Military Discipline

Military justice is defined as "the system of trial by court-martial or of non-judicial punishment which comes into play when a member of the Armed Forces is accused of committing an offense under the Uniform Code of Military Justice."

The system is designed both to promote discipline and protect the rights of the individual. Most of its procedures have a counterpart in the American civil court system and the differences that exist result from the differences between a civilian society and an Army.

The move within military justice toward safeguarding the rights of individuals has quite rightly been the subject of profuse acclaim, but on the other hand some unit commanders feel they've been handed a frustrating set of problems in trying to maintain discipline without the tools to do the job.

American soldiers have never known the ancient concept of military justice wherein the individual is totally subjected to the will of his commander. But then again, looking at the recent past in light of the spirit of the times today, the military system has in some instances been somewhat less than ideal in protecting individual rights, but hardly less so than the courts in civilian society. As a point of interest, it's a fact that the military system required that an accused be informed of his right to remain silent when questioned fully 18 years before the Supreme Court made it a requirement in civilian criminal cases.

Individual Rights

A justice system may be regarded as imminently fair and complete one day, and shortcomings appear the next. This is to say the system fluxes constantly. The UCMJ, for example, has undergone numerous revisions since its 1950 inception and no doubt is in for future revisions as different tacks are taken in the civilian courts.

In a recent development, a report filed by the DoD Task Force On The Administration of Military Justice has resulted in forward actions which will significantly improve the administration of military law and the Army system of delivering legal services. This was the subject of an address here by the Judge Advocate General of the Army, reported on page 5.

General William C. Westmoreland, former Army chief of staff, succinctly characterized the guiding spirit of military justice when he stated: "The protection of individual rights is more than ever a central issue within our society today. An effective system of military justice . . . must provide of necessity practical checks and balances to assure protection of the rights of individuals . . . it must prevent abuses of punitive powers . . . it should promote the confidence of military personnel and the general public in its overall fairness . . . and it should set an example of efficient and enlightened disposition of criminal charges within the framework of American legal principles. Military justice should be efficient, speedy and fair."

Answers

(Editor's Note: The MICOM Information Office conducts a question and answer program for job-related questions of general interest. Such questions may be telephoned to 876-4161 or 876-4400, or mailed to AMSML-G. Some questions are selected for publication in the Rocket. Names are withheld. QUESTION: How many Missile Command women received training away from Redstone Arsenal last year compared with off-post training for all employees?

ANSWER: Women receiving training away from Redstone totaled 1,206 compared to a total of 4,326 employees receiving off-post training during FY 1973.

Kissinger Honored

WASHINGTON (ANF)—Secretary of State Designee, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger has been selected to receive the Association of the United States Army (AUSA) highest award, the George Catlett Marshall Medal.

The medal is awarded annually by the AUSA for "outstanding service to the nation." Dr. Kissinger is specifically honored for his untiring efforts "to effect the peace agreement in Vietnam."

As a Marshall Medal recipient, the new secretary of state designee joins the company of former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman; former Secretary of State Dean Rusk; General of the Army Omar N. Bradley; Generals Lyman L. Lemnitzer and Maxwell B. Taylor; Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge; and former Secretary of the Army Cyrus R. Vance.

The AUSA will bestow its Marshall Medal upon Dr. Kissinger during the George C. Marshall Memorial Dinner, on October 17, the culminating event of the AUSA's Nineteenth Annual Meeting.

There's Nothing Routine

Next Monday, marks the second anniversary of the United States Army Criminal Investigation Command (USACIDC), as a major Department of the Army Command.

Prior to September 17 1971, all Army criminal investigation activities were coordinated and supervised by the United States Army Criminal Investigation Agency under the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel. Today the agency is a major separate command responsible for investigating a variety of serious crimes, such as murder, fraud, sexual offenses, housebreaking, narcotics and dangerous drug abuse, larceny, robbery and others, occurring on Army installations and in civilian communities in coordination with civil law enforcement agencies when Army personnel are involved.

Headquartered in Washington, DC., the command is divided into four regions, strategically located worldwide, each consisting of a headquarters and subordinate field offices located at selected Army installations throughout each regional area. Augmenting the regions are eight independent field offices, three crime laboratories, and five liaison offices, all under the control of the Commander, USACIDC.

The Third Region, USACIDC, of which the Redstone Resident Agency is a member, recently relocated its headquarters from Fort McPherson to the Atlanta Army Depot. Responsible for rendering criminal investigative services to the commanders of over 300,000 military and dependant personnel, the Third Region's area of operation stretches from Kentucky to the Gulf of Mexico, and from Texas and Oklahoma on the West the Atlantic Ocean. Encompassing the majority of the southeastern United States, the region consists of twelve field offices and seven resident agencies including an office in Puerto Rico. The Third Region commander has the important responsibility of USACIDC liaison officer to the newly activated Army Forces Command located at Fort McPherson.

Locally, the Redstone Resident Agency is responsible for criminal investigations on this installation and has a geographical area of responsibility including 30 counties in Northern Alabama and 41 counties in Northern Mississippi.

In commemoration of the anniversary, several messages from high level Department of the Army officials have been received. Secretary of the Army Callaway praised "the unfailing professionalism which has long characterized the Army CID effort." Army Chief of Staff, General Abrams, complimented the CID for "solving crime in the Army with courage, integrity, and devotion..."

The reasons for these words of praise from the Secretary and Chief of Staff of the Army were effectively summarized in a recent statement from Colonel Henry H. Tufts, Commander, USACIDC, when he said, "We attach a sense of urgency to every action that comes to our attention. There is no routine crime or routine investigation."

Watch The Flashing Light

Twice each day Redstone's Martin Road becomes one-way to speed the flow of traffic on and off the sprawling installation.

First Lieutenant Richard Bird, Traffic Officer, estimated that more than 2,000 vehicles travel Martin each morning and afternoon during peak traffic hours.

A particularly dangerous time, Bird said, is during the afternoon exodus.

Normally, Martin becomes one-way to traffic going off the arsenal—east bound, that is—at approximately 4 p.m. But the actual time for changeover may vary from 3:55 to 4:05 p.m., Bird said.

That's why motorists must be especially alert during those times.

Going off the arsenal in the afternoon, motorists know when traffic is one way if the yellow light is flashing that is located just east of Martin-Patton Road. If it is not flashing, motorists should be prepared for two-way traffic.

Off the arsenal, meanwhile, motorists are warned they're going the wrong way by cones that close off the inbound ramps and by a flashing light at Whitesburg.

During the morning, from 6:15 to 8 a.m., Martin is one way to traffic coming on the installation.

"But that isn't as much of a problem," Bird said, "because we have a swinging gate to block off traffic near the Martin-Patton intersection."

Two military police were injured last week in a two-vehicle collision that occurred on Martin just a few seconds before traffic was to become one-way.

The MPs had gone out to prepare the road for one-way traffic and were traveling west on Martin. A privately owned vehicle reportedly was traveling off the arsenal in the westbound lane when the two vehicles collided.

GEN. R.P. HAZZARD

Full House Assured

The sponsors report all tickets have been sold for tomorrow night's speech here by Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway.

More than 600 persons are expected to attend the dinner event in the Redstone Arsenal Officers Open Mess beginning at 6:30. No tickets will be sold at the door.

It is being jointly sponsored by the Tennessee Valley Chapter of the Association of the United States Army and the Huntsville Chapter of the Reserve Officers' Association.

The Secretary will be travelling on a tight schedule which will prohibit an official visit to Army commands and activities here. He is scheduled to arrive at Redstone Army Airfield at about 6 PM and will leave immediately after the speech.

Callaway became Secretary of the Army in May. A native of LaGrange, Georgia, he graduated from West Point in 1949 and saw combat in the Korean War as an infantry lieutenant.

General Hazzard Sets Retirement

Brigadier General R.P. Hazzard, Director of the Site Defense Project Office for the Safeguard System Command, announced last week his intention to retire from active duty on October 31 after more than 27 years service.

The Birmingham native has been Director of the Site Defense Project Office since its activation. As Director, he is responsible for planning and conducting a prototype demonstration program Ballistic Missile Defense system designed to protect Minuteman Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles.

General Hazzard came to his present position from duty as Project Manager for the Missile and, prior to that, was Project Manager for the System.

The Military Academy graduate served an earlier tour at Redstone from 1956 to 1959. As a Project Officer in the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, he participated in the development of the Redstone and Jupiter ballistic missiles and in the Jupiter "C" program which led to the launching of the first U. S. satellite in January 1958.

He later served as the Executive Officer of the Research and Development Division of the Army Ordnance Missile Command. During this period he participated in the planning and analysis of what became the Saturn I manned space flight program.

General Hazzard's retirement plans have not been announced. A successor as Director of the Site Defense Project Office will be named later.

School Head Visits Prior To Retirement

Colonel Otto Frank, Commandant, German Air Force Air Defense School at Fort Bliss, recently made his last visit to the German Air Force detachment at the Missile and Munitions Center and School prior to his retirement.

During his brief visit to the School, Colonel Frank addressed the assembled German detachment here and thanked them for their support during his tenure and presented to the out-going detachment executive officer a certificate of appreciation for his three year tour of service at the school. Courtesy out-going calls were paid to the MICOM commander and the School Commandant.

Colonel Frank joined the Wehrmacht in 1935 and during WWII served as commanding officer of an anti-aircraft battery in France, Africa and Russia. He also served as training group commander and instructor of tactics of an anti-aircraft school in Mecklenburg. His last WWII assignment was as executive officer of an anti-aircraft division.

Between the conclusion of WWII and his reentering the German Federal Armed Forces in 1956, he was a civilian teacher in Niedersachsen.

Colonel Frank has served primarily in air defense units and his last assignment in Germany prior to coming to the United States was commandant of a HAWK air defense regiment.

In 1964 Colonel Frank was made an honorary citizen of the city of El Paso, Texas.

He will depart the United States in mid-September and prior to his retirement in December will enjoy a two month's leave.

Drive Kick Off Nears

When the 1974 Combined Federal Campaign opens later this month in the Huntsville area some 20,000 Federally employed personnel will be striving to continue a remarkable record of giving to support the vital needs of local, national and international health and social service agencies.

In each of the eight previous campaigns, the civilian and military personnel in the local area brought national recognition to the Huntsville area through their response to the once-a-year appeal.

Their high percentage of participation and their per capita giving have annually ranked with the best in the nation.

Twenty-two Federal agencies are included in the 1974 drive that gets underway with the traditional kick-off at the Rocket Auditorium, Monday, September 24. The six-week appeal ends in November.

The organizational planning has been completed and training already well underway, according to Leonard Twinem, the MICOM chairman who has been directing the early stages of the campaign in the temporary absence of the area coordinator, Abner McNaron.

Twinem said the drive this year will be conducted along the same format that has proven so successful in past years. "This means," he said, "the main stress will be directed toward indoctrinating all of our people on the aims and purposes of the agencies for whom the appeal is made."

"This system of going to the people with all the facts is credited with a large share of the success in past years," Twinem added.

To this end, O.C. Ashworth, this year's CFC training coordinator, has arranged some 50 briefings for solicitors and monitors that will take he and his staff into each of the participating agencies.

These sessions, already well underway, are intended to provide the personnel who will carry out the drive with a better view of the objectives as well as the mechanics of the campaign.

Army's Top Lawyer Outlines Legal System

Bold new direction in the administration of military law and the Army system of delivering legal services was set forth at Redstone last week by The Judge Advocate General of the Army, Major General George S. Prugh.

In a speech before the local Federal Bar Association, Prugh focused on the JAG Corps as the world's oldest and largest law firm, and on the work of the DoD Task Force On The Administration Of military justice which filed its report late last year and of which he was a member.

The task force was formed in April 1972 by the Secretary of Defense and was co-chaired by Nate Jones, general counsel of the NAACP, and Lieutenant General C.E. Hutchin Jr., then First Army commander. One aspect of its mission was to recommend ways to strengthen the military justice system and enhance the opportunity for equal justice for servicemen and women.

A major finding of the task force—and the main one that Prugh addressed—was that many enlisted persons view military defense counsel as "company men" due to their position within the command structure. Also cited as a reason for lack of confidence in them was their physical proximity to the staff judge advocate and trial counsel.

Three new programs are underway to improve both this perception and the delivery system for legal services in the Army. Basically the programs call for (1) better facilities for defense counsel; (2) creating a separate military defense corps; and (3) establishing a para-legal corps to free lawyers from quasi-legal tasks.

Prugh remarked, "Some see as inconsistent the two pursuits of seeking equal justice for soldiers on the one hand and improving solid discipline on the other. I view these efforts as naturally compatible and mutually supportive."

"The very essence of discipline is willing obedience to orders, an attitude which effectively cannot be maintained in the face or arbitrary treatment—either real or perceived..."

BETTER FACILITIES

This summer general court-martial convening authorities were directed to insure that counsel in their jurisdiction have adequate office facilities, including private offices, and necessary logistical and administrative support, as well as visible separation from staff judge advocates and trial counsel.

"It must come as a surprise to some of our colleagues in private practice", Prugh said, "to learn that some military defense counsel did not even have a private office to call their own. What a fundamental thing for an attorney."

MILITARY DEFENSE CORPS

The task force report prompted the Secretary of Defense in June of this year to direct the services to "submit plans to revise the structure of the judge advocate organizations to place defense counsel under the authority of the Judge Advocate General..."

Accordingly, Prugh said, "we submitted a plan...which is presently under consideration by DoD".

The plan, basically, would establish a separate military defense system. Its chief feature is the location of a trial defense division—not under local authority—in areas with major troop concentrations.

PARALEGAL FORCE

"One of the major obstacles in the way of getting a separate defense system going is the present and anticipated future shortage of military lawyers", Gen. Prugh said, continuing "...we are woefully shorthanded in the middle manager and senior manager areas."

"What we seek to gain from a separate defense corps—namely, increased soldier confidence in the ability and independence of the military defense counsel and increased professional competence through specialization—can be achieved only if we have the experienced personnel to manage the program."

"In an effort to free military attorneys of repetitive, quasi-legal tasks so they will have more time to devote to purely lawyer's work, we are moving toward establishment of a paralegal force within JAG."

"We are presently staffing a paper within Headquarters, Department of the Army, to obtain authorization of some 200 paralegal assistants to take on some of the load from the judge advocates trying court-martial cases."

Under the proposal, the paralegals would be enlisted personnel trained at the Judge Advocate General's School. Their functions would include basic research, interviewing witnesses, preparing and serving subpoenas and gathering documentary evidence.

In Europe a pilot program has been tested using 100 paralegals, one for each trial lawyer in the test program, with encouraging results.

"We hope that as much as 40 per cent of the work time now put in by the military may be assumed by a paralegal assistant. The worth of paralegals already has been established by the civilian bar", Prugh said.

We're Way Ahead

The Army only recently directed that staff judge advocates establish separate facilities for military defense counsel, but MICOM made this move almost two years ago.

"Although we got the formal directive only this summer, we had been urged for some time to get the defense counsel out of the same offices with the staff judge advocate and trial counsel," Major M. T. Yawn, MICOM staff judge advocate said.

Called the Soldiers Advocate office, MICOM's separate facility is headed by Captain Clayburn L. Peebles.

"Our clientele have responded very favorably," Peebles said. "We have a private office facility where soldiers can talk freely without fearing they're being overheard. This gives soldiers more confidence in the system. They feel we're truly their lawyers."

Peebles said that counsel is available in his office for all active duty and retired military personnel and their dependents.

The Soldiers Advocate office is in Room B-126 in Building 5250 at Redstone, directly across from the cafeteria.

JAG Corps Honored

Special Rates At Six Flags

The Civilian Welfare Fund Council has completed arrangements whereby Department of Army civilians at Redstone may attend the Six Flags over Georgia amusement park at reduced family rates, according to Curtis Gentry, council chairman. Gentry indicated that all Council representatives now have family coupons for distribution that will enable civilians to enter the Atlanta amusement park at a savings of $1.45 per adult and forty-five cents for each child. The coupons will be good through November 11, which is the closing date of the park for the year. Similar arrangements are already in effect with Disney World in Florida and the Opryland, U. S. # Redstone's Waste Water—The Purest

People who work there, a few farmers and gardeners are the only ones who find their way to Lewis Lindenmayer's work site out in the middle of a Redstone Arsenal pasture.

Lindenmayer, a tall, lank, serious man who came to Redstone from Indiana about 14 years ago, is the sewage treatment plant foreman.

His visitors are after sludge, the material that's left after processed waste settles and dries at the treatment plants.

Leaning back against the desk in his office, he talks in his deep voice loud enough to be heard over the noisy whir of a window air conditioner.

"The farmers and gardeners are after the sludge because it's good fertilizer," he said. "But the plant digesters won't dissolve tomato, watermelon or citrus seeds, so people who put sludge on their gardens get a healthy crop of tomato plants, especially—about 20 varieties.

"Having people haul away the sludge saves the government money and it helps the farmers and gardeners. In some cities sludge has become a real problem because of the quantity and they have to pay to have it disposed of."

It's of especial satisfaction to Lindenmayer that the water that leaves the Redstone sewage treatment plants is as pure as modern techniques can make it.

"We've just installed a new device, a seal-less distributor that eliminates the need for either a mercury or mechanical grease seal. I don't think any mercury got into the water when we were using mercury filters, but the Army was afraid it might," he said.

"Last summer we started chlorinating the affluent too. That kills the bacteria and germs before the water flows into McDonald creek.

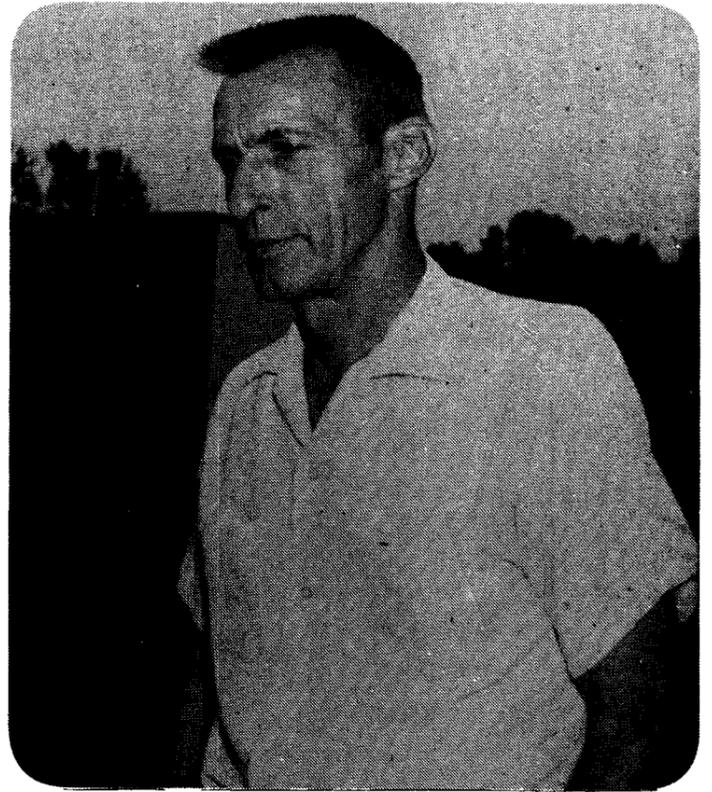

I think the water that leaves our plants is probably purer than that from a lot of cities.

"We can almost tell what season it is, too, without looking at a calendar, by the things that appear here. Around the holidays we get a lot of plastic and tin foil, and in the spring the volume is up because ground water seeps in."

What kinds of objects do they find in sewage? "Well, we found part of a dollar bill once, and a wrist watch, and somehow a lot of cans get through," he said.

Two of the Redstone sewage treatment plants handle 800,000 gallons daily, one processes 130,000, 12 small plants run from 800 to 8,000 gallons and another plant in an isolated area average about 120,000.

If It's Mechanical and Inactive—Call Tank

Sweat trickled down his cheeks in rivulets.

Wilburn (Tank) Taylor brushed a hand across his forehead, leaving a smudge of oil.

"I've got to check out that eight-inch gun in a few minutes," he said softly, pointing to a howitzer aimed down Test Area 1. "We're getting ready for a test."

Taylor had paused near the blockhouse momentarily after a flurry of activity and the respite did nothing to stifle a hot mid-afternoon sun.

"Oh...I've got to run down to the creek and inspect the drag line," he remembered as sweat began to flow more freely. Again he swiped his face and the smudge was bigger.

Wouldn't he rather work inside on a day like this?

"No. I love my job," he said without hesitation. "I've been doing this a long time now."

Taylor is "Mr. Fix-It" at the Missile Command's Test Area 1. If it's mechanical, he knows what makes it tick. And he's the man who gets the call when something goes wrong, whether it's a cannon, a tank or a 55-ton crane.

Born and reared in New Hope but now living in Huntsville, Taylor is classified as an engineering equipment mechanic in RASA's Field Maintenance Division. He goes wherever he's needed but his primary beat is Test Area 1.

And since the facility is one of the busiest and best-equipped in the country, Taylor's services are in constant demand—it may be a bulldozer, a crane, cannon armored personnel carrier, tank or 155 self propelled gun. ("I just pulled the power plant out of the 155 and put a starter on it," he said.)

He has the reputation of being a whirlwind in perpetual motion.

"He's one of the hardest workers I ever saw," said Frank Bunn, Chief of Flight Operations. "Not only that, hes good. I think he would stay on the job seven days a week if we asked him."

How did he get the nickname 'tank'?

During World War II, he served with the First Infantry Division through three invasions—Sicily, North Africa and Normandy.

"That's when I started working on tanks, and combat vehicles," Taylor said. "I've been doing it ever since."

"Right now, most of my time is spent working on tanks," he said. Altogether he keeps some five tanks and several M113s in running order at the Missile Command which uses the vehicles in a variety of missile and research tests."

Although he has worked at Redstone since 1959, Taylor is oblivious—almost—to what missiles do.

"I seldom ever see a shot," he said although he works where some 1,500 missiles and rocket are fired every year. "I'm always sweating out a tank breaking down or something like that. That's my biggest concern."

The job isn't all peaches and cream—even for a man who likes it.

"I have laid on ice four inches thick to work on a tank so engineers could finish a test," Taylor said. "And a tank in the summer gets just as hot as it gets cold in the winter."

Taylor wiped his face and grinned the grin of a contented man.

"I've got to go," he said. "We're getting ready for a test now."

Red Cross Orientation

A basic Red Cross orientation class will be given at the Post Chapel on September 17, from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Interested persons will be interviewed on September 14, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Anyone desiring further information should call the Red Cross Office, 876-4427 or 876-3381.

Student Aides Honored At Departure

The average age of the Huntsville Division, US Army Corps of Engineers soars, the vending machines take plummets, the magna-fax machines breath a sigh of relief and the Summer Student Aides return to school.

Eighteen young people are leaving the Division and returning to high school or college to continue their education after a summer of interesting, stimulating and profitable work experience.

The program under the supervision of Fannie P. Thompson, Assistant Professor of Business Education at Alabama A&M, was an outstanding success as evidenced by reports from supervisors and reactions from the aides.

Aides were placed in jobs that fit them best. This was accomplished by supervisors furnishing a brief description of the work needed to be accomplished and matching the students background, experience and study area to the job.

The aides also took part in a series of special sessions. These sessions included group discussions, role playing, films, tapes, demonstrations and lectures to promote attitudes and work habits which lead to success on the job. They developed office skills that will help them in school and in the job market after graduation.

Colonel Lochlin W. Caffey, Division Engineer in a predeparture ceremony praised the diligence of all the summer aides, commended them for the vigor which they displayed on the job and expressed the Division's thanks for the work accomplished.

Colonel Caffey named and presented Certificates of Achievement and $25 cash awards to four of the young people for their superior accomplishments. Honored were Shirley A. Bentley, a sophomore at Alabama A&M; Vickey L. Bryant, Sharon M. Hildreth, and Debora L. Snyder, all of Johnson High School of Huntsville.

IEEE Slates Luncheon Meeting

The Huntsville chapter of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers will meet at the Officers Open Mess at 11:30 a. m., on Friday for lunch and to hear Robert N. Dennis, Jr., Logicon Corporation's project director for the process control system contract for the U. S. Post Office.

Dennis will talk about control systems for bulk mail handling.

PRIVATE ELIZABETH FIELDS

Military Couple United For Tour

Aircraft approaching the Redstone airfield control tower are welcomed by a soft feminine voice these days. The woman's touch came with the arrival of Private Elizabeth A. Fields, the Missile Command's only WAC air traffic controller.

She was especially thrilled with her assignment to Redstone because it also meant a reunion with her husband, PFC Michael A. Fields, a student at the Missile and Munitions Center and School.

The couple met when both were stationed at Ft. Rucker. They were married in May. When PFC Fields was transferred to Redstone, he commuted to Ft. Rucker every weekend to visit his wife.

Pvt Fields has been in the Army eight months and feels right at home. Military life is nothing new to her. As she says, "I was an Army brat and my father was stationed at Redstone from 1953-59. Because I grew up in a military environment, I think it has been easier for me to adjust to my new roles as a WAC and also as the wife of a soldier."

There are times when she has second thoughts about being in the Army but she comments, "I think this is normal in every occupation. One thing I'm looking forward to is completing college. The G.I. bill will really help. And there are a lot of veterans benefits. I've received valuable training in aviation that I'll be able to use outside of the Army as well as in."

Pvt Fields became interested in aviation through a friend who was an air traffic controller. She began looking into opportunities offered by the military branches and finally decided on the Army program. She hopes to obtain her private pilots license.

Since her arrival at Redstone she has encountered a wide variety of aircraft and feels that her work here will provide a broad range of experiences in the aviation field.

Her first day on the job was enough to convince her of the value of practicality. While climbing the steep stairway to the control tower, she ruined a new pair of nylon hose.

"I really prefer to wear my fatigues and boots while on duty," she says, "and when I get home my husband and I really have something in common. How many newlyweds do you know who shine their boots together?"

Artist-Guitarist Strings Along Six More Years

"When I perform at night clubs, folks often ask me to play 'I'll String Along With You,'" said Staff Sergeant Lawrence M. Espinosa.

But Espinosa, known to local television and night club audiences as Larry Thorne, recently decided to "string along" with the Army for another five years.

By day, Espinosa is an illustrator in the Army Wide Training Support Division at the U.S. Army Missile and Munitions Center and School. But from time to time, he carries his stringed instruments or drums to a TV studio or night club to accompany his own vocal renditions of old favorites.

Espinosa plays six or twelve-string guitar, mandolin, steel guitar and bass guitar, and has done vocal backup as well as lead vocal.

"I play a little country music, but mostly deal in 'mood' music," he said shortly before re-enlisting.

"I started playing when I was 9. I took my first musical job at 16, playing rhythm and doing vocal work on the Town Hall Party television program out of LaBrea, California. The show moved to Compton around that time, during the mid-'50s. A lot of the greats were on that show.

Flag Football Underway

The woes and cheers of football are back and Company A of the Missile and Munitions Center and School will be trying for their second championship as the Redstone men's flag football league gets underway this Monday at Linton Field.

Twelve teams are entered in this year's competition to be climaxed by a playoff tournament in October to determine the Arsenal champions.

Last year Company A defeated the Commandoes of MICOM in the second game of a rare football doubleheader to win the crown.

Both Company A and MICOM will field a number of returning players from last year in their quest for the league championship. Other teams include the Meddacs, 291st MP Company, Marines and several ETC units at the School.

The Meddacs grabbed the runner-up spot in the regular league competition last year, while the Marines will be making their debut in the league. The pillpushers and the fighting bulldogs could prove to be divisional powers in this year's competition.

Redskins In 22-0 Win

The Redstone Arsenal Redskins quelled numerous offensive drives by the Ft. Campbell Bears and went on to defeat the "blue grass" youths 22-0 in a Ft. Campbell National League contest last Saturday there.

The victory was the first win for Redstone against no losses in the 13-15 age group.

The Redskins romped for three touchdowns in the first half as they rolled up an impressive 132 yards in total offense. Fullback Anthony Doane on a slant play off right guard ran 34 yards to give Redstone a 6-0 lead in the first period. The two-point conversion was unsuccessful.

The Redskins made the score 14-0 midway in the second period as right halfback Dave Lewis scampered nine yards off right tackle into the end zone. Lewis completed the drive with a nifty run up the middle for the two-point conversion.

The Redskins scored their final TD in the waning seconds of the first half as quarterback Ronnie Hollingsworth bootlegged a 21-yard run around right end. Kevin Males added the two-point conversion with a run up the middle.

The Redskins averaged 5.1 yards per play as compared to the Bears 1.9 yards. The Redskins offensive backs sparkled as Doane ran for 41 yards in five carries, while Males added 27 yards on five carries. Lewis had three carries for a total of 22 yards.

Coach Bill Males attributed the win to the depth of the Redskin's roster and aggressive tackling, particularly from defensemen Chris Kinch, Carl Jackson and Mickey Willis.

The Arsenal youths will play the Ft. Campbell Browns this Saturday in a home game at the YSP football field. Kickoff will be at 2 p.m.

Fisk-Andrews Duo Rules In Pop Golf Once More

Les Fisk and Howard Andrews once more share the P&P Golf League championship but it took a lot of final night scrambling before they were able to grab the crown away from another pair of duos just a single point off the pace.

After winning the title two years ago and finishing second last time around, the Fisk-Andrews tandem took a three-point lead into the finale and made it stand up against the spirited challenges of the Bob-Mercer-Bob Alves-Jay White and Billy Perkins-Jim Laird-Ed Leahy combines.

Mercer and Alves won four of the six points in the championship match in falling short by the narrowest of margins. Perkins and Laird got their team into a second place deadlock by winning five of six from Bill Leary and Gene Martin.

Fourth place in the 22-team league race went to the Lloyd Jackson-Lou Snyder duo while Lee Keim and Don McGarry came in fifth.

Keim continued his individual rule over the league golfers by posting the low individual average for the seventh consecutive season. His 57.3 per round was over a stroke below runner up Gaylord Huffman.

Bill Levie won the most improved golfer trophy while Keim had a corner on most of the other individual awards. He turned in 34 birdies over the course of the season and his 53 was the best scratch round.

McGarry and Don Sharpe each carded 23 birdies for second best among the Division A golfers. Ed Foxworthy paced the B Division with 18, two more than Chapman, and Levie went one-under on an even dozen holes for the best C division total.

Paul Grieb shot the low handicapped round, a 47. Ray Proffitt had a 48.

Donaldson Tops AMC Pin Parade

Neil Donaldson rolled his way into the spotlight as the AMC bowling league kicked off another season of action last Wednesday at the Parkway Lanes.

Donaldson opened and closed with 202 and sandwiched a 191 between for a 595 total as the Bandits opened defense of their league title.

Another Bandit, John Goltz started slow but picked up steam with 202 and 213 games for 563 and Don Slagle pitched in with a 219 game and 523 for the defenders.

Tom Smith was second in line in the individual scoring column with a 587 that included a closing 221 for the Bombers. His team mate, Walt Heflin fired a 531 as the Tigers drew a collar.

Noel Moore, back with the Alley Cats after a couple of seasons on Kwajalein, got in an opening night 583 but the Cats were only able to muster a split out of their set with the What Ifs.

Women Reserves Get New Program

ANF—The Army Reserve has a new program for women. It is a two-week active duty basic training program for non-prior service women with civilian acquired skills. It is called CASP—Civilian Acquired Skills Program.

Under the program—for example—a highly trained stenographer can be enlisted in the army reserve for either a grade of E-4 or E-5. Women enter the Army Reserve in grade of Private First Class and take two weeks of basic training at Fort McClellan, Alabama. Then they return home to complete the individual training phase of basic training with their parent unit.

After successful completion of both phases, the women are awarded a military occupation specialty and advance to the higher rank for which they enlisted. The program is geared to the goal of having 26,000 women in the Reserve by 1976.
