing almost anywhere he wants to."

Mrs. Pope sews extensively, buying raw silk and other materials available at the store on Kwajalein — at bargain prices. And there is bridge and other social events associated with a close-knit community of some 3,000 persons.

"I'll admit I felt somewhat confined the first month or so," she said. "But then I became accustomed to island living and now I simply love it."

The Pops ran into a problem of major importance — to a woman at least — almost as soon as they arrived on Kwajalein. They were assigned quarters but the furniture was mismatched: there were no curtains on some of the windows and the Pops were literally living out of a kit provided newcomers until their personal effects arrived.

This one was solved with a minimum of difficulty, however. Mrs. Pope simply got in touch with the man who is charged with furnishing the quarters and explained her problem. She then told him what she wanted and it was sent out in exchange for the mismatched furniture.

"The only thing I really miss," Mrs. Pope said in typical womanly fashion, "is a chance to go into a big store. . . Sometimes I really get the urge to just go shopping as we do back home."

"Back home" to the Pops is Gadsden although they lived in Huntsville for several months before transferring to Kwajalein. Mrs. Pope's parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Craig, 1109 South 10th Street, and Pope's mother lives at 111 S. 10th Street in East Gadsden.

Pope, too, finds living on Kwajalein delightful. "We have no heavy traffic and have left many of the mainland problems behind us," he said with a grin. "And we don't have any television to take up a lot of time."

Pope is a stereo recording enthusiast as are literally hundreds of others on Kwajalein. So much of his spare time is spent listening to good music and tinkering with his equipment.

Next month, the Pops plan to visit Japan and perhaps other places of the Far East on the first off-the-island vacation they have had since they arrived on Kwajalein.

Meanwhile, they will continue to enjoy a different kind of living as happy transplanted Alabamians who are thriving in the tropics.

Softball

"Friday 13th jinx" could have been used as an alibi for the HQ AOMSA softball team. HQ AOMSA played Maxwell Field Air Base last Friday 13th on softball field no. 1. The visitors played as strong as they looked.

HQ AOMSA matched Maxwell in good defense and in the spirit of the game. The game between these two teams was the best seen at Redstone Arsenal for many past years. The field was in excellent condition, the weather was "ball players delight" and the umpires were good.

The game was a pitchers' duel until the sixth inning when HQ AOMSA pitcher weakened and walked a man. The next batter tried a "push" bunt and as the first baseman came in to take the bunt, the second baseman covered first base. The pitcher fielded the bunt, threw the batter out at first.

The runner on second, seeing the play at first, rounded second to try for third, but the quick thinking of the second baseman who covered first threw immediately to third and caught the runner by six feet. One of the fastest double plays ever pulled by any team on Redstone.

In the first of the seventh inning after two outs, the center fielder of Maxwell had two strikes and then belted one over the right center field fence for the one and only tally for the game. Final score, Maxwell Field, 1:

Sports Car Buffs

By Ray Mosling

The Treasure Hunt and Pizza Party Rally held on July 14th proved to be quite an interesting event for those who attended.

The "treasure hunt" turned out to be a frantic effort to track down and capture such useful items as a black cat, last year's license plate, an empty antifreeze can, a goldfish, and many others. At the end of the two-hour event, three black cats and a huge pile of "treasure" had been collected.

Finishing positions were determined by points accumulated for each item found. Finishing in first place were Doug Moody (UTC) and Ray Mosling (Thiokol).

Second place went to Peggy Neal (Southerland Blue Print Company) and Bill Kautz (USAGMS). Third place was a tie between Jo Ann Schlosser and Don Franke (NASA), and Norm Goldberg (Boeing) and Ed Knight (Boeing). We all thank Event Chairman John Schlosser (NASA) for the interesting and hilarious evening.

Next event on the schedule is HQ AOMSA, 0. The pitcher for Maxwell Field allowed no hits; while the pitcher for HQ AOMSA gave two hits, one being the "push bunt" in the third inning and the "homer" in the seventh inning.

Both teams deserve credit for a game well played and the fans saw a game they won't forget too soon.

Once HQ AOMSA gets accustomed to the type of pitching they faced Friday, they should take the Third U. S. Army Tournament in September.

The Post Level Softball standings are as follows:

HQ AOMSA	19	0

At the Service Club

By Brenda Hanson

COME ONE, COME ALL: to the Service Club, for the last week of one of the summer's hottest months of the year. We have our program, for this week planned especially for you.

For you who are interested in learning to dance, we have the solution to your problem.

On 25 July, Sgt. Frank Guierrez will conduct a dance class for the beginners at 1800 hours. Then for those who already have gotten the swing of it and wish to improve your techniques, rhythm, and form, we have the advanced class at 2000 hours.

On 26 July, the Theatre Workshop Group will meet at 1930 hours.

INTEREST TO ALL POOL SHARKS: We are conducting a Post-Wide Pool Tournament on the 26th and 27th of July. We would like to have a representative and an alternate from each unit representing his unit.

If there is a shortage of equipment and you have no where to play, the Service Club is open for play-offs within the units. A nice trophy will be given to the individual winner of the tournament and also a large unit trophy to the unit of which the individual tournament winner belongs. So let's all try to carry this trophy back to your units trophy case. O.K.

For all the people who enjoy Pinochle, a contest is scheduled on 28 July at 1900 hours. So Pinochlers, come join the contest.

Sunday, 29 July, Yours Truly will serve coffee and donuts at 0930 hours. Then at 1900 hours, a "Pot Luck Supper" is on the agenda. As I have talked with Molly, my predictions are that the pots will be filled with good food. Try your luck with the Pot Luck.

The main event of the evening is a "Starlight Interlude" at 2000 hours, with Charlie Lyle and his orchestra furnishing the music for the evening's dance. Birmingham hostesses will be here.

The Theatre Workshop Group will meet 30 July at 1930 hours with the Director, Pvt. Art Kalin. There is a great demand for people who are interested in music, dramatics, and dancing. Anyone wishing to join the Workshop Group, contact Pvt. Kalin at 876-4531.

On 30 July, a "Jam Session" is scheduled for 2000 hours. Sgt. Edward Sanner and his group will be beating out an evening of Jazz and Dixie Land Rhythms. Get the spurs out of your heels and come be rhythmic with us.

Does anyone excell in making Chocolate Fudge? I need some help for the Fudge Party to be 31 July at 2000 hours.

5 Arsenal Scouts Make Star Rank

Redstone Arsenal Boy Scout Troop 203 held its recharter program July 19 at Redstone Arsenal in conjunction with a Court of Honor.

The Charter was presented to the Troop Committee Chairman Robert Gibbs by Charles Prevost, Chairman of the Organization and Extension Committee, Madison District.

Guest Speaker of the event was Judge-Elect J. W. Green, Circuit Judge of the Family Court. Judge Green is the District Commissioner, Madison District, Tennessee Valley Council.

The ceremony consisted of awarding Service Stars to those scouts who had completed one or more years of scouting, and advancement in rank of Billy R. Mayo to Second Class Scout. Eight members of the Troop were advanced to First Class Scouts, these were: Carey Bell, Wayne Bell, Bruce Crownover, William McBride, Joseph Laynor, Robert Stowell, Ray Tising, and James Turner.

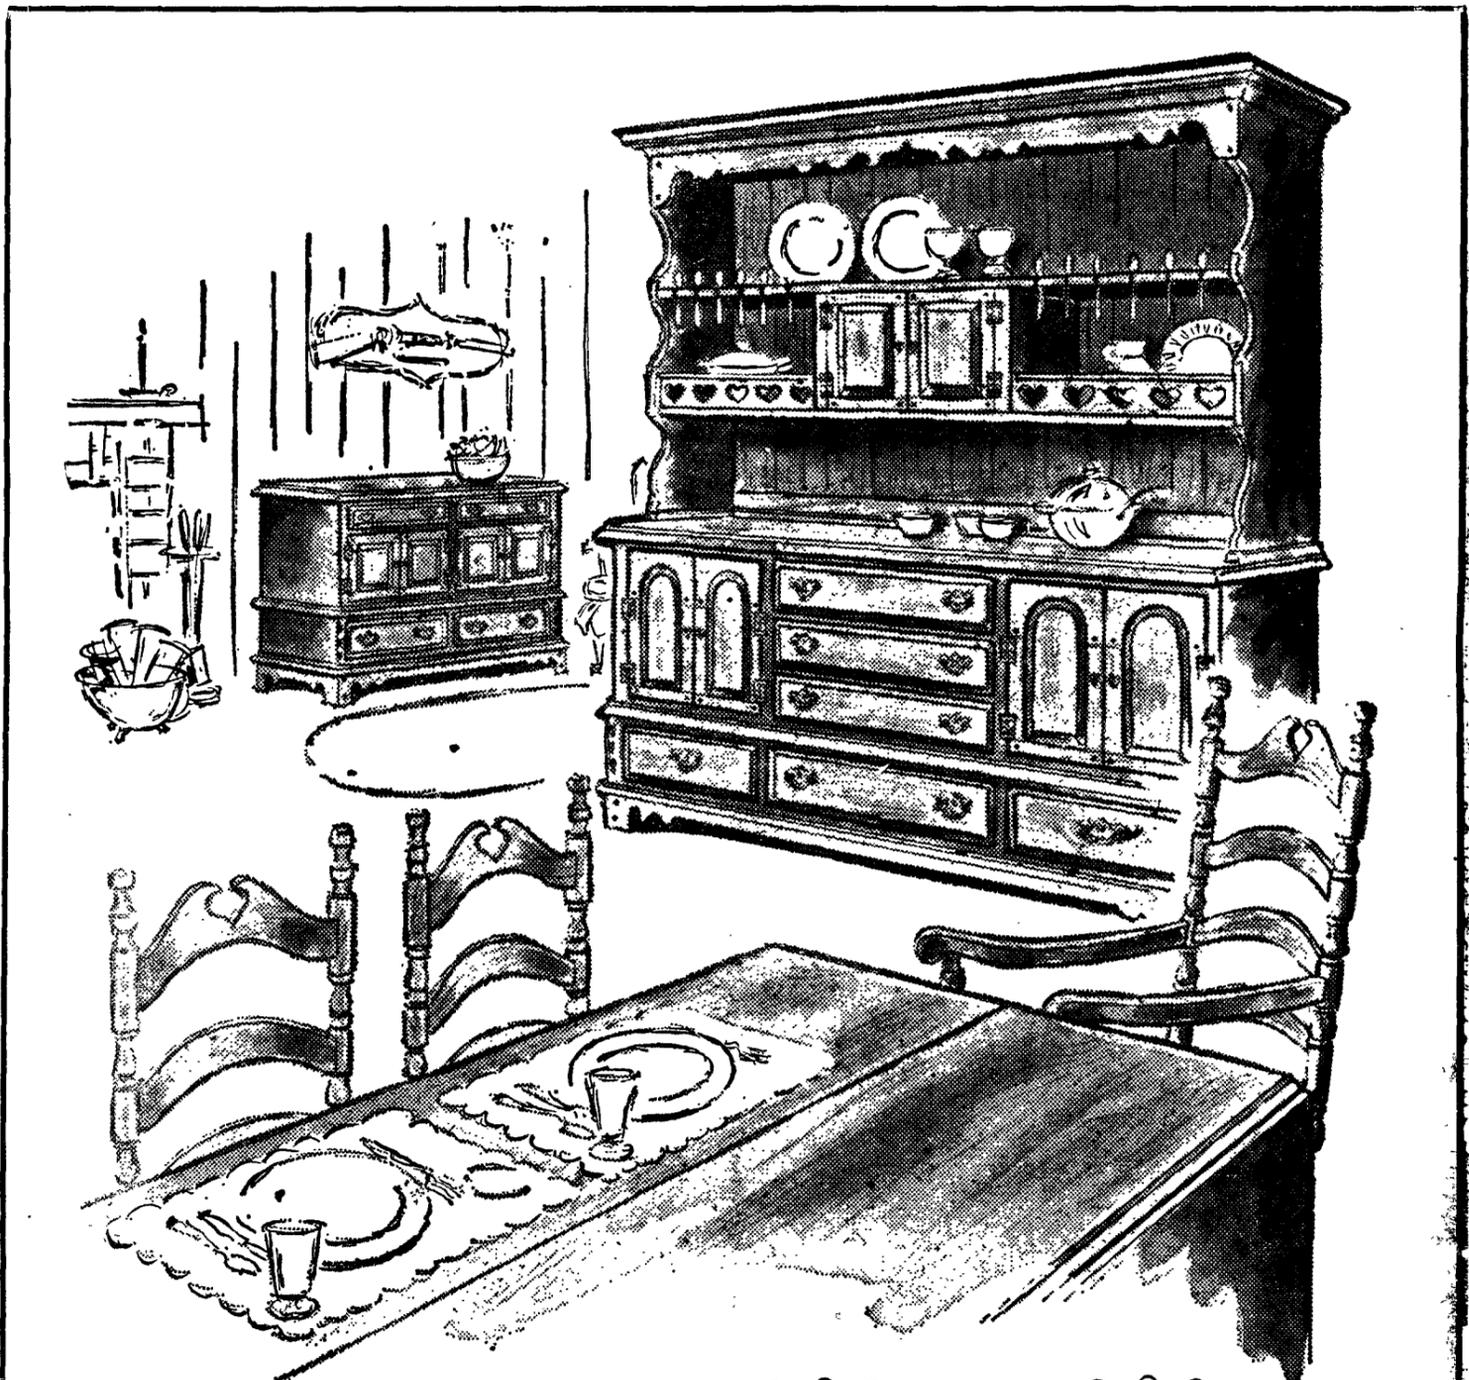

The highlight of the awards ceremony was the advancement of Steve Attaya, John Coffeen, Charles Ellis, Kenneth Reynolds and Bruce Underwood to Star Scout.

In addition to these awards 19 boys were awarded Merit Badges ranging from astronomy to rowing and canoeing.

Troop 203 has 39 boys registered, and has been in existence since 1947. It was rechartered March 31, 1961 after an inactive period of six months. The troop received the 100% Boys Life award and Award of Merit during the presentation of the charter.

LT. LYNN H. STEVENS—Hawk Project Office, Field Service Directorate, recently returned from a Missile Command mission in Europe.

Policy Makers Find Field Experience Helps Decisions

Field Servicing, when you're in the Field and not at the Missile Command, is an around-the-clock business. CWO Michael M. Shuput experienced this.

"It is a quick education to work with the troops. It gives the policy makers an insight into the problems faced by units handling all Army missiles," 1st Lt. Lynn H. Stevens said.

Lt. Stevens recently returned from a four-months stay in Europe as Military Liaison and Coordinator for contractors modifying the Hawk missile system. Lt. Stevens is a Hawk project officer in the Field Service Directorate.

The lieutenant's former experience in the field was Infantry, Airborne and Ranger.

In his words, "It was the best immediate education I have received on any job in the Army."

"The lieutenant is a Phi Beta Kappa from Utah State where he was awarded a direct Army commission as the distinguished military graduate. In Europe, Lt. Stevens' activities kept him travelling between Headquarters, U. S. Army Europe and the Seventh Army Hawk missile organizations as the military liaison and coordination officer between Headquarters and contractor representatives engaged in modifying some of the equipment in the field.

A big slice of the lieutenant's job was organizing work schedules—a dollar saving device that he considered wholly successful since the group will finish ahead of schedule.

The lieutenant said that the work that he and his counterparts are doing in the United States, the Pacific and in Europe is resulting in more effective scheduling. Both time and monetary savings have accrued.

The amount of time the men spend in studying missilery at the Army schools results in very capable maintenance men in the field, both the lieutenant and CWO Shuput agree. Both are graduates from the Army Guided Missile School here.

Lt. Stevens attributes some of the success on his particular assignment to the fact that he has worked closely here with the Industrial Directorate and with the manufacturers representatives.

While in Europe his family remained at Redstone Arsenal—the only disadvantage, in his opinion, of the assignment. Lt. Stevens is married to the former Miss Nedra Wright of Ft. Shaw, Montana. She, too, graduated from Utah State. The couple has three daughters, Ruth, 3½; Shauna, 2½; and Karen, 6 months.

CWO Shuput has been in the field as Warrant Officer in a Nike direct support detachment. Now he is a project officer in the Nike Hercules Division of the Field Service Directorate here.

CWO Shuput volunteered for a year of Army duty in 1940. Twenty-one and a half years later, he's still volunteering.

He began his missile career at the Army Signal School, Ft. Monmouth—studied at Aberdeen Proving Ground and graduated from the Army Guided Missile School in 1956. Since then, he's been in the field until assigned to AOMC.

Originally from Salt Lake City, CWO Shuput has studied at Brigham Young University and at San Francisco State. He spent two years in the Bay Area where the men in his unit were on around-the-clock call when trouble developed in the Nike battalion's missile sites. He reported to AOMC last September from Germany where he had spent 38 months in a Nike Hercules GM direct support detachment.

His observation of the improvement in relations between Ordnance and Artillery stems directly from the more complete understanding of Artillery needs the Ordnance units have developed. He said, "They feel that Redstone Arsenal will come through when asked."

In May of 1942, CWO Shuput volunteered, a second time, for the British Commando training while stationed in Ireland with the First Armored Division. As a result of this training, he was assigned to the First Ranger Battalion, which was virtually wiped out during World War II on a beach in Italy after successful combat missions in Africa and Sicily. When this happened, fortunately, CWO Shuput was in the U. S. on TDY as an instructor for the 2nd and 5th Ranger Battalions at Camp Forrest, Tenn.

He continued to volunteer. Following an assignment on recruiting duty in Indiana, and another, teaching Infantry tactics at Ft.

CWO MICHAEL M. SHUPUT—Field Service Directorate—began his missile career on Nike Ajax sites, now works on the Nike Hercules project at the Missile Command.

Ord. he volunteered to be a missile man.

This was in 1954 — heyday of Nike Ajax, father of Hercules.

CWO Shuput heartily approves education for desk officers on practical troop assignments and feels that the assignment of officers with field experience to positions with Field Service Directorate, AOMC insures that the needs of the Artillery personnel and the Ordnance support personnel are better understood and satisfied.

CWO Shuput is married to the former Miss Vivienne Wimmer of Magna, Utah. They have two daughters, Michael Ann, 12; and Susan Diane, 8; and a son, Robert Bradley, 6.

Hartley Brothers Enjoy Challenge of Ingenuity

Anyone want a boat built—refrigerators, insulated to hold temperatures from +200 to -100 degrees Fahrenheit?—a missile model?

A team of brothers, James and A. C. Hartley can accomplish any one of these things.

They are members of the staff in the Fabrication Laboratory at the Engineering Division of the Army Ordnance Missile Command's Industrial Directorate.

The men were born in Florida and learned the cabinetmaking trade in their father's cabinet and handle factory near Panama City.

The two came to Huntsville so that they could work together.

James had been building boats in a Panama City boatyard.

A. C. was employed as an aircraft cabinet and woodcraft expert by the Air Force.

There are six Hartley brothers. All learned cabinetmaking. Four are still working at it.

A. C. started his 15 year career with the Air Corps at Bainbridge Ga., and transferred to Tyndall Air Force Base near Panama City in 1945. The brothers came to Redstone Arsenal in 1960.

Here they are called on for all kinds of jobs. They have chalked up among their accomplishments a cold chamber which will contain a complete missile with measurements equalling or exceeding the Pershing — they build harnesses for testing missiles and crates for drop tests—they make shipping containers of various materials to be used as pilot models for cutting manufacturing costs.

The missile models used in the Division's "dark tunnel" where antenna tests are conducted were fabricated by the Hartley brothers.

They have many jigs and fixtures on their list of accomplishments because these items were not a standard on the market.

Both agree that there are few areas in the Division which don't call for service from the woodcraft shop at one time or another.

A. C. has two daughters, both married and living in Panama City.

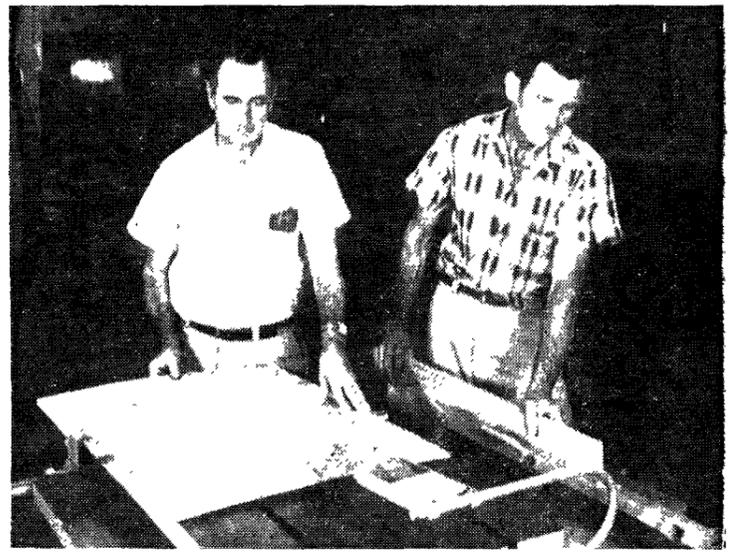

James has two sons, one in Florida and the other living with him and his wife in Huntsville.

A. C. said, "A lot of people ask me if I don't fight with my brother?"

James said, "We worked a long time to find a job where we could work together."

"Why should we fight?" A. C. asked.

PEOPLE AT WORK

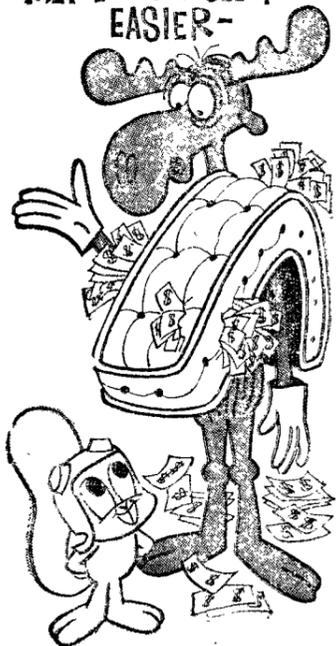

CABINETMAKERS—A. C. and James Hartley are a team of brothers who enjoy working side by side in the Fabrication Lab of the Industrial Directorate's Engineering Laboratories at Redstone Arsenal. The men learned the basics of their trade in their father's shop and have become expert at improving missile test chambers and missile models.

NEW TURKISH LIAISON OFFICER — Capt. Seyhan Ozseyhan, 30, of Izmir, Turkey, has arrived at the U. S. Army Ordnance Guided Missile School at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., to serve as liaison officer for Turkish Air Force students training on ballistic missiles for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He is a graduate of the Turkish Military Academy and a pilot. He will serve in the U. S. Air Force Training Command office at the Missile School.
