Don't Look Back

Another Year, Another Drive

Remember the fifties and sixties? In the Huntsville area, those were the days when the by-word was simply, "All-systems are go."

The community was swept up in a modernization process that changed a sleepy southern town into a thriving metropolitan area with all of the inherent social problems of the new style society. Tragedy, helplessness, addiction, later life, abandonment, to name a few.

All of these, while certainly not recent innovations, quickly multiplied in direct proportion to the growth and affluence of the area, and soon outgrew the available goods and services.

One thing that was never quite lost in the frantic expansion, however, was a primary element of a free society, that people "really do need one another." When a neighbor ran low on his luck and was in need of a helping hand, the response was quick and sure.

Fund raising to support the work of the various social service agencies became a feather in the cap for the area and annually we measured the health of the drive by the amount raised in comparison to the figures for the year before.

In the Federal service the local workforce increased steadily and the wages for those here increased at much the same pace. When it came time to lend a hand to those less fortunate, well, that came easy too. The total gift from the area rose dramatically, and the community graciously responded, "Thanks to you, it is working."

Today we are in a new era. Instead of new missions, the talk gets around to programs that have run their course; and instead of a rapidly growing workforce, our thoughts have turned to reorganization and reductions.

The problems have remained the same, that is they go by the same name, only now they have become vastly more complex. Tragedy still strikes without notice, drug addiction has multiplied, our facilities for treating mental illness have not kept pace with advancing technology, and our elderly must live at modern standards with outdated resources.

This is the perplexing situation Federal employees face as they embark on the 1973 Combined Federal Campaign. Greater individual affluence spread thinner, and similar yet more difficult problems.

No longer are we permitted the luxury of resting on past laurels, outstanding as the results may have been. Those past drives representing individual chapters in a long history of achievement, are now closed and a new one is starting.

In kicking off the drive on Monday, Colonel Miller listed a number of events on recent weeks that would tend to distract from a successful drive, and he countered each with several points in favor of the continued well-being of the individual worker and the area as a whole.

He said the potential for another brilliant chapter of Redstone generous giving history is present. Turning that potential into a reality calls for a concerted effort on the part of each of the 19,000 Federal employees in the area.

The reward for each individual participant is the personal knowledge that he has helped other people who need help, but are without the means.

Answers

(Editor's Note: The MICOM Information Office conducts a question and answer program for job-related questions of general interest. Such questions may be telephoned to 876-4161 or 876-4400, or mailed to AMSMI-G. Some questions are selected for publication in the Rocket. Names are withheld. It is not intended that this program take the place of the usual supervisor-employee relationship which is the proper channel for specific job-related questions.)

This column will not accept questions from individuals who refuse to give their name and return telephone number.

QUESTION: Regarding published reports that unnamed persons are asking for contributions to raise a fund to hire a lawyer to keep the MICOM and Safeguard people in separate competitive areas. Can this be done on the job?

ANSWER: No. No permission has been requested or given for a solicitation such as you describe. If it is being done, it is being done without the knowledge or approval of MICOM. Post Regulations state in part:

"The solicitation, collection, asking, giving, or inviting to give or collect monies or goods of value, by any military or civilian person at Redstone Arsenal is prohibited unless prior approval is obtained from the Commanding General. Such permission must be requested in writing . . . This is not intended to interfere with any collection of monies that is authorized by applicable Army regulations, such as collections at church services, nor do these restrictions apply to the spontaneous contribution or collection of monies to defray the cost of flowers or messages of sympathy in cases of illness or death of military or civilian personnel or members of their immediate families."

The Combined Federal Campaign is the only authorized solicitation currently underway at Redstone Arsenal.

Housing Opened For Military Families

FIRST FAMILY—Specialist 5 Marvin Williams and family accept the keys to their new home on Spartan Drive. Williams, with eight years of Army service behind him, is an aircraft crewman in the Flight operations division of the Redstone Arsenal Support Agency. Originally, he lived in Colorado. Mrs. Williams is from Austria. The children are Helena, 5, and Danny, 14-months.

Dedication ceremonies for the first 28 units to be occupied in the new enlisted housing area included handing the keys of Unit A, 1404 Spartan Drive to Specialist 5 Marvin G. Williams and family.

Brigadier General Louis Rachmeyer was assisted by Williams in cutting the ceremonial ribbon before the general handed over the keys.

Others participating in the ceremonies were Post Chaplain G. M. Little, Colonel Leo J. Miller, Facilities Engineer, Redstone Arsenal Support Activity; and John C. Rogers, Resident Engineer, Army Corps of Engineers, Mobile District.

Following the ceremonies, guests toured two buildings, the first of 200 new family housing units scheduled for completion—152 for enlisted personnel, 30 for field grade officers and 18 for senior grade officers under the FY71 Military Construction Program.

The new housing consists of two bedroom apartments in complexes of four apartments per building. The new officer housing, the first to be constructed at Redstone since 1959 and located in the area north of Skinner Drive, consists of 30 four-bedroom units, duplexes for field grade, and 18 single houses for senior grade officers.

Construction features include paved streets with curbs and gutters, walks, driveways, landscaping, tot lots, central heating and air conditioning, refrigerators, ranges and water heaters.

Floors upstairs in the enlisted units are carpeted. All other interior floors are tile.

Pearson, Tittle, Narrows and Associates of Montgomery designed the new quarters. Urban Systems Development Corporation of Arlington, Va., constructed them under the supervision of the Army Corps of Engineers, Mobile, District.

Upon completion, scheduled in December, there will be 1172 family housing units at the Arsenal.

Koreans Check Out On Vulcan

Twelve soldiers of the Republic of Korea arrived at the Missile and Munitions Center and School last week to be the first allied students to receive formal training in the Vulcan air defense system.

The Vulcan is a 20-mm low level air defense weapon. Its radar fire direction gives it an all-weather capability.

When the five Korean officers and seven enlisted men leave Redstone Arsenal next April, they will have received training in a course tailored especially for them in servicing the towed Vulcan, organic to the forward air defense system of a division.

The twelve will form the nucleus of a direct support maintenance unit in their homeland.

Raytheon Awarded Contract

The Missile Command has awarded a $2.7 million contract to the Raytheon Company as an alternate producer of Dragon, a man-portable, shoulder fired anti-tank missile.

Raytheon, Chrysler Corporation, Philco-Ford Corporation and LTV submitted proposals on the work in response to an invitation to bid issued by the Missile Command to more than 30 qualified missile producers. Raytheon was the low bidder on the firm fixed price contract.

Raytheon will produce a relatively small quantity of missiles for delivery in 1974. Should those missiles pass Army qualification tests, the contract provides options for additional production quantities, also at a firm fixed price.

Once Raytheon qualifies as a second source for the missile, the Missile Command plans a winner-take-all competition between McDonnell-Douglas Corporation, developer of the weapon system and current producer, and Raytheon with the majority of the Army's long term production requirement being awarded to the low bidder.

The procurement technique of establishing a qualified second source producer and conducting a price competition for long term production requirements has been used twice before by the Missile Command. Multi-million dollar savings resulted from competition in each instance.

Exploratory development of the Dragon system began in 1964. After flight tests of prototypes made by McDonnell-Douglas and the Army, the initial development contract was awarded to McDonnell-Douglas in 1966. In March, 1972, the company received a $12.2 million contract funding initial production. McDonnell-Douglas operations are conducted in the company's Titusville, Fla. plant.

Raytheon will produce the Dragon in its Bristol, Tenn. plant. Final assembly of the missile including installation of rocket motors and warhead will be done by Raytheon in government-owned facilities at Redstone. Firing tests will also be conducted at Redstone. About 35 Raytheon employees will be required initially at Redstone Arsenal.

Dragon is far superior in range, accuracy and lethality to the 90 mm recoilless rifle which it will replace.

The weapon system consists of three main items, a tracker, a recoilless launcher and a missile. The tracker includes a telescope for the gunner to sight the target, a sensing device and an electronics package. It is reusable and is attached to the launcher prior to firing.

The wire guided missile is sealed in a carrying case which also serves as the launcher.

Col. John M. Shea is the Dragon Project Manager, Robert P. Whitley is his deputy. The Raytheon contract was negotiated by Grady H. Thrasher and Robert L. Powell of the Missile Command's Directorate for Procurement and Production.

Gas Switch Beginning

Work will begin within the next few days to convert the eight boilers in Redstone Arsenal's two main steam plants from coal fired to a system burning natural gas as a primary fuel and high grade oil as backup.

Scheduled for completion in November, 1973, the work will bring Redstone's steam plants well within state clean air standards. The present system burning soft coal emits pollutants which exceed state standards.

The Mobile District of the Corps of Engineers awarded a $1,184,910 contract last week to a Birmingham small business firm, Mason & Dulion, to cover the work.

The boilers to be converted are in the Arsenal's two main plants, Buildings 4725 and 3624. When conversion is complete, a third, smaller plant, will be shut down.

MICOM sought funds for the job in 1969. Congress appropriated the money as part of the FY72 budget.

The conversion will be done boiler by boiler so air pollution will be steadily reduced as the work progresses.

The State Air Pollution Control Commission has asked the Attorney General to take legal action to compel the Army to obtain state permits to operate the steam plants. The Army has refused to apply for the permits, contending constitutional issues are involved.

Bloodmobile

The Red Cross bloodmobile visit the troops of MMCS today. The bloodmobile will be at the service club from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Giving blood is a good opportunity to help those needing it, and the entire process takes only 45 minutes.

CFC Gains Strong Union Endorsement

The 1973 Combined Federal Campaign got underway Monday morning aided by a strong endorsement from the ranking spokesman in the area for the union representing the majority of government civilian employees.

Dennis Garrison, Fifth District Vice President of the American Federation of Government Employees, defined the objectives of the CFC effort as helping people who need help.

He reminded the audience in the Rocket Auditorium, the majority of whom were MICOM campaign workers, "There is no one in this nation who does not need help at one time or another. It's not just the sick and the afflicted who need help, we all need it."

Both Garrison and Col. James Miller, MICOM chief of staff who delivered the keynote address for Major General Edwin I. Donley, the CFC general chairman, referred to voluntary contributions.

Garrison urged federal employees to "give from the heart" adding "be thankful yours is a voluntary, not a mandatory, gift."

Col. Miller asked the campaign workers to continue to stress fair share and payroll deduction, adding: "Remember that what an individual decides to give to CFC is a decision he or she must make alone, without pressure."

Also appearing on the program were officials of the three principal agencies which shared in the $570,000 contributed by federal workers to last year's combined campaign: the Huntsville-Madison County United Givers Fund, the National Health Agencies and the International Service Agencies. All expressed thanks for the past generosity of federal workers.

The drive this year will extend over five weeks, seeking to equal or better the total gift of last year.

Col. Miller acknowledged that last year would prove a tough act to follow, but expressed confidence that "our people will respond generously as they have in the past."

MICOM Labs Solve Shillelagh Cap Problem

MICOM laboratories, which last year assumed the job of providing engineering services for Army missiles no longer in production, have just completed the first major redesign effort to come their way.

The Engineering Services Division of McMorrow Laboratories has completed a modification program to make the Shillelagh missile compatible with the M-60A2 tank.

The problem was discovered during recent engineering tests at Aberdeen when gunners found that the aft cap on the Shillelagh missile would not eject after it was fired in the M-60 gun. Subsequent rounds could not be loaded into the chamber.

Donald Sandidge, a MICOM R&D engineer, analyzed and found the problem was caused by faulty shock absorber rings which fitted around the aft cap. He redesigned the rings and, through Letterkenny Army Depot, had several thousand fabricated for testing.

MICOM's Test and Reliability Evaluation Laboratory then conducted qualification tests and fired several missiles at Redstone. The modification worked perfectly. (This problem existed only with the M-60 gun. Shillelagh missiles have been fired successfully for many years from the Sheridan armored reconnaissance vehicle.)

Quantity production of new shock absorbers is planned and adaption to Shillelagh missiles will be done by Army depots.

The Engineering Services Division is now preparing the technical data package to release for procurement.

During tests at Redstone, Col. Hal Bennett, Land, Combat Special Items Management Officer who has technical responsibility for Shillelagh, became one of the few officers to fire a missile that he manages.

Engineering Services, part of the System Engineering and Integration Office, headed by Carl Pinyerd, has been in existence for about a year supporting Shillelagh, Sergeant, Redeye and Nike Hercules systems which are no longer in production.

Providing engineering services for those systems not only represents a substantial cost savings for the Army but enables the Army to retain in its laboratories a broad scientific and technical base.

Soldiers Get Tax Break On Car Tags

Military personnel get a financial break when automobile tag buying time comes to Alabama, and it's here.

Tags go on sale October 2, and mail orders are now being accepted by the Madison County License Department to be mailed out at the same time they go on sale.

The state offers an advantage to those persons who have designated Alabama as home of record and to those currently on active duty with the Armed Forces in the state.

The thing to remember is that to qualify you must have a certificate of residency or a certificate of nonresidency, whichever is applicable, on file with the license department at the time the tag is issued.

These certificates are available from the MICOM Legal assistance Office, Room B-126, of the Military Personnel Division, Room A-116, Building 5250. If ordering a tag by mail, enclose the certificate with your application. If going in person to get a tag, present it with the application.

Here is what Alabama offers soldiers:

Race Relations Seminar Topic

Thomas E. Sears, a former director for Model Cities and currently president of Thomas E. Sears Associates—a professional consultant firm, is guest speaker today at the Missile Command's semi-annual Race Relations Seminar.

The seminar is being held today from 8:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. in Room A-115, Bldg. 5250.

Discussion groups will be led by representatives from the offices of the Inspector General, Judge Advocate General, Military Personnel, Provost Marshall, Chaplain, and Drug Abuse Officer.

A portion of the time will be devoted to panel groups.

Postmaster Guest Speaker

J. B. Skates, Huntsville Postmaster, will address the Tennessee Valley Chapter of the Society of Logistics Engineers tomorrow evening at the officers open Mess.

He will describe post office logistics and recent innovations in mail handling.

A 35-year veteran in postal service, Skates came to Huntsville in June of this year. In addition to his post master duties, he is Acting Sectional Center Manager for the postal service.

Reservations may be obtained from Ward Cook, 453-5310, or Glenn King, 876-5424. Visitors are welcome.

If Alabama is your home of record, you get one tag free (save $13.00) but you pay state taxes assessed against your vehicle. They can be as much or more than the price of the tag.

If you have an out-of-state home of record, you pay $13.75 for the tag but you are not required to pay Alabama taxes on the vehicle.

Of course there are exceptions to all rules.

If you bought a used vehicle in Alabama during the past year, you pay taxes even if you are an out-of-stater. (In Alabama vehicle taxes are paid on the previous year's assessment.)

Bought a new car during the past year? ... no problem ... no taxes. Brought a used car into Alabama registered in another state? ... no problem ... no taxes.

ROCKET SPORTS

There's No What Ifs To Keim-Leahy Attack

Two-gun attacks featured the ten pin action in the AMC league when six of the top seven individual bowlers were evenly split over three teams.

The top one-two punch was generated by the All-Sports when Lee Keim and Ed Leahy ganged up on the What Ifs as the defending league champions made up for a couple of disappointing weeks with a clean sweep.

The sweep enabled the Sports to vault into a five-way tie for second, a half-point off the pace being set by the Sheratons.

Jack Nelson was the seventh member of the high scoring list with a 554 that enabled the Sheratons to grab the lead by winning two and a half points from the Lancers.

Keim put together the first Honor Roll total of the season with a 619 that featured a 238 middle game. Leahy was right behind his mate with a 588.

The Bombers grabbed another leg of second with a sweep of the Bandits as Lee Lavender shot a 561 and Walt Heflin was one stick back at 560.

The other double barreled attack was generated by the Cobras as Joe Hyatt smote the mapels for 566 and Dan Chepkuskas wracked up 553 more.

Hughes won three from the Alley Cats as Dave Pentecost hit for 531 to overcome Reggie McLaney's 540 for the Cats. The Fat Cats and the T-Birds picked on Safeguard teams for 3-1 wins over the Spartans and the Sprinters.

League Organizing

Initial steps towards organizing the Civilian Welfare Fund basketball league will be taken next Tuesday with a league meeting at 2:30 in Room A-115 of Building 5250.

Danny Franklin, the league president, said that all returning players and those may desire to participate this season are encouraged to attend. He said that all teams should be represented by at least one representative.

An election of officers will highlight the agenda and will be followed by a discussion of plans for the coming season.

Anyone desiring additional information of the league or the meeting may call Franklin at 876-1530.

Crown Won By Deppensmith

Marion Deppensmith stroked her way to the club championship among the golfers sponsored by the Officers Wives Club with a gross 268 for 54 holes played on the Arsenal course last week.

Runnerup was Erlene Dials with a gross of 273. Loy Stafford was the first flight winner with a gross of 286 followed by Madeline Quattlebaum scoring 302. In the second flight Lucille Johnson grossed 332 and Kay Smith was runnerup with a 334.

Prizes were also awarded for low net. Jane Walker had low net in the championship flight with 222. Betsy Pearce won the first flight with 247 and Marie Melochek had 250 in the second flight.

Weather proved a handicap on the first day of the tournament.

Wells Scores On Top Again

After the second week of bowling in the MMCS Officers' league, there is a three-way tie for first place. The Chefs, Wild Balle and Bacchanals all have 12-4 records.

This week's series honors go to Wells of the Chefs with 540, trailed by the Bacchanals' Soyck with 514. Other 500 games were (Wild Balle) Weinberg's 508, Moberly of LIAHO's (Bacchanals) Bogard's 505, and a 504 for Vania of the Chefs.

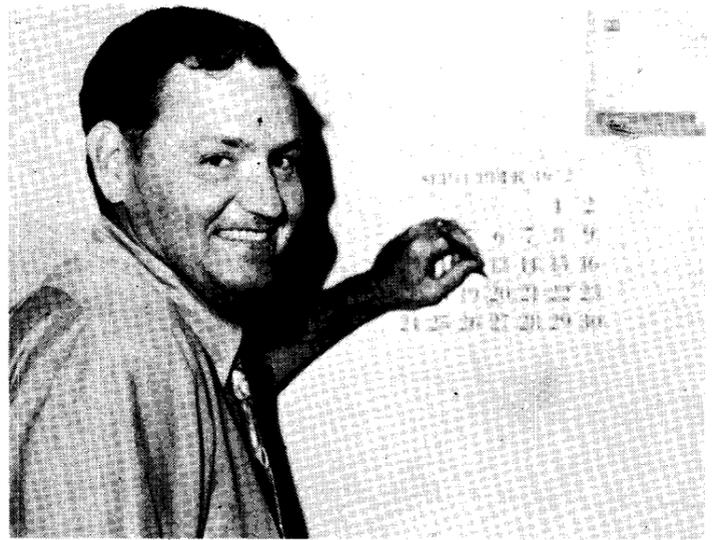

Weinberg rolled 212 this week for single game honors, and J. Hodges of the Chefs nailed a 200.

In the first week of kegling, no team won a clean sweep of points.

VULCAN UNIT ACTIVATES—The 22nd Ordnance Detachment, under the command of Capt. Roderick M. Ruthven, III, was activated at the Missile and Munitions Center and School last week. The unit began training Monday, when the men began to learn to provide direct or general support maintenance for the light air defense missile systems. Detachment Sergeant, SFC John D. ## Jaycees Say 'Thanks'

The sentry stood at his post just inside the fence, watchful for wily intruders who lurked in the shadows beyond the circles of light along the fence.

Instead of in a war zone, the soldier's post was in Huntsville, Ala. His adversaries were not enemy sappers—just knot hole kids trying to slip through the fence around the Jaycees Northeast Alabama State Fair.

The soldier, based at the Missile and Munitions Center and School, was helping the Jaycees with Fair security, not because duty whispered low, "you must;" but because he wanted to.

He was a volunteer—one of 35 soldiers and 15 Marines from the training center who spent part of their off-duty time supporting the annual event.

This is the second year the MMCS military has pitched in with the Huntsville Jaycees to help a worthy community effort.

Two years ago, Maury Gerson, current Jaycee vice-president, was looking for a way to introduce Redstone Arsenal soldiers to the community and widen their circle of friends.

"I contacted Captain N. P. Bourre and Master Sergeant William Montroy of the Marine Detachment at MMCS, and after they got some leatherneck volunteers together, they put me in touch with Sergeant Major Rose," Gerson said.

Sergeant Major Billy Rose of the School Brigade drummed up 25 civic-minded soldiers.

Charlie Button, manpower chairman for this year's event, said the Armed Forces detail augmented the Jaycees working staff well.

Button, a one-time Redstone trooper himself, said that at one time a soldier didn't have as many opportunities to get involved in the community as he does now.

Now the opportunities are frequent, thanks to coordinated efforts of the Army and community groups like the Jaycees.

The Jaycees Fair is one of the biggest community events of the year in Huntsville, and provided an opportunity for a lot of soldiers to participate.

In addition to inviting the troops' support, the Jaycees provided special discount rates for military men in uniform.

Proceeds from the fair go to support many of the Jaycee community programs.

Pleased With Changing Army

Is the Army really changing? First Lieutenant H. Paul Stutts, who has been on active duty less than a year, feels that the changes are becoming more evident every day.

Stutts is currently serving as a production engineer in the review and analysis branch of the comptroller's office at the Army Missile Command.

A graduate of the ROTC program at Tennessee Tech, Stutts received his commission in 1969. When he received his degree in Electrical Engineering and his commission, Stutts had hopes of getting an advanced degree, so he told the Army about his plans.

To his surprise, the Army agreed that his idea to get an advanced degree was a good one and that he would be of greater value to the Army if he had that degree before coming on active duty... so they decided to delay his call to active duty.

With the additional time, Stutts enrolled at Murray State University in Kentucky and went on to get his Master's Degree in Business Administration. Once he received his advanced degree, the Army called him to active duty in November 1971, nearly two years after he received his commission.

Now with less than a years active service, Stutts has the responsibility for preparing and presenting monthly briefings to the Commanding General of the Army Missile Command on the status of Land Combat Weapons Systems, MICOM Military Personnel and the Army Metrology and Calibration Center.

"Had I decided to go with civilian industry when I graduated from college, I would have had to work with the company several years before I got an opportunity to brief the president. In fact it might have been 10 years before I got such an opportunity, if I got the opportunity at all," Stutts said.

"I feel the Army is now trying harder to utilize young officers in the area of their expertise. Though I am filling a production engineer's space, my experience in electrical engineering and business administration is paying off.

"My knowledge of electrical engineering enables me to go into technical areas and understand many of the problems and situations that face these technical organizations. Part of my job is people engineering... I have to be able to meet and talk with people and get them to talk to me about their problems and accomplishments. This is the area where my schooling in business administration comes in handy.

"From what I've seen and heard about the old Army, this situation couldn't have happened ten years ago, but it is happening now and I'm happy about the whole thing," Stutts commented.

Though he still has two more years to go on his commitment, Stutts is seriously considering the Army as a career.

While the Army is changing, Stutts feels that sometimes the young officers surprise and amaze some of the older officers.

"Right after I came on active duty, I was interviewed by an older senior officer who asked me what my ultimate goal was. I wanted to be honest so I told him I wanted to work up to a top management position... like general. I guess he wasn't used to young lieutenants having such lofty ambitions.

LIKES HIS JOB—First Lieutenant H. Paul Stutts prepares the monthly briefing that he will present to the Commanding General, Army Missile Command, as part of his duties with the review and analysis branch of the comptroller's office.

"Somehow I believe that if young officers feel they are needed and are given responsible jobs, they will come into the Army. Wanting to be a general isn't daydreaming. All of the generals now were once young officers who made it up the ladder, so why not set your goal early and work to achieve it," Stutts concluded.

Today Is Yesterday's Tomorrow

"When you look over your yesterdays—and all of the well meant financial plans for your tomorrows . . .

HAPPY TO SHARE—Joel Davis (Left) and Brenda Damron discuss what they are going to do with the $250 suggestion award they are sharing equally. Both are employed by the Safeguard Logistics Command. Their suggestion resulted in the establishment of a program to mechanically prepare IMC cards from data contained in computer files rather than using a manual method. Chances of error are lessened by adoption of the suggestion.

Counselors Needed For EEO Program

The Equal Employment Opportunity program needs counselors.

The counselors will assist James T. Temple, Special Assistant for Equal Opportunity, in helping others solve problems dealing with discrimination.

The counselors are the link between employees and management. They provide an outlet for employees to discuss grievances, raise questions, get answers and—on an informal basis—resolve problems.

Applicants should be objective, possess good judgment, and must understand and be able to work with people of all races, religions or national origins.

Interested Missile Command employees wishing to serve as EEO counselors, in addition to regularly assigned duties, should send the following information to J. T. Temple, Special Assistant for Equal Opportunity, AMSMI-XQ: name, job title, grade, organizational unit, telephone number, a one or two sentence summary stating why they feel they would be an effective EEO counselor and a brief description of experience which qualifies them to counsel others.

Final selections will be made by Major General Edwin I. Donley, Commanding General of the Missile Command.

“$8,000 helped.”

Sergeant Roy Smith was going for more than the bonus when he reenlisted.

“The $8,000 helped. But part of my reason for staying in the Army is I can get the rest of my college credits for a degree. I’ve got 2 years in already.

“I enjoy the job I’m doing now as a drill sergeant. But I’d also like to try military intelligence. And eventually get to go to OCS.

Sergeant Smith views the Army as one big opportunity for a guy who wants to get ahead.

There are job and educational opportunities. In advanced electronics. Cryptography. Foreign languages. Data processing.

Communications. Traffic analysis. And lots more.

And travel opportunities. In Europe. Korea. Hawaii. Alaska. Panama. And the time to enjoy it. To live it. In a way no tourist ever could.

And the opportunity to save money on all the everyday things.

Like free housing. Free dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance.

It’s all here. It’s up to you.

Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you. He’ll give you lots of reasons for staying in.

Sergeant Smith has good reasons for staying in.
