REDSTONE ARSENAL, HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA

VEEP COMES TO TOWN

REACHING HANDS—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey shook as many of the reaching hands as he could when he was greeted by members of the community who braved chilly wind and threatening skies to see him land at the Redstone Arsenal Air Strip last week.

Mr. Humphrey Discusses Vietnam, Youth, Jobs; Sees Hardware, People

The Vice President of the United States swept through Redstone Arsenal and the Marshall Space Flight Center last week, impressed and a little awed by the space and missile hardware he saw.

Grasping hands, asking questions and occasionally shaking his head in obvious wonder, Hubert H. Humphrey left the hundreds of people he came in direct contact with and thousands more who heard him on a regional telecast, impressed and a little awed too.

At planeside Tuesday, the Vice President told a group at Redstone Arsenal Army airfield: "I want to congratulate the officers of this great Redstone Arsenal and the civilians that are here. I want to congratulate General Zierdt and General Drewry and the others that are here for the contribution they are making to the security of this country, and I ask every one of you to remember that this is quite a country."

Monday night the Vice President had eloquently defended his country's commitment in Vietnam during a regional telecast. The complete text of his statement on Vietnam appears elsewhere in today's issue.

In a press conference Tuesday, Mr. Humphrey said he felt it was "just common sense" to restrain deployment of an anti-ballistic missile system, "if we can." "If we can't," he said, "then I'm sure that the Congress of the United States will do what it's already done, it will say that we have to have the system."

Mr. Humphrey told newsmen that it was his understanding that discussions now underway with the Soviet Union to restrain deployment of a missile defense system "have not produced any positive results. In the meantime, here at Redstone Arsenal and of course in American industry under contract, we have done the research and development work which is essential for the manufacture of an anti-ballistic missile system and its deployment."

Leaden skies and unseasonable cold failed to dim the "Happy Warrior's" spirits as he stopped smiling from his small jet at the Army air field shortly after 3 p.m. Monday to be met by Maj. Gen. John G. Zierdt, Dr. Werner von Braun and Congressman Bob Jones of Scottsboro.

After reviewing the honor guard, the Vice President was greeted by Brig. Gen. I. O. Drewry Jr., Nike-X Project Manager, Col. Erwin M. Graham Jr., Commandant of the Army Missile and Munitions Center and School; key officials of MSFC and more than 50 community leaders.

After reviewing a formation of military personnel from other countries attending MMCS and shaking hands with as many as possible, the Vice President inspected a lineup of Army missiles, questioning project managers and frequently stepped aside to grasp the hands of enlisted men manning each weapon system.

Unit Training Command Now Being Organized

A Unit Training Command is being organized at the Army Missile and Munitions Center and School to provide central supervision for several types of unit operation now under way, according to Col. Erwin M. Graham, commandant.

The new command will replace the School's Directorate of Unit Training on June 1st and will be headed by Lt. Col. Charles E. Chapman.

Its duties will include:

Support of a number of missile and ammunition units which are kept in readiness for emergency call by the Strategic Army Force in time of crisis;

Annual testing and refresher training for about 60 Explosive Disposal detachments stationed throughout the continental United States which come here for two-week training sessions;

Activating, training, equipping and deploying specialized types of U. S. missile and ammunition units, companies and detachments for duty throughout the free world;

Forming and training foreign missile units as required by governmental agreements.

These responsibilities had previously been divided between several other elements of MMCS.

The Unit Training Command will be staffed by 16 officers, three Warrant Officers, five civilians and 107 enlisted men, most of whom are already assigned. Headquarters of the Unit Training Command will be located in Building 3522 at Redstone Arsenal.

Col. Chapman, from Charleston, West Va., returned to MMCS this February after serving in Vietnam as Deputy Director of Ammunition, Headquarters, 1st Logistical Command and concurrently, Deputy Commander, 52nd Ordnance Group (Ammo).

The veteran of 23 years service had previously been at MMCS from 1964 to 1966, first as School Troop Commander and then as Chief, Office of Operations.

Army Allots $10-Million For Fire Control System

The U. S. Army Missile Command has awarded $2,459,175 as a first year increment to a $10 million multi-year buy on a contract to Litton Systems, Inc., for production of Battery Terminal Equipment. This is a new electronic data converter system for control and coordination of U. S. Army surface-to-air missile batteries throughout the world.

The Battery Terminal Equipment, designated the Data Converter, Coordinated Air Defense System AN/GSA-77, was developed under the supervision of the Missile Command's Air Defense Control and Coordination Systems Office, headed by Col. Morris W. Pettit at Redstone Arsenal, Ala.

Designed to integrate Nike Hercules and Hawk missile batteries into Air Defense Control and Coordination Centers, this system will represent the first application of microelectronic technology to this type of equipment. It will replace two major pieces of equipment, the Fire Unit Integration Facility and the Coder-Decoder Group, currently performing the integration function. A significant advantage of the new equipment lies in its ability to maintain data transfer between batteries in the event of communication loss with the Control and Coordination Centers.

The use of microminiaturized integrated circuits in the new system allows a reduction in weight, size and power requirements of more than 90 percent over currently used equipment; thereby permitting the Data Converter to be mounted inside existing Battery Control Center. As a result, considerable equipment including a truck, shelter, air conditioning unit, generator and trailer, needed to support the old system's electronics, is eliminated.

Thanks to high reliability factor (See $10 MILLION on Page 3)

OUTSTANDING INSTRUCTOR—Sergeant First Class Derek Rushforth, left, receives the "Outstanding Instructor of the Quarter" plaque from Army Missile & Munitions Center & School Commandant, Col. Erwin M. Graham. Rushforth, 31, from Noblesville, Ind., also received a $25 dollar Savings Bond for being selected as the "top teacher" at the school for January, February and March. SFC Rushforth is with the Missile Components Department, (Micro-wave Branch) Directorate of Individual Training.

Vice President Explains Vietnam Commitment

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's eloquent explanation of the U. S. commitment in Vietnam was a highlight of his visit to Redstone Arsenal and Huntsville last week.

In response to dozens of requests, the Rocket prints the complete text of the Vice President's statement, made during a regional telecast while addressing the annual Arts Council dinner at the Carriage Inn on May 22.

Mr. Humphrey had been asked two questions reflecting diametrically opposed viewpoints on the war. The first: "Why don't we pull out of Vietnam?" The second: "Why not bring North Vietnam to a quick surrender by more concentrated and heavier bombing and thus end the war?"

The verbatim text of his reply to these questions follows:

"Well, those are on the opposite ends of the pole, and I think both of them can be answered, at least in my mind, with a certain degree of hope, objectivity and persuasiveness.

ON BOMBING

"First of all, you will not bomb anyone into submission. Bombing alone . . . not even our friends of the Air Force say that this is the answer. Bombing is a part of a military strategy, or of a military complex. We have never said . . . and if anyone ever did say . . . they misinformed you . . . that by bombing alone, you bring anyone to their knees and to the peace table. Bombing justification, as we see it, is a part of an effort of attrition, part of an effort of compelling the enemy to divert resources to the repair of bomb damage, part of an effort on our part to slow down the rate of infiltration of men and material.

"It is not a matter of whether we should, or shouldn't bomb. The question is, what is its effectiveness and how best can it be used or not used? Does it tend to achieve or help achieve our goals? And our goals in this struggle in Vietnam are rather limited. They're goals that most Americans, I think would agree to, even though they may not all agree to how to achieve them.

AMERICAN GOALS

"The first goal is to prevent the success of aggression

. . . and this leads me to the second question, why don't we get out of Vietnam? We happen to believe that aggression, if it becomes an acceptable form of international conduct for the achievement of political objectives, means that the rule of law in the world is gone; that the rule of brute force applies. We are in Vietnam not only for what we consider to be the needs of the Vietnamese people . . . of South Vietnam . . . but also our own needs. Let me take just a few moments to talk to you about this.

"South Vietnam has as much a right to live as a free nation as North Vietnam. Some of our fellow Americans seem to have forgotten that. South Vietnam did not commit an aggressive act against North Vietnam. There has never been a battalion, a company, or a patrol of South Vietnamese forces that has crossed the demilitarized zone into North Vietnam. The United States of America did not intervene in South Vietnam under the SEATO Treaty Commitment, and under the Protocol Arrangement and the Mutual Assistance Pact, which are agreements that we signed, and they were not signed by President Lyndon Johnson, they were signed by another administration, but nevertheless, rightly signed, honorably signed and ratified by the Senate of the United States with only two dissenting votes.

"And at the time the ratification took place, we knew what we were talking about, because those who presented that treaty said that this treaty might necessitate — might necessitate, the use of American manpower in Asia. So, when I hear people say that they didn't know what they were getting into, I know what I was getting into, I was one of those who voted for it, and there were 87 other Senators that voted for it, and I don't think they were all oblivious to what we're doing. I think that we — I think that we knew what we were doing. So we find ourselves today committed to South Vietnam by treaty, by obligation and national self-interest.

AMERICAN INTERESTS

"Now let's talk about national self-interest for a moment. What is our self-interest? Well, one-half of the people of the world live in Asia. And Asia today is the target of a form of militant aggressive Communism that once was the pattern in Europe but has since learned considerably more caution and restraint. That Asian militant Communism attacked China . . . attacked India twice in five years . . . without provocation. If there ever was a country that ever tried to adjust its foreign policy to the needs of another country, it was India under the late Prime Minister Nehru and the then Defense Minister, V. K. Krishna Menon, who did everything that he could to align India's policies with that of Communist China and despite that, twice, in five years, unprovoked aggression. That we know.

"So Militant Asian Communism is at least a menace to free societies, or independent societies, or national nation states in Asia. I know some of my good liberal friends say, "Well, they're not very Democratic." That isn't the point. The point is that they are at least independent nation states, and they are entitled to work out their way of life, and their self-determination just as much as anybody else.

"And we happen to be in Vietnam now to prevent the success of aggression, because aggression in the kind of a world in which we live, and aggression that can become a pattern of conduct in the nuclear age and the space age, is too dangerous to become an acceptable mode of international conduct. We are there because we signed the charter of the United Nations which lays down three requirements for all of its members . . . and the fact that some of its members do not live up to it, is no excuse for the rest of us.

A LEADER'S OBLIGATIONS

"There are people every day in your community that do not live up to their obligations, but it doesn't relieve you of it, and particularly if you're a leader. If you have the rank of leader, then you are expected to do a little better than other people. Now what are those three obligations under the charter of the United Nations which is a treaty that is a supreme law of this land just as much as an article in the Constitution?"

"The first is to prevent the success of aggression. 'To resist aggression,' says the charter. Either collectively, or regionally or by individual nation states. That's No. 1. Number 2, 'to promote self-determination.' That's the second purpose of the United Nations. Number 3, 'to mobilize resources for economic and social development.'"

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, I submit that your country has kept faith with the charter of the United Nations. We have resisted aggression, not only in Southeast Asia. We resisted it in Korea. We resisted its potential in Berlin. We've resisted it across the map of the world. We have promoted self-determination, we have joined together in common ef-orts, or in the mobilization of resources for economic and social development, as no other nation on the face of the earth. We've been generous as no other nation has ever exhibited generosity."

NUCLEAR POWER

"We had unlimited power at the end of World War II . . . the sole possessor of nuclear power and nuclear weapons . . . but we didn't use it for aggrandizement, we didn't use it for imperialistic purposes against anyone. We offered, and some Americans have forgotten it, the Buruch Plan in the United Nations, to do away with our weapons, to internationalize Atomic Energy . . . and the Soviet Union said, 'No,' because it was in the process of developing its own nuclear weapon, and it wanted no internationalization of nuclear power as we sought to rid ourself of this incredibly destructive force."

TRUMAN DOCTRINE

"And I might ask my fellow Americans, what kind of a world do you think you'd be living in today if you hadn't had a President like Harry Truman after World War II that had the courage—that had the courage . . . to take a stand. Oh, I know that some of you are going to say, 'Well, Yes, but most of the time he didn't have to fight.' That doesn't make any difference. I hope you're not saying that it's good to take a stand as long as it's a bluff. My dear friends, the peace of the world has depended for better than a generation, upon the integrity of the American commitment to other nations. We have been the sole protector for Western Europe for many years. We've been the sole protector against militant aggressive forces in Asia for many years. There wouldn't have been any Turkey as an independent nation state if Harry Truman hadn't had what he called the Greek-Turkish Aid Program and the Truman Doctrine."

IRAN SAVED

"And when Joseph Stalin had his troops in the northern provinces of Iran and intended to keep them there despite his commitments, Harry Truman gave him exactly five days to make a commitment to get 'em out; and he said it in unmistakable language that everybody understood. And I would remind this audience that while these programs all sound good now . . . that when Harry Truman was making these commitments . . . and when he was fulfilling these obligations, he was unpopular. So unpopular, that the Democratic party itself wanted to get rid of him, and don't forget it. I haven't forgotten it a bit. Harry Truman was not a popular man when he proposed the Marshall Plan. He wasn't a popular man when he proposed the Truman Doctrine. He wasn't a popular man when he stood his ground, oh no, and when he decided to meet the challenge at Berlin with the Berlin Air Lift, most of his cabinet was against him, most of the 'informed' quote, and quote, 'columnists,' were against him. Oh yes, they were against him, they said it was ridiculous. 'Why run the chance of confrontation with the Soviet Union over Berlin?' And what did Mr. Truman say? 'Because,' he said, 'We have committed ourselves . . . under treaty and agreement we have committed our word . . . our sacred honor . . . and we will stand, and Berlin will not fall.'

BERLIN

"And for three times in the last twenty years we have had to pit American manpower against Soviet intentions . . . in manpower for Berlin. . . was there in Congress in 1961 when John Kennedy called up 250,000 reserves. In case you forgot, in the summer of 1961, we sent 50,000 more troops to fortify our garrisons in Germany, and added new troops in Berlin, and sent the Vice-President of the United States there as a symbol of the American commitment . . . and it could have been war. And, have you ever thought about the kind of a Europe it would have been if Mr. Truman and Mr. Kennedy hadn't done those things?"

LEBANON

"Have you ever thought the kind of a Middle East it would have been had Mr. Eisenhower not taken a stand—a stand in Lebanon—in the 1950's? The fact that we didn't have a war, we should prayerfully thank God Almighty, it could have been."

CUBA

"Have you ever thought the kind of a Caribbean it would have been had Mr. Khrushchev got by with his missiles—in Cuba? And I sat with John Kennedy on the night that the decision was made to tell Mr. Khrushchev to get them out. I was Majority Whip of the United States Senate summoned back to the White House. I sat with the President when he broadcast to you, my fellow Americans, over television, and said what we were going to do, and we were within minutes of nuclear war until the Soviet ships turned back, until Mr. Khrushchev said that the missiles would come out."

"We'd moved our fleet, we'd positioned our planes, we had everything set as every officer of the Armed Forces here knows tonight, and we stood our ground. We were firm and resolute, without being belligerent and bellicose."

KOREA

"What kind of an Asia do you think there would have been if we hadn't defended Korea? South Korea was not the aggressor any more than South Vietnam . . . and the forces of militant Asian Communism poured over that parallel in Korea, and we were almost driven from the land. And was Mr. Truman popular? I'll say he wasn't. I was in Congress in those days. I was one of his few supporters, I'm proud to say. And I remember the columns, and I remember the speeches, and I remember what they said about Mr. Truman, and I remember how he was pilloried, but I'll tell you right now my fellow Americans, if you . . . walk out on any street in America today, and ask to name five great Americans . . . to name five Americans who had what we call courage . . . and there's another word for it . . . Five great Americans that knew what it was to really stand up like a man and be worthy of the high office of Presidency, one of those five, as surely as my name is Hubert Humphrey, will be Harry Truman, and I'll tell you why—I'll tell you why, because he did what he had to do."

ON BEING POPULAR

"Popularity and the insatiable desire for popularity in public service, is the taccin and the poison of statesmanship. If you're trying to be popular every day you ought

Heavy rains the previous day had forced a last minute switch in location for the public address the Vice President was scheduled to make upon arrival from the airfield to the front lawn of MSFC headquarters. A crowd of several thousand persons from the activities on the installation, augmented by persons from the community, roared its approval when the Vice President concluded brief remarks, stepped across the street and reached for the dozens of waving hands thrust at him. Before rejoining his motorcade, Mr. Humphrey thrilled the young members of the Huntsville Youth Band who had serenaded him by chatting briefly with them.

After examining mockups of several MSFC space projects, the Vice President witnessed a captive test of a Saturn booster.

"It's like being massaged by a giant," the Vice President exclaimed after the booster's eight engines had roared for 140 seconds.

Dr. von Braun hosted a private dinner for the Vice President attended by key Army officials prior to Mr. Humphrey's address to the Art's Council banquet in the Carriage Inn. The telecast of the speech and the question and answer period which followed were seen throughout the Tennessee Valley through the facilities of WHNT-TV. The telecast was originated by a crew from the Television Department of the AMMCS Directorate of Logistics.

After spending the night in the Redstone Arsenal Officers Open Mess, the Vice President hosted a breakfast there Tuesday for municipal and county officials from five North Alabama counties. Mr. Humphrey asked their assistance for the federal Youth Opportunity Program and urged they help in finding summer jobs for youngsters in need.

He told newsmen later: "We had a very fine meeting; excellent, and an excellent response. Some of the mayors were able to tell me what they are already doing and I was favorably impressed."

Just prior to departure, he spoke with a group of young people, employed by MICOM and MSFC in the Youth Opportunity Corps, Neighborhood Youth Corps and Diversified Occupations Program.

"This is a period of unprecedented opportunity if people will only seize it," the Vice President said. "Truly I can say to the young

"One of the great opportunities in this country today is in the armed services of the United States; a real opportunity for education, for service, for experience and for good living. I'm very proud of the armed services of the United States; they've set a standard that civilians could well emulate. There's only one kind of citizenship in the armed services, that's to be a citizen of the United States of America and you're judged on the basis of your ability."

Nineteen hours after arriving, Mr. Humphrey was airborne on his way back to Washington.

never to try to be President, because you'll sacrifice your country for your own personal ambitions. A President of the United States has no further place to go except to eternity. He's had the highest office that's in the gift of the people of the United States, and indeed of the world; and that's why men who are Presidents generally measure up to that high office.

"So we have taken our stand in Vietnam for one simple reason . . . that we do not believe that aggression can be tolerated. Because we believe that people have a right to determine their future . . . and that stand has paid off.

INDONESIA

"Tonight, Indonesia is free of Communist control . . . a nation of over a hundred million people . . . and the leaders of Indonesia would tell this audience as they've told me, that they never would have been able to cleanse themselves of Communism . . . and they did it at the cost of 450,000 dead, and many more thousands wounded in a brutal Civil War in their country . . . They never would have been able to do it, had not the United States of America been present with its forces and its power in Southeast Asia . . . they never would of had a chance.

"Their own Ministers of Government have told your Government and the American people that. Tonight, Indonesia's a member of the United Nations. It's beginning to pay its debts. It's beginning to get its economy rolling again. Tonight, Indonesia and Malaysia have no war . . . and just because Americans weren't being killed in that war doesn't mean there wasn't a war. Hundreds and thousands of lives were lost in that war. It didn't make our headlines because boys from Minnesota and Alabama weren't there, but there were 60,000 British troops in Malaysia. There was eight years of guerrilla warfare fought in Malaysia against the Communist guerrillas by the British and the Malaysians . . . eight years of it. Tonight, Korea represents the greatest single economic breakthrough in Asia outside of Japan. Ten years ago the newspapers of America, the journalists, the political scientists, the politicians, . . . we were all guilty with few exceptions, . . . were saying that Korea is a hopeless mess. Why did we ever get caught up in it? 50,000 dead, 168,000 casualties, American blood, . . . but tonight, Korea stands free and independent, and tonight, Japan, which would have been swept as surely as the winds sweep the fields. Tonight, India or Japan stands as a free nation, a friend of the West.

DIVIDENDS

These are some of the dividends of resisting aggression and we're in Vietnam and we're going to stay there . . . and we're going to stay there, I tell you, until we can get an honorable peace. And that honorable peace is not going to come through military measures alone. Militarily, we are strong. Militarily, we will not be defeated. But the struggle in Vietnam is military, political, economic, and diplomatic. Now, my fellow Americans, . . . and I say this particularly to my friends in the academic community . . . of which I've been a part . . . no nation has ever pleaded for peace in this part of the world more than America.

HALT BOMBING

And when I hear people say that the peace will come if only we stop the bombing, I remind you that we never dropped a bomb in Vietnam until February, 1965, and the plea for peace started in 1963. For two years or better, plea after plea was made. We went to the United Nations, to the Security Council, and the General Assembly, on the resolution of the Gulf of Tonkin. And what did North Vietnam say? It has no jurisdiction. It would not respond. It would not recognize . . . get out.

ROADBLOCK TO PEACE

"The roadblock to peace is not in Washington, my dear friends. The roadblock to peace is not in the White House. I can tell you tonight, as your Vice-President, that if anybody can induce an authentic representative of the Government of North Vietnam, and any of their associates, to come to a conference table, I will have, as your representative in government, on the express orders of the President of the United States, high officials of this government from the Secretary of State on down to meet with them to discuss peace. But we get no calls, we get no response. There's no lack of communication between the United States and Hanoi. We can ring the telephone anytime . . . but no body picks up the receiver on the other end . . . and if they do, they give us an insulting remark.

HANOI REJECTIONS

"Remember, Hanoi has rejected the Pope. Hanoi has rejected U Thant. Hanoi has rejected Koseygin. Hanoi has rejected Prime Minister Wilson, the 17 non-committed nations, rejected India, Burma, the United Arab Republic, and so on down the line. Twenty-nine times we have sought peace. Twenty-nine times we have said, 'Yes, we will come to the conference table.' Twenty-nine times North Vietnam has said, 'No'. And yet some of my fellow Americans parade around this country and condemn us as if we had . . . as if we were the Imperialists—as if we were the aggressors—as if we wanted the war.

"Oh, we can get peace in Vietnam if we're willing to give them half of South Vietnam. I hope we've learned that lesson. There were those that did that in Europe.

In the 1930's, Hitler's appetite was not settled or not satisfied with the Sudeten land. Hitler's appetite was not settled or satisfied with Austria. It wasn't even satisfied with Poland. He wanted it all.

AGGRESSION

"Aggression unleashed is aggression unchecked. And once you become as major a power as we . . . without design or purpose . . . we have the responsibility of leadership. We don't want to be the world's policeman—we want to be the world's teacher. We're not interested in destruction. We're interested in construction. We want to be nation builders, not nation destroyers. And we pray for, we yearn for, we beg for, we ask for, . . . the chance to help the nations of the world live a better life. But you can't have freedom with bandits roaming the streets. And you cannot have freedom with aggression unleashed and unchecked—security and freedom go together. And we're going to have to stay with it.

"And my fellow Americans, if we'll buckle down to the task and have just a little less carping criticism, some more honest dialogue over the differences that we have, with respect for one another, I think we can shorten this struggle—I think we can bring it to a successful conclusion.

"It won't be easy—it will not come quickly—but it will come. What we need above all, is faith in our cause and faith in our purpose, and to recognize that what's happening in Asia today is a replay of what's happened in other parts of the world. I believe this with all of my heart, and I don't believe it just because the President believes it.

"I believe it out of my own judgement, out of my own conviction, and I've been known all of my political life as a liberal, but I don't consider a liberal one who thinks that it's right to die in Europe for a white man, but is not willing to take a stand in Asia for a little people of a different color who also have a right to be free, and who want to be free. Freedom is indivisible, and leadership should know no region, and should know no boundary. Leadership must be for people, not just for some people."

School Television Unit Helps In Telecast Of HHH

One of the largest television audiences in North Alabama history viewed Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's address to the Huntsville Arts Council banquet Monday evening through a cooperative network established by the Army Missile and Munitions Center and School and Station WHNT-TV.

As a service to the public of the Tennessee Valley area, Col. Erwin M. Graham, MMCS commandant, authorized the School's educational television department to relay the Vice President's talk to the commercial station on Monte Sano from the Carriage Inn banquet hall which has a limited capacity of only 500 persons.

Maj. Edward S. Raleigh, MMCS television chief, deployed a mobile video van to the site of Mr. Humphrey's talk. Three cameras at the Carriage Inn transmitted the entire 60-minute program to the local station via microwave link. Major Albert Hayes was Project Officer, with Gerald Sundt serving as producer and Harold Johnson as technical director. Other technical duties were performed by 14 members of the MMCS-TV staff.

Featured on the program, in addition to the Vice President, were Carl T. Jones, master of ceremonies; Philip Mason, president of the Arts Council; and Dr. Frank Rose, president of the University of Alabama.

The program was the fourth telecast involving U. S. Presidents and Vice Presidents that MMCS-TV has relayed to national and local networks. These involved visits here by former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Missile And Munition Officers Wives Have White Elephant Brunch

The Missile and Munitions Center and School wives of officers had brunch in the Patio Room at the Redstone Officers Open Mess a week ago Tuesday.

In charge of the decorations were Mrs. R. B. Rogers and Mrs. Lee W. Eberhardt. Spring flowers in pots were fashioned from popcorn balls to festoon the tables, and juices were served from a sidewalk cart.

An exchange of white elephant gifts was held with each individual contributing a white elephant and receiving one in return.

Meanwhile, upstairs a number of the wives were greeted by the visiting Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey as they arrived for the brunch.

MRS. BROWN WINS

Bridge competition among the Thursday wives group was as lucky for Mrs. S. C. Brown as on Monday night. Thursday she was high, Monday in third place. Mrs. H. V. Tesche was low.

Reservations to play with the group are handled by Mrs. Robert Allgeier.

Garden Club Hears Talk On Flowers

The Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Garden Club met last Wednesday to hear Mrs. Kenneth C. Johnson talk on artificial flower arrangements and to watch her make an arrangement during the course of her lecture on the mechanics and the many ways to use artificial flowers.

During the meeting the committee chairmen for the coming year were announced. Mrs. Harold G. Bradford heads hospitality. Mrs. James E. Jacobs the telephone committee, Mrs. William R. Edwards, publicity and Mrs. Harry Lucker, Mrs. T. L. Richards and Mrs. B. B. Beard are on the awards committee.

The club president, Mrs. Archie Meagher, served as hostess for the event.

BPW Installs Jimmy Dew

Jimmy Dew, former administrative officer in the Missile Command's Computation Center, was installed as president of the Huntsville Business and Professional Womens Club last week.

Installing officer for the newly elected slate was Dolly Flowers, management analyst for the Missile Command. Mrs. John R. Forbes is first vice president; Virginia Arnold is second vice president, Alverrene Matlock, recording secretary, Freddie Hancock, corresponding secretary and Lola Mae Kelly, treasurer.

The theme Mrs. Flowers followed during the ceremony was the picture in the looking glass.

Rhonda High, secretary in the Research and Development Directorate, turned over the gavel to Miss Dew.

NEW LOOK—The medicar reading room at the U. S. Army Hospital has a new rug on the floor, better lighting and softer seats for relaxing. The furnishings are a gift from the Welfare Fund of the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club. Two staff members, Capt. Jerome A. Roy, radiologist, and Maj. Marion H. O'Neill, Army Nurse, catch up on their reading.

WIVES CLUB FURNISHES READING ROOM

The Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club has taken the austerity from the doctors' medical reading room at the Army Hospital by warming it with a new look.

The Wives Club purchased two reclining chairs, curtains, a rug, a lamp, occasional tables and ashtrays to give the room an atmosphere of comfort.

The library is for use of the medical staff and is filled with medical journals and reference books. Here the night staff also sometimes catches a cat nap.

Money for the furniture came from the Redstone Officers Wives Club Welfare Fund. Mrs. Charles R. Cranford, Jr., has been chairman of this committee for the past year.

Formal dedication was last week with Mrs. Merris W. Pettit, immediate past president of the Club, turning the room over to LTC Russel J. Gale, Hospital Commander. Serving on the purchasing committee with Mrs. Pettit were Mrs. Anders O. Wiklund and Mrs. Walter E. Mehlinger.

Among the participants at the ceremony were LTC Stephan E. Gray and Mrs. Clarence C. Harvey, Jr.

Ground Broken For New Post Lanes

The military bowling season may be a couple weeks late in starting here in the fall but the patience of the individual bowlers will be rewarded when their league action gets underway in mid-October.

Ground breaking ceremonies were held last week for a new 16-lane facility in the Installation Community Center on a site northeast of the Main Post Exchange.

Maj. Gen. John G. Zierdt, Commanding General of the Army Missile Command, turned the first spade of dirt during the ceremony attended by officials of the Brunswick Corporation, prime contractor for the facility, the Werner-Herbinson-Padgett, Inc. the building sub-contractor, and the Post Engineer.

The facility will be a Behlen Metal Building with white brick veneer. It will be air conditioned, contain a snack bar, conference room and pro shop, and will provide plenty of parking space.

Non-appropriated funds are being utilized to finance construction and to equip the facility. The Central Post Fund is underwriting the contract with the Brunswick Corporation. The estimated cost of the project is $351,000.

Plans for the facility were developed under the direction of Capt. William Greenlee, the contracting officer, and William Henry, Post Engineer. Design drawings were prepared by T. E. Samuelson and Associates, and by the Ahrendt Engineering Co., of Chicago.

CONSTRUCTION STARTS SOON—Project manager Charles Rollins, of the Post Engineers, is all smiles as Maj. Gen. John G. Zierdt turns the ceremonial first spade of dirt for the new 16-lane bowling facility on post. A representative of the Brunswick Corporation, prime contractor, told Gen. Zierdt that the Arsenal's bowling fraternity will be shooting at the ten pins in the new facility within 150 days.

CFW Softballers Face Closely Contested Race

The ten CFW softball league teams settled down to a hard championship race last week as the last two unbeaten teams saw their unblemished records soiled.

The Comp Center came out on the short end for the first time after a trio of winning efforts when Data Processing Office dealt them a 14-2 lacing, while ICO suffered a pair of setbacks to equal their season's slate.

G & C Lab entered the win column for the first time in ushering ICO out of the unbeaten class, 14-9, and two nights later Redeye hung a 24-10 pasting on the team from Procurement.

DPO made it two out of two for the week and took the league lead by handing Metrology a 14-4 defeat, Finance and Accounting slapped Documentation, 14-2, and Procurement and Production edged Metrology, 6-5, in other games.

Bob Hall collected four straight hits for DPO and Jim Parker duplicated the feat for Metrology, but Hall got more hitting support from his team mates for their first win. Bud Smith did the hurling and collected three hits himself, and Les Gilreath hit safely three times also.

Hall was the chief offensive threat again in the win over the Comp Center with his second four-for-four performance of the week. Doug Peavey was on the mound for this win and Gary Mann made his job easier with an outstanding defensive game from his shortstop position.

G & C sent six runners racing across the plate in a sixth inning rally that propelled them to their win over ICO. Clayton collected four hits including a three run homer during the winning rally, to pace the attack and Mike Tony Alongi picked up the win. Ed Trentham turned in a four-hit performance in the losing cause.

Jimmy Fuell and Jimmy Coughlin played starring roles in the win that P & P scored at the expense of Metrology. Fuell collected four straight hits and turned in a sparkling defensive game at third base while Coughlin kept the Metrology hitters from bunching their hits in twirling the win.

Larry Cox also collected four hits while Jim Parker and Jim Avant each hit safely twice for the losers.

Finance & Accounting turned back a threatening Documentation rally in the last inning to hold onto their third win in five starts. Documentation had scored three runs and had the tying runs on base when Bill Owens called a halt. Ted Jacobs, Russ Ward and Elliott Agee each hit safely three times in the winning attack while Sid Sapp collected for the losers and Billy Hannah added three more.

Every member of the Redeye team hit safely to make George Williams' pitching chores easy against ICO. Jay Allen led the attack with three hits and Jim Dailey collected a pair of doubles.

FOUR TEAMS OPEN BASEBALL SEASON

Three teams made up of students from the Missile School are pitted against a team comprised of all other military personnel on post in the RSA baseball league that opened play last weekend.

The four-team circuit will provide the weekend entertainment for the Arsenal through mid-July with games on Friday evenings, Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

One game will be played each Friday evening starting at 5:30, with a pair of games slated for 2:30 and 7:30 on Saturdays and a single game at 2:30 on Sunday afternoons. Each team will play twice in the four games.

The schedule for the coming weekend has DASO taking on the First Battalion on Friday evening and the Third Battalion in the Saturday afternoon encounter. The First clashes with the Second Battalion on Saturday evening, with Second and Third going at it on Sunday.

ANYONE FOR PUSHBALL? And what, pray tell, is push ball. Frankly, the jury is still out concerning a proper way of describing the latest method employed by Redstone personnel for burning excess energy. Some would call it a team sport engaging the brains (?), brawn and skill of 25 players who combine their efforts to propel a little old ball across the opponent's goal line. Others are a little more candid about an explanation and state simply that it is a form of legalized mayhem. Whichever the case may be, members of the 6th ETC have their muscles flexed and looking for someone who will challenge them to a match. The 6th has taken the 4th ETC into camp by a 35-0 count and even more impressive in whipping the 8th ETC, 45-5. Lt. James Hall, captain of the 6th pushballers, said that his men are ready to take on other companies whenever a match can be arranged. He said that the arrangements can be completed by calling him at 877-3655 or 877-3411.

NAPPER HEADS WINNING TEAM IN CAT FIGHT

The Golf Group of the Redstone Arsenal Officers Wives Club played another cat fight competition Wednesday with Martha Napper the captain of the winning team. Team mates were: Lella Mullins, Marian Deppensmith, Jane Cunningham. Tied for low putts were Marian Deppensmith and Billie Fogel.

8-10 Split Halts Honor Roll Effort

A heart breaking split in the final frame robbed Doris Pound of chance to attain Honor Roll status but she still grabbed individual honors in the Redstone Summer Ladies league last week. Doris opened her assault on the pins at the Post Lanes with a 211 and came back with a 179 to take a 390 total into the final game. She marked through the first nine frames of the final game including a pair of doubles. But an 8-10 railroad on what appeared to be a pretty good hit left Doris with a 203 and a final count of 593.

She needed almost all of them too in outdistancing Ann Wiener for the weekly honors. Ann, who turned in a 604 earlier in the season, fired a 245 game and ended the evening with a total of 579.

As luck would have it, Doris and Ann were bowling against one another, and the Alley Cats took advantage of the lead provided by Doris in winning three from the Pin Pals. The Pals won their point on Ann's big game.

Terry Makanani turned in the only other better than 500 count when she used a 201 game as the springboard to a 534 total in leading the Odd Balls to a trio of wins from the Tops. Jeanette Burton prevented a sweep by tossing a 212 in the middle game.

Veterans Administration Counsels On Getting Jobs

HEADQUARTERS, THIRD US ARMY, Fort McPherson, A recent Labor Department study shows that although 96 percent of military personnel separated from the service after 20 years desire civilian employment, only about 73 percent are employed six to eight months after discharge.

Personnel being discharged need more information regarding the civilian employment world, according to the study. Upon request, the Veterans Administration (VA) provides this information.

While the serviceman contemplating discharge or retirement may receive any number of prepared handouts or counseling sessions, the information he receives prepares him for what he may expect in searching for civilian employment, instead of providing guidance on vocational suitabilities.

It is a well-known fact that the VA provides vocational rehabilitation for disabled veterans and for servicemen being discharged for disability.

VA facilities may now provide for vocational or adjustment counseling prior to discharge, as well as for educational and vocational training, under the provisions of Public Law 89-358.

Vocational counseling from the VA will include a thorough review of all vocational opportunities open to the individual, an evaluation of continued military employment as well as civilian employment, and problems which may be encountered in obtaining civilian employment. This service may be provided at VA expense, upon request, to any serviceman contemplating separation or retirement.

School Receives Award For Help In Telethon

The Huntsville Chapter of the Cerebral Palsy Association has presented the Missile and Munitions Center and School of Redstone Arsenal with two awards for its assistance in a TV telethon which helped raise over $21,000.

Col. Erwin M. Graham, Commandant, accepted the award for the school from William S. Coles, president of the Huntsville Chapter. Coles then presented nearly 30 individual awards to members of the MMCS-TV Department who volunteered their time to make possible the program which was broadcast continuously for almost two full days over the facilities of WAAY-TV last summer.

After the awards had been made O. W. Kennamer, chairman of the Southeastern Cerebral Palsy Campaign, officially thanked the group gathered in the main studio of MMCS-TV for their cooperation. Col. Graham noted that "The humanitarian aspects of our society are everybody's business."

Kennamer added that the money has made possible the opening of a clinic twice yearly to receive new palsy patients. At this time, doctors donate their efforts to examine patients for future therapy to be given at reduced medical rates.

There are over 200 palsy victims in the Jackson and Madison County area, Kennamer said.

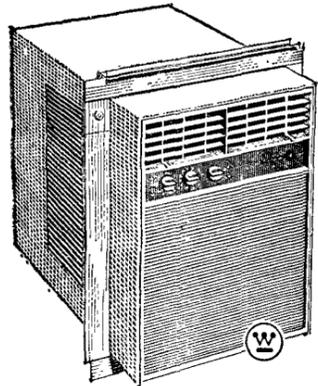

CEREBRAL PALSY TELETHON AWARD—O. W. Kennamer, Chairman of the Southeastern Cerebral Palsy Campaign, presents Col. Erwin M. Graham, MMCS Commandant, with an award for Missile & Munitions Center & School TV Department support during a Cerebral Palsy telethon last August. William S. Coles, Palsy Campaign Chairman for Huntsville, looks on.

COMPARE THE NEW DATSUN WITH THE BIG USED CAR YOU ARE CONSIDERING BUYING...

You'll Find DATSUN Way Out Front . . . DECIDE FOR YOURSELF!!!

Just a couple of weeks ago, the U. S. Department of Commerce released the results of its latest "Survey of Consumer Buying Intentions."

This important survey is carefully studied by many companies who keep their pulse on the nation's economy.

It covers many products but the most interesting was the portion on car purchases.

The survey shows that in the next six months fewer people were intending to buy a new car . . . but MORE had plans for a used car.

If you had the choice of a used car or a new import, both selling for about the same price which one would you choose?

Every used car buyer should consider the new Datsun Automatic Sport Sedan or Sport Wagon. These cars offer the person considering a large used car most of the advantages and none of the disadvantages.

The Datsun's performance is, indeed, BETTER than some big cars. And with the automatic transmission, their convenience and ease of driving is superior.

The many other advantages we all know. Lower insurance. Less costly maintenance—12 month or 12,000 mile warranty (very important in comparison with the used car). Compact size. Overall quality. Better financing (new car interest rates are lower). Plus the new car thrill. DRIVE A DATSUN THEN DECIDE.

VOLVO 67

As it approaches its 40th year as an automobile manufacturer, Volvo is introducing AN ENTIRELY NEW CAR, THE first new Volvo sedan in ten years.

The 144S represents the largest automotive investment in the company's history. Starting at the car's conception four and a half years ago, Volvo has spent $30,000,000 preparing it for production.

Final designs and all significant safety features were approved early in 1964, more than one year before automotive safety became a subject of international controversy.

Volvo has gained a worldwide reputation for building quality, durability and safety into its automobiles. The 144S IS NO EXCEPTION.

* "The deceptively simple-looking Volvo 144S, imported from Sweden, is rolling proof on the Highway of what can be accomplished in auto safety.

The surprising thing is that Volvo finalized the design of the 144S two years ago, prior to the Congressional hearings on auto safety.

American auto manufacturers have serious misgivings about incorporating the safety requirements ordered for next Jan. 1."

 "Three wheel split brake system has it all over our domestic setups" Quoted from . . . Cars.

"handles extremely well" Quoted from . . . Science & Mechanic.

"steering is light, quick and precise. Sidebite on fast turns is better than on many sport cars" Quoted from . . . Popular Science.

 "an extremely tough automobile" . . . Quote from Foreign Car Guide.

"the company has obviously made a fetish of durability" . . . Popular Mechanics.

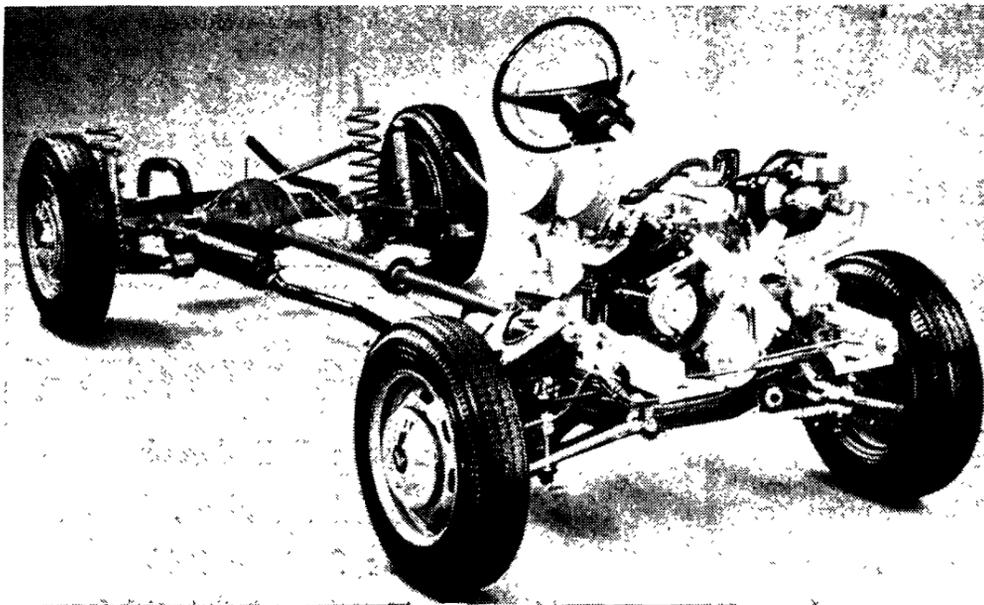

4 Door Sedan

115 hp engine, front bucket seats with anti-whiplash device heater, and defroster, front and rear thermostatically controlled, two-speed blower, vinyl upholstery, padded dash, electric wipers (2 speed) and washers, four wheel power disc brakes, 3 wheel dual brake safety system with warning light, sealed cooling system, twin SU carburetors, full flow oil filter, ventilated disc wheels, collapsible steering column safety door locks, lubrication free suspension system, factory undercoated, back-up-lights, 4 speed synchronized transmission.

"I was even more impressed with the way the VOLVO drives than I was with its long list of safety features."

—POPULAR SCIENCE

*Mounted on the 15-inch wheels as standard equipment are wide tread, low profile, white wall tires rated to a sustained speed of 109 m.p.h.

NOTE . . .

A new type of rubber Bushing virtually eliminates erratic action of all suspension components.

Ideal 50/50 weight distribution and low roll centers make the 144S a car that won't lift its inside rear wheel.

Take a good look underneath. Chances are you'll never have to concern yourself with them again.

Arsenal Savings Bond Rate Nears Perfection

Almost 500 Redstone military and civilian personnel have already started adding to their savings through the regular purchase of Freedom Shares as the nationwide "Share In Freedom" promotion draws to a close.

President Johnson proclaimed the special campaign during the month of May to coincide with the introduction of the new high interest savings notes. He called on Americans everywhere to re-examine their individual savings in view of the present world situation.

Redstone has maintained the top rate of participation among all elements of the Army Materiel Command for three years and the present rate is far in excess of the overall Army figures, which is approximately 75 per cent.

The new Freedom Shares were developed by the Treasury Department as a companion product to the Series E Savings Bonds and are available only to those persons who are also buying the former through the payroll savings plan.

They earn 4.74 per cent interest when held to maturity of four and a half years. The Shares must be held for one year before they can be cashed.

The new security is available in denominations of $25, $50, $75 and $100, with a purchase price of $20.25, $40.50, $60.75 and $81.00 respectively. They provide the same tax deferral privilege as E Bonds and rise in value each six months.

One Freedom Share may be purchased for each Series E Bond purchased which has an equal or higher value. However, buyers will not be permitted to purchase more than the equivalent of one $50 share per bi-weekly pay period, or more than one $100 share per monthly payday.

Col. Jones said that the special person-to-person canvass will be concluded today but that the regular year-around stress on Savings Bonds will continue as in the past.

"We hope to increase the number of persons who are enrolled for both types of savings," he said, "but our greatest emphasis will continue to be directed at making Redstone a 100 per cent installation in the Savings Bond program."
