FORCES ARMED DAY SET

Paradrops, Displays Parades Are Scheduled

All roads lead to Redstone Arsenal but, for most people, they end at the boundary of this 40,000-acre reservation where the Army's missile and rocket programs are centered. For at least one weekend a year this doesn't hold true and that weekend is almost here.

Saturday is Armed Forces Day and the Army at Redstone is planning two days of activities in observance of this day set aside in honor of the men and women who wear the uniforms of the United States military. Gates will be swung open to the public both Saturday and Sunday, and more than 50,000 people in North Alabama and Southern Middle Tennessee are expected to accept the invitation to visit the Arsenal.

The Army will flex its "Power for Peace" muscles in a variety of exhibits and demonstrations at the Army Missile Display Area on Patton Road and the Redstone Airstrip. The public can see them Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m., and Sunday from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m.

To aid visitors in reaching the two areas, series of green and red arrow signs are being erected along the major approaches to the Arsenal. Red arrows will lead to the Missile Display Area, and Green arrows will point to the Airstrip.

Local Armed Forces Day activities will get underway at 9:30 Saturday morning with a parade through downtown Huntsville. Making up the parade will be more than 2,000 troops, a dozen high (See AF DAY on Page 2)

Army Gives R&D Awards To Civilians

Eleven Department of Army civilians and an employee of the Rohm and Haas Company were recognized for their outstanding contributions to the Army's research effort in an awards ceremony at Redstone Arsenal. One of the awards was made posthumously.

Maj. Gen. John G. Zierdt, Commanding General of the Army Missile Command presented each of the Civil Service employees with the Missile Command's Scientific and Engineering Achievement Award. Dr. Henry Shuey, of the Rohm and Haas Company, was cited with a Department of Army Certificate for Patriotic Civilian Service.

Mrs. James Dearman accepted an Achievement Award for her late husband who died following a heart attack last month. William Otto was cited with a similar award although he was not present for the ceremony.

Both of these men made significant contributions to the laser program in its application to cancer research along with William McKnight and Ralph Hawkins.

The award to Dr. Shuey together with Achievement Awards that were made to William Walker and Edward Dobbins cited their individual work on the propulsion system of the Redeye guided missile.

Billy Crosswhite was recognized for his outstanding scientific and engineering contributions concerning the propulsion of the Lance system, and Earl Edmondson was cited in the development of the highly successful Shillelagh system.

The other three civilians honored were Charles Hussey, Deputy Chief and Technical Director of the Future Missile Systems Division, Arthur Poe, a research mathematician, and Alfred Harper, Chief of the ALTAIR Office of the Research and Development Director (See R&D AWARDS on Page 2)

School Seeks Electronics Instructors

The U. S. Army Missile & Munitions Center & School is seeking 307 civilians to fill newly authorized positions on the staff and faculty, Col. Erwin M. Graham, Jr., Commandant, announced.

The Missile & Munitions Center & School is a $70,000,000 institution with a faculty of 800 persons. It annually trains about 7,000 missile maintenance and ammunition specialists for duty with the Armed Forces of the U. S. and 22 foreign nations. It currently is operating on two shifts a day.

Most of the positions are in the hard-to-fill category of Training Instructor (Electronics). Many of these positions are open at the GS-5 level; some at the GS-7 and GS-9 levels. All offer Civil Service career opportunities, Col. Graham said.

PROUD MOMENT—Mrs. James R. Dearman and children, Jan, and James Jr. accept posthumously conferred 1965 MICOM Scientific and Engineering Achievement award honoring achievements of the late James R. Dearman in development of a laser device for surgical treatment of cancer. Ten other major awards were made last week during the honors ceremony by Maj. Gen. John G. Zierdt.

Department Of Defense Honors John McDaniel

The highest Department of Defense award a civilian can receive was presented last week to John L. McDaniel, Technical Director of the Research and Development Directorate at the U. S. Army Missile Command.

He received the Distinguished Civilian Service Award in a ceremony at the Pentagon in Washington, D. C. Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor and Dr. John S. Foster, Director of Defense Research and Engineering, made the presentation. Among the host of people present were Congressman Bob Jones of Alabama and General Frank S. Besson, Jr., Commanding General, Army Materiel Command.

McDaniel was one of two Army civilians who received the Distinguished Civilian Service Award and the only one from the Materiel Command, parent agency of the Missile Command. Only six of the awards are made each year in competition open to the Defense Department's 1,000,000 civilian employees.

The citation accompanying McDaniel's award reads in part:

"His key role in the establishment of the Army Inertial Guidance and Control Center, the development of a major radar target program, the organization of the Army laser program and the development of new weapon systems concepts have contributed greatly to the defense of the nation and warrant recognition at the highest level of the Department of Defense."

Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama was host at a breakfast in the Senate (See McDaniel on Page 2)

THE WHITE HOUSE ARMED FORCES DAY

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATE OF AMERICA
A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS the safety of our cherished freedom rests in large measure upon the capabilities of our Armed Forces to forestall totalitarian aggression; and

WHEREAS the Armed Forces of the United States serve as a unified team, at home and at outposts throughout the world, insuring our own security and the security of our friends abroad, and fostering the settlement of international differences by peaceful processes; and

WHEREAS enlightened understanding and unstinting support of our Armed Forces by an informed American people are vital to the strength and vigor of our Armed Forces; and

WHEREAS our soldiers, sailors, airmen, marines, and coastguardsmen, from whom we ask so much, are the cornerstone of our military might and richly deserve to have a special day set aside in their honor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, LYNDON B. JOHNSON, President of the United States of America and Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces of the United States, do hereby proclaim the third Saturday of May in 1965 and the third Saturday in May each succeeding year as Armed Forces Day.

ate Dining Room for Huntsville people in Washington for the ceremony. Those attending included Mrs. McDaniel, John W. McDanel, a son; Brig. Gen. Edwin I. Donley, Deputy Commanding General for Land Combat Systems at the Missile Command; and Lt. Col. Robert M. Pearce, Director of the Missile Command's Research and Development Directorate.

McDaniel, 47, is a native of Guin, Ala. He came to this sprawling military reservation in 1941 shortly after it had its beginning as two Army installations. For several years he was associated with the Army Chemical Corps' Redstone Arsenal, which had the mission of assembling explosives for chemical shells being manufactured across the road at the Ordnance Corps' Huntsville Arsenal. When Redstone was designated the center for research and development activities for Army rockets and guided missiles, McDaniel joined the program and has been with it since in increasingly responsible positions.

He received his preparatory education in schools at Marion and Hamilton, Ala. He graduated with honors from Berry College, Mt. Berry, Ga., in 1939 with a bachelor of science degree in chemistry. He then taught school in LaFayette, Ga., for three years.

McDaniel enlisted in the Navy in 1944, interrupting his work at Redstone for two years. At the end of World War II, he was released from active duty while serving as an instructor at the Naval Air Technical Training Center, Corpus Christi, Texas.

For two years beginning in 1949, McDaniel was Chief of the Instrument Section, Ordnance Rocket Center, at Redstone. He joined the Army Rocket and Guided Missile Agency in 1951 and, over the next nine years, served in several positions: Chief, Ballistics Section, Test and Evaluation Branch; Deputy Director, Test and Evaluation Laboratory; Chief, Design and Development Laboratory; and top advisor and consultant to the Director, Ordnance Missile Laboratories. From 1960 to 1961, he was Technical Director of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency's Research and Development Directorate.

school and college bands, and eight Army missiles and rockets.

In the three giant air-inflated domes of the Missile Display Area, visitors will be able to see exhibits which show the work of the Army's "men and missiles" team. Most of these exhibits—which are from the Army Missile Command, Army Missile Support Command, Nike-X Project Office, and Army Missile and Munitions Center and School—will be installed in the Alabama Space Science Center soon to be built in Huntsville.

The Florence State College ROTC drill team will perform at the Display Area Saturday afternoon at two, three and four o'clock.

One of the highlights of activity at the Airstrip will be parades by troops of the 20th Special Forces, Alabama National Guard. The paratroopers will be jumping out of C-119 aircraft at 1:30 and 4:30 p.m. Saturday, and at 1:30 Sunday afternoon.

The Army Scout Dog Team from Ft. Benning, Ga., will put on two demonstrations each afternoon at the Airstrip: 2:30 and 3:30 Saturday, and 2:15 and 3:45 Sunday.

To top out the variety of things to be seen on Armed Forces Day at Redstone, radio-controlled model airplane demonstrations are scheduled for 3 o'clock and 4:30 Sunday afternoon.

Following are some of the other displays which the visiting public can see at the Arsenal Airstrip:

UH-1B and UH-1D helicopters like ones being flown on missions in Vietnam.

T-33 jet trainer.

Model of the Air Force's XB-70 experimental aircraft designed to fly at altitudes above 70,000 feet at a speed of 2,000 miles per hour.

United States from 1959 to 1961. Mohawk observation plane.

Early model French Renault tank and medium U. S. Tank from the Patton Museum, Ft. Knox, Ky.

Music at the Display Area will be provided by the 55th Army Band, which is stationed at Redstone. The Huntsville Youth Band will be playing at the Airstrip. Units in the Saturday morning parade will assemble at the corner of Franklin and Gates streets. From there the 10-block route will be north to Holmes Avenue, west on Holmes to Jefferson Street, and south on Jefferson to Williams Street, where it will be disbanded.

More than 1,600 of the troops in the parade will be soldiers assigned to Redstone. Other marching units will include three Army Reserve companies from Huntsville, the Marine Corps detachment at the Army Missile & Munitions Center and School, sailors of the Naval Reserve, and the Florence State College ROTC drill team.

Military and civilian officials will view the parade from a stand ate.

In making the presentations, Gen. Zierdt referred to the Department of Defense Distinguished Civilian Service Award made to John McDaniel the day before and told the honorees. "It is fitting that those who made significant scientific and engineering contributions be recognized."

The technical director of the Missile Command's Research and Development Directorate, McDaniel went to Washington to receive one of the six such awards presented annually by the Defense Department. Only two Army civilians out of approximately 300,000 received the award.

The Commanding General said that while he would say nothing to detract from the award to Mr. McDaniel, "I am sure that others have contributed to his effort and helped him to achieve the honor."

at the various instructor levels begin with GS-5 ($5,181). This requires three years of practical and progressive experience of training in electronics which demonstrates ability to instruct or 4 years of study successfully completed in resident schools above high school level, which includes at least 24 college semester hours in education or in courses directly related to electronics.

Requirements for GS-7 positions ($6,269) are the same as those for GS-5 plus 1 year of additional experience as an instructor in electronics or one academic year of appropriate study not already used in satisfying basic requirements.

Those interested in a GS-9 ($7,479) rating must have the basic requirements as shown for GS-5 plus 2 years of experience as an instructor in electronics or a combination of a year's instructor experience in electronics and one academic year of appropriate study, not already used in satisfying basic requirements.

Individuals interested in applying for these positions should submit a complete Standard Form 57 (Application for Federal Employment, available at any Post Office or Federal Building) to Executive Officer, Inter-Agency Board, U. S. Civil Service Commission, Sutherland Building 806 Governors Drive S. W., Huntsville, Alabama.

The 307 positions were formerly held by military personnel. They are now being converted to civilian positions to release uniformed men for duty with combat and support units of the Army.

Col. Graham said the Civilian Personnel Office at Redstone Arsenal and several civic organizations will help the new instructors locate their families in Huntsville and the Tennessee Valley area. The city's population has increased from 16,000 to 140,000 in the past 15 years as the massive Redstone Arsenal missile and space complex has expanded.

Mrs. Grainger Wins Bridge Competition

Mrs. R. H. Grainger won the Thursday bridge competition among the group sponsored by the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club each week at the Officers Open Mess.

Second high scorer was Mrs. J. T. Bull. In third place was Mrs. T. L. Collins and low was Mrs. M. H. Reaves.

Mrs. Morris W. Pettit was installed as president of the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club at the May luncheon in the ballroom of the Officers Open Mess Thursday.

Election and installation was accomplished at the same meeting. Installing officer was Maj. Gen. John G. Zierdt, Commanding General of the U. S. Army Missile Command.

Others elected and installed were: Mrs. Thomas G. Ellis, Jr., vice president; Mrs. Ernest W. Davis, recording secretary; and Mrs. James P. Mooney, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Safron Canja was elected treasurer.

The hostess group for the lunch and program were wives of officers assigned in the Research and Development Directorate. Mrs. R. M. Pearce served as chairman. Her committee were Mrs. Leo Hobbs, Mrs. R. L. Trew, Mrs. D. C. Young and Mrs. Richard Miller. Mrs. S. W. Josephson and Mrs. J. T. O'keefe also assisted the committee.

Punch was served under a canopy of cherry blossoms. The cherry tree served earlier as a part of the background for a Japanese reception. The Japanese students at the U. S. Army Missile and Munitions Center and School designed the tree so that it can be assembled in a number of designs.

Jane Couchois and Leah Munson presented the advanced drama class at Huntsville High School in a Spoon River Anthology. The characters were created by Edgar Lee Masters. The cast worked with all characters on stage, without props, using voice, body movements and lights to create the small town lawyers, dreamers, soldiers, murderers, and whatnot that compose the population from any town.

The note of theater spilled over into the gold and white theme of the decorations. White chrysanthemums in golden baskets were used on the lunch tables. Streamers along the table's center ended in masks of comedy and tragedy. These were anchored to the basket handles with large bows.

Mrs. Cyril D. credited her standing committees, board of directors and members of the wives club with effectively contributing to a successful term for her as president. With her thanks, she also said that the year had been one of enjoyment and hard work.

Annual Flower Show Set By Wives Garden Club

"Floral Designs for Happy Reading" will be the title of the Redstone Arsenal Annual Flower Show to be presented under the auspices of the Garden Club on May 25 at the Officers Open Mess.

The ballroom show will be open to the public from 1:30 p.m. until 4:30 p.m. Entries should be brought to the club between 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. and late entries will not be judged. Judging will be by the standard system of awarding ribbons.

Members of the Officers Wives Club are eligible to enter floral arrangements, houseplants and cut flowers, each of the latter to be accompanied by a Coke bottle for display purposes.

Entrants must use as a guideline a copy of themes and rules obtainable from the Consultant Committee: Mrs. G. E. Carothers, 877-5069; Mrs. Melvin E. King, 877-5264; Mrs. Ronald T. Lemanski, 877-4046; Mrs. Richard L. Mitchell, 877-5838; Mrs. H. L. Solomonson Jr., 534-8832. Mrs. Arch W. Meagher, 536-3980, will be the Show Chairman.

School Wives Plan Lunch

"Wine and Roses" will be the theme of a luncheon to be held Tuesday, May 24 at the Redstone Arsenal Officers Open Mess for wives of the Army Missile and Munitions Center and School.

The event will feature a double program including a film and talk entitled "Cooking With Wines" and a special Spring musical presentation by the Choral group of the Officers Wives' Club. Champagne cocktails will be served free at noon.

Mrs. William C. Rogers will be chairman for the occasion with hostesses the wives of officers assigned to Logistics, School Troop Command, Office of the Secretary and Department of Unit

COFFEE SCHEDULED

GET READY FOR SHOW—The Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Choral Group is planning "Songs for a Summer Evening" for a show at the Redstone Officers Open Mess June 1. The Group has been singing together for about a year under the direction of Mrs. Morris W. Pettit. Their show will be open to the public.

Choral Group Schedules Songs For Summer Evening

"Songs for a Summer Evening" will be presented by the Choral Group of the Redstone Officers' Wives' Club Wednesday, June 1, at 8 p.m. in the Ballroom of the Redstone Officers' Open Mess.

Under the direction of Mrs. Morris Pettit, the group will sing a varied selection of light classics, Broadway and Hollywood show tunes, folk music and novelty numbers.

Mrs. George Kahl will accompany at the piano and Mrs. Manuel Flores at the organ. Vocal soloists to be featured include Mrs. J. P. Kirkland, Jr., Mrs. Hugo Sanford, Mrs. David Glass, and Mrs. Carl Bayer.

This performance will climax the first year for the Choral Group which was organized last fall by members of the OWC. Mrs. Pettit is a veteran choral director and both the accompanists and vocal soloists have gained recognition locally through various chapel and city musical presentations.

The public is invited to attend this performance. There will be no admission charge.

Mullins Wins Spragins Golf Tournament

Lella Mullins captured the Spragins Golf Tournament trophy during the two-day competition on the Redstone Arsenal golf course Wednesday and Thursday.

The trophy was awarded at a lunch at the Redstone Officers Open Mess Friday with Mrs. R. L. Spragins, widow of the initiator of the tournament, Maj. Gen. Spragins, ceremoniously presenting the trophy which is perpetual and inscribed with the name of the winners. It is retained in the Golf House at the Arsenal. The winners in the tournament receive silver holloware. This year, the silver pieces were trays, vegetable dishes, and a consolation candy compote.

Mullins shot a 35-37-72 to win the first flight with Betty Hayward scoring 38-37 for 75 as runner up.

In the second flight, Jeannette

Sell hit 40-36 for 76 over Jean Kirby's 40-38 to make 78.

Third flight matched Harriet Sterner against Midge Clisson with Harriet hitting 32-38 for an 80 and Midge scoring a 43-39-82 match.

The fourth flight Thursday had a three way tie broken in the rain Friday morning with Kay Lanphear sloshing in a 44-41 for 85 over Billye Fogel's 44-43 for 87.

Grace Wachsler finished the tournament with 31 putts, placing her low among the competitors.

The final match ended shortly before the Friday lunch. Tournament chairman was Irma Wiklund. Jeannette Sell was chairman for tournament rules.

The red and white lunch was served in the Hawk Room of the Mess. Approximately 50 people turned out for the event.

SPRAGINS TROPHY—Lella Mullins accepts the Spragins trophy from Marguerite Spragins, widow of the initial sponsor of the annual golf tournament, Maj. Gen. R. L. Spragins. He began sponsoring the tournament for members of the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club soon after the Golf Group was formed. The trophy is a perpetual item retained in the Golf House at the Arsenal. The winner received a pierced silver tray as her personal award from the Golf Group.

Werner Reaches Finals Of Spring Golf Tourney

Play in the annual RSA Spring Handicap Golf tournament has advanced to the third round with one golfer already owning a berth in the final round of his flight.

The semi-final round of each flight is scheduled to be completed by this coming Sunday with the flight finals the following week. The tournament champion will be decided in a match bringing together the eight flight champions.

One player who has better luck than most in scheduling his matches is Capt. John Werner who has already won three second flight matches and is awaiting an opponent for the championship match of the flight.

First flight pairings for the semi-final round have Sgt. R. MacIver pitted against PFC Steve Semple, and Maj. (ret) R. E. Smith taking on Lt. Dave Chenault.

MacIver had the toughest time getting past his second round opponent when he was forced to go an extra hole to defeat Lt. J. D. Kirby. The latter was four down after 14 holes but rallied to take the last four holes and square the match.

On the first extra hole Kirby lost his touch and took a bogie and MacIver ended it with a par.

Chenault defeated Col. W. S. Grabowski, 2 and 1, and Smith downed TSgt (ret) J. Korczyk by the same margin. Semple shot his way past Lt. Col. (ret) R. R. Javins with a 3 and 2 advantage.

CIVILIANS OPEN SOFTBALL SEASON

Twelve teams set to pry the lid off the 1966 Civilian Welfare Softball season this week if the weatherman is in the mood to cooperate with the schedule.

The league season, being played for the first time at the Civilian Recreation Area was to have opened on Monday night but a heavy downpour washed out the initial openers. Four more teams were scheduled to make another try on Tuesday with the remaining four squads hoping to get going tomorrow evening.

One game is scheduled on each of the fields on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays starting at 5:15. When the lights and outfield fences are ready the scheduling will be doubled up, according to Julian Williams, the league president.

Organizations represented in the league this year are: Finance and Accounting, Pershing, Data Processing, Computation Center, Nike-X Guidance & Control Lab, Propulsion Lab, Communications, Comptroller & Director of Programs Documentation Branch, Procurement & Production and Structures & Mechanics Lab.

Efforts to line up for teams to play in the women's division of the Civilian League have not met with much success. However, Williams indicated that the attempt will be continued, at least for the present.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE IN REAL DANGER

Reassignments have again cut into the ranks of the available officials for the Unit Level softball and baseball programs leaving the rosters in a badly depleted condition.

At the present time there are only five umpires available, according to Irv Lyles of the Special Services staff. Four of these are required at a time for softball, and this only allows for two officials per game.

"We are in had need for more umpires," Lyles said, "and we need them right away." He added that anyone interested in signing up as umpires for the remainder of the season should contact the Sports Department at 876-2501.

Also in the needed category is a manager for the Support Command baseball team. Lyles was planning to handle the job himself, but his orders for reassignment changed his plans.

The veteran recreation specialist will leave Redstone early in June to go to Vietnam.

He said that if additional umpires are not found immediately that the summer sports program will be in danger. "We just can't go along much longer without several more officials," Lyles said.

BEGINNERS COMPETE

Wednesday, while the Spragins tournament was being played by the Golf Group of the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club, beginners held a five-hole tournament of their own on the Arsenal course.

Winner was Agnes Rael with Anne Koontz scoring low putts.

Former Corps Of Engineer Chief To Be Speaker Here

A former Corps of Engineers officer who directed much of the construction work at Redstone during the 50s will be the guest speaker for the monthly meeting of the Society of American Military Engineers Thursday evening.

He is Col. Harry L. Fox, (ret) national director of the Society.

He will speak on "The SAME Today."

The meeting will be held at the Officers Open mess opening with a social hour at 6:30.

While still on active duty with the Army, Col. Fox was the district engineer for the Mobile District, Corps of Engineers, and supervised a considerable amount of the construction work that was consummated here from 1952 until 1955.

TOW Missilemen Begin Three Day Conference

Missilemen who are developing the Army's TOW anti-tank missile system today began a three-day meeting at the U. S. Army Missile Command to examine the prototype system design and to determine its readiness for more advanced development testing.

Brig. Gen. Edwin I. Donley, Deputy Commanding General for Land Combat Systems, welcomed the conferees this morning and delivered the keynote address for the TOW prototype in process review.

Among those attending are representatives from most of the Army agencies concerned with the TOW program as well as personnel from system's prime contractor, the Combat Developments Command and the U. S. Marine Corps. The Missile Command TOW Project Office is sponsoring the review. Lt. Col. Ballard B. Small, TOW Project Officer, is the program chairman.

"We will take a close look at the TOW systems and resolve any problem areas prior to entering further advanced test phases," the Army said. Conclusions will be forwarded to the Department of the Army, with recommendations on the future phasing of the program. Now in advanced production engineering, TOW is being developed for infantry troops to use against tanks or field fortifications. Combining a lethal warhead with high accuracy at both close and long ranges, it will be effective against moving or stationary targets.

In demonstration tests at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., TOW gunners have scored direct hits on tanks more than a mile away.

In operation, the TOW gunner obtains a telescopic sight picture of the target, then launches the missile which follows his line of sight. For moving targets, the gunner tracks the target with his sight, thus generating signals that correct the missile's course.

Hughes Aircraft Company is system prime contractor.

Civilians Will Receive Payroll Checks by Mail

Improved service with reduced costs will result from the exclusive pay-by-mail system that becomes effective at Redstone on June 1 for the distribution of civilian payroll checks.

Starting that date all civilian payroll checks will be mailed along with the corresponding earnings statements according to the direction of the individual worker. The checks and statements will be mailed either to the employee's home address or to a savings institution of his choice.

In announcing the new system, Lt. Col. Milton Jones, the MICOM Finance and Accounting officer, said that, "All banks and savings institutions in the immediate area have been briefed on the new system and have agreed to insure immediate distribution of the leave statements along with the deposit slips."

The payroll checks and leave statements will be mailed according to the instructions supplied by each worker on the SMI Forms 1094.

For the majority of the Redstone civilians, the new system will be a continuation of the present practice with the exception of the earnings statement. Checks have been mailed at the election of the individual worker for several years and at the present time approximately 60 per cent of the Arsenal civilians are getting their checks by this method.

All leave statements have been distributed along with the remainder of the checks through the messenger service.

By going into an exclusive distribution service utilizing the mails, according to Col. Jones, the individual worker will be benefitted in several ways, and the entire operation will provide for a large savings to the government.

In enumerating the benefits to be derived, Col. Jones said, "The new system will make for faster service with less lag time between the date earned and payment, will necessitate less handling by third parties and will eliminate the hold up of payment due to leave or temporary duty travel."

The pay-by-mail systems is not new in the Department of Defense. It has been in operation at a number of installations for as long as ten years, and has gained widespread acceptance by the civilian personnel.

and retired military personnel can have their insurance payments deducted from their monthly pay checks. The extended coverage and the deduction plan will apply to all the 125 chapters of the Association and their 90,000 members throughout the world.

Dr. Frederik S. Schultz, president of the local chapter and chief of Huntsville operations for General Electric Co., said the free insurance announcement "comes at an opportune time because we are now conducting our annual membership drive and hoping to enroll 5,000 members to retain our position as the largest AUSA chapter."

The low-cost term insurance was developed by the AUSA especially for military personnel on active service. However, it is also available to all members of the AUSA, military or civilian, including wives or relatives who wish to join.

The insurance provides all-risk protection in case of death from any cause, including war, Dr. Schultz said, noting that many insurance policies do not cover mortality in combat areas.

The insurance also includes full coverage for paratroopers at all times but does reduce payments by 50 percent to aviation crew members and observers if death occurs while operating officially in a military aircraft.

Another feature of the insurance, Dr. Schultz said, is that it can be extended to cover wives

COLONEL DOOLEY CITED—Col. Edward M. Dooley, SAM-D Project Manager, Monday was presented with the Legion of Merit for his service to the Nike Zeus and Nike-X anti-missile missile projects. The award was presented by Col. I. O. Drewry, Nike-X Project Manager. Col. Dooley was cited for his contributions to the projects from August 1961 to January 1966 during which time he was successively Senior Project Representative at the Kwajalein Test Site and the Project Manager's Senior Staff Officer at the Headquarters of the Army Materiel Command. Here Mrs. Dooley admires her husband's new medal just presented by Col. Drewry behind them.

Col. Dooley Presented Top Award

Col. Edward M. Dooley who organized the Army's anti-missile missile project office at Redstone Arsenal eight years ago and stayed with the program until early this year Monday was awarded the Legion of Merit for "performance of outstanding services" to the project.

Col. Dooley is now Project Manager for the SAM-D air defense missile system, another highly advanced project underway at Redstone Arsenal.

The Legion of Merit, which is awarded by the President of the United States, was presented by Col. I. O. Drewry, Nike-X Project Manager.

The anti-missile missile office which Col. Dooley organized later became the Nike Zeus project office and then the Nike-X office.

Col. Dooley was cited for his services from 1961 until January of this year. During that time he was successively senior representative at the Kwajalein Test Site, the Nike-X Project's Senior Staff Officer at Headquarters, U. S. Army Materiel Command.

In February he was named to head up the SAM-D (Surface-to-Air Missile — Development) program for development of an air defense system to replace the Army's Nike Hercules and Hawk air defense systems.

The Legion of Merit citation said Col. Dooley's services to the anti-missile program "represents outstanding achievements in the

Pershing Summer Firing Schedule Being Prepared

Preparations are now getting underway at Gilson Butte and Blanding, Utah, for a series of Pershing missile firings scheduled for this summer.

Personnel and technicians from White Sands Missile Range are preparing launch pads, roads, instrumentation sites and doing other work that will be required for the firings at both sites.

Pershing, capable of delivering a nuclear warhead on target ranging from 100 to 400 nautical miles, is the Army's longest range ballistic missile. The two-stage, solid-propellant weapon is in operation with troops in the United States and Europe.

Management of the Pershing system is from the Army Missile Command, where Carl A. Pinyerd is Acting Project Manager.

The missiles fired from the Utah sites will be programmed to impact on White Sands.

To support the firings, White Sands technicians will move two radars from Ft. Wingate Army Depot in New Mexico to new locations in Utah.

OFFICER BECOMES MAJOR GENERAL

A former Deputy Commanding General of the Army Missile Command has been promoted to Major General in Vietnam.

The second star was awarded to Charles W. Eifler who is Commanding General of the 1st Logistical Command. Making the promotion was Lt. Gen. Jean E. Engler, Deputy Commander of the U. S. Army, Vietnam.

Gen. Eifler, who commanded the Missile Command's Land Combat Systems at Redstone Arsenal prior to his assignment to Southeast Asia in January, heads the 27,000 man logistical force that channels military supplies into the hands of Free World forces in five-sixths of Vietnam.

Policy Is Liberalized For Engineer Commission

Graduate engineers can now be appointed as captains in the Army's Signal and Engineer Corps for two-year active duty appointments to meet the senior service's engineer officer shortages.

To encourage more applicants for direct appointment, a waiver of up to two years in qualifying experience will be granted. Engineers with a minimum of five years experience may now apply for a commission. They should apply to the nearest Army Recruiting Station or the U.S. Army Reserve Training Centers for assistance.

In addition, each year of graduate education may be counted as a year of qualifying experience.

MEET AUSA GOAL—The Control Office of the U.S. Army Missile Support Command is the first in the Support Command to reach the projected Association of the U.S. Army membership drive goal. Examining the chart displayed by Lt. Col. T. H. Creighton and Sylvia Weyandt are (left to right) Sadie Lowe, Chris Houk and Sarah Malaspini, all staff members of the Control Office. One other area of the Support Command is within one member of reaching the goal.

Membership Drive Shows Upward Thrust For AUSA

With the membership applications beginning to come in at a faster pace, the membership campaign being waged by the Association of the U.S. Army has been extended through the end of the month, according to John Muller, membership chairman of the Tennessee Valley Chapter.

An influx of applications received last week boosted the current membership to approximately 2,500. Although this is just the half way point, Chapter officials are still confident that the pre-drive expectations will be reached.

Much of the optimism stems from the 502 new members that have been added to the Chapter rolls since the start of the drive.

The Chapter membership was in excess of 3,800 when the drive opened. This indicates that a considerable number of renewals have just not been reported, according to John McDaniel, executive chairman for the drive within the Missile Command.

McDaniel's own organization, the Research and Development Directorate, showed the way for the big advance last week. The Directorate now has signed up 523 members, or 80 per cent of the goal of 661.

However, the other large organizations continue to lag far behind their goals. Procurement and Production is at 55 per cent while Supply and Maintenance and the Support Command are each at 40 per cent.

Several more of the smaller reporting units have been added to the 100 per cent category. They include the Sergeant Project Office, the Office of the Inspector General, the Office of the General Counsel, Personnel and Training, and the Office of the Deputy Commanding General for Air Defense Systems.

TOP Soldier — Pfc William W. Davis, 5th Enlisted Training Company, School Troop Command, USA Missile and Munitions Center and School, was named Post Soldier of the Month for April. At The Service Club
 By MOLLY PATTERSON

Well, here it is the middle of May and the Service Club activities are caught up in a whirl of rehearsals for the big stage production "SOoo Continental" scheduled for its premiere on June 5. Auditions have been set up for every Wednesday and Friday nights at 7:30 p.m.

If you would like to try out for this Show come on over to the Service Club and check with the Director. There are some men in the 5th ETC that are loaded with talent. Real comedians, they had me in stitches the other night. One of the boys reminds me of Don Adams. He is funny.

The Italian troops are doing their bit and if you thought the last one they did at the Service Club was funny, you should see the act they have lined up for "SOoo Continental." It's a riot.

The Service Club staff bids "good-bye" to a couple of enlisted men, Frank Gardner and Edwin Fabrin. Frank will go back to his old job with the Corning Wear Company in New York and Ed will be heading for the Far East. The Service Club Staff honored these two with a pizza party Thursday night. Fellows, the best of luck. We'll miss both of you.

LeRoy Kasberg, Sam Burris, Richard Baley and Bob Figlar have recently joined the Service Club Staff. Welcome! Don't forget Thursday nights the Service Club features Sports Spectacular, 16mm movies, at 7:30 p.m. in the big lounge. Last week we had movies on snow skiing; this week most likely it will be baseball.

Our Post-wide Ping Pong Tournament is scheduled for May 20 at 7 p.m. The winner will be awarded a trophy. Open house is scheduled "Armed Forces Day." Refresh-

ADMINISTRATOR TO SPEAK

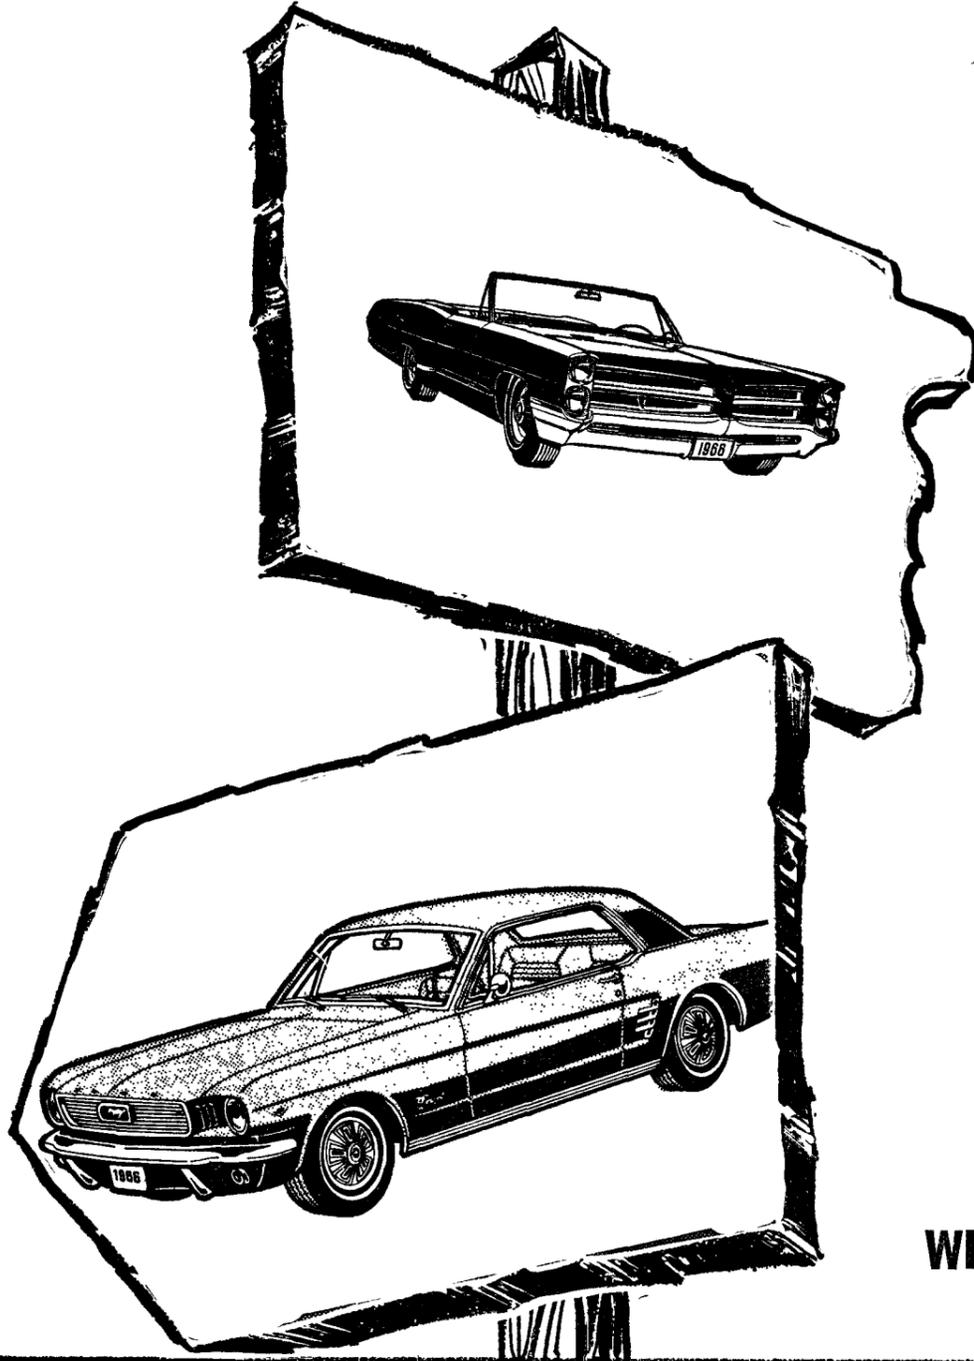

The top administrative official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Jack D. Young, will speak here tomorrow ments will be served at 3 p.m. Sunday, May 22 at 8:15 p.m. we will present our stage show of the month. This production is straight from Broadway. There is no admission. Come early to get a good seat.

See you at the Service Club.

night. He will address a combined meeting of the local chapters of the American Society for Public Administration and the Federal Accountants Association.

The groups will gather at the Redstone Officers Open Mess at 6:30 p.m. Co-hosts will be Clyde Reeves, president of the administrators, and Mark G. Hunter, president of the accountants. Members may contact James F. Dowdy at 876-7150 or Jack Edgar at 876-2918 for information and tickets.

Week In Huntsville

Mayor Glenn L. Hearn Friday proclaimed May 16-20 National Transportation Week in Huntsville.

The activities in this area are sponsored by the North Alabama Traffic Club, and the National Defense Transportation Association.

As a particular salute to the Transportation, people and companies, who continue to demonstrate outstanding ability and willingness to move and supply the Armed Forces, the President proclaimed Friday, National Defense Transportation day. The Huntsville Chapter of the National Defense Transportation Association is part of a world wide organization both the Government and industry, are represented. These experts are ready to advise and assist national or local agencies on transportation matters in any emergency.

'Quality' Group
Meets Tomorrow

The Huntsville Section of the American Society for Quality Control will meet tomorrow, at the Candlelight Inn, 1309 North Parkway.

The featured speaker will be Dr. Oskar Essenwanger; his subject, "Quality Control of Climatological Data." In addition, Miles Hardenburg will deliver a resume of the paper, "The Inspector — Where is He Coming From?", which he will present at the National ASQC Conference this summer.

Dr. Essenwanger holds his MS from the University of Vienna and his doctorate in meteorology from the University of Wurzburg. He has been in the United States since 1957, first with the National Weather Records Center in Asheville, North Carolina and then with the Army Missile Command in 1961. He heads the Aerophysics Branch of the Physical Sciences Laboratory at the Missile Command.

An expert in atmospheric parameters pertaining to missiles, wind profiles and related subjects in objective climatology, he has published over fifty papers. He is a member of ASQC, AIAA, ASA, AMS, AGU, and an associate professor at the University of Alabama in Huntsville.

GRADUATE TRAINEES—Col. Eugene McGinnis, Chief of Staff for the Army Missile Command, is shown greeting six recent engineering graduates who were assigned to Redstone Arsenal for six months of advanced training under the Maintainability Engineering Intern Training Program of the U.S. Army Materiel Command. Each of the engineers is assigned to an organizational element of the Missile Command where he participates in the planning, conduct and evaluation of maintainability activity of the unit. The in-residence training forms an integral part of their two-year graduate-level course leading to a Master's degree from Texas A&M. The intern students are, left to right: Harold Stafford (Georgia Tech), Vernon Chance (California Poly), Truman Howard (Southern Methodist), Col. McGinnis, James Lamb (Virginia Tech), Murray Hillman (Mississippi State) and Kenneth Pickett (Southwestern Louisiana).

Dr. Hersh Talks To School Graduates

The quality of instruction at the Army Missile & Munitions Center & School is comparable to that offered at the nation's leading technical institutes, 105 students were told Friday by Dr. Charles M. Hersh, executive assistant for education, U. S. Army Missile & Munitions Center & School.

"If you or your parents paid for instruction equivalent to what you have received here, it would cost several thousand dollars — approaching the cost of a college degree," Dr. Hersh said.

The intensive instruction at the School wraps up in a half year or less as much training in electronics and related missile and ammunition subjects as a college student would receive in two or three years," he noted.

The head of the 800-man faculty at the School said many of the training techniques and advanced instructional aids used here are not matched in civilian institutions. The School has pioneered in developing ways and means of teaching that quickly equip men from the U. S. and more than 20 Allied nations to support missile and munitions forces throughout the world, he said.

Dr. Hersh, who holds degrees from Syracuse University, BA, and Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, MA,PHD, was introduced by Lt. Col. Paul E. Towry, MMCS executive officer, at a ceremony in the Redstone Arsenal Theater.

Cited as honor graduates were: Pfc John Watson, Nike Hipar Acquisition Radar & Radar Simulator Repair; Sp/6 Fred J. Reeves, Hawk Pulse Acquisition Radar & Battery Control Repair; Pfc John F. Miller, Hawk Continuous Wave (CW) Radar Repair; Marine Corps Pfc Gary H. Stevenson, Hawk Internal Guidance & Launcher Electronics Repair; Marine Corps Pfc Eugene Alberti, Hawk Mechanical Repair; Pvt Paul D.
