Army's Top Soldier Visits

"WE HAVE THE BEST CORPS OF NCO'S SINCE I'VE BEEN IN THE ARMY"—said Command Sergeant Major of the Army William Bainbridge, as he addressed a class of NCOES students. He told the class that "The most important thing is to take care of those guys and gals who run the equipment."

Advertise Bids

Construction of Redstone's new commissary is expected to begin ahead of schedule, following notification from Troop Support Agency that funds will be available in January. An advertisement for bids will be made at that time, with construction starting in two to three months.

The funds had not been expected to be available until April or later.

About three times larger than the present commissary, the new store will contain about 80,000 square feet. The concept design shows long, spacious aisles and 18 checkout lanes. The use of high-speed checkout equipment that reads price and production information from a code on package labels is being considered.

Designed with energy efficiency in mind, the store will have a brick exterior like that of the new Post Exchange.

Innovative heating and cooling concepts will be employed. The store will be heated primarily by coolant water from refrigeration compressors. The water will be piped to coils where fans will distribute the radiated warmth throughout the building.

In hot weather air conditioning will be supplemented by circulating chilled air given off by frozen food displays and cold boxes.

The commissary will take approximately two years to build. It will be connected by a mall to the new PX, which is opening in late September.

Long range plans are to build a complete military shopping complex on the site, which is situated in the housing area at the intersection of Goss Road and Vincent Drive.

He knows them all, from the young private learning a skill in an Army school, to the old, grizzled first sergeant who has many miles behind him and tales to tell.

His alert blue eyes encompass all things around him, and with a hearty smile, and firm handshake, he clearly relays the message, "I have been there too."

Command Sergeant Major of the Army William Bainbridge, is such a man. A veteran of nearly 30 years in the Army, Bainbridge paid a short visit to Redstone last week.

While here, he met with senior Non-Commissioned Officers, toured training areas, walked through barracks, and ate with the soldiers in their dining facilities.

Before leaving he took a few moments to talk about his job, his visit and the Army.

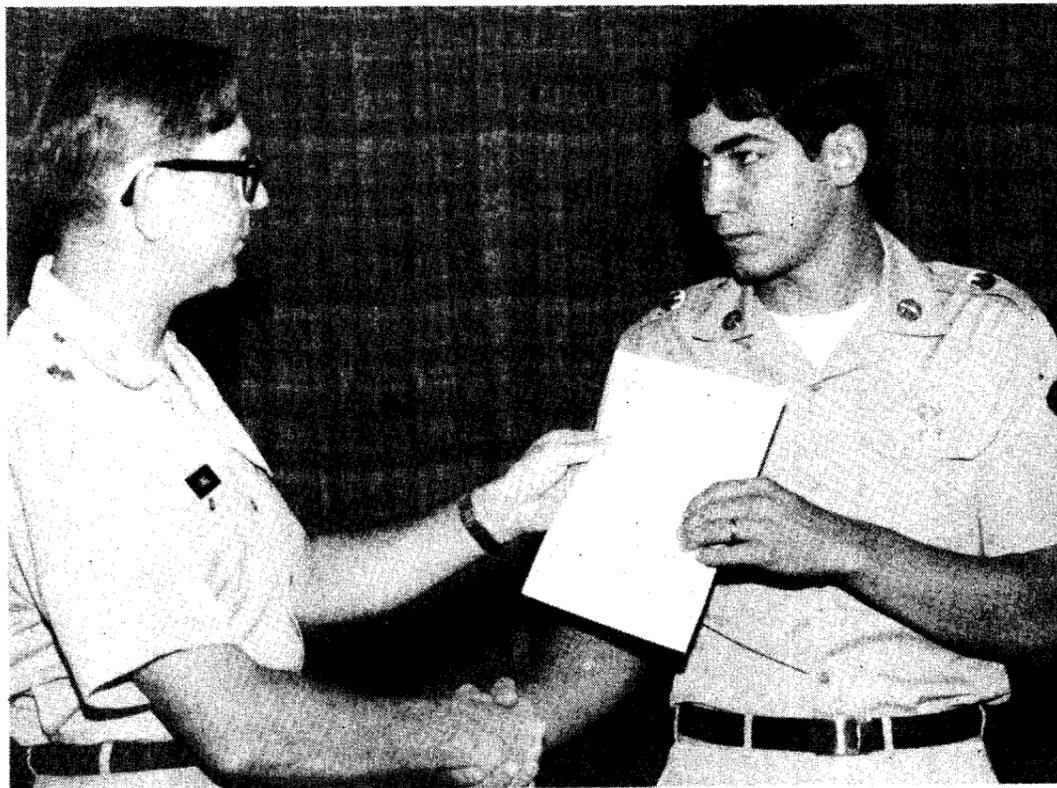

Bainbridge said that he visited Redstone as part of his attempt to visit all major Army installations.

"I try to visit all the posts. I like to get the chance to talk to the soldiers about how the training is going, and talk to the senior NCO's and see how they perceive what we're doing at DA."

Because of these visits, he logs quite a few miles each year. "My staff says that I average about 250 air miles a day throughout the year. That mounts up to quite a few."

When visiting an installation, he looks for more than mowed lawns and modern buildings. "I think that I look for the same things at an installation that a post or division sergeant major looks for when he goes out and visits the troops."

POST SOLDIER OF MONTH — Sp4 Richard D. Kisling, Jr., was awarded honor for top soldier by Col. Arthur G. Lange, Jr., MIRCOC Chief of Staff. Kisling, assigned with the 291st MP

Company, has been at Redstone since August of last year. He entered service in 1975 and attended MP school at Ft. Gordon. Before transfer to Redstone he was just South of the DMZ in Korea.

Special Review

Nearing the End

Participation in the Special Discharge Review program for military people who received General or Undesirable discharges, or deserted in the Vietnam Era, has passed the 50,000 mark. As of August 10, 52,871 former service personnel had requested discharge review, and 32,333 of them declared eligible.

The program ends October 4.

WE'RE IN DEEP KIMCHEE!

Have you ever noticed that there seems to be about four levels of speech in the military, ranging from slang expressions to bureaucratic jargon? Consider the ways of expressing "a broken rule." The senior officer would say, "in contravention of"; the lieutenant, "not in accordance with"; the senior noncommissioned officer, "in violation of"; and the junior enlisted man, "against."

Taking it another way, an enlisted man gets the job "done." A noncommissioned officer tells the junior officer that the "mission is accomplished." The happy lieutenant reports to the colonel or captain that "the details have been finalized." The senior officer then tells someone else that "the efforts have been brought to fruition."

Putting off work is a favorite pastime for some. To a captain or colonel, it's "procrastination." The lieutenant calls it "shirking," and to sarge or chief, it means "goofing off." A private sees it as "getting over."

Words and phrases, such as insure, coordinate your efforts, generate, we have been instructed to, the letter was directive in nature, and personnel are expected to be in compliance with, all simply mean "do it."

How about this? The specialist reports that the new procedures "just might work." Sarge or chief tells the lieutenant it "should fly." The lieutenant commander or major is told it is "fundamentally sound," and the general or admiral hears that "all systems are go on the new project, sir."

Of course, if you've been reading this while you should have been doing something else, it could mean that you will be in trouble, up the creek, over a barrel, or in deep kimchee. It all depends on who catches you.

When in Thailand

Officials at the Military Personnel Center at Alexandria, Va. recently cautioned soldiers concerning necessities for travel in Thailand.

In a message dated Aug. 16, they stressed, "All personnel on official travel to Thailand must have passport and visa in possession. All personnel traveling to Thailand in a leave or tourist status must have passport and should have visa in possession prior to entering Thailand."

The message added, "Personnel attempting to enter Thailand without passport are in some cases jailed overnight and forced to leave on outbound commercial aircraft the following day; others are detained at air terminal and placed on next commercial flight out of Thailand."

Soldiers planning to travel to Thailand should check with their commanders or military personnel section before leaving their present duty stations.

Named Project Manager

Colonel Benjamin J. Pellegrini, a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy who holds both a master's and PhD in nuclear physics from Tulane University, has been named Project Manager for Ground Laser Designators for MIRADCOM.

He succeeds Colonel John Reeve who left for a new assignment at the Army Ballistic Missile Defense Systems Command. Robert Whitley continues as Deputy Project Manager.

This is Colonel Pellegrini's first assignment at Redstone.

The 42-year-old Milwaukee, Wisconsin, native has just completed studies at the National War College. Prior to that, he was Military Assistant to the Secretary of the Army for a year. Among other assignments, he commanded the 2nd Infantry Division's Chaparral-Vulcan Battalion in Korea and served as system coordinator for High Energy Lasers in the Office, Deputy Chief of Staff for Research, Development and Acquisition.

MIRADCOM's Ground Laser Designators Project Office has tri-service responsibility for development and initial production of all ground laser equipment which guides missiles, bombs and artillery shells fitted with a laser seeker and can acquire and identify targets, determine range day or night, and accommodate target handoff.

In addition to Army programs like Hellfire and Cannon Launched Guided Projectile, MIRADCOM has supported both the Army Force and Navy with their Maverick and Bulldog programs, respectively, as well as live bomb runs.

That means the project office not only manages and develops ground laser equipment, but must coordinate and interface with all weapon managers, managers of vehicles on which equipment might be mounted, and the users themselves.

The Army has three systems under development at Redstone—the Ground Laser Locator Designator; the Laser Target Designator, a lightweight hand held unit and a two-man portable system being developed for the Marine Corps called the Modular Universal Laser Equipment.

All designators are being developed with as much commonality as possible and with the greatest number of interchangeable components.

Among medals, Colonel Pellegrini holds the Legion of Merit with one oak leaf cluster, Bronze Star, Air Medal with three oak leaf clusters, and Army Commendation Medal with one oak leaf cluster.

Col. Pellegrini

Evaluate Courses

A team of reviewers from the American Council on Education visited the Missile and Munitions Center and School last week to evaluate the courses in terms of potential college credit.

The team's recommendations on the value of the courses here will be published in the new edition of the Guide to the Evaluation of Educational Experiences in the Armed Services and distributed to every accredited college and university in the country. Most institutions follow the recommendations of the guide when determining the number of college level credits soldiers have earned during formal military training.

Led by ACE Coordinator Joseph R. Taylor, the team included Robert Reid, Electrical Technology Department chairman at Broome Community College, Binghamton, N.Y., Eugene J. Alm, Associate Professor at the Milwaukee School of Engineering, and Dr. Eugene W. Bartell, Assistant Head Professor of Electrical Engineering at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

Evaluations are scheduled periodically to ensure the guide's recommendations accurately reflect the value of the current training.

Disaster Training

There will be a Disaster Case Work Training Class September 1 from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Madison County Chapter House, 701 Andrew Jackson Way. All Red Cross Volunteers are invited.

Please call the Red Cross Field Office, 876-3381 to register or further information.

Policy Change

WASHINGTON (AR-NEWS) — A policy change touched off by the critical military doctor shortage establishes a "recommended for retention" category, permitting fully qualified medical officers passed over for promotion, who would otherwise have been obliged to leave the service, to remain in the Army.

The new policy took effect July 25 with the convening of the Medical Corps' lieutenant colonel promotion board. This and other boards will be told which professional medical skills are critical to the Army's needs.

The three categories approved by the Secretary of the Army for the Medical Corps are, "Recommended for Promotion", "Recommended for Retention", and "Not Recommended for Promotion", for those officers neither critical to the Army's needs nor justified for military advancement.

Energy Consumption Study

Improvements needed to put Redstone's physical plant in first class condition and reduce energy consumption will be identified in major studies set to begin here in early fall.

In one study practically every building here where people work will be examined in detail for deficiencies, and repairs recommended to bring them up to standard.

Most buildings on the arsenal are at least 20 years old and due for extensive repair and maintenance. In many of them serious problems with mechanical and electrical equipment are occurring or anticipated. A major target of the study will be heating and air conditioning systems.

An advertisement for bids is out on the study.

In a second study every facet of energy use on the arsenal will be examined to cut down on waste and inefficiency. It will include a look into new alternatives to existing practices, such as the feasibility of Redstone generating its own electricity and

Optical Seminar

Juris Upatnieks of the Michigan Environmental Research Institute will present a seminar entitled "Holographic Optical Elements and Applications," on Wednesday, August 31, in Room 114 of Building 7770.

The Physical Sciences Directorate of MIRADCOM's Technology Laboratory is sponsoring the seminar starting at 3 p.m.

The seminar, describing fabrication techniques and uses of interferometrically produced optical elements, should be of interest to those involved in optical system design where light weight, low cost, compact elements would be an advantage.

Additional information may be obtained from Dr. B. D. Guenther at 876-3820.

using heat from the generating process to heat buildings. The use of solar energy may also be considered.

An architectural and engineering firm under contract will gather complete energy use data for the arsenal, analyze it and draw up a master plan defining integrated energy use and automated control systems for the installation.

The control system will be similar to the computerized energy management system already in use here, but on a broader scale.

In drawing the master plan, the arsenal's total energy consumption will be analyzed for waste and inefficiency, beginning with the conversion of raw energy into heating, cooling and other uses and continuing through distribution systems to individual types of buildings.

Improvements to or replacement of buildings that will result in energy savings will be recommended according to a benefit-cost ratio.

Types of buildings will be analyzed to establish the effect on energy consumption of architectural and structural elements and functional activities and processes.

Heating systems will be evaluated for conversion to coal as primary fuel.

Redstone is one of three Army installations selected for the energy study. Others are Forts Rucker and Campbell. It is expected to take 18 months to complete.

The Army plans to conduct complete energy studies at most other major installations over the next few years at a cost of more than $20 million.

Top Soldier

"I want to find out if things are going like they ought to be going for the soldier. Does he receive his orders on time? Does he get promoted when he is supposed to get promoted? Is the supply system providing the clothes he ought to have? Is the personnel system doing what it is supposed to do for him? Does EPMS, SQT and all that provide the things that they are supposed to?"

Though the Enlisted Personnel Management system is relatively new to the Army, Bainbridge is optimistic about its progress, effects on future soldiers and the solution of problems such as MOS mismatch.

"We've made good progress in EPMS. For the first time in the management of enlisted personnel we've stopped, regrouped and breached any roadblocks, instead of going off in a new direction.

"It's a steady progress. We don't put quick fixes on the system that might make it good for you and I, but might louse it up for the soldiers who will be coming into the Army a few years from now."

In the area of MOS mismatch, he says that though there will always be some, hopefully, EPMS will eliminate much of it. "There are a lot of things that cause MOS mismatch. The distribution of soldiers is one of those things. You're always going to have it, because of the mission, and the commander has to use the assets at hand to complete the mission."

Despite the feeling of some critics that the all-volunteer Army isn't working, Bainbridge voiced another opinion. "Redstone soldiers are a good example that it is working. The main problem is keeping our reserve forces up, but that is being taken care of. But for the active side of our forces, it is working."

Before leaving Alabama, Bainbridge had some advice for soldiers who might have their sights set on his job.

"Apply yourself to whatever task is at hand. Make sure you do as much as your own to improve yourself at every turn, and always seek responsibility, because it's out there. The Army is bigger than any of us, but it is exactly what you make of it. If you apply yourself, there is no limit to where you can go."

More the Double

With the cost of electricity more than doubled in just three years, 'What price comfort?' may be a topic of serious deliberation at Redstone in the future.

Last month's electric bill went well over the half-million dollar mark. It was a record $567,500. It is estimated that one-third of that sum was the cost of comfort cooling.

But even with July's sizzling temperatures, the bill was substantially higher than it should have been, according to Ron Harmon, arsenal utilities chief. He said control boxes in numerous buildings were tampered with, overriding computer control and causing air conditioners in the buildings to run 24 hours per day. Air conditioners in most major buildings here are linked to a computerized energy management controller. It turns them off at night and for very brief periods in times of high demands during the day.

"We could have saved a lot of electricity in July if people hadn't foolwed with the controls", says Harmon. In one instance mechanics had to be sent to the same building three times in one week to reset controls.

If air conditioning is needed for overtime work, it should be arranged by calling the control center at 876-6318, Harmon said.

"The whole purpose in having the controller", he continued, "is so we can save energy and keep people comfortable at the same time. But we've got a problem with people defeating the system and it's a problem that can be solved only with the cooperation of every person on the arsenal.

"If conservation is all we're after, there are other methods we can use. But if we want comfort too, we're going to have to let the controller do its job and that will take the cooperation of everyone."

Author Speaks

Jeraldine Saunders Andrews, wife of the chief of the West Coast Field Office of the U. S. Roland Project Office, will be the guest speaker tomorrow at a luncheon given by wives of personnel associated with the Roland Project. The luncheon will be at noon at the Redstone Arsenal Officers Club.

The guests speaker writes under the name Jeraldine Saunders, and is a former cruise director for several steamship lines and the author of "The Love Boats" published in 1974. ABC-TV had a movie based on the book last year. Her latest book, "The Signs of Love" is scheduled for release this month.

Equality Day

The North Alabama Chapter of Federally Employed Women (FEW) is sponsoring a local observance of Women's Equality Day Friday with a luncheon in the Officer's Club.

The date is the anniversary of the passage of the 19th amendment to the Constitution which gave female American citizens the right to vote.

The program will begin at 11:30 a.m. and features a talk "Opportunity For Advancement - a Two Way Responsibility" by Patricia Hardin, Atlanta Regional Coordinator, FEW.

Persons who want to go should contact Osie Neblett 881-2012; Dean Mcpherson 876-7702; Freddie Hancock 453-4472 or Glenda Hodges 895-5270 by close of business today.

How has Redstone influenced your decision to make the Army a career?

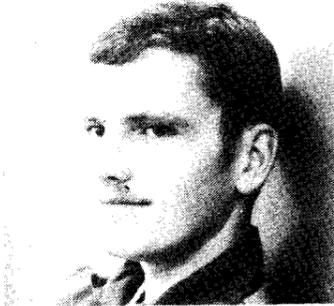

Pfc. Shirley Hill, 6th S.C.—"I've only been here about three days. It showed me Army life can be relaxed, it's not all strict military. It can be very comfortable. Coming right out of basic, it was a pleasant change and surprise."

Spec. 4 Bill Harper, 8th S.C.—"I don't have either negative or positive feelings toward Redstone as related to making the Army a career. If I was permanent party I'd probably like it here. I like the area. In the Army you spend most of your time as permanent party and I'd have better data to base my decision on making the Army a career if I was permanent party."

Spec. 4 William Nelson, Co. A—"I guess it depends on what your doing here. It has influenced my decision. I've been here since 1975. I came here as a student then stayed as permanent party. I worked on a missile system over at Nike and it gives you a chance to see what the students are feeling and how to deal with their problems. It gives you a chance to deal with people and that's what you need to do in the military or civilian life."

Sgt. Alvaro Quesada, 4th S.C.—"I'm just coming here from Ft. Carson, Col., and I just reenlisted so as far as influencing me on making the Army a career it hasn't. Mainly because I've been in the Army for five years and I know what the Army is like and what to expect. A new soldier coming in from basic or AIT doesn't know any better. They don't know what the Army's about. They can go anywhere in the world but they make up their own minds. If they want to be a soldier they can be a soldier anywhere in the world."

Pvt. James Brantley, 7th S.C.—"It's alright. I like it here. I was going to make the Army a career from the beginning, but I'll wait to see what happens when reenlistment time comes."

Pvt. Scott Baker, 8th S.C.—"If I had to make a decision from what I've seen of Redstone Arsenal I'd reenlist. The people are nice, the atmosphere is relaxed and the work isn't that difficult."

Pfc. William Becker, 5th S.C.—"The U.S. Army does not consist of Redstone Arsenal. I think it's the biggest joke I've ever seen. If anyone wants to have a career in the Army, they ought to get away from Redstone Arsenal. The NCO's don't seem to know what's going on, they're clowns, and the officers are worse."

Dependents May Be Eligible Too

(ARNEWS) — Children, spouses and survivors of some veterans may be eligible for up to 45 months of school. Eligible are children, spouses and survivors of veterans whose death or total disabilities were service connected. Also eligible are dependents of persons missing in action and prisoners of war.

VA reminds those eligible that it will pay $292 to full-time students, $219 to three-quarter time students and $146 to half-time students. Persons enrolled in full-time cooperative courses, alternating classroom study and related experience on the job will receive $235 per month.

Southeastern Tech Graduation Friday

The first graduating exercise of Southeastern Institute of Technology will be held on Friday evening in the Pershing Room of the Officers Club. The ceremony, starting at 8, is open to the public.

The graduation speaker will be William A. Davis, Jr., Deputy BMD Program Manager. Davis will receive the first honorary doctorate to be conferred by Southeastern.

The graduating class will include a number of DA civilians and military personnel from Redstone. They are: George Edlin, Randolph Priddy, Frederick Seeley, Major Ernest Jackson, W. Horton Nuchols, Clifford Walker, Caleb Burgoyne, John Cofield, John Daly, Carl Hardy, Dorothy Jenkins and Jimmy Ray.

The VA also has an educational loan program which will allow eligible persons to borrow up to $1,500 per academic year to pursue a course leading up to a college degree or to complete a professional or vocational objective which requires at least six months to complete.

Schooling may begin for eligible children before they reach 18 if they have graduated from high school or are above the age of compulsory school attendance. In some instances, handicapped children may begin a special vocational course as early as age 14.

Eligibility for educational assistance or special training will end on an eligible child's 26th birthday, unless extended under certain conditions.

VA will also provide counseling services to assist a child in selecting an educational program unless the child has been accepted for or is pursuing courses which lead to a regular college degree at an approved institution. An educational plan must be submitted by or for the eligible child showing the selected goal the program of education, school or schools he or she plans to attend and an estimate of the total cost of the education.

A child's marriage is not a barrier to receiving these benefits. However, a survivor's remarriage terminates entitlement unless the remarriage is terminated by death or divorce.

Anyone desiring further information should contact a local VA office.

SELLING TEAM

We have a very special "Selling Team" at Rosenblum Realty, I guess you can call them our "Team Within the Team." Ann and Clay Henderson, our Husband and Wife Team, have been a part of the Rosenblum Team for a little over two years, and we're proud of them. They have worked hard to educate themselves in the Real Estate business. Ann is a broker and has graduated from the Realtor's Institute. She and Clay are always present during Rosenblum Realty's continuous education programs. This week, in a five day period, they have sold five houses and listed two. Not a bad record, I'd say. They're friendly folks; come talk to them.

Links VA Hospitals

(ARNEWS) — Experimental use of space satellites in biomedical communications between some 40 Veterans Administration hospitals in 11 western states will begin September, according to VA officials.

It will be the second phase of a VA program to improve medical education and consultation in remotely located hospitals through the use of satellites.

The VA first used satellites in 1974 for medical consultation using television. Ten VA hospitals in the Appalachian region participated in weekly broadcasts for 11 months.

Under the new program, Administrator of Veterans Affairs Max Cleland said weekly two-way telecasts will link 31 VA hospitals and as many as 10 other institutions during the 15-month program.

The satellite's powerful transmitter will relay telecasts to hospital receivers from various points in the nation. Monitors within the hospitals will permit viewing by hospital staff members. Using telephone conference lines, staff members can pose questions or solicit comment from the broadcast participants.

Broadcasts will cover a wide range of clinical problems and educational presentations. Emphasis will be on two-way video transmissions, linking hospital to hospital and hospitals to medical teaching centers, say VA staffers.

The VA will use a communications satellite launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., in January, 1976. Its orbit has placed it over the Equator at an altitude of about 22,300 miles, just west of South America.

Described as the world's most powerful communications satellite, it is being used for a variety of experiments by organizations in the United States and Canada.

COL Increase Set at 4.3

Retired Federal and military personnel will get a 4.3 percent cost of living increase, effective September 1. The increase will show up in checks received in early October.

Last week's Rocket wrongly reported the increased as 4.2 percent.

The raise will be figured in for those civilians retiring after September 1 if this method of computation is to the employees' advantage.

Military retirees working in government as civilians will be eligible for both the retiree cost of living increase and the civilian pay raise scheduled for October 1.

JULY WINNERS — Bloodmobile participation winners for the month of July are pictured as they claimed their Red Cross rotating trophies. Kneeling in the front are Melva Thomas, Mary Keel and Nicia Fleming, all of MIRADCOM's Engineering Lab. Ann Daniels, Plans and Analysis, and Cheryl Williams, Viper, each have a hand on a trophy after the two organizations tied for first among the small MIRADCOM organizations. Standing in the rear are, Hattie Lesley, Commissary, Sandra Dickerson, and Charles Hester, both of the Marshall Center, Charles Bacon, MMCS, Willie Miller, Product Assurance (MIRCOM), and Jan Gore, MMCS. Alice Ballew, Small Business (MIRCOM) and Captain David Coughlin, ACSI, were not present for the picture.

The Customer Comes First

DALLAS — When authorized customers shop an AAFES exchange they can purchase with confidence. Every product or service offered by AAFES is backed by the policy, "Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Cheerfully Refunded."

That policy, posted at AAFES facilities worldwide, is one of the most liberal guarantees that a shopper can find in any retail establishment. It means what it says because AAFES regards customer satisfaction as vital to the exchange mission.

Salesclerks and customer service desk personnel are trained to be courteous and prompt in all transactions, particularly those involving the refund or adjustment of any item purchased in exchanges.

All that is required of the customer is identification and the verification that the item in question was sold by AAFES. This can be either a cash register tape or sales receipt. Lacking these, exchange personnel can usually authenticate an item from exchange records.

AAFES suggests that customers keep all receipts of purchase and return them with the item when a refund is desired.

If proof of purchase is not furnished, the branch manager or his assistant will determine if there is to be a refund or adjustment.

WRITES PROCEDURES — Jack Spencer, left, DARPA Project Office, talks over proposed procedures with Connie McLindon and George Fussel, both of Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency in Washington. The procedures with which Spencer assisted relate to the DARPA-Agent interface. He has been associated with DARPA programs since establishment of the local management office in 1962. CPR Training

A course in Cardiopulmonary resuscitation will be presented here on Friday and Saturday at Bransby Productions.

The two eight hour sessions, beginning at 8 are for personnel of the Redstone Army Hospital, Thiokol, and Bransby. They are the first in a step to train instructors who can extend training within the facility they represent.

The course is presented through the efforts of the local Heart Association. Organizations interested in setting up a training course can contact the Heart Association office, 536-0400.

Eye In The Sky

The Army's new "eye in the sky," the AQUILA Remotely Piloted Vehicle system, has been turned over for testing to Army personnel at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

AQUILA, which is Latin for eagle, is a multi-purpose RPV system consisting of a six-foot-long wingspan airframe; truck mounted rail launcher; truck mounted ground control station and retrieval system along with various items of ground support equipment. AQUILA is intended to fly surveillance, reconnaissance, target location, target acquisition, and target designation missions. The system uses panoramic cameras, stabilized TV cameras, laser rangefinders, and laser designators to accomplish its many missions.

Fifty-seven flights have already been logged, progressing from radio-controlled to complete computer-controlled launch, flight and recovery.

The Army plans to continue the test program through December 1977, and then begin an engineering development program to adapt the system for military use. The rest of this year's tests will evaluate various TV sensors with laser ranging capabilities for artillery fire support, and laser designation support of laser-seeking weapons such as the Cannon-Launched Guided Projectile.

Summer Hire Cited at MMCS

A summer hire at the Foreign Student Support Office of the Missile and Munitions Center and School was cited recently for work done while in the program.

Kathy Ingram, daughter of Mrs. Annette Ingram of Hazel Green was presented with a certificate of proficiency by James Ballinger, education and tours director of the Foreign Student Support Office.

According to Ballinger, "she sent off letters to every major city in the U.S. and picked up information that has been used for 100 trips that the allied students have already taken this summer."

"The information will be also used throughout the next year and will benefit approximately 700 allied students that will be attending school here in the next 12 months," he continued. "She is the type of employee we hope to have working here at Redstone Arsenal permanently."

While working at the school, her job entailed serving as assistant to both Ballinger and the host family and sponsorship program. She said the best part of working with the foreign students was "the different types of people you meet."

Ingram is a 17-year-old senior at Hazel Green High School, and hopes to attend college following graduation.

Up-to-date Data

(ARNEWS) — The Combat Service Support System (CS3) computer has been activated in the 5th Infantry Division (Mech) at Fort Polk, La. For the first time, all 16 Active Army divisions now have mobile computer-based management information systems capable of providing commanders with current management data.

The CS3 uses an IBM 360-30 computer in a "van-mounted" system which can be moved when and where tactical units of the field army deploy. The system is considered much more sophisticated and reliable than the UNIVAC 1005 computer previously in use.

The IBM 360-30 is housed in two 35-foot mobile air ride vans and three M109 shop vans. The objective of the CS3 is to enhance the combat readiness of all division units through improved combat service support in the field.

The application of automatic data processing will result in quicker response by logistics and personnel systems; more effective use of manpower, money and materiel; and increased efficiency from more accurate inventories.

TRACT NO. 3 Contains approximately 15.1 acres and has road frontage both on Fishing Ford Road and a county road. It is all level and presently in cultivation.

TRACT NO. 4 Contains approximately 24.8 acres and has over 900 feet of road frontage on a county road. It is all to rolling and has beautiful building sites.

TRACT NO. 5 Contains approximately 10.1 acres and a two story frame house. It is watered by an everlasting spring and has long road frontage.

TRACT NO. 6 Contains approximately 38.1 acres and has road frontage on both Sulphur Springs Road and a county road. It is all level to rolling and is presently in cultivation. It is watered by an everlasting spring.

TRACT NO. 7—Contains approximately 33.6 acres and has over 650 feet of road frontage. This beautiful tract is all level to rolling and has a pond.

TRACT NO. 8 Contains of a 58'X244' lot adjoining the Howell School property across Highway 431. There is an old dwelling on this lot which could be repaired and make into a comfortable home.

TRACT NO. 9 Contains approximately 36 acres and is situated on Daves Hollow Road, approximately 3/10 mile from Highway 431. There is an old house, barn, and abundance of small timber that is ideal for firewood, and enough Locust Trees to cut for posts to fence almost any size place or to sell. There is some cleared land and good pasture and a lot of land that could easily be cleared for pasture. This tract would make an excellent hide-away for weekends or as a permanent home. There is good spring and pond.

TRACTS NO. 1 THROUGH 7 COULD ALL BE SUBDIVIDED INTO ACRE LOTS WITHOUT HAVING TO PUT IN A SINGLE ROAD BECAUSE OF THE EXCELLENT ROAD FRONTAGE. IN ADDITION, ALL COULD HAVE WATER AND WOULD BE A DEVELOPERS DREAM.

This farm will be sold in tracts and as a whole with agents reserving the right to group and re-group.

For investments, development, or for a home, you owe it to yourself to look this farm over. Very seldom will you find a farm with as many possibilities as this one offers. Real estate like this farm is still the best investment you can make.

TERMS: 10% cash day of sale, balance upon delivery of deed. Possession of land as soon as crops come off and the main house on or before October 15, 1977. Several personal property items and a tobacco base will also be sold.

All-Volunteer Force . . .

Substantial Changes Needed

WASHINGTON (ARNEWS) — The following ARNEWS interview is with Senator Sam Nunn, a Georgia Democrat.

Senator Nunn has served in the Senate since November 1972 when he was elected to complete the unexpired term of Senator Russell B. Long. He is presently a member of the Armed Services Committee and the Chairman of the Sub-committee on Manpower and Personnel.

Senator Nunn has at times been an outspoken critic of the military but has remained a staunch supporter of the American commitment to NATO and its allies.

In this ARNEWS interview, Senator Nunn discusses NATO, Korea, benefits, the All Volunteer Force, and retirement among other topics.

ARNEWS: Through Senate testimony and the fact that you requested Dr. King of the University of Pittsburgh to do a study on the All-Volunteer Army, it appears that you do not have much faith in the ability of the armed forces to field a strong, capable Army under volunteer conditions. If this is true, what action would you recommend to insure a strong defense?

NUNN: I do not believe that the All-Volunteer Force will provide the foundation for a viable national defense in the long term future. Even those witnesses before our Subcommittee who supported the AVF admitted that substantial managerial changes would be needed if the AVF is to provide sufficient numbers of qualified personnel. As I indicated in a recent speech on the floor of the Senate, and also during the hearings my Subcommittee had on the AVF, I believe that some kind of national service obligation incumbent upon all able-bodied young men and women is an alternative to the AVF which should be explored in depth. This national service obligation need not be confined exclusively to military service; in fact, it could encompass a variety of employment designed to address domestic as well as the international tasks before our society.

ARNEWS: Would you care to see some form of mandatory national service for all eligible men and women?

NUNN: I am not certain whether such a national service obligation should be mandatory, nor do I believe it is the only alternative to the volunteer force. At a minimum, it should require all young men and women to register and submit to a required period of orientation in which representatives of the military and other governmental organizations would be provided an opportunity to expose our youth to the possibilities and desirability of making an individual contribution to the collective welfare of society as a whole. I believe this principle expressed by George Washington remains valid today: "It may be laid down as a primary position, and the basis of our system, that every citizen who enjoys the protection of a free government, owes not only a proportion of his property, but even of his personal services to the defense of it."

ARNEWS: There has been a good deal of discussion about the benefits of the soldier. Do you feel that the soldier today has too many benefits?

NUNN: I think the question of benefits has to be placed in proper perspective. Many of the fringe benefits U.S. soldiers, sailors, and airmen enjoy today originated at a time in which the uniformed military earned far less than comparable skills could command in the private sector. In most cases, these benefits were justified as a substitute for low pay. However, due in large part to the comparability legislation of the 1960s and the advent of the AVF in the early 70s, real military pay has advanced rapidly during the last 10 years, making it comparable and in some cases higher than pay in the civilian sector. Yet, few benefits have been curtailed or eliminated, except for those directly attributable to the inability of the AVF to attract sufficient skills. For example, certain medical benefits have eroded because the AVF has consistently failed to attract sufficient numbers of doctors and medical personnel. Often, just the discussion of a particular benefit is perceived as a reduction. The system of military pay, allowances, bonuses, special pays and benefits is extremely complex. I have stated before that fairness requires that this whole system be reviewed as a total package. I am pleased that President Carter has appointed a Blue Ribbon Commission on Military Compensation which is expected to make its recommendations next March on this total compensation system.

ARNEWS: Retirement is a topic that has raised a furor in Congress recently. Do you feel that a soldier who has served his country, under at times extreme circumstances—risking his life when called upon—is deserving of a pension that is commensurate with the hardships and risks of a career of 20 years or more?

NUNN: I see no reason why military personnel should not be required to serve more than 20 years before becoming eligible for full retirement benefits. This is the case with civil servants and with most private employment. I believe that the 20-year obligation combined with the up-or-out policy is contrary to the best interests both the military and our nation as a whole because it encourages military personnel to terminate their service careers in their early 40s, which for many people is the period of greatest professional productivity. I realize that the combat arms require youthful vigor but a large percentage of our military positions are in the support areas. If the 20-year retirement eligibility is lengthened, special provisions could be made for those who have been engaged in combat.

ARNEWS: Do you agree with the statement that "The life of a soldier cannot be compared to civilian life?"

NUNN: I do not believe that the life of a soldier can be compared to civilian life any more so than the life of a coal miner can be compared with the life of a corporate executive, or a life of a tank-gunner can be compared with the life of a military typist. I do not, however, subscribe to the logic of some—i.e. that we should have to pay comparable to the civilian sector but we should not compare the fringe benefits.

ARNEWS: A study of economics reveals that it is virtually impossible for a young sergeant with a wife and child to make ends meet in areas like Washington, D.C., Hawaii, New York, and some overseas areas. Do you have a solution in mind for this pervasive problem?

NUNN: I am well aware that the cost of living in areas where many of our Army posts are located imposes great financial hardships upon enlisted men and non-commissioned officers. This situation requires serious investigation by both the Executive Branch and by Congress.

ARNEWS: If the soldier is not entitled to subsidies (as in the case of Washington, D.C.), may he be expected to be satisfied with military life and make the Army a career?

NUNN: One of the tragedies of the AVF has been the transformation of the idea of military service from that of a calling or profession to simply another government job. It is rare to see a recruiting poster today which appeals to a potential recruit's sense of patriotism or obligation to serve his or her country. "Uncle Sam needs you" has been replaced by appeals based on the lure of material betterment. While many young men and women do join the military do so out of a sense of duty, I think too many people in our nation have forgotten that the only justification for our military forces is to protect our nation and to be prepared to fight so that peace can be preserved. If the American public concludes that the primary role of the military is to offer job opportunities and fringe benefits, support for our defense budget would erode to the detriment of our national security and our freedom. The question implies that patriotism plays no role in the defense of our Nation. I do not believe this reflects the true feeling of thousands of dedicated individuals who service our Nation in uniform today.

ARNEWS: Some members of Congress have criticized the "Brass top-heavy Pentagon." Others point out that there are many more functions (NATO, United Nations, MAAG, etc.) requiring high ranking officers today than in 1945. Would you give us your views?

NUNN: There is no question that the requirement for general and flag rank officers in the post-war U.S. military establishment has grown in part for these reasons and because of the impact of technology. However, peacetime armies, and ours is no exception, have a tendency to retain a greater number of high-ranking officers than can be justified on purely military grounds. I might add that top-heaviness in our military is less pronounced than it is in the civilian bureaucracy, and my amendment to reduce the number of generals and admirals is accompanied by an amendment providing equivalent cuts in the upper grades of the civil service.

ARNEWS: Do you consider Western Europe to be America's first line of defense?

NUNN: Yes, I believe that NATO is the most important of all of America's military alliances. If there is one place outside the territorial confines of the North American continent where our interest may be regarded as truly vital, that place is Europe. It is for this reason that the possibility of another war in Europe—however remote it might appear to some in an era of detente and after three decades of peace and that continent—remains the principal determinant of the size and structure of our armed forces.

ARNEWS: Do you think that the United States and its NATO partners should beef up their defense capabilities in Western Europe?

NUNN: Yes I Do. As Senator Bartlett and I indicated in our recent report to the Congress entitled "NATO and the new Soviet Threat," the reduction in warning time for NATO implicit in the buildup of Soviet forces in Eastern Europe which has taken place during the past decade has placed a premium upon rectifying the traditional weaknesses—maldeployment, lack of sufficient readiness, inadequate fire power, and obstacles to rapid strategic reinforcement—which have plagued the Alliance since its inception.

ARNEWS: What is your view of the Administration's proposal to withdraw troops from Korea?

NUNN: I have reached no conclusion on the advisability of President Carter's proposed withdrawal and I believe the Armed Services Committee should explore this proposal in depth before making a final decision. There will be unavoidable risks in withdrawing U.S. ground troops from Korea because no one can predict with any certainty whether Kim Il Sung (President of North Korea) will seek to take direct military advantage of the withdrawal. This requires an essentially political judgement of North Korean intention, which is probably beyond the capacity of any intelligence organization of the free world. I do believe that the risks of withdrawal can be reduced if the withdrawal is conducted slowly over a period of years, in proper consultation with our allies in Northeast Asia, and attended by a U.S. supported buildup of South Korean capabilities. It is also worth remembering that the North Koreans today, as in 1950, would require heavy logistical support from either the Russians or the Chinese in order to sustain any major aggression against South Korea. I believe we should consider a phased withdrawal, with each phase after the first to be contingent upon North Korean responses and progress in building up South Korean capabilities. I also believe that we should not foreclose the option of retaining prepositioned equipment in South Korea for a "REFORGER" style capability to return selected U.S. ground units quickly to Korea. This could provide a formidable psychological deterrence even after most U.S. ground forces had been withdrawn, without automatic U.S. involvement in a conflict.

ARNEWS: In your view, are NATO troops capable of withstanding a massive conventional attack on European soil?

NUNN: It would depend to a large degree on the amount of warning NATO would enjoy, and whether NATO responded to that warning in a timely fashion. Wellington said of Waterloo that "it was a close run thing." I think a similar conclusion is unavoidable when contemplating the outcome of a massive Soviet attack on NATO's current defenses. NATO's worst case is a massive conventional attack by the Warsaw Pact with little warning. It is for this reason I feel that NATO must take significant steps to improve its conventional capabilities. Assuming our adversary will take advantage of our weaknesses, this scenario is less unlikely than many others.

ARNEWS: Does the fact that the Soviet Union spends twice the percentage of its GNP than the United States does on defensive and offensive weapons systems bother you?

NUNN: The percentage of its gross national product which a country allocates to its defense is important, but must be put in the proper context. The alarming fact that the Soviet Union allocates twice as much of its GNP for defense than we do is tempered by the fact that the Soviet Union's GNP is one-half that of the United States. More disturbing, in my view, is the fact that a much higher percentage of the Soviet defense budget is transformed directly into usable combat power, whereas some 60 percent of our defense budget is consumed by manpower costs at the expense of research and development, operations and maintenance, and procurement. The Soviets are not deterred by U.S. military pay scales and fringe benefits. They are deterred by the size, quality, firepower, and readiness of U.S. and allied combat formations deployed forward or readily available to reinforce a theatre of operations.

Co. A Rules Post Softball

Playing before a spirited crowd at field one Tuesday, Company A thumped the 6th Student Company 12-2 to take the 1977 Redstone Softball Championship.

After finishing the regular season with an 11-1 mark to take first place in the west, Alpha was considered to have a good chance of taking the title. But in their first play-off contest, they were defeated by Meddac, and one more loss would have meant elimination from the tournament. Alpha, realizing the need to get their game together, did just that and never lost again. The way Alpha played was reminiscent of the Oakland A's of the early 70's, a team who also came through when there was little hope.

The title game started just as it ended, with A Company hitting and playing good defense all the way through. Alpha scored four runs in the first inning on Jay Johnson's two run double, Jeff Dixon's double, and Randy Hooser's run scoring single.

The A bunch tallied three more times in the second frame on a combination of three hits and five errors by the 6th Students. They scored four more times in the fourth on run producing triples off the bats of John Lafferty and Roger Henley, and a rbi single by Jeff Dixon.

The 6th Students broke the shutout in their half of the inning on a rbi triple from Vanostrum, and a double from Rascop. That was all the damage the 6th did. Alpha's ace pitcher Roger Henley, who only gave up five hits in the game, allowed no hits afterwards.

Alpha scored the game ending run in the fifth, going ahead by ten runs, putting the game out of reach.

Congratulations on a fine season Company A!

Work, Study Program May Be Answer

(ARNEWS) — Full-time veteran students who foresee money problems at fall enrollment time should look into the Veterans Administration's work-study program, say VA officials. The VA says that new GI Bill payment procedures might leave students who don't have savings from summer jobs in a bind to pay necessary enrollment and subsistence expenses. To help offset this financial headache, VA will make more work-study jobs available. GI Bill students can work up to 250 hours per semester for VA and receive $2.50 per hour in addition to their usual education assistance allowances. An advance of up to $250 is available as soon as the employment agreement is processed. The advance covers the first 100 hours of work. Jobs are available for VA-related work on a given campus or at a VA facility. Priority is established on the basis of service-connected disability, financial need, motivation and the nature of the work. After the first 100 hours, VA pays work-study students after each 50 hours of work. Details are available from campus veterans counselors or any VA office.

Editor's Note: The new CHAMPUS reg, according to DoD officials eliminates inequities and will simplify CHAMPUS interpretation for beneficiaries, claim processors, and for the government. As a service to Army editors, ARNEWS is serializing an account of some of the benefits, eligibility and the appeals procedure in the new reg, along with the responsibilities of the beneficiary. These CHAMPUS articles are adapted from the Retired Army Bulletin.

PLASTIC SURGERY

CHAMPUS defines cosmetic, reconstructive and or plastic surgery as that surgery which can be expected to improve physical appearance, or is performed primarily for psychological purposes, or restores body form...and does not materially correct or improve a physical function. If a surgical procedure primarily restores a physical function, that procedure does not fall within this definition whether or not there also is an improvement in physical appearance.

CHAMPUS will cover cosmetic, reconstructive and or plastic surgery meeting the following specific limited criteria:

- o Corrects a marked deviation from the normal standard when the deviation existed at birth (a congenital anomaly)
- o Restores body form following an accidental injury.
- o Revises a disfiguring, extensive scar resulting from cancer surgery (neoplastic surgery).

To qualify as a CHAMPUS benefit, surgery covered by this provision of the regulation must be performed no later than December 31 of the year following the year in which the accidental injury occurred or cancer surgery was performed. Special consideration is given to cases involving children where growth time is a factor.

Further, preauthorization is required under CHAMPUS in order for any benefits to be extended for cosmetic, reconstructive and or plastic surgery, even though the procedure otherwise meets the above criteria.

Examples of non-covered cosmetic, reconstructive and or plastic surgery are body sculpture, removal of a tattoo, hair transplant, removal of body hair (electrolysis), breast augmentation, any procedure related to the aging process, and any procedures related to dental services, such as surgery care for malocclusion.

PREVENTIVE CARE

CHAMPUS cannot share the cost of such care as routine annual or employment-requested physical examinations, immunizations and screening procedures performed when no definitive symptoms are present.

Beneficiaries may be confused about certain types of care with regard to whether or not it is preventive. For example, CHAMPUS cannot share the cost for flu shots or periodic chest X-rays and pap smears when there are no presenting symptoms and it is not provided in connection with a diagnosed related illness.

However, services not considered to be primarily preventive care, such as newborn examinations including PKU tests, rabies shots, tetanus shots following accidental injury, and genetic tests in certain high-risk situations, are covered.

PSYCHOTHERAPY

CHAMPUS will share the cost of one hour of psychotherapy treatment—individual or group or a combination—during a 24-hour period, up to a maximum of five one-hour sessions per week for inpatient care and two one-hour sessions per week for outpatient care.

In crisis intervention cases, two hours of psychotherapy treatment during a 24-hour period will be cost shared.

Although previously used as guidelines, these specific limits are new. At the eighth visit outpatient treatment is reviewed automatically by CHAMPUS. If approved for continuation, it again is reviewed automatically at the 24th visit, although more frequent review may be made. At a maximum of 60 visits, the case must be referred for review before further care can be authorized. The review requirement is new to the Program.

CONCURRENT CARE

There are three situations that CHAMPUS classifies as concurrent inpatient physician care for an individual during a single inpatient admission.

o Same Physician, Different Type of Care—When a beneficiary receives inpatient medical care during the same admission in which the same physician provides surgical care or maternity care, CHAMPUS benefits are limited to that one type of care for which the greatest amount in payable—the medical care or the surgical care or the maternity care. A request for special consideration of a higher-than-usual fee will be considered, however, when extra time and special effort are required due to complications.

o Different Physicians, Different Types of Care—When different physicians provide different types of care—medical care and, or surgical care and, or maternity care—to a beneficiary during the same inpatient admission, CHAMPUS benefits may be extended to cover the services of more than one physician, subject to review for medical necessity.

o Different Physicians, Inpatient Medical Care Only—Benefits generally are limited to the services of one physician for inpatient medical care—non-surgical, non-maternity care—during a single admission, unless the services of more than one physician are required because of unusual severity and complexity of a patient's condition.

SURGICAL ASSISTANCE

CHAMPUS will share the cost of surgical assistance by a physician provided that the procedure is complex enough to require a surgical assistant to be present and that a qualified intern or resident is not available. The regulation imposes these restrictions as part of its overall emphasis on assuring that CHAMPUS pays only for care that is necessary.

A claim for services provided by a surgical assistant will be referred automatically for medical review if it involves one of the following circumstances:

o The surgery is performed in a hospital that has a residency program in a specialty appropriate to the surgery.

o The surgery is performed by a team of surgeons.

o There is more than one surgical assistant.

o The surgical assistant is a partner of the attending surgeon.

o The surgical assistant is from the same group of practicing physicians as the attending surgeon.

DOMICILIARY CARE

Domiciliary care, according to the regulation, is care provided in an institution instead of at home solely for one or more of the following reasons:

o Required supervision or assistance is not available in the home setting.

o The home setting is not suitable for the care

o Members of the beneficiary's family are not willing to provide the care in the home setting.

In other words, it is care provided in an institution where the institution serves as a "substitute home," and is not medically necessary. The law governing CHAMPUS excludes cost sharing for domiciliary care.

An example of domiciliary care is an extension of a hospital stay beyond the time considered medically necessary because the beneficiary lives alone. Another example is hospitalization because of abandonment.

Although CHAMPUS cannot share the cost of domiciliary care itself, the Program will share the cost of any authorized service or supply received in the institution by a domiciliary care patient. Cost sharing, in this situation, will be on an outpatient basis.

PHYSICAL THERAPY

One or two physical therapy sessions per week will be cost shared when the therapy is provided by a physician or by a registered physical therapist under supervision of a physician. These benefits are generally limited to a 60-day period for each illness or injury. These rules are new to CHAMPUS.

Requests for extending physical therapy benefits beyond 60 days will be considered when the attending physician documents the medical necessity for continuing the therapy and provides information about the anticipated results.

(ARNEWS) — The White House Fellows Program offers a unique career opportunity for soldiers and other Americans between the ages of 23 and 36.

Fifteen to nineteen exceptionally promising young people from all sectors of national life are selected to serve as special assistants on the White House staff or with cabinet officers for a one year period. The year-long fellowship begins in September 1978.

In order to be eligible, an applicant must be a citizen of the United States between the ages of 22 and 36 on Sept. 1, 1978.

Interested Army personnel must first request permission in accordance with AR 621-7, "Acceptance of Fellowships, Scholarships, or Grants," dated July 19, 1974. Requests must arrive at the Department of the Army by Sept. 7, 1977, in order to be considered.

Following approval from HQDA to compete for the Fellows Program, candidates should submit their applications directly to the fellowships commission. Application forms will be forwarded by HQDA when permission to compete is granted.

Central System

DA officers' promotion boards continue to have problems with missing and outdated official photographs and physical examination forms.

To help ease the problem, a centralized notification system will provide to the field a listing—by name—of the officers who are due to update their physicals and official photos. Listings will be provided on a semi-annual basis, in August and February.

The scheduling is based on the annual DA selection board schedule, and will allow adequate time for officers to accomplish the requirement prior to the convening of the next regularly scheduled board.

Release of the first overdue and missing physical and photo list is planned for September. (ARNEWS)

Veteran Preference Studied

Curtailment of giving veterans preference in hiring was discussed recently by Civil Service Commission chairman Alan K. Campbell at the national convention of the American Legion in Denver.

He said the present system of hiring has diluted the benefits for non-veterans who need help in getting jobs.

Giving preference to veterans started in 1944 with passage of the Veterans Preference Act. It was intended to compensate for time lost by servicemen during war to give veterans an easier time in finding government jobs.

The law is still in force and gives veterans preference long after they leave service and provides tenure once they have a civil service job.

The result, according to Campbell, is that it has left male veterans holding a concentration of the middle and upper income jobs while women are concentrated in the lower-paying grades.

As it stands now, veterans from either world war, or in Korea between April 28, 1952 and July 1, 1955, or who served more than 180 consecutive days on active duty from January 1955 through October 14, 1976 are eligible for five point adjustment in their competitive civil service exam scores.

Disabled veterans, their spouses and mothers, as well as mothers of deceased veterans are eligible for a 10 point adjustment.

Other provisions are that after test scores are computed and employers begin selecting from the eligibles, a veteran may not be passed over, all other things being equal, unless the Civil Service Commission has granted the employing agency a waiver to do so.

Proposals outlined by Campbell, which would require Congressional approval, are:

—Veterans who receive a five-point adjustment on their civil service test scores should be "in some way limited in either the length of their use of preference or in their ability to monopolize the 'rule of three' which means employers must pick veterans over other qualified applicants.

—No preference should be extended to potential "double dippers" - those who make a career of military service, then retire, collect their pensions, and apply for federal jobs in addition.

—Veterans preference during a RIF should be limited (Under present law when a government office cuts back on personnel, veterans cannot be released while non-veterans remain on the job).

—Veterans who get a job-point adjustment on exam scores "should either compete as equals, once the 10-point advantage is given, or could be hired under a special appointment authority - designed to deal with their specific needs."

A Big Business

(ARNEWS) — Running the Army's installations is a big business. It involves the management of 11 million acres of land and billion square feet of building space. More than a billion dollars are spent annually to operate and maintain Army installations around the world.

The pinch of budget cuts, reductions in manpower and higher energy costs have combined to cause Army leadership to look for additional ways to make use of available resources, and DA has established a study group to look into the Army's real property management system. The study, sponsored by the Chief of Engineers, will recommend specific improvements in operation and maintenance of real property.

A study advisory group, with members from elements of the Army Staff, FORSCOM, TRADOC and DARCOM will assist the study team and periodically review its results.

During the next few months, members of the study team will be visiting Army posts to talk with installation commanders, facilities engineering personnel, and the users of facilities. The team members will examine customer relations, personnel and funding levels, management practices and procedures, and the quality of operation and maintenance activities.

The study is scheduled for completion in January 1978.
