

Retirement Doesn't Mean He'll Stop Working

Thomas W. Cornell has been busy all his life, and he doesn't plan to take life easy now just because he has retired after 24 years and two months of working for the Army at Redstone Arsenal.

His first job at Redstone was in the payroll department of the Area Engineer, for a brief time, when the Arsenal was very young, and his last was as an equipment specialist in the Army Missile Command Procurement and Production Directorate.

He worked in the Engineering and Documentation Division where all the drawings and specifications on missile system repair parts are reviewed with an eye toward standardization.

The greater part of his time at Redstone was spent on the Ammunition lines when ammo production was the primary mission of the arsenal. When missiles took over, he moved to his last job.

Some habits and hobbies he started about 60 years ago as a boy in Coshocton County, Ohio are too strong to bring to a screeching halt just because he has "signed out" at the Army Missile Support Command Civilian Personnel Office.

Work is one of his habits, and ammunition production was his favorite work for the Army. He says, "If the Army should need me again because of some crisis that called for opening some ammo lines, I'd be the first one there."

Some of his hobbies are an outgrowth of things he did as a boy to amuse himself, and others are an indirect result of his college training and his work experiences.

Cornell has been the Scoutmaster of Troop 15 in Huntsville for 27 years. As a boy he learned how to capture and correctly mount butterflies, collect artifacts, observe the habits of wildlife and identify everything he saw in the fields and woods.

He has passed this knowledge on to his Scouts.

He came to Huntsville about 35 years ago for a position at the YMCA. He had graduated from George Williams College in Chicago with a bachelor of science degree in social science.

"The Y had the work to be done, but in those depression days, they (See RETIREMENT on Page 3)

Maj. Cole Acting Head Of Sergeant Project

Maj William A. Cole has been named Acting Project Manager of the Sergeant weapon system at the Army Missile Command.

He replaces Col. J. Mort Loomis, Jr., who retired Dec. 31st after serving three years as Project Manager of Sergeant, a surface-to-surface ballistic missile capable of hitting targets at ranges of 25 to 75 nautical miles.

Maj. Cole reported to the Missile Command in 1963. Since then he has served in various positions in the Sergeant Project Office.

He is a native of Punxsutawney, Penn., and a 1953 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. During his 12 years of Army service, he has been stationed at Ft. Bliss, Tex., Ft. Mead, Md., Ft. Carson, Colo., and in Germany and Korea.

He has been awarded the Army Occupation Medal and National Defense Service Medal.

Maj. Cole is married to the former Barbara Ann Freas, also of Punxsutawney. They have two sons and a daughter, Scott Alan 9, Steven Freas 4, and Susan Evans 6.

POST SOLDIER OF THE MONTH
—Sp-4 Russell J. Hoover, son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hoover, Route 3, Dallas, Penna., was named post soldier of the month. He is a member of Company C, School Troop Command, Army Missile and Munitions Center and School, and is an instructor on the Hawk missile. Hoover was presented a plaque and a U.S. savings bond by Col. Erwin M. Graham, Jr., School commandant. The post soldier also received a free weekend in the city of Huntsville. Sp-4 Hoover is a 1962 graduate of Dallas Senior High School. He entered the Army in September 1964 and completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

Civilian Recreation Area To Receive Improvements

A discussion of plans for improvements at the Civilian Employees' Recreation Area highlighted the quarterly meeting of the Civilian Welfare Fund Council, Monday morning.

Abner McNaron, chairman of the nine-member council, said that a priority system for accomplishing the planned improvements was established as a result of the discussion.

According to the system established, the first project to be undertaken will be lighting the two softball fields. This will enable the Civilian Softball League to be expanded and permit a far greater number of employees to participate.

The second improvement will be completion of tennis courts at the area, and following this will be the construction of a floating dock. Both of these projects have been suggested repeatedly by visitors to the park.

Also high on the priority list will be the planting of trees and shrubs.

In disclosing the plans for improvements to the park, McNaron said that the program is not a closed book and that the Council is always eager to receive employee suggestions.

He added that the plans were formulated at the conclusion of the mid-year financial report submitted by R. L. Reynolds, the Council's custodian of funds. Reynolds indicated in his report that the Council is in sound financial shape.

In addition to McNaron and Reynolds, the Welfare Fund Council is made up of J. F. Neeley (P & P), vice-chairman, M. K. Foster (R & D), secretary, Leonard Twinem (S & M), C. D. Havens (OGMS), R. L. Mood (Nike X), and Charles Cornelison and Leon Towery, both of the Post Engineers.

SFC Duritza Earns Bronze Star Cluster

By direction of the President of the United States, the Bronze Star Medal (First Oak Leaf Cluster) was presented to Sergeant First Class Thomas Duritza while a member of the United States Mission to the Republic of Vietnam.

Sgt. Duritza was cited for his outstanding meritorious service in connection with counterinsurgency ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam.

Duritza's wife, Anna, resides at their home in Wheatland, Ind. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Duritza, 3738 E. 16th St., Tucson, Ariz., and entered the Army in February 1949.

Thiokol Receives Army Test And Evaluation Work

The Thiokol Chemical Corp., has received a $451,695 award from the Army Missile Command to cover six months test and evaluation work on motor cases.

Work authorized by the contract will be performed at the corporation's Huntsville plant.

The Army Missile Command's Procurement and Production Directorate negotiated and executed the contract.

The Redstone Rocket

The Redstone Rocket is published weekly, on Wednesdays. The publisher will receive editorial content for publication in the Rocket only through the Information Office, Army Missile Command, Redstone Arsenal, Ala., Bldg. 5250, Room A-136, Extension 376-1400 or 876-1500.

All advertising copy and payments therefor are received by Mrs. Vergie Robinson, Huntsville, Ala., P. O. Box 346, telephone 534-4701, as representative of the publisher. Advertising deadline—both display and wanted—is noon of Friday before publication.

The Redstone Rocket is distributed free of cost to personnel at Redstone Arsenal. Mailing rates off post for the Rocket are $6.36 a year, or $3.50 for six months, tax included. Mailing arrangements may be made with the publisher, P. O. Box 520, Huntsville, Ala.

Clean Slate, Anyone?

Despite the advent of a new year, with all of the celebrations that heralded the end of the old, there is no such thing as starting with a clean slate.

Time is only a measure that doesn't solve problems by itself. Only man himself can do this.

With January already half gone, perhaps it is timely to remind ourselves that as we work our way through 1966 we are only continuing the effort to bring to the soldier the finest missile weapons that modern technology can devise.

Zero Defects, cost reduction, value analysis, safety on the job and on the highways, security of information and the other campaigns constantly under promotion are only the means to that final end.

If we may paraphrase a statement made by General Zierdt when he assumed command of the Missile Command, "Let's continue with our work and see what we can do."

Fantasy Seeking Talent For 'Sinbad' Production

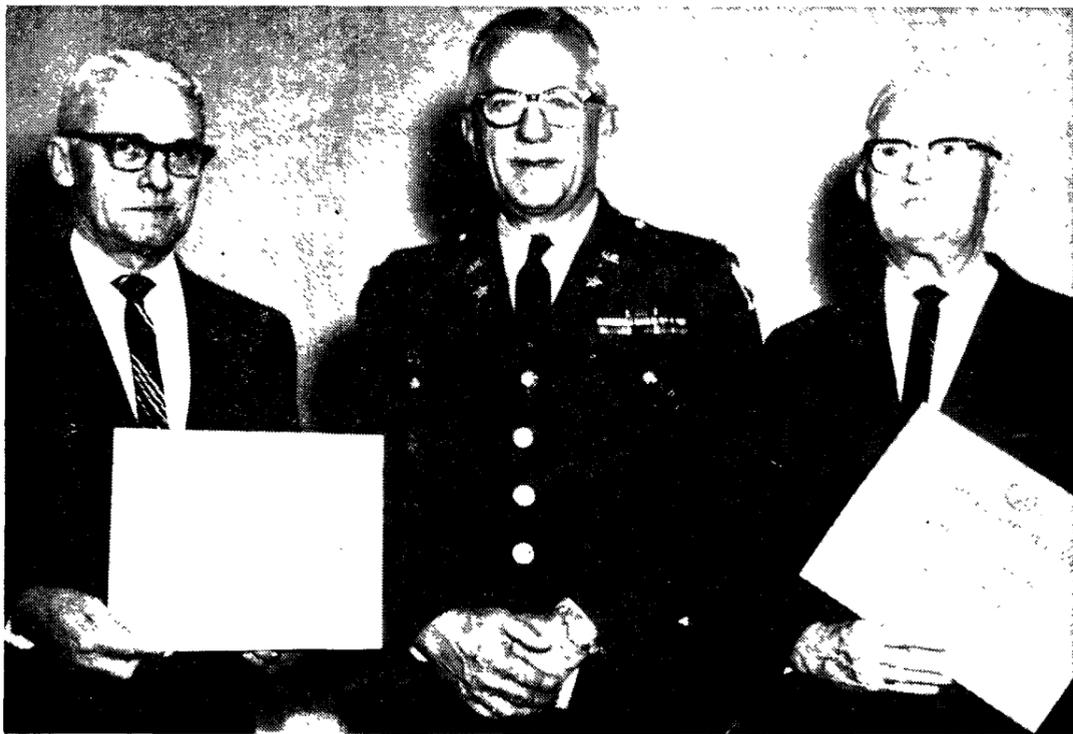

Tryouts for Sinbad the Sailor, to be presented in March by Fantasy Playhouse, will be held in the Fantasy Room at the Temporary Civic Arts Center, 311 W. Clinton Ave. on the following dates: Thursday, Jan. 13, 7:30-9:30 p.m.; Friday, Jan. 14, 7:30-9:30 p.m.; and Saturday, Jan. 15, 1:00-4:00 p.m.

Adults are urged to try out as there are twelve parts—eight male and four females—the two youngest characters in an age range of 11-18 years, and the rest of the characters are (or should be) more mature. Unfortunately, there are no parts for younger children.

Fantasy will be happy to have persons interested in working on sets, sound, lights, make-up, costumes, ushering, publicity and the other phases of production, attend the tryouts.

FEDERAL CAREERS END—Col. Russell Sell, Director of Supply and Maintenance, is pictured between two veteran S&M workers who closed out careers in the Federal service recently. The Director presented certificates of achievement to Robert Stultz (left) and Herman Hinshaw in recognition of their service as program specialists for the Directorate.

Two Veterans In S and M End Service

The Missile Command lost the services of two veteran civilian employees recently when Robert Stultz and Herman Hinshaw ended their careers as Program Specialists with the Supply and Maintenance Directorate.

Col. R. B. Sell, Director of Supply and Maintenance, presented the retiring workers with Certificates of Achievements in recognition of their service during a joint retirement ceremony on their last day of work.

Stultz' retirement brought to a close a career of Federal service spanning 28 years at Redstone and other government installations. His entire career was spent in controller type functions.

Prior to coming to the Missile Command Stultz was employed with the Southern Railway System in Washington. He has also held auditing and accounting positions with the Home Owner's Loan Corps at Memphis, Tenn., and was a senior accountant at the Morgantown Ordnance Works, Morgantown, W. V.

Hinshaw came to Redstone eight years ago after having been employed in various public positions as an accountant. He was County Trustee for a number of years in Winchester, Tenn., and held positions in payroll, book-keeping and auditing for various commercial firms.

Since coming to the Missile Command Hinshaw has worked his way up from Budget Clerk to Programs Specialist and performed outstanding work in the development of plans, programs and budgets for contract rebuild.

Foreign Students Take U. S. Tours

The Korean and Japanese students at the Missile and Munitions School spent the holiday season touring various parts of the U.S. These trips were coordinated by the Foreign Liaison Division.

The ROK Army students took a four-day informational-educational trip to New Orleans. They visited the Michoud Assembly Facility of NASA, went sightseeing in the French quarter, and heard an American jazz concert at Preservation Hall.

The Japanese missileers travelled to Washington, D.C., New York City, and Buffalo by privately chartered bus. On a two-day stop in Washington they visited all the usual "must" places for the sight-seer such as the Capitol, Lincoln & Jefferson Memorials, Supreme Court, Smithsonian Institute, the JFK grave, the Pentagon, and such, but were unable to visit the White House because it was closed for the Christmas period since its occupants were at the

2 At Missile, Munitions School Receive New Jobs

Two new assignments were made Monday, to the staff of the U. S. Army Missile and Munitions Center and School.

Lt. Col. Milton I. Fogel, formerly Secretary of the Center, became Chief of Operations replacing Lt. Col. Charles E. Chapman. Col. Chapman was recently reassigned to Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Col. Fogel has been at MMCS since June, 1965, when he returned from a tour as the Chief of the Missile and Electronic Section, G-4, Eighth United States Army in Korea.

Assuming the job as Secretary will be Maj. Lawrence V. Dowd. Maj. Dowd's last assignment was at Headquarters, U.S. Army, Pacific, in Hawaii. He is a native of Boston, Mass., and his parents reside in Somerville, Mass.

other White House-on-the-Pedernales.

From Washington they went to New York City and a three-day lay-over topped off with a visit to Niagara Falls the Rainbow Bridge to Canada.

ran out of money, so I took a job with an insurance company," he said.

This led to another hobby. In the course of his work, he visited many homes in all walks of life. With his usual keen observation, he noticed old pieces of furniture and objects of art, often stuck off someplace gathering dust. The people didn't cherish them, and with money very scarce they were happy to sell him any of the things he fancied.

"One of the things I collected," he said, "was rose bowls, paying a dollar or two for them here and there. I've collected 30." Rose bowls bring prices now many times what he paid for them.

He learned to refurbish the antique furniture he bought, but says he could never make a living at furniture refinishing because he does every phase meticulously by hand never resorting to automation, and it takes a long time.

Some small articles he collected have become museum pieces. Speaking of museums, he wishes we could have one in Huntsville.

It isn't only objects of art he'd like to see in a museum, but artifacts, fossils and archaeological specimens. He is presently vice president of the Alabama Archaeological Society, a position which leads to the presidency next year.

Cornell has many fine and unusual types of archaeological specimens which won't be found in any existing museum, and has furnished collections to some museums. He has examples that represent the civilization of 10,000 years ago.

A member of the First Methodist Church, he has taught a Sunday School class for more than 20 years. Also, he says, he makes some minor repairs in the church, things that need to be fixed and aren't quite large enough to require a contractor's services.

He is a charter member of the Optimist Club in Huntsville.

And as though this tall, slender, balding man didn't have enough interests and hobbies, he wants to take on still another—rock cutting, an area he has been looking into recently. He wants to get the tools and machinery needed for gem polishing.

Cornell has been awarded the Silver Beaver for his Boy Scout work, and for 15 years has been a member of the Board of Directors of the Huntsville YMCA.

In spite of all his accomplishments, Cornell is a very modest man who just happens to be sincerely interested in many facets of activity.

It is going to be a long time before Tom Cornell sits back in an easy chair and spends his days watching TV.

Combat Soldier Weapons Tested On Range One

The dark olive green of the Army tank was only a speck in the distance as the metal monster sped along the bumpy dirt road at 30 miles an hour.

More than a mile away, a gunner crouched over a weapon mounted on a tripod, carefully aligning the crosshairs of a telescopic sight on the target. Suddenly, there was a flash of fire and a slim missile streaked from the launcher toward the fleeing tank. Seconds later, the missile ripped through a wire-screen bullseye mounted atop the tank, within inches of dead center.

This successful shot was one of several made recently at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., home of the U. S. Army Missile Command which is the nerve center for development of the Army's rocket and guided missile programs.

Not even many North Alabamians know it but more than 2000 such missiles and rockets are test fired every year at this sprawling Army installation. They are tests of the smaller missiles being developed for the combat soldier—such systems as anti-tank and helicopter armaments, like the 2.75-inch rocket.

While the Missile Command doesn't actually manufacture hardware—it directs the Army's missile programs—the post does have facilities for rigid missile testing and inspection operated by the Research and Development Directorate.

At Range 1—a flat, restricted area more than 27,000 feet long and encompassing more than 7500 acres—engineers and technicians, with contractors, can put the missiles through their paces. These missilemen will tell you that Range 1, one of six at the Missile Command, is one of the best equipped small missile ranges in the country.

Directing the multi-million dollar test area, with its complex instrumentation, is Bud Smith, a 29-year-old native of Moss, Tenn. The soft-spoken, bespectacled range boss says "our primary mission is to support in-house research and projects managers at the Missile Command." To do the job, Smith has a range crew of 15 engineers and technicians.

"While the range is smaller we don't have the conflicts and delays in scheduling that larger ranges have," Smith said. "Yet we can provide the support that the Army and contractors need and require."

Having its own test area, which is operated under the Flight Operations Branch of the Test and Reliability Evaluation Laboratory, gives project offices at the Missile Command a chance to monitor closely the development of their programs.

Of prime importance in every missile firing is the collection of flight data. Range 1 uses telemetry equipment which tells graphically what the missile is doing and a battery of cameras which show what is happening in flight. The cameras, about 45 in all, photograph missiles from launch to impact.

Some can shoot at more than 6000 frames a second while others record as little as 24 frames a second. In addition, the range has four huge Contraves precision tracking photo theodolites, which are located at a distance from the launch area and used to manually track all firings.

One of the mechanical marvels on the range is a program firing console located in the blockhouse. It can be programmed to do almost any number of jobs, from turning on cameras downrange, to firing a missile, turning on a booster motor or what have you. Also built into the console are safety plugs which are used if a hold is necessary for technical or safety reasons.

During every firing, the range area is combed thoroughly to prevent stray hunters and the like from wandering onto the scene. Every gate is locked, warning lights are flashed and announcements are made over a loudspeaker.

A cow occasionally will wander into the area and a few have been killed but "we have had no other mishaps," Smith said.

Smith, who came to Redstone Arsenal in 1962, is a graduate of Tennessee Technological University, Cookeville, Tenn., with a degree in Mechanical Engineering. Prior to taking over as Range Engineer, he served as test engineer of such projects as TOW, a heavy anti-tank assault weapon, and Pershing, the Army's long range missile which can hurl a nuclear warhead up to 400 nautical miles.

MISSILES ARE FIRED HERE—Bud Smith checks out the firing console which is used in development tests of smaller weapon systems at the Army Missile Command's Range I facility. More than 2000 missiles and rockets are test fired every year at Redstone Arsenal. Smith directs the test area.

School Expands

"The United States Army Missile and Munitions Center and School," is the new name, and expanded training the mission of the former Ordnance Guided Missile School.

The Redstone Arsenal facility has been redesignated by the Department of the Army in view of its increasing part in missile and ammunition training of U.S. and foreign students.

In ceremonies recently at the center's headquarters, Col. Erwin M. Graham, Jr., commandant, unveiled the new name (top left) and told a group of dignitaries that "this name better represents the training done at the center."

Col. Graham added that the name change is appropriate recognition of the center's new function in ammunition training which now comprises about one-third of its total mission. He also pointed out that the term "center" better fits the installation's function in unit, as well as individual, training.

Later James L. Abercrombie, the area representative for the Mobile District Engineers, conducted ground breaking for a new $814,000 building.

The new structure, which is to house elements of the Missile Components Department, will include offices, a large auditorium, and about 27 classrooms. Mr. Abercrombie emphasized that the Corps of Engineers was pleased to design the structure which will help meet the center's ever increasing need for facilities.

A fitting conclusion to the day's activities was an explosive demonstration by the Explosive Disposal Division of MMCS. The dramatic demonstration included examples of flares, smoke and thermite grenades, the burning characteristics of explosives, and an underground explosion to produce ground shock. The explosive experts also produced some unusual aircraft using plastic sheet explosives to etch the center's emblem on a metal plate.

Here showing the results of the explosive is Specialist-6 Joel S. Vinsant of the Explosive Disposal Division.

Field Services League: Theron Sumner, 564, Bob Hall, 562 (222), Tom Gannon, 549 (222), Warren Schoenkecht, 546 (206), Sam Boda, 544, Nick Sparks, 541.

AMC League: Tom Patterson 551, (215), Gary Hooper, 547, Howard Helmick, 547, Jerry Keagy, 544, Frank Marsden, 542 (210), Dave Renton, 536 (200), Paul McLin, 536.

Three of the four civilian employee bowling leagues went back to work last week after the two-week holiday layoff with the shooting ranging widely from hot to pretty cool.

Most of the scoring was turned in by the Supply Management League while the bowlers in the AMC and Field Services Leagues appeared to be feeling the affects of the layoff.

John Montana and his team mates on the Bramblett's team made a clean sweep of the individual and team honors and turned in one of the top efforts of the entire season despite being forced to roll with a blind score.

Montana shot games of 222, 205 and 221 for a 648 Honor Roll count as the team turned in games of 1093 and 1032 and a series total of 3102. The hot night gave the Bramblett's a sweep over the Satellites.

Charley Rymer pitched in with a 577, Jim Tragler had a 575, and Bob Kell added 525 to the Bramblett cause. For Tragler it was cold-hot-and-cold again as he sandwiched a big 269 between a pair of very mediocre games.

After sparing in the first frame, Jim strung together eight straight strikes before catching a ten-pin tap on a solid hit in the tenth. He picked up the spare and then struck for his final count.

The All-Sports Trophy team was almost as productive in scoring a sweep over the Chicken Hawks. They fired games of 1048 and 1036 for a total of 3019.

Mel Webb set the pace with a consistent 593 and Chuck Harrington went over 200 twice for a 584 total. Joe Hill added a 560 and Howard Helmick turned in a 532 for the Sportsmen.

Hill used his fine set to edge ahead of Tim Lindsay in the individual average chase, 184 to 183. Lindsay was almost up to average with a 541 as the league leading Brick and Tile team won three points from Jones Lumber.

The AMC League had one of their position night schedules much to the chagrin of the Bombers who were mauled out of the league leadership by the Maulers.

The Maulers had four better than 500 rollers led by Paul McLin's 536 in sweeping the set. Gerry Keagy had a 544 for the Bombers.

Tom Patterson took league scoring honors with a 551 for the Ramblers. However, his efforts were not enough to offset the TOW Boys who got a 542 from Frank Marsden and won three points.

The Stars had the same kind of luck in dropping a trio to the Cavaliers despite a 547 by Gary Hooper. Dave Renton fired a 536

Redstone Sportsmen's Club To Install Officers

New officers of the Redstone Arsenal Sportsmen's Club will be installed Jan. 25, during a dinner meeting at the Redstone Officers Open Mess.

Installing officer will be Col. Thomas W. Cooke, Commander, Army Missile Support Command.

Judge Walter L. Mims, vice-president of the National Wildlife Federation will be guest speaker. Judge Mims, who holds the American Motors Conservation Award, was present for the Club's charter meeting in October, 1964.

New officers are: President, SFC Billy G. Allegood; first vice-president, SFC Robert L. Heflin; second vice-president, SFC John Dolan; third vice-president, S/Sgt. John W. Knox; secretary, 1st Lt. Richard Lockie; treasurer-custodian, S/Sgt. Darrell L. Carroll.

The installation meeting will be a dinner affair open to all active duty and retired members of the Armed Forces and their wives or guests.

Redstone Sportsmen's Club has recently been selected by the Alabama Wildlife Federation to represent the state of Alabama in competition for the National Outstanding Club in Conservation Award. This will be presented by President Lyndon Johnson later in the year.

Membership in the Redstone Club is open to all active duty and retired members of the armed forces in the Huntsville area. Persons interested in attending the dinner meeting may contact Lt. Lockie at 877-3656, or members of the previous or new Board of Directors.

SKIERS PLANNING GATLINBURG TRIP

The Huntsville Ski Club will meet tonight in the Records Courtroom of the New City Hall Building to discuss the first bus ski trip of the season.

Plans are to go to Gatlinburg this weekend, weather permitting. Genel Lewis, 539-8950, is handling reservations. If the weather is wrong, the trip will be postponed until the following weekend.

A-B-C Loop Starts 2nd Half of Season

The Stump Knockers and the Black Jacks jumped off to an early lead last week as the second half race in the A-B-C Officers Bowling League opened at the Post Lanes.

The Knockers took a 3 to 1 margin over the Pin Splitters while the Jacks had the same winning margin in their bout with the first half winning Wheelers. The other two matches ended in draws.

In one of the latter matches the Lucky Strikes made a big middle game pay off for two points and a split with the S Winners. Rex Javins put together a 210 in the middle game and ended the evening with a league leading 561.

Don Venderheyden chipped in with a 513, Don Drissell collected 509 and Ray DeBolt turned in a 507. Lin Kidd fired a 549 for the Winners.

The Stump Knockers got a trio of 500 bowlers in the winning effort led by Johnny Johnson's 558. Jerry Keefe turned in a 530 and Bud Cranford scored with a 501.

John Moore set the Black Jack pace with a 521, including a 209 game and Les Dotson helped the cause along with a 501.

Rollers Boost Lead By Beating Top Rival

Brushing aside the Black Jack threat to their lead, the Rocket Rollers moved four and a half points ahead of their victims as the first half of OGMS Officers bowling league season came to an end.

The Black Jacks were pitted against the leaders for the second straight week for the position night scrap. However, they were unable to work up the necessary steam and dropped three of the four points. During the previous session the Black Jacks scored a sweep over the Rollers.

Most of the pin action erupted in the battle between the Rounders and the Bad Gnus that ended in a split.

The Rounders put together a 1007 game and ended the evening with a total pinfall of 2710. The Gnus took the other two games for the split.

Milt Fogel took individual honors with a 542 for the Rounders and team-mate, Al Leonard, tossed the best game, a 213. Bob Percy ended with 512 and Bob Love topped 511 sticks.

Two sweeps completed the league activity with the Satellites brushing aside the Missilemen.

for the Cavaliers and Roger Hodgdon added a 529.

Theron Sumner, Bob Hall and Tom Gannon captured individual scoring honors in the Fields Services League while the Crackers held onto the league lead even though they were losing three points to the Wheels.

Sumner hit for a 564 and Sam Boda added a 544 for the league leaders. However, it was not enough to stave off the Wheels with Hall tossing a 562.

The latter had a 222 game in his string to split the high game award with Gannon whose 549 led the Spoilers to a sweep over the Satellites.

Rockets Hope Shooting Will Overcome Height

Outside shooting will hold the key to the Redstone Rocket hopes when the Third Army basketball championship opens late this month at Ft. Rucker.

The absence of any real big men to handle the rebounding chores will put a crimp in the local attack, but Bill Hiser is hopeful of making up for the lack of height with constant shooting from the outside.

"We have the shooters in Mike Stuart, Bob Murphy and H. C. Duncan to play our style of game," Hiser commented, "and if they are hitting, the other guys will have to come out after us."

This would provide an opportunity for Bob Lechowicz and Harvey Spencer to operate under the boards.

Stuart has bombed away at better than 30 points per game for the Military Police this year while Murphy is hitting an average of 20 points an outing for the Officers. Duncan has been almost as productive for the Medics.

Spencer, from C Company, Lechowicz, another MP, and Duncan are the tallest Rockets at 6-3 while Stuart stretches out to 6-2. Most of the rest of the players that Hiser will call on are less than six feet.

Other cagers seeking places on the team include, Frank Wilson and Vern Bonlander, of C Company, Kim Carstensen of Third ETC, and Frank Johnson, star of the Support Command.

The Rockets have just started working out as a team and dropped their opening game last week against the Florence Falcons, 101-79.

The tall Florence five had too much height for the locals and controlled both boards. The Rockets did most of their shooting ten to twenty feet away, turning in a very commendable 49 per cent accuracy.

However, their inability to get rebounds brought on their downfall. They were limited to one shot almost every time they came down the floor while the taller Florence team was taking three and four on many occasions.

Two of their big men, Monty Gooch and Leon Crowe, hit for 27 and 24 points respectively, and Steve Alvis tossed in 15. Stuart hit on 11 of 15 shots from the outside to lead the Rockets with 25 while Murphy collected 15 and Duncan added 13 more.

Hiser said that the next game will be played Tuesday evening when the Huntsville Swishers provide the opposition in a 7:30 game at the Post Gym.

Commodore Or General? Either Title Is Right

One sure way to detect the coming of Spring is to watch the vernal stirrings of members of the Redstone Arsenal Yacht Club.

About this time each year business picks up at the four warehouses where Yacht Club members store their craft. The weekend calm is broken by the sounds of sanding, painting, polishing and scouring.

The Yacht Club is an institution that's unique in several respects. For one thing, its leader is perhaps the only General in the Army who is also a Commodore.

He is Brig. Gen. Clarence C. Harvey, Jr., Deputy Commanding General of the Army Missile Command for Air Defense Systems. As far as the club is concerned Gen. Harvey is also Commodore Harvey, the highest elected official of the club.

The Commodore's flag ship is a 24-foot outboard cabin cruiser which represents a compromise to his other rank as General. His previous boat, a 28-foot wooden craft with an inboard motor, proved a little too cumbersome to move when he changed stations.

Recently the warehouses were chocked with 113 boats belonging to club members. All were of the 25-foot or less class. The larger cruisers are kept in floating storage.

Pulled together trailer hitch to taillight they would stretch out to more than 1,900 feet of burnished aluminum, polished plywood, melow mahogany and featherlight fiberglass.

Placed in the water all at once they would churn up waves with an accumulated 8,600 horsepower—not counting, of course, a single sailboat.

The club was first formed in July of 1959 and was duly registered with Lloyds of London as one of the world's yacht clubs. It has since grown to a membership of 142 boaters exclusive of their wives and children, most of whom regard the family boat in the same light as the family auto.

While the term "yacht" was originally applied to fast ships used to chase down pirates, the Redstone Yacht Club's pursuits are of a less sanguine nature. In addition to being dedicated to the recreation of its members, the club also engages in various water safety programs which the members themselves religiously practice. No Yacht Club boat is supposed to take to the water without all the necessary Coast Guard approved safety gear.

Many of the members, like General/Commodore Harvey, carry their enthusiasm beyond boating. Many are water skiers, swimmers and divers who use self-contained underwater breathing apparatus (scuba divers) for sport.

Redstone Arsenal is a natural place for a yacht club because the Tennessee River forms its southern boundary and is nearly a half-mile wide at that point. Floating weekends for the members may see them running up the river to Chattanooga which requires not only the stamina for an 8-hour boat ride, but also the negotiation of locks at two TVA dams.

The slate of officers of the Yacht Club is divided between Army personnel and civilians who either work for the government or with contractor firms doing business on the Arsenal. These officers are: General Harvey, Commodore; Roy B. Southworth, Vice Commodore; Major John Kminek, Rear Commodore; Don Howard, Secretary; 1st Lt. Larry Martin, Master of Arms; and 1st Lt. William Moeller, Treasurer. On the Board of Directors are James Yates, Russell Mitchell, Brooks Grimme and Major Arthur W. Brochu.

With their boats in gleaming shape the Club's first event this year will be an open house, boat show and banquet for members on March 5.

GENERAL BECOMES COMMODORE—When Brig. Gen. Clarence C. Harvey, Jr., of the Army Missile Command climbs into the cockpit of this cabin cruiser he becomes a Commodore. That is, he is Commodore of the Redstone Arsenal Yacht Club. Though he is shown here in non-nautical dress, the General heads a yacht club with more than 140 members. During the workweek he is Deputy Commanding General of the Missile Command for Air Defense Systems.

Officers Knock Police Off The Unbeaten List

The unbeaten list of Unit Level basketball teams was reduced to two last week as the Officers sent the Military Police spinning to the sideline with a stinging 71-48 setback.

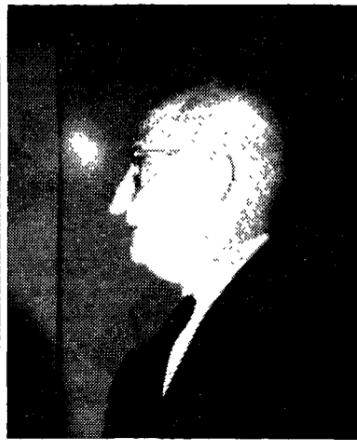

The loss by the defending league champions left their conquerors and C Company with the only spotless slates among the 14 league teams. The two leaders, each with seven straight wins, will get together later this month.

Bob Murphy led the Officers assault that built up a 42-22 half time lead against the cold Policemen. The Officers used the long lead to their advantage by playing a control type game in the second half.

Murphy tossed in 31 points for the winners and Bill Lenzi added 18 more. Mike Stuart was the whole show for the Military Police, accounting for 35 of their points.

Stuart duplicated his output two nights later, but this time it was in a winning effort as the Police took a 64-45 win over Fourth ETC. Hezekiah Thomas led the Fourth attack with 18 points.

FAREWELL - Walter Willisson recently retired after more than 30 years of Federal Service. He was working in the Army Missile Command Procurement and Production Directorate when he completed his career, but had served in the Navy and worked at the Naval Gun Factory in Washington, D. C. and at the Navy Engineering Experiment Station at Annapolis, Md.

The win was the seventh for the Policemen against the one loss.

The fifth place Medics hung up their fifth win against a pair of losses when they hung a 43-22 defeat on the Third ETC.

Leading by a single point at the half, 19-18, the Medics scored 14 straight points following the intermission. The Third found their goal almost completely sealed and could score only two field goals in the final 20 minutes of play.

H. C. Duncan led the Medics with 18 while Kim Carstensen had eight for the Third.

In other games last week the Support Command took a 62-53-win over Third ETC and Headquarters, STC, outstalled First ETC for a 39-32 victory.

Floyd Johnson was the high scorer for the Support Command with 25, one more than Carstensen tossed in for the Third. Tom Werth led STC with 19 and Dick Greenhoward hit 11 for the First.

Toastmistresses Begin '66 By Turning New Leaf

The Huntsville Toastmistress Club had its first meeting for the new year, Wednesday evening at the Russel Erskine Hotel. The president, Miss Marian Hocker set the stage for the evening theme "A New Leaf" by turning the Calendar to 1966. Invocation was given by Mrs. Sid Stein.

President Hocker presided over the business session which included appointment of new member Mrs. Helmut Krenn to the Program and Education Committee and Mrs. Fran Havernick to the Membership Committee. The Program Committee chaired by Miss Dolli Wiginton was also assigned to serve as this year's Speech Contest Committee. Speech contests which culminate at the International level begin here on February 2nd.

Mrs. John H. Haire led the table topics, soliciting from four of the members enlightening discussion on their New Years resolutions. Mrs. Sid Stein was voted best topic speaker.

Mrs. Jack N. McConaha served as toastmistress for the evening. The program included an autobiography by Mrs. Mignonne Groetsinger and an educational speech by Miss Nell Curtis. Mrs. Wayne Gough led a panel discussion on "The Value of New Leaves." Panel Members were Mrs. R. M. Coulter, Mrs. Enock S.

Nilsson, Mrs. Rhoda K. Stambough and Mrs. Gervaise L. Wyss. Participation was also solicited from members. The panel also evaluated the evening's speakers. Mrs. Enoch Nilsson was awarded the best speaker's cup.

Tellers were Miss Dolli Wiginton and Mrs. M. Coulter. Timer was Mrs. Clyde J. Wilson.

Guest of the evening was Mrs. Larry Landman.

The next regular meeting will be Jan. 19.

Symphony Presents Second Concert Of Current Season

Sidney Harth was violinist guest soloist with the Huntsville Civic Symphony Jan. 8 and 9 in Huntsville High School Auditorium.

Huntsville Civic Symphony, under the direction of Russell Gerhart, is presenting its second series of double concerts of the 1965-66 season.

Harth played Tchaikowsky's "Concerto for Violin and Orchestra." The program included "Chaconne in E Minor" (Buxtehude-Chavez), "Lieutenant Kiji" (Prokofieff) and three excerpts from "Die Meistersinger": "Introduction to Act 3," "Dance of the Apprentices" and "Procession of the Mastersingers."

Harth combines a career as Head of the Department of Music at the Carnegie Institute of Technology with tours in the U.S. and abroad. Harth graduated from Cleveland Institute of Music, studying with Joseph Knitzer. Concertmaster activities with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra were preceded by the concertmaster position with the Louisville Orchestra during the contemporary commissioning series endowed by the Rockefeller Foundation.

He has appeared as soloist with the New York Philharmonic, Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Minneapolis orchestras, etc. For the past seven years, he has appeared as concertmaster with the Casals Festival Orchestra. He has been named "Man of the Year in Music for Significant Contributions" by the Pittsburgh Seven Lively Arts Committee.

The New York Times praised Harth by stating "Sidney Harth, the American violinist who gave a recital at Town Hall last night may very well be the ideal personification of the modern violinists this country has produced." After a Carnegie Hall appearance in 1963, the New York Times wrote "Harth has forged into the front rank of the world's violinists."

Prior to coming to Huntsville, he had at least 22 performances—including conducting—this season.

TOUR PLANNED

A tour of the IBM facility in Huntsville's Research Park will highlight the monthly meeting of the Rocket City Chapter of the Society of Packaging and Handling Engineers, Monday evening, Jan. 17.

The meeting will be held at the IBM facility opening with a dinner at 6:30. In addition to the tour, the Most cars are as uncontroversial as mashed potatoes. Not this Volkswagen Station Wagon. People either love it or hate it.

How do you feel about its boxy body? Its flat roof? Its bus-like shape? Do you know these allow it to carry more than the biggest conventional station wagon? And still be 4 feet shorter? And miles easier to park?

Does it seem odd that the VW is the only wagon with 23 windows and a sun-roof? Do you know what a tremendous view this gives you? That you see more sky and skyline than in any other car, except a convertible with the top down?

Why can you order a VW wagon with seats that include a center aisle? Do you know that this lets you walk straight back to the kids from the front seat? In case they cry or quarrel or get the million ills that kids are heir to?

Does the Volkswagen Station Wagon seem such a strange automobile to you now?

Or does it make a busload of sense?

Col. McGinnis Addresses Class

Missilemen should take the same pride in their work that ancient craftsmen applied to their trade, suggested Col. Eugene J. McGinnis last Friday to the 103 graduates of the U. S. Army Missile and Munitions Center and School.

Col. McGinnis, is deputy to the Deputy Commanding General, Land Combat Systems, U. S. Army Missile Command. He emphasized that the missile technician of today, as did the ancient guild member, must strive for perfection.

In addressing the group of graduates from the Republic of China, Germany, Belgium, Korea, Japan, Philippines, and the U.S., he termed these nations as "a group united for the common cause of peace."

Col. McGinnis urged the large audience not to let the role of support troops be taken for granted. He explained how his tour of duty in Viet Nam had shown vividly the need for the important job of support.

Col. McGinnis further commented on the exceptional growth of the Missile and Munitions Center and School. He recalled that before its inception there was doubt if missiles would prove of military value, but that the 39,000 graduates and $165,000,000 plant of the Center are proof to the contrary.

Staff Sgt. Robert T. Potts received the Army's highest scholastic award by winning the Association of the U. S. Army plaque for having maintained a cumulative grade average of 96% or better. Mr. Robert S. Kinch, who is deputy chief of the Office of Operations at the School, represented the Tennessee Valley Chapter of the AUSA and presented the award.

Honor graduates were: Capt. Takeshi Ito, Japan Ground Self Defense Force, in Hawk Maintenance Supervision; Pvt. Stephen R. Brown in the Nike Launcher Control Repair course; Specialist-5 Charles C. Foshee in the Ballistic Missile Inertial Guidance and Control Repair (Sergeant) course; Pvt. Chester R. Heath in the Ammunition Records course; Pvt. Charles R. Rosenberg in Section 4 of the Ammunition Storage course; and in Section 3 of the Ammunition Storage course, Pvt. Thomas F. Cipriano was top man.

DR. M. SCOTT MYERS

Dr. Myers To Talk To Administrators

The head of Management Research and Development for Texas Instruments Inc., Dallas, Tex., is scheduled to speak twice at Redstone Arsenal next week.

He is Dr. M. Scott Myers, an industrial psychologist. Dr. Myers will speak to the Society for Personnel Administration at the Redstone Officers' Open Mess on the evening of Jan. 18.

The following morning he will speak to the Commander's Staff of the Army Missile Support Command.

Dr. Myers received his doctorate in industrial psychology from Purdue University and has been associated with Hughes Aircraft Co., the University of California, the University of Tehran, Iran, and the U.S. Government Affairs Institute.

Joe Foss, presently commissioner of the American Football League, became an "ace" during his tour on Guadalcanal. The Marine Corps Major shot down 23 enemy aircraft during a 40-day period. (AFPS)

FIRE DISTRIBUTION EYES AND EARS—Dr. Nicholas A. Begovich (center), Vice-President and Assistant Group Executive, Ground Systems Group of Hughes Aircraft, points out some of the features of the new AN/TSQ-51 Fire Distribution System being developed by his company for the U.S. Army under supervision of the U.S. Army Missile Command. He presented the scale model of the system to Brig. Gen. Clarence C. Harvey, Jr., (right), Deputy Commanding General for Air Defense Systems. George Cokas, Manager of Hughes Data Processing Products Division, accompanied Dr. Begovich on his visit to Redstone Arsenal. The AN/TSQ-51 system is being developed under the technical direction of the Missile Command's Air Defense Fire Distribution Office. It functions with radars for surface-to-air missiles, such as Hawk and Nike Hercules. The system is expected to reduce costs up to 75 percent in operation and maintenance over existing systems.

THIS IS REDEYE—Maj. Gen. John G. Zierdt (left), Commanding General of the Army Missile Command, shows a model of the Army's Redeye air defense missile system to Swedish Brig. Gen. Gunnar R. G. Grenander. As Director of Army Weapons, Royal Swedish Army Materiel Command, General Grenander visited Redstone Arsenal recently for briefings on Redeye and Hawk air defense systems.

Major Stewart Receives 'Kitty Hawk' Memorial

FORT SILL, OKLA. — A Viet Nam veteran new at Fort Sill, Maj. Harvey E. Stewart, recently received the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce "Kitty Hawk Memorial Award" as Military Aviator of the Year. He also received the Distinguished Service Flying Cross during the same ceremony, America's second highest award.

He is the first Army pilot ever to be chosen for the Kitty Hawk award. Last year's military winner was a Navy pilot who had lost both legs in a jet crash and came back to requalify for flying status after being fitted with two artificial limbs.

The award is one of two given annually by the organization in commemoration of the Wright Brothers' first flight at Kitty Hawk on Dec. 17, 1903. The other award goes to a civilian pilot.

Maj. Stewart was chosen over other military pilots for his combat record in the Viet Nam War. He flew over 700 combat missions during a period of 10 months while commander of the 118th Aviation Company. Before he went to Viet Nam, he was with the aviation section of the Transportation Division at Redstone.

The 118th set countless combat and flying records while under Maj. Stewart's command, including a world record for flying over 2600 hours during a one-month period.

During the 1965 summer visit of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to Viet Nam, Maj. Stewart was selected to fly McNamara and his official party in one of the unit's HUEY helicopters.

Now with the Artillery Aviation Command here, Maj. Stewart, during his Viet Nam combat tour, was awarded 21 clusters to his Air Medal previously earned during aerial combat flight in Korea. He also was awarded the Bronze Star and Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster for wounds received in Viet Nam. In addition, Maj. Stewart was awarded the Soldiers Medal for a daring rescue in the South China Seas of four South Vietnamese. The government of Viet Nam has decorated Maj. Stewart twice, once with the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry with Silver Star and again with its Cross of Gallantry with Palm. In further recognition of his exploits, Maj. Stewart has been recommended for the Silver Star and two Distinguished Flying Crosses. The 37-year-old officer was stationed at Bien Hoa, just northeast of Saigon. It was one of the first bases hit by the Viet Cong mortars. The mission of the 118th was to support the III Vietnamese Corps, and the major says, "We flew twice as many missions as other aviation companies and had twice as many casualties." (In his 10-month tour the 118th lost 23 men in action and had over 100 injuries.)

The 118th was in the thick of many of this year's big battles with the North Vietnamese. The airmobile unit participated in the January fight at Bien Gia, Duc Hoa and the July 10-12 battle at Dong Xuan, up the coast 240 miles northeast of Saigon.

"It was the jungle battle up on the edge of the foothills. We were coming in with the 7th Regiment of the 5th Vietnamese Division and with the American 52d Rangers and the 7th Battalion of the 1st Air-borne Division. First the 118th evacuated the post and then came back and led the air assault to retake the post. It was the largest battle of the war up to then and we came out of it with about 600 VC casualties," the major said.

"The dedication and bravery demonstrated by the American soldier is astounding," he said. "I'd forgotten just how well-trained the American soldier is. I saw one of my young gunners shot up pretty bad by machine gun fire who wouldn't quit. He stayed right at his gun and kept firing. These men are risking their lives for the Vietnamese."

Once, Maj. Stewart escaped when he and only a skeleton of a helicopter and no instruments after anti-aircraft fire struck his ship.

Award ceremonies for Maj. Stewart were Saturday at the Beverley Hilton Hotel, Beverley Hills, Calif. Actor Donald O'Connor was master of ceremonies and Gen. John K. Waters, Commanding General, United States Army, Pacific, the featured speaker.

Sharing the spotlight with Maj. Stewart was Pan American Airways pilot captain Charles H. Kimes, who brought in safely a fully-loaded passenger jet with severe wing damage.

Maj. Stewart was graduated from Jacksonville State College, Alabama in 1951. His wife is the former Travis Stricklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Stricklin of Oneonta, Alabama. The Stewarts have a son, 13 and a daughter, 11.

Frampton Enrolls In Harvard School

JESSE FRAMPTON

Boston, Mass.—To keep pace with the knowledge explosion changing the face and requirements of business, Jesse Frampton, Chief, Review and Analysis Branch, Army Missile Command, is going back to school for intensive training in the middle management development course at the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration.

He is one of approximately 70 young executives from this country and several foreign nations accepted for the 11th session of the Program for Management Development (PMD) at Harvard Business School starting Jan. 17. The 16-week course, one of two executive development programs offered twice each academic year by the Harvard Business School to meet the needs of modern business leadership, will end with graduation ceremonies on May 6.

PDM is designed to enlarge the horizons and capacities of young business managers who currently fill responsible positions at the operating level, who have demonstrated outstanding ability in a functional field or speciality and who give evidence of high leadership potential.

The program for Management Development was initiated in 1960 to supplement in the middle management area the School's older Advanced Management Program to help business achieve continuity in management development in the face of the mounting challenge of change and competition.

PMD participants, who average 34 years of age and 10 years of business or administration experience, all are sponsored by their companies or agencies as individuals of demonstrated promise. Approximately 65 per cent of the class are from a variety of United States firms from virtually every business function and industry. About 20 per cent are enrolled from foreign countries, while about 15 per cent represented the federal government, both military and civilian.

Thomas Heads Research, Laboratories For AMC

Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor today announced the appointment of Dr. Jay Tol Thomas as Director of Research and Laboratories, U. S. Army Materiel Command (AMC) headquarters, Washington, D. C.

Filling the newly created position after broad experience with industry and educational institutions, Dr. Thomas will be a Deputy to Gen. Frank S. Besson, Jr., Commanding General, U.S. Army Materiel Command. He will have complete authority over AMC's eight independent laboratories and staff responsibility for the work performed by the laboratories of AMC's major subordinate commands.

Throughout his career Dr.

Thomas has been affiliated with industrial companies in the research and development field. From 1951 to 1960 he served as physicist with the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours Central Research Laboratories, Baird Associates, and Sylvania Division of General Telephone and Electronics Corporation. In 1960 he became Director of Engineering for Honeywell, Inc., and in 1962 was appointed General Manager, Lear-Siegler Research Laboratories. Immediately prior to his appointment as AMC's Director of Research and Laboratories, he served as Chief Scientist and Director of Research for Northrop Space Laboratories, Hawthorne, Calif.
