Means Takes Over R&D Command

Eighteen years after he began his career in missile research and development as a captain, Major General Charles F. Means stood before the same arsenal headquarters building Friday morning and took command of the U.S. Army Missile Research and Development Command.

Hundreds of friends, arsenal and community leaders, and MIRADCOM workers watched as the flag passed from Brigadier General Grayson D. Tate Jr. to MG Means in the traditional Army ceremony of change of command on the lawn of the headquarters building.

In brief remarks MG Means said his team must find "new and better ways" to reduce the time it takes to develop missile weapons and to improve the effectiveness of those already operational with Army units worldwide.

He said he was "honored...pleased...proud" to command an organization with an outstanding record of performance and achievement.

BG Tate, first commander of the Research and Development Command, left after three years at Redstone to command the Defense Nuclear Agency Field Command. Expressing thanks and appreciation to the community and arsenal workforce, BG Tate said he felt the Research and Development Command, created in a realignment of missile activities six months ago, was well launched and now capable of taking new challenges in stride.

LTG George Sammet, Deputy Commanding General for Materiel Development, DARCOM, participated in the change of command as reviewing officer.

MG Means has been in Huntsville for about four years as Project Manager of the Patriot System. MG Oliver D. Street succeeded him in that assignment July 14.

Kiss For Dad

Lynn Means kisses her dad, Major General Charles F. Means, at a reception today shortly after the general took command of the U.S. Army Missile Research and Development Command at Redstone Arsenal. Waiting their turn are the general's daughter, Sherri, and Mrs. Ann Means, his wife.

Alabama Native

New Patriot Manager Named

REDSTONE ARSENAL, AL. — Major General Oliver D. Street, III is the Army's new Patriot Project Manager but he needs no introduction to Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, or Alabama.

General Street was born in nearby Guntersville, moved to Montgomery at an early age and his mother, Mrs. Hester Elizabeth Street, still lives there.

Besides that, the general was stationed at Redstone from 1958 to 1961, coming here as a captain and promoted to major, serving as Chief of the Surface to Air Missile Division, Military Applications and Training Directorate, Army Ordnance Missile Command.

"You might say it's a homecoming of sorts," General Street said this week, indicating he was happy to be back in Alabama and looking forward to his job as Project Manager for Patriot (formerly SAM-D), the only air defense missile of its kind, and with its capabilities, under development in the free world.

He succeeds Major General Charles F. Means who has been named Commander of the Army Missile Research and Development Command at Redstone. Just prior to coming here, he was Chief of the Joint U.S. Military Assistance Group in Korea.

With 31 years of service, General Street has enjoyed a diverse Army career with artillery and air defense missiles and key staff assignments. Among them, he commanded the 101st Artillery Group (later the 18th); commanded the First Region, Army Air Defense Command; was assistance Chief of Staff for Land Operations and later, Commander of Army Element, Allied Forces, in Europe; and served staff positions with the Deputy Chief of Staff for Military Operations; was assistant Chief, then Chief of Strategic Forces Division; and acting Deputy Director of Plans.

Attending Auburn University for a year, General Street graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1946 and holds a master's in personnel management from George Washington University. He also is a graduate of the Army Command and General Staff College, Armed Forces Staff College, Army War College, Artillery and

Watts Gets Europe Post

The Department of Army Friday announced a new assignment for Brig. Gen. David E. Watts, Deputy Commander of the Missile Materiel Readiness Command.

According to the Washington release, General Watts has been named Deputy Commander of the 21st Support Command in Germany. The 21st has about 8,000 troops and 20,000 civilians throughout Germany, the Benelux countries, and the United Kingdom and is the Army's largest deployed logistical command.

Reporting date to the new assignment is August 29.

His successor at Redstone has yet to be named.

The 49-year-old Newton, Mass., native came to Redstone in Sept. 1976 from an assignment as Chief of Staff, U.S. Army Japan. He commanded the 1st Infantry Division Supply and Transportation Battalion in Vietnam in 1967-68, also led Support Command of the 1st Cavalry Division at Ft. Hood, Texas, before going to Japan in 1974.

Why is the civilian recreation area so much nicer than the one for us soldiers?

The Civilian Recreation Area has been built a little at a time over 15 years as the Civilian Welfare Council invested the money it had available, first a limited share of the profits from some arsenal vending machines, and more recently revenues from some vending machines and a share of the profits from the restaurants primarily serving civilians.

The Recreation Area was authorized in the early 1960's by the installation commander after the Army attempted—without success—to work out some sort of a joint recreational program with the Marshall Space Flight Center for the civilian employees of both Army and MSFC. MSFC rejected the proposal. The MSFC welfare fund got all the profit from their vending machines and cafeterias, revenue the Army civilians could not match since most of the profit from vending machines and the restaurants—then operated by the PX—went to soldiers' recreation funds.

If the civilian welfare area is a nice place today it is only because every nickle the civilians have been able to scrape together has been spent on it including going into hock on a substantial loan from the Army-Air Force Civilian Welfare Fund.

It is the only recreation activity on the arsenal specifically set aside for civilians. Many civilians are honestly astounded when soldiers look at the many things and facilities available to soldiers and their families on the arsenal and decide they are not getting a square shake because the civilian employees have in your words — a "nicer" recreation area.

New Command Split

ST. LOUIS — The Army has activated two new commands here, latest to be formed in the continuing realignment of the Materiel Development and Readiness Command.

The troop Support and Aviation Materiel Readiness Command (TSARCOM) and the Aviation Research and Development Command (AVRADCOM) both came to life July 1. They will replace the Army Aviation Systems Command and Troop Support Command here in a gradual shift of personnel and operations over the next several months.

TSARCOM will manage logistics for troop support and aviation materiel. AVRADCOM will be responsible for aviation materiel development and acquisition.

File In Advance; Shorten Housing Wait

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — Many soldiers are spending more time than necessary waiting for family housing.

On July 30, 1976, the Army changed policy regulating military housing applications for soldiers being assigned to continental United States posts.

Now when notified of a coming transfer, a soldier should fill out a DD Form 1946 and mail it to the housing office of his new post.

The form should list the date of departure from the old post.

Upon arrival at the new post, the soldier reports to the housing office. At that time he or she will be placed on the waiting list for quarters. If the form has been filed in advance, however, date of eligibility will be the date of departure from the old post, regardless of any leave time that may have been taken between departure and reporting.

This procedure not only cuts down waiting time for transferred personnel, but also serves as a valuable management tool, making possible more accurate predictions of housing needs and availability.

Soldiers on their way to Alaska or Hawaii should not use DD Form 1746, which is good for CONUS only, but should apply using DD Form 2370.

An Albertville-born Huntsville resident, Bishop has worked locally as an artist, photographer and technical illustrator, is a member of a local gallery and was instrumental in forming the North Alabama Photo Cooperative, a group of photographers dedicated to the promotion of photography as art.

Admiral Addresses ADPA

The Director of the Center for Defense Information will address the July meeting of the Tennessee Valley Chapter of the American Defense Preparedness Assn. Thursday night in the Officers Club.

Rear Admiral Gene R. LaRocque, Ret., an articulate critic of current defense policies, will use an open format, making brief remarks and then accepting questions from the audience.

The Center for Defense Information is located in Washington. A private organization, it employs a staff of military analysts and makes frequent reports to the public on the status of U. S. defense. Admiral LaRocque has recently visited Korea, Israel and the Soviet Union.

He spent 31 years in the Navy with numerous command assignments at sea and ashore including cruiser-destroyer flotillas in the Atlantic Fleet and a task group in the Mediterranean Sea.

The admiral, then a junior officer, was serving on board a destroyer at Pearl Harbor when the Japanese attacked in December 1941.

Tickets can be bought from Warren Sockwell (6-4978) or Jackie Williams (895-4450) for six dollars. The social begins at 6:30 and dinner is planned at 7:30 p.m.

Improved Chaparral Joins Army's Air Defense Arsenal

REDSTONE ARSENAL, AL — Ford Aerospace and Communications Corp. has delivered to the Army the first new and improved Chaparral air defense missile to come off its production line.

Louis Heilig, Vice President and General Manager, presented the missile in a formal ceremony at Red River Army Depot which does inspection and final assembly of Chaparral missiles for Aeronutronic Ford.

Accepting for the Army were LG Eugene D'Ambrosia, Deputy Commander for Materiel Readiness at the Army Materiel Development and Readiness Command and Colonel Howard Whittaker, Chaparral-FAAR Project Manager at Redstone.

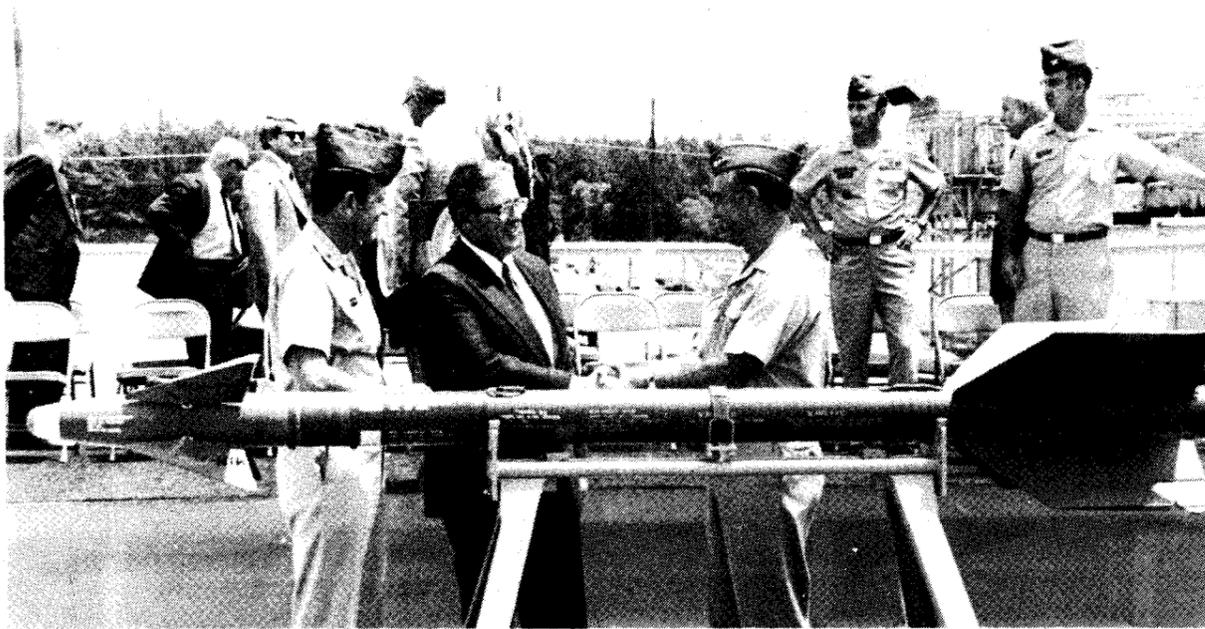

In a ceremony before depot employees and guests including Texas Congressman, Sam B. Hall, Heilig praised the government-industry team for its accomplishments and said the partnership "...significantly strengthens this country's air defense capabilities."

Heilig also presented the general a desk model of the missile commemorating the first delivery.

Congratulating the team for a job well done and commenting that the delivery represented a milestone in the Army's air defense history, General D'Ambrosia noted that the unique Army-Aeronutronic procurement could be a model for future weapon acquisition.

"This improved missile will keep Chaparral abreast of the air threat for many years to come," he added.

General D'Ambrosia presented Heilig and Aeronutronic Ford a tri-service certificate for the corporation's implementation of a management cost saving tool known as Cost Schedule Control System, or more commonly, CS2. That's an Army program that outlines precisely what is to be done, who does it, when, and how much everything will cost.

Colonel Whittaker welcomed attendees to the delivery ceremony and introduced special guests. Others from Redstone attending included Browder Johnson, Sam Burns, and George Woodward, all from the Chaparral-FAAR Project Office; and Otha Acuff, from MIRADCOM.

The improved Chaparral missile features a new guidance section which gives the missile a 360 degree intercept capability. Older missiles had no head on capability. In addition, the new missile includes a new fuze developed by Harry Diamond Labs and warhead by Picatinny Arsenal.

Aeronutronic Ford, which previously had been the Army's prime contractor for Chaparral fire units, became system contractor for the complete missile as well under an Army contract awarded in March 1976.

Chaparral is an infrared heat seeking missile mounted on a tracked vehicle that complements other Army air defense weapons, covering the battlefield above the range of Stinger and Redeye, and below Hawk. The FAAR, used with Chaparral, provides early detection of attacking enemy aircraft and relays information to the anti-aircraft sites.

Family Clinic Slated To Open

The U.S. Army Hospital announces that the Family Practice Clinic is scheduled to open on or about 1 August for active duty families residing in the Arsenal—Huntsville area.

All active duty dependents will be eligible for assignment to one of four family practitioners who are qualified to handle the majority of all medical problems pertaining to the family member.

Dependents will be registered into the Family Practice Clinic within the next two weeks. Shortly, all active duty families currently registered with Family Housing will be receiving a registration form in the mail. These forms, when filled out, may either be returned by mail or brought to Bldg. 116. When the hospital receives the registration, the family will receive notification of the physician to which they have been assigned.

A hospital spokesman said registration forms may be picked up at Building 116, after July 25, by active duty families who have not received a form in the mail by the end of July, those not registered with Family Housing, and those families assigned to Redstone since June 30.

As this new concept of care develops at Redstone Arsenal, additional information will be provided through upcoming articles.

AMCC Open House

Workers at the Army Metrology and Calibration Center will observe the 10th anniversary of the organization's move to Redstone Arsenal with an open house Friday afternoon.

Later the staff and their guests will have a picnic at the Civilian Recreation Area.

Building 5435 housing the Army Standards Lab will be open to visitors from 1:30 until 3:30 p.m. The picnic begins at 3:30 p.m.

The Metrology and Calibration Center insures the accuracy of test, measuring and diagnostic equipment used by the Army world wide. It was established at Redstone in June 1967 in a combination of the metrology and calibrations operations formerly based at Frankford Arsenal and those carried on here and has headed the Army single calibration program since then.

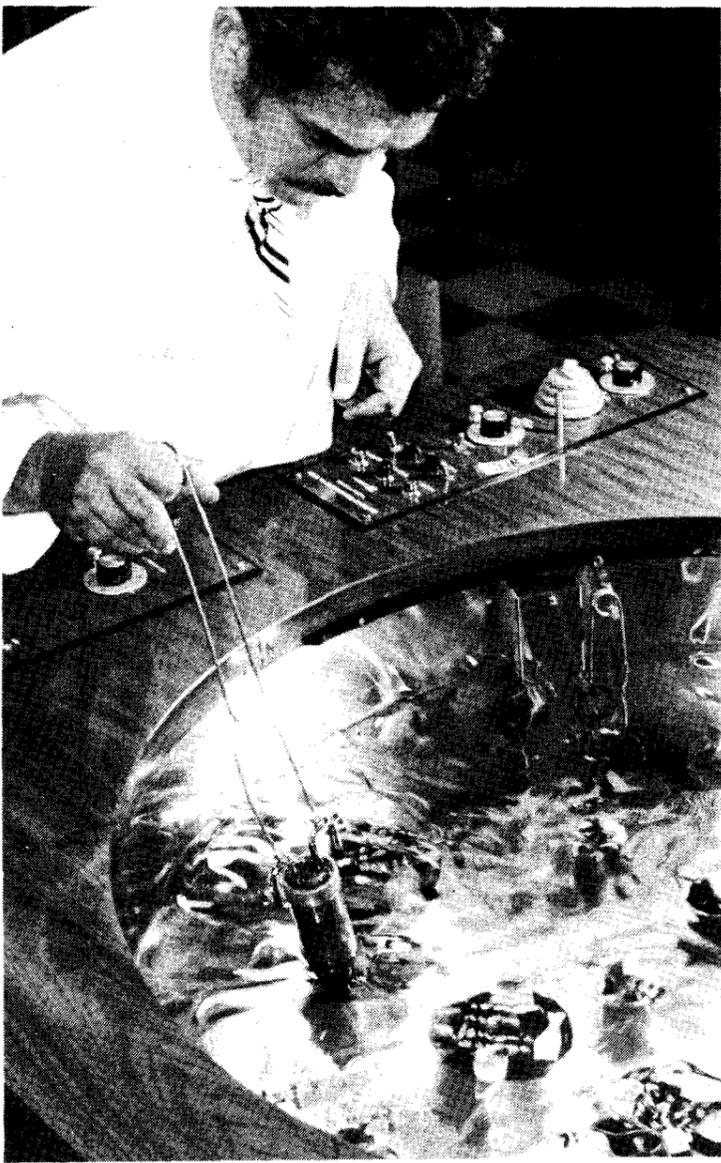

The Center here supports 10 area calibration labs and 81 field calibration teams throughout the world.

In an anniversary message to center personnel, Col. Charles R. Covell, Director said:

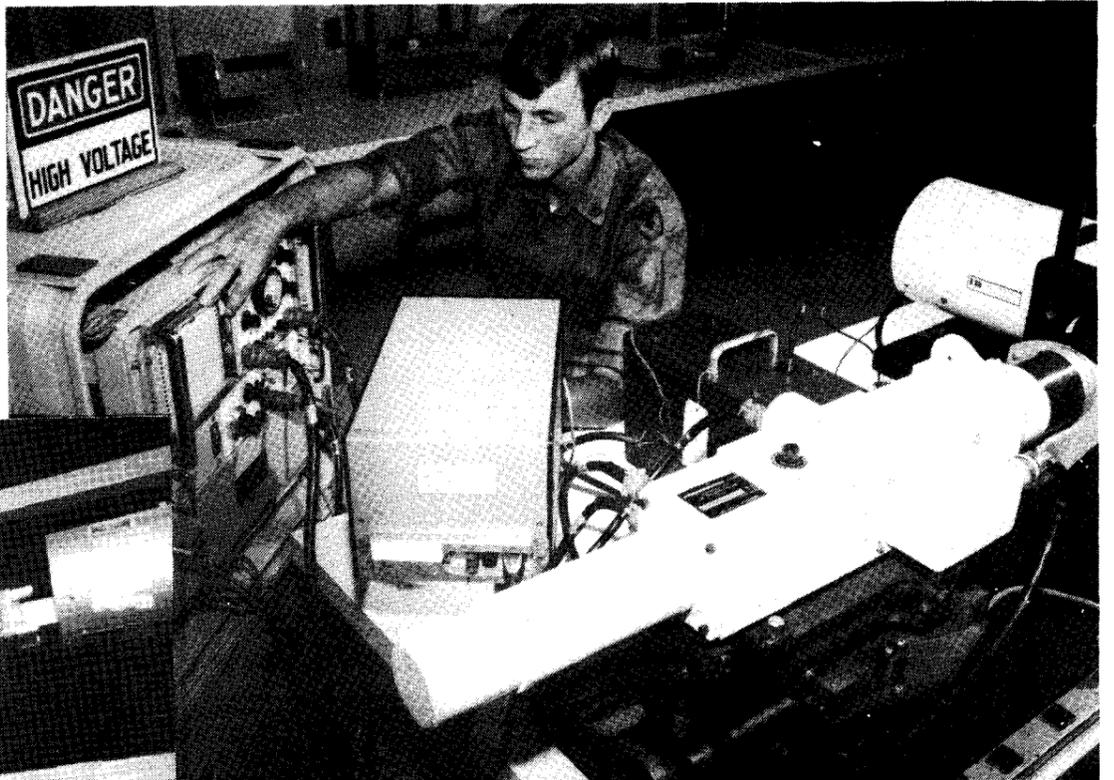

"Personnel at USAMMC are justifiably proud of their organization. Since the center has been at Redstone there has been a continual improvement in calibration services and as a result enhanced readiness of the many sophisticated weapon systems used by our combat forces. I personally congratulate all past and present members of USAMCC who have contributed their spirit, time and energy to this effort."

The center in the past decade improved both equipment and procedures in the Army calibration effort. Its foreign military sales cases jumped from $500,000 to $5,500,000. The center participates in tri-service efforts to coordinate and standardize operations of the services and is now the Army executive agent for a study to improve Army-wide calibration and repair operations.

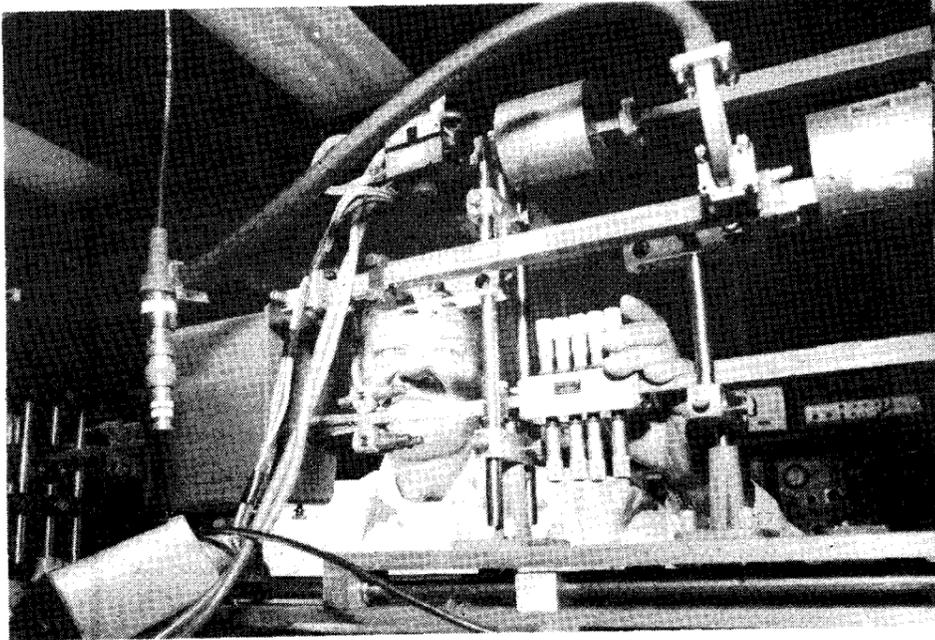

Personnel of the center have made numerous personal technical contributions to the past decade including advances in flow and pressure measurements and a computer controlled automated technique for standard volt cell calibration.

Angel Padilla, a USMCC engineer, removes a resistor from an oil bath used to keep devices under test at constant temperature.

PFC Edward Overly of the 95th Calibration Co. adjusts an infra red device used to work on Redeye and other heat seeking missiles.

Walter L. Power adjusts a device used to calibrate electronic equipment.

Two USAMCC technicians set up a test in a machine used to calibrate pressure measuring devices.

These 73 men and women have been with USAMCC for the 10 years it has been at Redstone. The Center has a staff of 272.

DRUM ROLL — Music for the change of command ceremony was provided by the 101st Airborne Division Band of Ft. Campbell.

Little Teddy Baker stood out in the crowd at the reception only because of his size. Just like grown-up well-wishers, the four-year-old received an identification badge and waited his turn in the receiving line to shake the hand of the new MIRADCOM Commander. Teddy is the grandson of Colonel Theodore A. Baker, Manager of the Special Systems Management Office.

OLD FRIENDS — The new MIRADCOM Commander is congratulated by Retired MG Robert J. Proudfoot, who served at Redstone as manager of the Lance and Shillelagh projects and is a former commander of White Sands Missile Range.

Missile School NCO Takes Academy Honor

Time and time again experience proves that "looks can be deceiving." For example, take a look at Specialist 5 Francis J. Lewandowski, a missile repairman assigned to Company A, Missile and Munitions Center and School.

A tall lanky, fellow of 25, his almost constant smile and retiring demeanor nearly succeed in giving the impression of an unsure youth in a room full of adults. However, any acquaintance of Lewandowski's can assure you that impression is wrong. Frank is one bright, self-assured individual and in less than four years of active duty has demonstrated the potential to be one of the Army's better NCOs.

Some old soldiers who haven't met Lewandowski may think that is a strong statement, but for confirmation they need only look at his record. He stood first in his Nike-Hercules repair class at Ft. Bliss when the course was cancelled and he was assigned to an Improved Hawk repair course. Lewandowski finished that course second, trailing only a Sergeant First Class who scored 100 per cent throughout the training. Lewandowski was the honor graduate from the missile systems repair course he finished here.

On June 30 he became the first soldier from MMCS to make honor graduate at the Ft. Campbell NCO Academy after 29 days of what many soldiers consider the roughest training in the Army.

He attributed his latest achievement to "a lot of help from the Lord, the NCOA Prep program given by First Sergeant Elms and personal stamina." Surprisingly, he said, "I never studied. If I can sit in class and comprehend the instruction and the discussion I can learn without really cracking a book."

An active member of Huntsville's Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Lewandowski said, "I had a lot of help from the Lord. He's like a big boss; if you do your work for Him, He'll do His work for you."

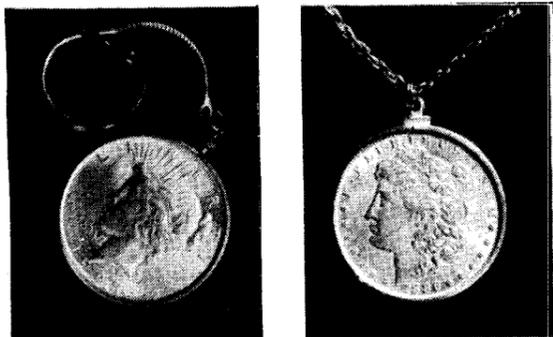

"I have nothing but praise for the first sergeant's prep program. It helped immensely, especially physically. The program gets a man ready to go up to Ft. Campbell and run up to eight miles a day."

Among the most memorable events of the course for him were the leadership reaction course and the orienteering course. "In the leadership reaction course they broke us down into groups of seven or eight men and assigned us obstacles to cross. We were put in charge of a group of men we did not know. It was a real challenge.

"I guess I like the orienteering course most of all. We had to find 10 points out in the woods with the minimum of instructions and equipment. We were alone in the woods and I really enjoyed that."

According to Lewandowski, the most important benefit of attending the academy is confidence. "It gave me a lot more confidence, especially when speaking to groups of people. I would recommend it to any young Specialist Five, whether they plan on an Army career or not."

QUESTION: How important is the RR/EEO program?

Sgt. Deanna Glass, 6th S.C.—"It's very important however there should be an afternoon set aside for each course for the students to attend classes about RR-EEO. As of this date, there is not formalized RR-EEO training for the students."

Capt. Guy Zachry, Company A—"Without a doubt, it is very important. When you look at where our minority group soldiers were 10 years ago and how much progress has been made toward giving equal rights to everyone, it's easy to see how crucial the program is."

Spec. 4 Roger Christopher, HHC, Mircom—"Most important thing in the Army. We need it to get along."

Pfc. Marty Campbell, HHC, Mircom—"It's real important. It is a necessity for the people of the Army, both civilian and military personnel, to have good relations. I think it's all this country needs to get straightened out. One thing the Army has yet to work on is good relations between the ranks. Just because a soldier is of a certain rank, doesn't mean he is too good to talk to someone of a lower rank. God made everyone equal, not with rank."

Spec. 4 Linda Amendt-Pannick, 6th S.C.—"What RR-EEO program? We have an RR-EEO program we're suppose to be informed of? We have something here on base? I don't know anything about it. We haven't been made aware of it. Apparently, its only for permanent party."

Pvt. Cheryl Beasley, Company A—"I feel that the program is really necessary for insuring group cooperation. People have to get along in order for an organization to run smoothly."

Swordfish Lead T-Ball

Most people who follow the T-Ball games here would probably tell you that it has to be one of the enjoyable games around—just because children are the stars.

It can be argued, but I don't think major league fans ever got as emotionally involved in their games as the people watching the young T-Ball players scamper around the diamond playing a game that sort of resembles baseball. As most people know, T-Ball is practically the same game as baseball, but a batter hits off a batting tee instead of having a pitcher pitch the ball. This game is also limited to children under nine.

This year one T-Ball team at Redstone has generated a lot of interest because of its amazing record. That team, the Swordfish, has defeated all challengers to run up a perfect 15 win, no loss record. The Swordfish, although looking like your average T-Ball team, seem to have just the right combination of players to constantly win, something like the Oakland A's of the early 70's.

"These kids listen; they play together well," said Pete Laracuente, head coach of the Swordfish. "They listen when they're baserunning, and make good contact with the baseball. They play pretty good defense too."

FUTURE MAJOR LEAGUER?

Swinging with all the determination and form of a big league ballplayer, Roy Young raps out a hit for the undefeated Swordfish of the Redstone T-Ball League. The catcher is David Belletete of the Barracudas.

The children themselves show a lot of pride in the team and really enjoy the sport despite having to contend with the pressures of emotional fans.

"I really like to play," said seven-year-old Franklin Campbell. "We have good coaches, we always have a good team. I'm glad my daddy signed me up."

Other team members share Franklin's enthusiasm. "I think it's a good sport," stated Melissa Brown, seven, "I really like it." Asked if she was a good player she replied, "My dad thinks so."

Raymond Theriault, seven, also likes to play, but has one reservation. He said, "I like being out there in the field, just playing, but sometimes it's hard work." Even Raymond's sister, Kathe, who is batgirl, likes to go to the ballpark. "It's fun to watch the games, and I like to stack the equipment," she said. Another player, Kim Stone, also enjoys being around the ballfield. "I just like being here and playing. We have a pretty good team," she said.

Although everybody on the team contributes, the right side of the infield is the strongest part of the Swordfish team with two all-stars holding down first and second bases. They are first baseman Rickey "Hot Shot" Henderson, who leads the club in homers with "seven or eight," and second baseman Roy "Muscles" Young, who earlier this season showed major league style by making a rare unassisted triple play. Muscles, always cool and confident, explained the play. "I just caught the line drive, touched the base, then the runner." Afterwards he added, "I would say I'm a pretty good player." Hot Shot Henderson, who is also a gifted T-Ball player, explained his feelings for the game simply saying, "Yeah, it's OK."

Gray Tops Blue In HITL Match

The annual Blue-Gray war across the nets was resumed this month with the Grays notching a 5-4 win in B division action of the Huntsville Industrial Tennis league.

The two teams of DA civilian netters met twice in HITL matches last year with the Blues sweeping to 8-1 conquests each time.

This time it was a different story with the Grays capturing four of the six singles points and grabbing the team victory with a win in the No. 1 doubles match.

In singles play Scott Mallard defeated Dick Mohlere, 6-3, 6-2, Bill Dunlap bested Ken Krall, 6-1, 6-3, Bill Evers outlasted Dennis Mack, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, and Bob James defeated Leo Schiffmann, 7-6, 6-1, to get the Grays headed for their win.

The Blues retaliated with a pair of wins as Todd Wilson blanked Mike Davis, 6-0, 6-0, and Emil Luft outscraped Jay Robinson, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6.

The deciding match turned out to be the top tandem pairing with Robinson and Mallard insuring the Gray victory with a 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 decision over Wilson and Mack.

Mohlere and Luft teamed up for a 6-2, 6-2, Blue win over Bill Lummus and Pete Kirkland. The final point went into the Blue column as Ron McClung and Ernie Hamilton defeated James and Frank Fleming, 6-2, 6-1.

Bass Put In Pond

Stocking of the Redstone quarry ponds with game fish was completed last week with the release of 200 bass fingerlings into the large pond.

The fish, obtained free of charge from a state fish hatchery, are the last to be stocked in an attempt to build game fish populations in the two quarry ponds, which are located at the edge of Madkin Mountain off Neal Road.

The small pond was stocked this spring with small bass and bream, after being chemically purged of rough fish. Stocking of the large pond was delayed until the water reached a proper level of fertility.

Both ponds have been fertilized regularly since February to cause growth of aquatic vegetation and establish a food chain for the bass and bream. Before, the ponds were too infertile to support balanced populations of game fish.

A state fish biologist, who has checked the ponds periodically since preparing them for the introduction of bream and bass began early this year, says both are capable of good game fish production, even though the large pond could not be treated thoroughly because of its great depth.

The small pond has been closed to fishing until next summer while the young game fish grow to catching size.

The large pond remains open to fishing.

5th Remains Unbeaten

By defeating Meddac and 95th Service Company with identical scores of 15-9, the 5th Student Company retained the lead in the east and remain the only undefeated team in Redstone softball. Randolph Staggs connected for a homer and a single in each contest.

The east's second spot is in the firm grasp of the 291st MPs who devastated the 7th S. C. 19-7 and the Marines 16-2. The cops chalked up two homers in each game, with Rudolpho Guana and Jeffery Richard providing the muscle against the 7th S.C. and Ronald Brewer and Thomas Abate connecting against the Marines.

The 7th S. C. put it together later in the week to down Meddac 17-10 and collect a shutout over Co. C. 11-0. Meddac's loss to the undefeated 5th S. C. paved the way for the 7th to take possession of third spot in the east.

The west's formerly undefeated B Company suffered defeat to both the third ranked 6th S. C., 12-11, and the west's leading Co. A, 7-4. The narrow loss to the 6th S. C. was probably the most exciting game of the week, ending with both the tying and winning runs were on base before the students stopped the B. Co. rally. After these two stinging defeats, B. Co. vented their frustration on Miradcom, smashing the west's cellar team 19-3. B Co. staged a six run rally in the seventh inning to bounce the 4th S. C. 9-2.

After evening the score with their B Co. rivals, A Co. ended the week's competition with a one sided romp over the 8th Student Company's never-say-die team. The 8th was held scoreless for five full innings in the 19-5 rout.

In addition to handing Co. B their first loss, the 6th Student Company squeaked by a surprisingly strong Miradcom, 9-8, and nipped Mircom 13-11. In outslugging Mircom, the 6th collected a homerun, a triple and a double from Lewis Montano and two homers, a double and a single from James Whitfield. Steve Edminston, Prentiss Thomas and William Chrisman connected for a homer each in Mircom's losing cause.

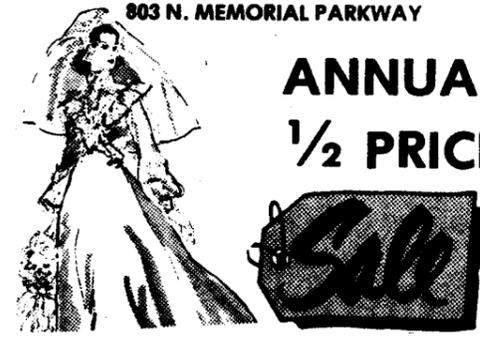

After bombing Miradcom 14-4, the 4th S. C. dropped a 14-15 squeaker to the 8th S. C. despite a four-run, come-from-behind rally in the top of the seventh and last inning.

In their unending fight to stay out of the cellar in the east, Co. C rolled over the Marines, 12-6.

First Division Memorial Dedication Set

WASHINGTON (AR-NEWS) — For the third time in its history, the Society of the First Division will dedicate a memorial in the nation's capital to the men of the division who died in combat.

In 1924, a monument was erected near the White House, honoring Big Red One soldiers who died in the First World War.

Later, in 1957, a memorial was dedicated to the 4,500 men of the division who lost their lives in World War II.

This year, a dedication ceremony will take place on August 20, honoring more than 3,000 division soldiers who died in the Vietnam war. The ceremony will be held during the 1977 reunion of the division's society. A number of prominent military and civilian figures are expected to attend the dedication.

The history of the First Division goes back to World War I, when Gen. John J. "Black Jack" Pershing led his First American Expeditionary Force to France and World War I. The force was renamed the First Division upon its arrival at St. Nazaire.

Torrence, Hodges Win OWC Golf

When the chipping, driving, and putting ceased in the Gwen Barclay Tournament, Terry Torrence emerged the victor.

The Officers' Wives' golfers completed the 9 hole event July 12, with Norma Worley capturing second place, and Sandy Mayes taking third.

Cheryl McLean and Jackie McPheeters battled to a tie for "low scratch" honors. They, along with Torrence, Worley, and Mayes, were presented with trophies by Mrs. Gwen Barclay at a picnic lunch.

Also, Edna Hodges accepted a trophy from Mrs. Jean Turnmeyer for her victory in the recent Ginna Medaris 54-Hole Tournament. Other winners in that event were Iris Vaughn, Billie Shuput, Marian Deppensmith, Florence Teir, and Mary Parker, who took the "low-putts" award.

Edna Hodges, winner of the Ginna Medaris 54-Hole Tournament, receives her trophy from Jean Turnmeyer.
