Communication

At the heart of the communications process there's this thing called frame of reference.

It consists of an individual's opinions, attitudes and beliefs and, psychologists say, is molded by one's family for the most part.

Communications theory holds that the more similar the frames of reference between people, the more likely they are to communicate effectively.

With the thought that communication is nowhere more effective, nor more easily established, than between family members, Redstone is turning to the family's role in drug abuse prevention this week, National Drug Abuse Prevention Week.

At this point in time the hard drug crisis is over for the military services and their major drug woe, alcohol abuse, is out in the open and a vigorous program of prevention, treatment and rehabilitation begun.

Consequently, Redstone is spotlighting this week that small but significant aspect of the military drug scene which involves the young dependent, who is hardly less susceptible to being caught up in drug abuse than the young person in the civilian community.

Intra-family communication is the theme of a Family Rap Night to be held tonight at 7:30 at the main post chapel. It is open to everyone, and will be attended by drug abuse control authorities from both Redstone and the local community.

In the words of Second Lieutenant Paul Oliaro, Redstone's alcohol and drug abuse control officer, "drug abuse is a family problem—preventing it is a family effort and depends on keeping lines of communication open."

Answers

(Editor's Note: The MICOM Information Office conducts a question and answer program for job-related questions of general interest. Such questions may be telephoned to 876-4161 or 876-4400, or mailed to AMSMI-G. Some questions are selected for publication in the Rocket. Names are withheld. It is not intended that this program take the place of the usual supervisor-employee relationship which is the proper channel for specific job-related questions.)

QUESTION: Since accommodations are limited, why can't deer hunting on the arsenal be limited to active and retired military, and only civilians employed by the Army?

ANSWER: MICOMR 210-2 sets out who has permission to hunt on the Arsenal. Public hunts are provided for both public relations reasons and to reduce the deer population to proper level. This year there are three public archery and 6 public gun hunts scheduled.

QUESTION: Why aren't surplus sales restricted to military and Army civilian employees?

ANSWER: Sales through property disposal are provided through authority of DOD 4160-21-M. No restriction to military and civilian employees is provided for.

QUESTION: When two people get married within an office, why is it always the woman who is transferred and what is the governing regulation?

ANSWER: The policy of the Department of the Army, Civilian Personnel Regulation 300.1, on nepotism states that employment and assignment of close blood relatives or husband and wife in the same organizational unit will be avoided to the maximum extent consistent with established merit system principles. In any event, duty assignments will not be made whereby a supervisory relationship will exist between such persons or other possibility of favored treatment ensue. The woman is not always the one transferred. It is management's decision as to which employee should be transferred. This decision should depend on several factors, i. e. duties and responsibilities assigned both employees, continuity of operations, etc.

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

That's a very personal question which you alone can decide. However, a suggestion that all military and civilian personnel should seriously consider is saving all or a portion of the pay increase which becomes effective in October, through a program that benefits both the individual and the country! U.S. Savings Bonds.

Why not consider increasing your present U.S. Savings Bond allotment; or if not already participating, why not start purchasing U.S. Savings Bonds on a regular allotment (military) or payroll deduction (civilian) basis? Select the deduction that best fits you, then complete DA Form 1727 (Civilian) or DA Form 1341-2 (Military). Forms can be obtained from your administrative office, the Bond Executive Member in your organization, or the Finance and Accounting Division.

As a method of saving, Bonds are better than ever, yielding 5-1/2 per cent interest when held to maturity. Look again into this program, and start helping yourself today!

By LT. COL. (DR.) LEONARD J. KIRSCHNER

Alcohol is a drug and drug is a four letter word. And we all know that four letter words are nasty. Hold on and read on. This is not going to be a pitch from your local temperance society.

Alcohol has been used by man as far back as the dawn of history. The ancient Egyptians were distilling some pretty mean brews back about the time they were building the great pyramids (probably called it Old Pharaoh or some other catchy title).

Alcohol is a social agent, a medicine and even as a magic potion it is well documented in the history of most civilizations. On occasion its use has been outlawed. A Twentieth Century example of that phenomenon includes our own Prohibition of the 1920's and the present laws of India and some Moslem countries. Most such efforts at prohibition have been dismal failures.

A recent cartoon in the Herald Tribune showed two bartenders talking. The caption read, "If alcohol is a drug then we must be pushers." True. They are pushers of a drug that is legal and socially acceptable in our society.

Then what is the problem? Well, would you believe that there are some people who simply cannot use alcohol in a socially acceptable manner? A shocking thought but true, I'm sad to say.

Getting drunk and driving your car into someone or something isn't acceptable. Staying drunk and failing to perform your job is not acceptable. Destroying your family because of alcohol is not acceptable. Destroying your liver and your brain with alcohol is not acceptable.

The estimates range widely but it is accepted by authorities in the National Institute of Health that the United States has several million people who abuse alcohol; who do not use it in a socially acceptable fashion, who in short, are alcoholics.

The Alcoholics Anonymous definition of an alcoholic is one who considers himself to be an alcoholic. A friend of mine considers an alcoholic to be someone who drinks more than he does (a very liberal definition). Another definition is anyone who has job, family or legal problems related to alcohol.

Let us accept the fact that alcoholic beverages will be available for the foreseeable future. It is up to each and every one of us to refrain from the destructive use that this drug is capable of. If you or someone you know has a problem with alcohol, get help. The Armed Forces will help. Just ask your commander, chaplain, doctor, lawyer or Social Actions officer. They can help and will help. Just ask.

Additionally, E-3s with at least 12 months TIS but less than 21 months may be promoted to E-4 as long as not more than 35 per cent of the assigned E-4s are in the wavier zone.

It is expected that the decentralized policy will slightly increase the promotions to E-4.

Changes Made In Warrant Schooling

A number of changes are taking place in the warrant officer schooling program.

Basic training will remain the same but the "intermediate" course will be retitled "advanced" and the present "advanced" course will become a "senior" course.

An important feature of the advanced and senior courses is that they will allow students to enroll in nearby cooperating civil institutions to work towards associate or baccalaureate degrees.

Warrant officers must have at least an associate degree before completing their 15th year of active service.

Maintenance Rotation

Robert E. Neely, a branch chief in Maintenance Directorate, has been selected as the first civilian to be assigned overseas under the Directorate's new expanded rotation plan.

Neely leaves Monday for Heidelberg, Germany, where he will be assigned to Headquarters, U. S. Army Europe and Seventh Army. His tour will be three years.

The essence of the new mobility plan is that additional elements of the Directorate have been brought into the world-wide system of on-the-spot technical assistance to Army units in the field.

Certain personnel spaces in the engineering division of the Directorate have been designated as "mobile base positions." The incumbents of these slots are eligible, willing, and will be required periodically to accept permanent-change-of-station assignments anywhere the need may be. Their counterparts in the field will return to MICOM and, in effect, swap jobs.

The purpose of the expanded program is twofold. It will give to the field the best possible on-site support that the Command can offer, and it will continually replenish the Directorate's reservoir of maintenance engineers with fresh field experience.

Neely will work directly for Major John Luzietti, MICOM's senior staff technical representative at USAREUR, and will act as the immediate supervisor of the 23 missile maintenance technicians assigned to land combat missile systems in the area. The

Target Accuracy Sought

Army Missile Command equipment being developed to guide a family of terminal homing weapons is concluding a series of tests this week at Fort Sill, Okla.

Ground Laser Locator Designators are being used with an automated fire control concept to give conventional artillery accuracy against moving targets.

The program is being conducted by the Human Engineering Laboratories of the Army Materiel Command in coordination with the Fort Sill Artillery Center and the Missile Command.

"Our equipment is the flash-light that illuminates the target with a laser beam, enabling the projectile to home-in on the target," said Major Phillip Williams who direct's MICOM's Precision Designator Management Office.

"These tests show the versatility of our designators. We're not limited to one weapon system but can guide a variety of missile as well as conventional weapons."

Williams said equipment being used in the tests is advanced development prototypes fabricated by International Laser Systems and Hughes.

"We're attempting to refine what is needed, both in hardware and procedures, to engage moving targets with accuracy," Wil-iams said.

"From these tests, the user will know what is available in the way of hardware and can better establish future needs and requirements."

Representing the Missile Command at the tests were Colonel Rudolph Axelson, Deputy of the Army Missile Research, Development and Engineering Laboratory and Major Williams.

Gary Whorley heads the Artillery Directorate at Human Engineering Laboratories.

Laser guidance was developed in laboratories at the Missile Command which for several years has conducted research programs testing laser guided missiles against tanks and other point targets.

MICOM has tri-service responsibility for the ground designator.

Blood Donations Under 500 First Time In Nine Years

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile netted 45 pints during two visits to Redstone Arsenal in October, the first time since November 1964 that Arsenal donors did not meet a monthly quota of 500 pints assigned the Arsenal by Red Cross regional headquarters in Birmingham.

There are at least two factors involved in the decline; according to Red Cross and Arsenal blood drive coordinators:

1. The number of potential donors — military and civilians employed at Redstone — has dropped in the past few years. Many long time blood donors have retired.

A recent change in procedures by the Red Cross has made it necessary to reject personnel who have served in Southeast Asia within the past three years. In the first October visit, the Bloodmobile rejected 28 potential donors. Last week 90 had to be turned away.

Leo C. Kirk, Red Cross Field Director at the Arsenal, said Friday, however, that he did not believe conflicting reports originating with private groups in the area last week had produced any adverse impact on the Arsenal Bloodmobile visit.

There were local radio reports last week inferring that blood collection on the Arsenal would be sent to Israel.

That is not the case.

The Red Cross has agreed to accept blood from donors who wish to designate where they want the blood sent. If the donors, for example, said he or she wanted to designate the blood to be sent to a particular country, that notation would be made on the record.

The blood will be used locally unless the American Red Cross receives a specific request from its counterpart organization in Neely, who holds a master's degree in human relations, has worked in project management as well as a wide variety of maintenance engineering activities at Redstone since 1955. He will be accompanied to Europe by his wife, Pauline, and their twin daughters, Linda and Brenda.

A Sticky Fight With Elusive Foe

Law enforcement personnel, courts, commanders and special staffs involved in preventing drug and alcohol abuse or punishing offenders may be said to be confronting a problem in some ways like the Hydra that nearly confounded Hercules.

The Hydra of Greek legend had nine heads, each of which would produce two others if cut off and not quickly cauterized—a sticky problem for any heroic figure.

Sticky, too, is the fight against drug and alcohol abuse. There are no quick solutions, but key people at MMCS are working to find answers, no matter how elusive they may seem at first.

Alcohol and drug abuse are not only personal problems in themselves, but often manifestations of other personal problems, according to some psychologists.

Abusers themselves pose two kinds of problems—legal and social.

SUPPORT OF HABIT

The legal problems surrounding drug abuse seem obvious—many abused drugs are illegal. But many illegal drugs are expensive—especially cocaine and heroin. Abuse of addictive drugs and the need to support the habit may lead the addict to crime, fencing stolen goods to finance his habit. In many cities serious crime statistics have jumped along with incidence of addictive drug abuse.

The legal problems of alcohol abuse are less obvious. Primarily, legal problems surround attempts to enforce driving while intoxicated (DUI) or driving under the influence (DUI) laws. In some jurisdictions, attempts to prosecute for DUI depend on observations of an investigating officer at the scene of an accident. In some cases, physical evidence is difficult to produce. Some jurisdictions have had difficulty getting convictions for DUI when there is no accident involved, again due to a lack of evidence.

In addition, attorneys adept at plea bargaining may be able to enter a guilty plea to a lesser charge, like reckless driving, on behalf of their clients. Some courts may often set a minimal sentence even if conviction is based on a

DWI or DUI charge.

The legal problems are complex, and if they're not addressed and solved, they prolong the social problem—the people problem—of alcohol and drug abuse.

Alcoholism and drug abuse in themselves are social problems, but at the same time they are also indicators of other social or institutional problems.

One way substance abuse is a social problem is the lost time often attributable to substance abuse, particularly alcohol. One reason Department of Defense is concerned and is doing something about alcohol abuse is the high percentage of lost time off the job attributable to hangovers or alcohol abuse.

Another problem is auto accidents and fatalities which are drug or alcohol related—those in which substance abuse is called a contributing factor.

FAMILY PROBLEMS

Drug and alcohol abuse can also cause more personal problems, especially when there's a family involved. Whether the alcoholic or drug abuser stays away from home a lot or if he spends money that could be applied to his family's needs, substance abuse can lead to serious family problems, causing even greater stress on the abuser.

More institutionalized problems of a social nature are questions now being raised by sociologists and social service workers:

"Stresses that are not resolved may drive a subject to alcohol or drugs. Are we helping solve those stresses through referral or direct aid?"

"If we become more effective in dealing with people, can we expect a drop in alcohol and drug abuse?"

"Are our agencies equipped to deal with people under stress within a more complex society?"

These kinds of complex and often-overlapping questions must have solutions if alcohol and drug abusers are to be helped.

And this complex relationship is why effective drug and alcohol abuse programs need well-coordinated, specialized groups working together toward the same end—helping people with problems before they become more serious.

RSA SAINTS—The lightest team in their league and with the fewest players, the RSA Saints have still never been beaten by more than six points. "It's rough," said Coach Terry Chance. "Everybody plays, and each has to learn two or three positions well." The Saints roster includes (front row) Joey Strachan, Ronnie Bolding, Tom Rones, Kelly Patton, Robby Walker; (middle row, jersey 42) Rusty Russell, Billy Doritty, Calvin Lorder, Wesley Lewis; (back row) Roger Doolittle, Mike Simonson, John Sharp, Lyle Miller, Kelvin Murphy.

(ANF)—Here's another sign of the changing lifestyle of today's Modern Army. Since barracks are now consisting of more and more carpeted rooms and cubicles, the old mop-and bucket method of cleaning has become rather out-of-date.

Prevention On One Hand —Detection On The Other

This is Drug Abuse Prevention week for the Army but for some drug and alcohol abusers, overindulgence and substance abuse is a full-time problem.

For Captain Robert MacCary, every week involves efforts to prevent drug and alcohol abuse. MacCary is the officer in charge of the MMCS drug and alcohol abuse team.

"The program is designed to prevent and detect alcohol or drug abuse, and to offer rehabilitation to the man who wants help," said MacCary. Staff Sergeant Marion L. Hannah is NCOIC of the team.

The three-pronged approach to drug and alcohol abuse problems seems to be working. The Redstone Arsenal effort, including the MMCS drug and alcohol abuse team, recently received an outstanding rating in a Department of the Army evaluation. The MMCS team co-ordinates with the MICOM alcohol and drug control officer, Lieutenant Paul Oliaro.

To help prevent alcohol and drug abuse, MacCary and Hannah run a program of troop education, advising soldiers within School Brigade of the adversities of drugs and the facilities available to them if they need help.

Continual Update

In addition, each unit within the brigade is authorized a drug education specialist who has completed a 20-hour course of instruction and who receives quarterly update training on drug and alcohol abuse.

Each drug education specialist's job is to assist his unit commander with the drug prevention program through education.

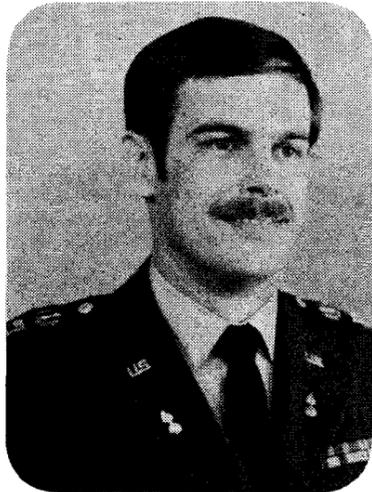

"He's a knowledgeable source who can give the men straight answers to their questions about drugs," said MacCary.

The second part of the program, detection, is accomplished through several approaches.

"We're working with the MICOM alcohol and drug control office to set up training courses for military and civilian supervisors, to help with early identification and rehabilitation of alcohol and drug abusers," Mac Cary said.

Greatest Problem

Alcoholism has been recognized by Department of Defense as its greatest single problem is the area of substance abuse. DoD now recognizes alcoholism as a disease, and personnel seeking rehabitation may apply sick leave to time spent in counseling sessions or rehabilitation centers.

In addition to the supervisor education, an effort is underway to provide for detection of drug abuse within MMCS.

Recently, a team of marijuana-sniffing dogs visited Redstone Arsenal and searched numerous areas for cannabis.

The use of the marijuana dogs accomplished two purposes, according to one member of the School Brigade command group.

First, the dogs' findings demonstrated that the MMCS campus and other areas of Redstone Arsenal are not safe sites for drug caches.

In addition, evidence sized by authorities can be used in cases turned over to unit commanders for disciplinary action, he said.

Another approach through detection is the urinalysis program. All enlisted personnel and officers under age 29 are subject to spot-check urinalysis. But the urinalysis can detect only hard drugs.

Chances Slim

"Case histories and statistics show us that our chances of rehabilitating a hard drugs user are much slimmer than if he's on soft drugs," MacCary explained.

Some observers of the drug scene don't become alarmed at marijuana, often because they feel grass is relatively harmless. MacCary disagrees.

"If a man is smoking grass, he's still fooling around with an illegal drug," he said, "and there's a good chance he'll go on to other drugs."

there's a good chance he'll go on to other drugs."

MacCary concedes that there are numbers of grass users who don't go on to hard drugs, but points out that he hasn't yet met a junkie who started right out mainlining.

In every case MacCary knows of, the man began by smoking grass or snorting cocaine, he said.

Whether or not the smoker goes on to "bigger and badder things" depends on the psychological makeup of the individuals, according to MacCary and psychologists who've studied problems of drug abuse.

"Grass is our number one problem," MacCary said.

For rehabilitative effort, the team co-ordinates activity between various agencies.

"We act as a contact point between units and agencies on Post like the Human Relations Center and the counselling center," said MacCary.

"The Human Relations Center is not only a follow-up outpatient clinic," MacCary said, "but it's also for people who may walk in with any kind of problem."

"If a person walks in with anything that's bugging him the center may be able to suggest ways of finding answers, offering an alternative to alcohol or drugs," he said.

A Real Help

For the soldier who's already on drugs but wants to get off, the Exemption Program can be a real help.

"The man can turn himself in as a drug abuser and receive the necessary help to overcome his problem without fear of prosecution or self-incrimination," said MacCary.

There's just one "catch," and it's not designed to trap anybody. It's the way a drug user can ruin his own rehabilitation program.

Once a person is under investigation for drug charges, he's ineligible for the exemption program. If he's undergoing rehabilitation and gets busted for possession or use, the exemption is off, too.

What it boils down to is this: it's a chance to admit to the problem and get professional help without getting busted, as long as you stay clean.

"I feel we have a good program here," said MacCary.

"The program has good command support, and the unit commanders care. We have the resources available to us so we can be really effective," he said.

How effective is the program?

"It's difficult to measure success, but you can generally get a fell for it by several ways. For instance, if you have a lot of guys involved in extra-curricular activities like sports, you can be reasonably sure these guys are not heavy dopers," MacCary said.

And if you have heavy dopers, you try to help them—before they get busted.

BALL COMMITTEE MEMBERS—Three Officers Wives Club members serving on the committee for the annual Charity Ball are: (L to R) Mrs. John Shea, general chairman; Mrs. Henry Brown, reservations chairman; and Mrs. Ivan Prince, ticket chairman. The formal Ball will be held November 16 in the Officers Open Mess. Tickets are still available for the event.

Tickets for the social event of the season, the annual Charity Ball to be held November 16, are still available to members of the Redstone Officers Open Mess and their guests. Preparations for the Ball are being completed by members of Officers Wives Club.

Tickets may be purchased at the Officers Open Mess each Friday between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m., and from various groups sponsored by the Wives Club.

Mrs. Ivan Prince is ticket chairman and may be reached by calling 837-6398 or 837-7993. To insure preferred seating arrangements, groups should purchase tickets early.

The formal Ball will feature an "Old Southern" decor. Music for dancing will be presented by "The Southern Comforts" from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The Ball will begin at seven and a seated dinner will be served at eight. Music for this portion of the evening will be provided by the Larry Robbins Combo.

Honorary chairman is Mrs. Rutledge P. Hazzard. The general chairman is Mrs. John Shea, while Mrs. Henry Brown, and Mrs. James Feltis, head the decorations and reservations committees respectively.

All proceeds from the Ball will go to charity.

Golf Group Honors Former Chairman

Officers Wives Club golfers dedicated last week's playday to Jo Donley, a former chairman of the group.

The 18-hole group played best ball threesomes. Midge Clisson, Camille Schlendering and Pat Martinez were the winners with Jo Donley, Sonja Skemp and Joy Mundy in second place.

Among the players shooting for nine holes, a Jo Donley plaque was awarded for the low scorer in each threesome. Doris Leonetti, Dee Gibson and Linda Seibelman were the winners.

In earlier competition, Charlene Powell made a hole-in-one on No. 5 playing in a foursome with Joy Mundy, Florence Teir and Judy Parker.

6. The most common blood disease is leukemia. True  False
7. The main function of red cells is to transport oxygen from the lungs to the tissues and to transport carbon dioxide from the tissues to the lungs. True  False

SCORING
If you answered 0-5 correct, you have poor knowledge of one of the most important aspects of your life. If you answered 6-9 correct, you have a basic knowledge, but could use a little homeing-up. If you answered 10-13 correct, you deserve congratulations. You have a good knowledge of the importance of blood to you and others. No matter what your score, call your local Red Cross Blood Center and go in to donate. They need your body.

Blood is highly species-specific. Cells and plasma proteins injected from one species to another act as a foreign protein, causing violent reaction or death to the recipient.
It takes the blood approximately 24 seconds to make a complete round of the body.
Since it is now possible to separate the red cells, white cells, and plasma of each blood donation, a patient can be given only that part that he needs.
The most common blood disease is anemia.

Showcase Opens Temporary Site

Pelicans Pocket Showcase will open next week in building 3615 instead of its usual building on Ajax Road behind the Rod and Rake because consignments handcrafted for Christmas-giving by military families, both active and retired, are expected to be too numerous for the amount of space in the Women's Activities building.

The doors in the temporary location will open after a ribbon cutting at 10 Thursday morning.

Ceramics, hand sewn and knitted novelties and clothes, Christmas decorations and other items will be offered.

Consignments will be accepted at the regular location on Ajax Road through Monday from 10 to three. Doors at the temporary location on Vincent Road across from the airplane will open tomorrow and Friday from 10 until 5.

Anyone can buy.

SAFE DRIVING TIP

"I find that when a customer gives me a hard time and I get upset, it's best I go have a quick coffee, relax and then return to my truck. Mad men behind the wheel are dangerous." ... Ron Smith, Edmonton, Alberta.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE
HUMAN GOALS

To contribute to the improvement of our society, including its disadvantaged members, by greater utilization of our human and physical resources while maintaining full effectiveness in the performance of our primary mission.

Save gas:
save cash

Use this chart to keep track of how many miles per gallon your car is burning and—most important—how much gasoline YOU are saving. The easiest way to save gas is to keep a check on the number of miles you get from a gallon of gasoline and the amount of gasoline you use. To determine your miles per gallon, locate the number of gallons used (at top) and follow down the column to the number of miles traveled (at left). Multiply the number of gallons you use times the price you pay per gallon of gasoline; this will indicate how much gasoline you're consuming. If both totals are at a minimum, you are doing your share to help America fight its gas crisis.

Conserve natural resources for a better tomorrow

Army Surveys Job Satisfaction

(ANF)—The Army will administer a personnel survey during November to collect feedback on various Department of Defense originated policies and legislative proposals.

Approximately 81,000 Army officers and enlisted personnel will fill out questionnaires on job satisfaction, leadership, promotions, pay and in-service educational opportunities.

The survey is also aimed at developing management data for increasing retention of military personnel and improving the attractiveness of a volunteer military.

Another WAC Center

(ANF)—The Army is taking in more women than ever before and has activated a new WAC basic training battalion at Fort Jackson, S.C.

There have been just too many recruits for the WAC Center at Fort McClellan to handle.

The 17th WAC Basic Training Battalion at Fort Jackson will begin actual training in January.

Afro Hairstyles Now Part Of Exchange Service

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service position on the Afro hair style is plain: Afro cuts are a mandatory service in every AAFES barber and beauty shop worldwide.

The AAFES manual governing the operation of personal services outlets directs that "barbers and beauticians will be required to familiarize themselves with the principles of cutting and styling all types of hair without regard to the ethnic origins of the authorized patron." Exchange Service barber and beauty shop concession contracts specifically require that barbers and beauticians be qualified in cutting all types of hair, including the Afro. They also specify what supplies and tools are mandatory in order to provide service to all customers regardless of ethnic origin.

Since 1970, AAFES has spent more than $125,000 in a training program to teach exchange barbers and beauticians how to cut the Afro. Concessionaires also have expended considerable amounts. That training continues.

In all exchange barbershops, the man's Afro is considered a regular haircut and is priced accordingly. It is not considered a razor cut or a special hair style. If an Afro customer desires the addition of sheen spray or oil, he is charged the same price as other customers pay for tonics or oils.

A women's Afro also is considered a normal haircut and is priced in accordance with approved beauty shop haircut prices. Hair relaxing is considered the same as a cold wave permanent and is priced accordingly.

An Afro "blow-out," consisting of an oil treatment after which heat is applied while combing in order to stretch the hair, is considered a special service. Blow-out prices vary from one area to another, according to local commercial prices as determined by pricing surveys. Blow-outs are available in both barber and beauty shops.

For the third consecutive year, AAFES has contracted for the publication of "Curly Clues." This is a bi-monthly magazine containing instructions and training aids for barbers and beauticians in the care and cutting of black patrons' hair. In addition to the magazine, each issue is accompanied by an appropriate 11- by 14-inch lithograph photo displaying three views of the latest hair style for men and women. The Curly Clues service is provided to more than 2,000 exchange barber and beauty shops worldwide.

The all-out AAFES effort to provide Afro cuts is justified by the wide popularity of the natural style with black servicemen and women and their dependents. AAFES has notified all major commands that its barbers cannot be expected to enforce local command hair style rulings. Exchange Service barbers cut hair according to the desires of their customers; enforcement of local rulings is a command responsibility.

Colts Capture Pair Of Wins

The RSA Colts dropped the "blues" on the RSA Saints with a 18-6 victory last Wednesday in the 95-pound division of the Huntsville football league.

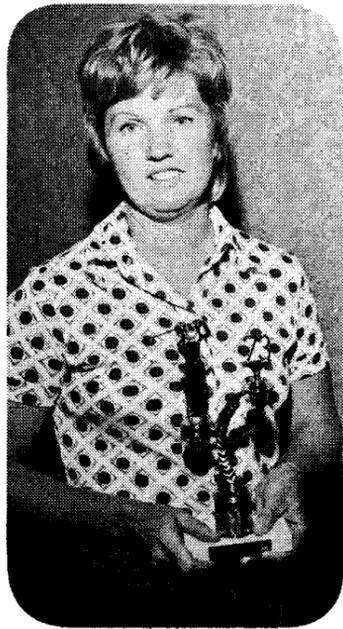

The Colts now have a 2-1 mark in league competition and an overall 5-1 record.

In last Saturday's "B" division game, the younger Colts galloped to a 37-6 win over the Randolph team. Mike Skeeters scored three TD's, while Rodney Dinkel added two more in their sweeping victory over Randolph.

All the Colt scoring came in the first half against the Saints. Rodney Dinkel, on a quarterback keeper, ran 44 yards for a Colt TD in the first period. The Colts added two more TD's in the second period on a blocked Saint punt by Mike Skeeters and a two-yard run by quarterback Dinkel. The final TD was set up by a 38-yard pass from Dinkel to Ernie Collier.

The Saints' only score came in the second period covering 65 yards in eight plays.

Dinkel completed six of nine passes; running for two TD's; gaining over 75 yards on the ground and leading the Colts defense throughout the entire game.

CHAMPION—Louise Hanby won the three day competition among the 9-hole golfers sponsored by the Redstone Officers Wives Club.

Raiders Raid Mountain League Foes

The RSA Raiders, with their strong running attack, made mole hills out of several Mountain League teams last week posting a 8-0 record for the season.

The Raiders blanked the Neel Saints 32-0 on Tuesday following a devastating 66-0 win over Cotaco in the Brindlee Mountain League.

The Saints were no match for the Raiders as the Arsenal youths pressed for three touchdowns in the first period. Mark McKnight, Roger Lowery and Donnie Blackburn scored the Raider's TD's on 15, 45 and four-yard runs. Blackburn added a two-point conversion. The Raiders added another TD in the second quarter on McKnight's one-yard run and Tom Sly ended the scoring in the final period on a recovered Neel fumble in the end zone.

The Arsenal youths gained 303 yards in offense with Lowery netting 192 yards in rushing. The Raider's "fearsome five" of Ron Poteat, Burley, Kyle Bryan, Sly and Glenn Yea have held opponents to a mere 18 points for eight games. The five defensemen weigh 124 pounds each. The 12-13 year-old league has a maximum weight limit of 125.

THUMP COTACO

The RSA Raiders handed Cotaco their second loss of the football campaign with a 66-0 victory at the Cotaco Jr. High football field Oct. 13.

It started as a defensive battle—neither team could score in the first period. The game turned out to be a Raider slaughter as they pushed across nine touchdowns in the remaining three periods against Cotaco.

The Arsenal youths opened the scoring in the second period on Donnie Blackburn's six-yard run. Mark McKnight added another TD on a 38-yard run off tackle. Lowery, Gregg Stone and Blackburn added two-point conversions to give the Raiders a 24-0 lead at halftime.

The Raiders came back with three more TD's in the third period on Hans Burley's 12-yard end around; Doug Bolles' two-yard run up the middle and Sandy Downes 36-yard pass to Bolles. Jim Olson added a two-point conversion on their third TD of the quarter.

In the final quarter, the Raiders hit paydirt again on Jeff Ruttencutter's nine-yard run; Darren Vittorini's five-yard run and Bolles' 33-yard run. Downes and Tim Worsham added the extra point conversions.

The Raiders had another impressive performance in offense with 42 yards, with Lowery gaining more than half that amount in rushing with 242 yards. Defensively, Burley had nine tackles, while Blackburn and Glenn Yea had eight each. Burley registered 16 tackles against Neel last Tuesday.

SAFE DRIVING TIP

"I witnessed a 4-car, loss-of-life accident when an auto hit a hub cap lying in the road. It flew up and back, smashing the windshield of the car behind resulting in loss of control." . . . G. C. Chandler, American Can Co., Union, N. Y.

Who'da Thought

Land Of Larcenous Does

Bowhunters on Redstone Arsenal are required to report if they shoot a deer without making a "kill" shot. The Post Game Warden then insures that the deer is not seriously harmed or that the animal is not allowed to suffer with a non-fatal wound.

One local wag, apparently unsure of the proper format for his report to the Game Warden, submitted a report that went something like this:

"WANTED FOR THEFT—Deer, female type, name and age unknown, approximately 110 to 125 lbs., brown and gray coloring. Report submitter was minding his own business, sitting in a tree in one of the hunting areas. Suspect approached, grabbed a fiberglass arrow (brown with yellow and orange feathers), stuck it in her side and ran off. When last seen, suspect was heading south in the company of another female deer and a small fawn with spots. Persons knowing the whereabouts of said deer please contact . . ."

The report was submitted on a day authorized for doe hunting with bow and arrow.

U.S. Wins CISM Championship

WASHINGTON (ANF)—The U.S. Armed Forces Rifle and Pistol Team dominated the 15th Annual Conseil International du Sport Militaire (CISM) Shooting Championship which was held recently in Kungsangen, Sweden.

The U.S. team won every team title plus the gold medal in each individual event. The team captured 13 of the 24 medals given at the event.

Consequently, the CISM overall shooting champion trophy returned to the U.S. for the sixth consecutive year. The trophy, a valuable brace of antique pistols donated by the late King Paul of Greece, became the permanent possession of the U.S. team in 1972 for winning the championship for five consecutive years. However, the U.S. team returned the trophy to CISM as a perpetual challenge trophy.

Who Needs The Cold? South Has Slopes Too

Who needs the cold?

Interested in skiing? Well, if you have your equipment and your body in shape the next thing you need is a place to ski. But where?

Cloudmont Resort, the South's southernmost ski area, is located right here in northern Alabama, near Mentone. And the ski season at Cloudmont lasts longer than any resort in the country.

Why? Because even though Cloudmont gets very little snow, it has a Poly-Snow synthetic slope that stays open the year around. Snow-making equipment is available in the area and the slopes are operated with a natural and man-made snow base in the winter.

During other months, an astro-turf slope is used. The surface is composed of a bladed grass-like base and small plastic granules that are scattered into and atop the base.

Cloudmont is located in the Wild River area of Lookout Mountain near the Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee line.

Besides skiing, the resort features horseback riding, nature trails, golfing and overnight accommodations.

For further information call Mentone, Alabama, (205) 634-3841 or 634-3844.

Although there are several ski resorts in the southern region, the following have been recommended by members of the Huntsville Ski Club as easily accessible from the Huntsville area. Information on additional resorts may be obtained by writing to the Chamber of Commerce nearest the resort you desire.

Ski Slope Safety Is Club's Primary Concern

Snow bunnies cheerup—Huntsville has a ski club, the only one in northern Alabama. Besides weekend jaunts to the Great Smoky Mountains, the club has a whirlwind of activities and a passel of information on the what, where techniques. The club meets on a regular basis beginning in September every year. During the heaviest ski season, December, January and February, the group meets twice a month. When spring comes a and how of skiing.

The Huntsville Ski Club is a non-profit organization begun in 1963, to encourage and promote the sport of skiing, to arrange and conduct events, to encourage safe and sportsmanlike conduct by skiers and provide opportunities for the exchange of ideas and information related to the sport. The club now has over 400 members.

Concern with safety is emphasized by the group, and a program of instruction has been developed which provides something of interest for all skiers but concentrates its attention on the beginning skier.

The Dry Land Ski School is presented as a service to the community at no cost. The program shows how to put on equipment and a series of body movements to prepare the novice for his first day on skis.

Each program at club meetings emphasizes some aspect of skiing, whether it be tips on buying ski equipment, ski fashions, ski instruction, safety, conditioning or monthly meet is held, and the club disbands for the summer season.

Many of the club's programs include color movies taken at ski areas all over the world. Anne Hagan, publicity director for the club, commented, "The aesthetics as well as the athletics of the sport are emphasized. The slopes really make the difference."

For information on any of the club's programs or activities call Anne Hagan, 534-7675 or 837-4000, ext. No. 2298

Gas Savings Tips

Here are some tips on how to get the most out of your car gasoline during the current shortage.

First of all, try to keep your speeds under 40 miles-per-hour. If you get 18 miles-per-gallon at 40, you'll probably only get about 16 at 50 miles-per-hour, 14 at 60, and so on.

Also, try to avoid unnecessary use of such luxuries as the car air conditioner and other fuel eating power accessories.

Post Soldier Of Month . . .

Missile School Corners Honor

MARSH

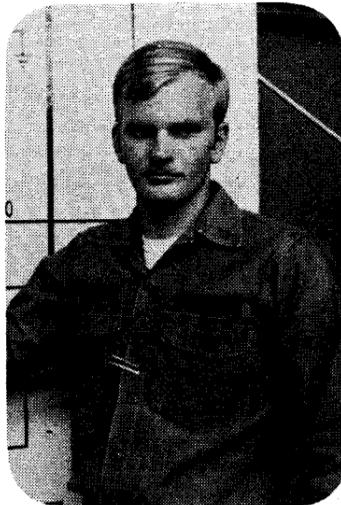

The consensus of some career servicemen is that the quality and standards of the average soldier in the voluntary Army have deteriorated. But, there are some exceptional young men coming into the Army under new programs and the Missile and Munitions Center and School has had more than its share.

During the past six months, MMCS has produced five Post Soldiers of the Month, including four straight from June thru September. The five men have been PFC's Michael L. Homelius and Roy Lester of Company A; SP4 Robert F. Barger, PFC's James D. Marett and Carl W. Radau of Company B and SP4 Lawrence Marsh of Company C.

Recognition of quality soldiers is the goal of the Post Soldier of the Month awards. The award is given to a soldier (Private thru Specialist-4), who possesses decisiveness, military bearing and education.

Each month as many as five or six candidates from Redstone Arsenal appear before a special board to compete for the honor—all of which begins first with each individual's recognition at the company level. Then the competition continues through boards from battalion to headquarters level of each command, before competition for Post honors.

Without exception, all nomi-

Arkansas Guard Gets New Job

(ANF) . . . Arkansas National Guard men and women — some 10,000 strong — are joining fellow citizens throughout the state in an unprecedented public health venture on behalf of children.

Their task is to locate and immunize more than 225,000 children against a host of childhood infectious diseases. Vaccines to be given include: Polio, Rubella, Measles, Diphtheria, Tetanus and Whooping Cough. The program, called "Every Child By '74" is headed by Mrs. Betty Bumpers, wife of the Arkansas Governor.

Guard volunteers survey the state to locate the children who need the immunizations, assist with administrative support, provide transportation to and from the clinics and assist with the immunizations.

More Like Civilian Life

(ANF)—Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway recently said the Army's greatest challenges are improving its credibility and functioning without the draft.

Callaway said the only way to improve credibility is to tell the truth and to let bad news out as quickly as good.

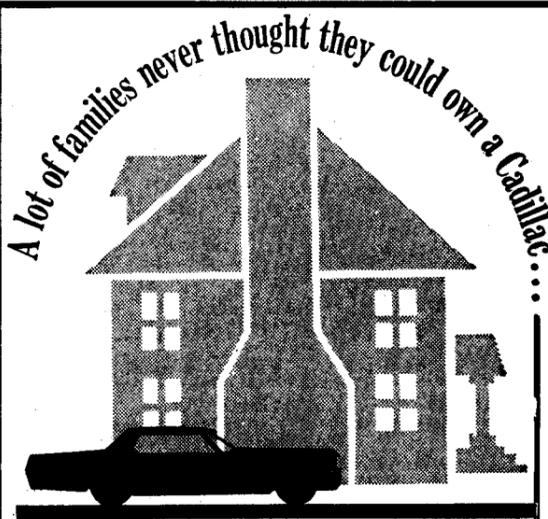

The Secretary listed two ways in which the Army is trying to attract more volunteers. First, by giving soldiers a standard of living roughly comparable to civilian life. And second, by insuring that Army jobs are important and useful ones that represent a step forward in a person's career, not an interruption.

nees from MMCS who have received the SOM award in the past six months have had two or more years of college, according to William P. Ansick, Command Sergeant Major of 1st Battalion. All five soldiers have been from the 1st Battalion at MMCS.

The SOM award is only a part of the recognition program, but it shows MMCS servicemen that the Army recognizes and honors young soldiers for their accomplishments in the field of education, demonstrated military bearing, knowledge of military subjects, current events, and military customs and traditions.

EDMONDS

Four Missile Command employees were honored recently for their contributions in procurement efforts for the TOW missile system which resulted in savings of more than $40 Million.

Receiving the Department of the Army Certificate of Achievement were John Wlodarski and Ward Jensen of the TOW Project Office; William E. Blades, Jr., Directorate for Procurement and Production; and Richard S. Edmonds, Directorate for Product Assurance.

Wlodarski and Jensen were cited for their connection in the development of a dynamic TOW value engineering program which involves the engineering of a product in the simplest but most effective form at the least cost.

Edmonds and Blades were noted for application of the "Should Cost" technique, and in depth review of what hardware should cost contractors to produce.

Chaplain Stresses The Fabulous Five

Veteran's Day brings back memories for many, but the thoughts of a former prisoner of war are surely unique. This idea was emphasized by Chaplain Gene M. Little in a speech last week before the student body of Madison Academy, at a special program to honor veterans.

Little entitled his talk, "The Fabulous Five" and expanded on the five areas of faith that the POW's upheld at their homecomings. Faith in God, family friends, future and freedom seemed to take on new meaning.

Sergeant First Class Hollis L. Jett, U.S. Army Recruiting Station in Huntsville, also took part in the program. Last year over 20 per cent of the graduating class of Madison Academy was recruited for military service.

Well, we have to be competitive or we wouldn't be in business, simple or otherwise. And, as for selection, we've got plenty of cars on our lot right now.

It would be fair to say that our dealership is a good place to buy a used car.

If it wasn't, we sure wouldn't say it.”

Secretary Says Volunteer Army Is Working

Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway said last week that the Volunteer Army is working and that today's Army is better and more prepared for combat than it was at the end of the draft.

In his keynote address to the annual convention of the Association of the United States Army,

Callaway cited the success of the volunteer Army and attributed that success to "the young men and women in America who want to serve their country."

The Army is able to attract these young men and women, Callaway said, because it could offer them a meaningful, mission-related job, a standard of living "roughly comparable" to that which they might obtain in the civilian community, and educational benefits and other opportunities.

Comparing the draft era Army with the volunteer Army, the secretary describes ways in which the volunteer force is excelling. He singled out the improved combat readiness of the volunteer Army—10 fully combat ready divisions today, versus only four at then end of the draft.

Further evidence of the improved condition of new personnel, better discipline, and the heightened morale and spirit he has found in soldiers he has talked with on his frequent visits to units in the field.

On the matter of new accessions, and specifically the shortfalls on new accession goals, Callaway pointed out that the Army was achieving about 84 percent of its accession objectives.

He emphasized that this shortfall was not serious, that the Army's overall strength was high, and that the high quality of the new volunteers helped compensate for the shortfall.

According to Division officials, this was believed to be the first time duplicate awards were presented in the same course with two students receiving identical academic averages.

Einfeld hails from Lindau and is assigned to the Vers Bttr Fla Rak 33d Bn., while Reuter calls Bremerhaven home and is assigned to the 37th Bn.

Hunters Need Keen Eyes

Before taking to the fields this Fall, hunters can set their sights on a better and safer hunting season with advance attention to the most important hunting tool—their eyes.

Because good vision is the key to successful, safe hunting, the American Optometric Association offers this vision-oriented pre-season checklist for hunters:

CHECK YOUR VISION—The eye behind the gunsight is the basic hunting tool and deserves priority pre-season attention. To thoroughly enjoy his sport safely, a hunter needs sharp visual acuity for spotting game; clear focus at far and near for sighting; fast and accurate depth perception for judging distances; good side vision; and effective color vision. To be sure his vision is on target, a hunter should seek a professional vision examination.

CHECK YOUR EYEWEAR—All hunters, whether or not they need a vision correction, should wear impact-resistant eyewear in the field to protect their eyes from flying shot, tree limbs and other hazards. For maximum efficiency, a hunter's eyewear must be precisely adjusted to his shooting needs, providing a wide field of view, conforming to facial contours, and making accurate aiming possible through the upper portion of the lens.

CHECK YOUR SUNWEAR—On bright or sunny days, quality sunglasses are a must to avoid the hazards created by glare. In addition, wearing sunglasses in bright sunlight often helps the hunter to see better at night, when he may be driving home.

Grey tinted lenses are the best choice to provide maximum protection from the sun's harmful rays without distorting colors. The density of the tint varies with the needs of each hunter, but generally, sunwear should absorb 75 to 85 per cent of the light passing through it.

CHECK YOUR GUNSIGHTS—Because the hunter's eyes and his gunsight must perform as a team to zero in on the target, a hunter should keep his vision needs in mind when selecting a gunsight. The most visually-demanding sight is the iron open sight, which requires the ability to change focus from near to far quickly. The open peep sight, minimizes the need for the eye to change focus and tends to increase depth of field. The telescopic sight, on the other hand, eliminates the need to change focus for nearer distances while aiming and is a good choice for the older hunter experiencing a natural loss of his eyes' focusing ability. In purchasing a telescopic sight, the hunter should be certain the scope has sufficient eye relief (distance between scope and eye) to avoid striking the eye on recoil. For high powered rifles, the eye relief should be at least three inches.

CHECK YOUR SIGHTING SKILLS—Optometrists advise that a hunter's aiming will be better if he sights with his dominant eye and if he keeps both eyes open when sighting. Often, the dominant eye is on the same side as the dominant hand.

CHECK YOUR WEARING APPAREL—One of the major causes of hunting accidents is mistaking another hunter for game. To avoid being the target, hunters should choose clothing that does not blend in with the environment. Research indicates that hunter orange is the only satisfactory and safe color under all weather and light conditions. (Hunter orange is a daylight fluorescent orange with a dominant wavelength 595-605 nm, a purity of not less than 85 per cent and a luminance factor of not less than 40 per cent.)

A pre-season check on vision may bring a safer, more successful hunting season into sharp focus for every hunter.

“The bonus paid for our 65-foot trailer.”

SP/5 Steve Lacey likes to get in close with airplane engines. But when the day's over, he likes to spread out in a place of his own.

“I'm from Colorado, and I'm used to having lots of room to move. Apartment living isn't my style.

“So, right after reenlisting, my wife and I went to town and bought a trailer. With three bedrooms! Now, if we move, we've got something to take with us.”

To the Laceys, today's Army means a good job and a good home to come home to. Your Career Counselor can help you get more of the things that mean the most to you.
