Two programs improve TOW

The Army Missile Command has begun major improvements that will keep the TOW tank killer abreast of the enemy armor threat for years to come.

"We're modernizing TOW and improving lethality to meet armor threats through the 90s and beyond," said Col. Neil Williamson, TOW Project Manager at Redstone.

"What's more, these improvements are planned to protect the Army's investment in fielded missiles and launchers. It's important that we minimize the impact on fielded equipment and the supply system."

Williamson said that Hughes Aircraft Company has produced more than 275,000 missiles during the last decade. TOW is the largest produced U.S. guided missile and is deployed with 32 countries.

MICOM is directing two improvement programs.

The first, called Improved TOW, is intended to counter near-term enemy threats and will feature a five-inch diameter warhead similar to the present warhead size and weight but will penetrate heavier armor.

The warhead is compatible and can be retrofitted to existing TOW missiles.

The longer range program, called TOW 2, will counter even more sophisticated enemy armor with its six inch warhead, a new flight motor and improved guidance system.

Williamson said development and testing on both TOW programs are underway at Redstone.

Deployment of Improved TOW is expected in the early 1980s while TOW 2 will be available later in this decade.

Other major members of the TOW team, in addition to MICOM and Hughes, are the Armament Research and Development Command and Firestone.

1981 licenses not sold here

Madison County vehicle license tags and decals won't be on sale this year on Redstone Arsenal as they have been for the last two years.

County Licensing Director Emmett Sanders said "so much was involved" in selling tags here "we're going to bypass it this year."

This would have been the last year for the arsenal's substation, Sanders said.

"A lot of things are involved to put it out there," he added. "We don't have anybody who could set up out there."

Tags and decals will go on sale as usual Oct. 1 at the Courthouse with Jaycee substations for pre-printed receipts at the Mall and Parkway City Mall.

This is the last year for substations, Sanders said, and that includes those at the malls. "After October and November, no more substations."

Orders can still be made by mail, the licensing director added.

Alabama this year is switching from an annual tag-buying system to a staggered, monthly method. Because of the switch, people will be buying their tags in different months of the year next year. Which month will depend on what letter a person's last name starts with.

Firewood

Demand heats up as cold weather nears

As the weather gets cooler the demand for firewood is heating up here.

"I must be getting 10 calls a day for it now and expect a lot more as the weather gets colder", said Dave Bryant, post forester.

The callers want to know if the Army has firewood for sale and how do they go about getting some.

In most cases Bryant has to tell them, no, there isn't any available and, no, he doesn't know when there will be.

There are far more people wanting firewood from the arsenal than there is wood to go around, Bryant said.

Firewood when available can be bought here for $2 a load. Downed wood only is sold and the buyer has to cut it up.

On the arsenal portion of Wheeler National Wildlife Refuge, downed wood may be obtained free of charge. Getting it requires a permit (obtainable from Bryant). Availability is spotty and access to it may be difficult. "The big problem with refuge wood is that most of it is in the test areas", where access is restricted," the forester said.

He said just a few years ago hardly anyone was interested in getting firewood from the arsenal but demand has grown phenomenally as utility costs have risen and wood heat has caught on.

Hardwood now is worth more as firewood than it is as saw logs, Bryant said. There have been instances of firewood "rustling" here on a small scale, he added.

"We don't allow any trees to be cut down for firewood, not even dead ones," the forester said. "The firewood we have is downed wood available as the result of construction, maintenance and storm damage."

He said dead trees are left standing for cavity-nesting birds, of which there are about 30 species here.

Redstone firewood sales are handled through the Property Disposal Office on Thursdays. The customer pays $2 in advance for a load of wood and then has 30 days to cut it and haul it away.

Before coming out to buy firewood, it's a good idea to check on availability by calling Bryant, 876-6122, or Property Disposal, 876-3528.

Bryant cautions that anyone counting on the arsenal as a source of firewood this year may be in for a long, cold winter. "We'll be getting a little along but I don't believe we have any projects planned that will result in a lot of downed wood to sell."

Opinion

It's time to bet on CFC

Once again, it's time for federal workers to place their bets.

You thought gambling was illegal? This isn't. Each year, when the Combined Federal Campaign rolls around, each Redstone worker places a bet.

Those who give to the campaign are betting that with a little more money from them, one of the now-incurable diseases will be beaten. It's a long shot, but they've seen it happen.

The fear of having a mentally retarded child has been reduced because there is now a vaccine against rubella, or German measles. A pregnant woman who gets German measles runs a greater risk of having a mentally retarded child.

The March of Dimes doesn't campaign against polio any more. With the millions of small contributions, a vaccine to prevent polio was developed. Now the March of Dimes focuses its attention on birth defects.

Those who don't give to the CFC are betting they and their family won't be affected by any of the diseases being fought by the agencies of the CFC. It's not a very good bet.

Heart and blood vessel diseases are the leading cause of death in the U.S. The various cancers rank second. Together, these two groups of diseases kill more than a million people each year. Arthritis cripples 5 million people a year, and affects 29 million. Diabetes afflicts ten million.

Your odds of being affected by one of these four diseases is greater than one in three. One in four persons will have some form of cancer, and it will strike two of three families. Eleven other agencies of the CFC combat other groups of diseases.

The Red Cross provides a wide range of services. Among them is teaching Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) — heart massage.

If you argue that giving to CFC doesn't do any good, you're wrong. There are the vaccines against rubella and polio to prove it. The unfortunate fact is things don't happen quickly with the national health agencies. It may take years to find the key that opens the door to a vaccine or a cure for a disease. You can only be certain that if nobody gave, nothing would be done. — BRUCE WINE

Gate 2 is one-way when open

Editor:

... Today I went through Gate 2 to gasoline alley for gas to carry financial documents to F&A for authorization of funds. After gassing up I returned to Gate 2 to come back to work, but was stopped from doing so. No incoming traffic permitted through this gate.

Since the guard shack is beyond the gate entrance and a exit road to 7100 area is within spitting distance I could not see the logic of this. Would you please check out the reason why we cannot enter through Buxton Road even though, you are already on the arsenal and within 20 feet of access road to 7100 area. I would appreciate any information on this for I had to go to Gate 3 to enter Redstone.

Jimmy L. Harbin

Answer:

Gate 2 is open briefly in the mornings and evenings as a convenience to people who live at points south. The military police operations office said certain gates are one-way "because we don't have the personnel or manpower to man those gates." Gates 1, 2, 5 and 7 are one-way coming in in the mornings going out in the afternoons.

Executive wins $10,000 award

William J. Lindberg, a MICOM civilian who has played a prominent role in Army missile and rocket programs for more than two decades, is to be honored in Washington on Thursday.

In a Pentagon ceremony, Lindberg will receive the Meritorious Executive Award — given to selected members of the Senior Executive Service — and a $10,000 stipend. The award will be presented by William Peacock, Assistant Secretary of the Army for Manpower and Reserve Affairs. Lindberg is one of three people in DARCOM receiving the award.

Lindberg, director of the Advanced Sensors Directorate in MICOM's Army Missile Laboratory, has responsibility for technology covering target acquisition, tracking, command and terminal homing guidance from Army missile systems.

Lindberg holds bachelor's and master's degrees in electronic engineering. He is a registered professional engineer and a senior member of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers and was named the IEEE outstanding engineer in 1976.

Holiday 'early-cut' program announced

WASHINGTON — Soldiers scheduled for separation from active duty Dec. 12, 1980 through Jan. 6, 1981 will be eligible for "early-outs", according to DA.

These eligible soldiers will be separated between Dec. 11-17 or as soon after as possible, if they don't want to wait until their normal release date.

Soldiers will be released according to the following schedule:

CURRENT ESA-ETS DATE	TARGET SEPARATION DATE
Dec. 12-26, 1980	Dec. 11, 1980
Dec. 27-28, 1980	Dec. 12, 1980
Dec. 29, 1980-Jan. 1, 1981	Dec. 15, 1980
Jan. 2-4, 1981	Dec. 16, 1980
Jan. 5-6, 1981	Dec. 17, 1980

Officers eligible for early release under this program may be kept on active duty until their normal release date if necessary for unit operations.

Soldiers not eligible for early release are:

- Reserve component soldiers on active duty for training
- Soldiers scheduled for retirement
- Officers having DA approved release or resignation dates or those who are being involuntarily separated
- Personnel to whom the provisions of AR 600-31 apply
- Soldiers with approved terminal leave will have their leave date adjusted to reflect the new separation date. (Arnews)

Gate 9 accident injures two men

Two Athens men were hospitalized with injuries after their car hit a swing gate on Sunday night, Sept. 14, at Gate 9.

Both men were taken to Fox Army Community Hospital and later to Huntsville Hospital for further treatment.

Norman L. Kerwin, 23, suffered an injured right shoulder and Ellis C. Alred, 38, had a broken nose and facial lacerations, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

A guard and two military police patrolmen were at the gate when the car approached about 9 p.m. southbound on Rideout Road. The patrolmen, who arrived shortly before the mishap, were standing by the gate and the car barely missed their patrol car, according to Sp4 Roger W. Foster, accident investigator.

The car crashed through the metal swing gate and then hit a lamp post. The collision heavily damaged the 1965 Chevrolet and blew out three tires.

"They said he just gradually went over to the right as he got closer and went on through," Foster reported. "They said his approximate speed was 55 to 60."

According to military police, the driver mistook them for state troopers and believed the accident was on Highway 72 and that he had hit a car after swerving to miss a building. Military police charged Kerwin with driving while intoxicated.

What do you think of the alcohol and drug abuse program at Redstone?

Sp5 Tommie Joe Beasley, Co. B —
 "I was a counselor in the program when I was in Germany. I feel the current ADAPCP program here is unacceptable as a means of controlling drug and alcohol abuse. It seems the counselors are more interested in justifying their job rather than rehabilitation. There is also too much emphasis placed in the (company) commander. It doesn't seem right that he determines whether or not a person passes or fails a program."

Carole Pierre, HHC 2nd Batt —
 "I think it's good. They need it because people, both students and permanent party, get bored and start drinking and turning to drugs. If all the people that were into drugs got into the program, then they would have a chance to seek help."

 "I don't know anything about it but from what I have heard I guess it would help someone who really had a problem and couldn't cope. It would give them more confidence and a better understanding concerning drugs and alcohol. It's good that they got a program like that."

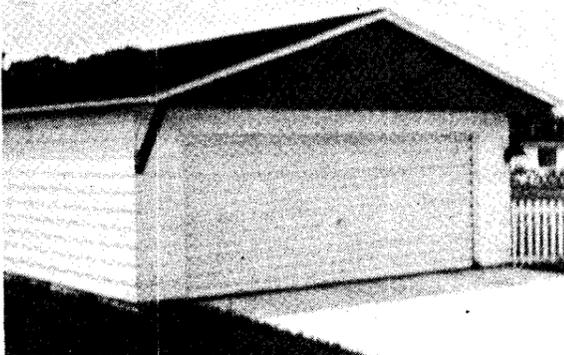

Sp4 William M. Collier, Co. B —
 "If it works, then go for it. I imagine it helps out a lot of people if they have that sort of problem."

Sgt. Chuck J. C. Smith, Co. B —
 "I don't like it. Some people from the program came over and briefed my class. Instead of briefing us, they were trying to sell the program and bring personnel in. I worked with a program in Germany and it was there to help people. The Redstone programs just puts on a show."

Tests aimed at developing ICBM defense

The Army has successfully demonstrated the latest in both optical and radar missile tracking capabilities during a single test in the central Pacific, according to the Ballistic Missile Defense (BMD) program headquarters in Research Park.

Both an advanced optical sensor and a proven ground-based radar successfully monitored the descent of an intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) target complex over the Kwajalein Missile Range in the Marshall Islands.

The mission began with the launch of an ICBM-type reentry vehicle on a Minute Man I booster from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. on Sept. 15.

Several minutes after the Vandenberg launch, a telescope known as the Designating Optical Tracker (DOT) was carried aloft by a rocket fired from Roi-Namur Island in the Kwajalein atoll. While above the atmosphere the telescope detected and recorded the incoming target's trajectory and obtained a significant amount of scientific data. The telescope was then parachuted into the ocean and recovered.

After the target reentered the earth's atmosphere it was tracked to its splashdown in the lagoon by the integrated radar and data processing system of the BMD Systems Technology test facility on Meck Island.

This was the third in a series of tests for the BMD advanced technology center's DOT experiment which is designed to demonstrate the utility of optical sensors to BMD.

The center is responsible for developing new technology to improve U.S. BMD capabilities.

The test was also the 48th and final mission for the test facility established by the Systems Technology Project Office of the BMD Systems Command. The project office is responsible for integrating and testing promising technological advances within a system framework.

The facility was designed to validate the next generation of radar and data processing technology beyond the Safeguard system. After compiling a very high success rate in more than three years of testing, the capabilities represented by the facility are now considered "on the shelf" technology that has fully demonstrated its BMD utility.

Boeing Aerospace Co., prime contractor for the DOT program, builds the sensor vehicles, prepares them for flight tests, and analyses data obtained. Hughes Aircraft Co. builds the sensor.

Both of these tests are part of the Army's Ballistic Missile Defense Program to develop various methods of defending the United States against an ICBM attack.

MICOM's deputy comptroller started here as summer hire

BY SKIP VAUGHN

The new deputy comptroller at the Missile Command started working here during the summers as a college student two decades ago.

Since she returned to work fulltime after graduation, Nancy Henderson Walker has progressed through the ranks of civil service.

"It has a lot of responsibility that goes with it and it's a challenge," Walker said of the position she assumes this month.

Her new GS-15 job is to assist Col. J.R. Grant in the functions of the MICOM comptroller office. Those functions include budgeting, finance accounting, cost analysis, planning and programming.

Walker also acts as comptroller activity career manager which she describes as an advisory role.

She was chief of the programs division in the comptroller office when deputy comptroller Mike Deegan retired this year.

"I've got a big challenge," Walker said. "I guess my near-term goal is to be effective in the new job."

The Auburn University graduate describes herself as a "mother first" when asked about her priorities. "So far I've been able to balance the two (job and family) in my own mind," she said. "Sometimes it's kind of difficult. But your family has to come first."

Her husband, Merrill Walker, is a self-employed engineer who owns a sheet metal and machine shop in Huntsville. They have three children: Philip, 11, Susan, 8, and Stacy, 6.

Walker, 40, a Huntsville native, was graduated from Auburn in 1962 with a bachelor of science degree in business education.

She said she enjoys watching football. "My brothers always participated so I kind of grew up with it," she added.

Walker worked in the Kwajalein Missile Range program about nine years. From 1973-74 she worked in the ground Laser Designator project at MICOM. She worked in the Viper Project Office for about six months in 1976-77.

In 1977, she was assigned chief of the program-budget division in MIRADCOM when the Missile Command divided. When it merged back together in 1979, she was assigned as chief of the programs division in the comptroller office.

"First of all, you have to have the basic skills," Walker said of her formula for success. "In my first job in civil service my supervisor was very supportive and it was a growing organization.

"The opportunity was there and my first supervisor sort of pushed us along. Not only me but the other people who worked for her."

Besides qualifications and opportunity, performance is important, she said. "Your performance has to meet the expectations of each of the levels as you progress. You have to perform to be able to progress."

Since it was her alma mater, it's not surprising she is an Auburn fan. But she's quick to add: "I'm not quite as fanatic as some of my Alabama friends."

-150 ACRE FARM- ANTIQUES-CATTLE ON THE PREMISES

LOCATED APPROXIMATELY 2 MILES FROM CITY LIMITS-JUST OFF MOLINA ROAD-FOLLOW SIGNS FROM HWY. 231 AT STRONG GIN

BELONGING TO MRS. GEORGIA ASKINS & THE ESTATE OF THE LATE MR. JACK ASKINS

This is one of the very best livestock farms in the area with an apparent unlimited supply of water provided by several excellent springs — also city water is close by. This farm is well fenced, abundantly watered, perfectly located and well improved. To be sold in tracts with reservation to regroup.

Tract 1 — Main Home Tract containing approximately 55 acres. Mostly all rolling and hill land sown to improved pastures with 2 of the very best springs to be found — water supplied to the house on Tract 1 and 2 by gravity from one of these springs. This lovely older home contains 7 rooms, bath, porches, large upstairs room in good condition. Other buildings consist of good stone & frame smoke house, garage, barn, cattle corral with lots of other pluses found only in a "home place" home. A more picturesque place to build your new home or several homes could not be found to be better than the view offered on "top of the hill" adjoining some of the more exclusive homes of the area and overlooking Fayetteville and the entire Elk River Valley.

Tract 2 — Containing approximately 50 acres of beautiful rolling and hill pasture with some woods. The nice frame home contains 6 rooms, bath, open porches setting in the midst of abundance of shade. Barns consist of an excellent combination cattle and tobacco barn and a small dairy barn. Water unexcelled being supplied by gravity to the house from the excellent spring. The level area at the crest of the hill affords the scenery anyone would love to own to build an exclusive home or a multiple building program as the scenery is unexcelled and adjoins some of the most desirable homes to be found. Can be seen from Hwy. 110.

Tract 3 — Contains approximately 40 acres of rolling pastureland mostly all sown grasses and clovers. There is a spring on this tract to provide water if you wish. A more beautiful place to build your home cannot be found than is offered in the upper areas. This tract offers much to the person desirous of building the home you wish, have a small farm yet live almost in town. A R. O. W. 50 ft. in width is reserved along the entire Northern Boundary to provide access to a 10 + acre tract kept by the owners.

Tract 1 — Will be separated from tracts 2 and 3 by a 50 ft. rd. dividing to accommodate all tracts and extending to within the proximity of the large spring on tract 2.

As separate units these tract must be carefully inspected as they offer much that cannot be described and must be seen to fully appreciate. As an entire farm unit or in combinations it would constitute one of the better farm units to be found. As an Exclusive Development — All the advantages are here, location, scenery and much desirability.

Inspect this unit or separate tracts before sale date. Select the ones that suit your needs and be present. Plats available at Agents Office.

Personal properties can be seen on date of sale as many are in storage. Farm and Cattle may be seen in advance of sale date.

CATTLE

19 Hd mixed beef cattle consisting of Angus, Hereford and Charolais. These cattle are mostly young and good brood cows ready to go into your herd. These cows have just weaned large calves, have been aged and are to be sold directly from the farm.

1 — Black bull — 3 yrs. old — good

This is the ideal place to buy your herd replacements of good clean brood cows.

Terms — Real Estate — 15 percent Cash on date of sale — Balance upon delivery of deed

"WHEN YOU'RE A CIVILIAN AGAIN, AN EXTRA $1,300 A YEAR SURE COMES IN HANDY."

"I got out of the Army in February of 1977, right when all the prices were going up. Food. Clothing. Gas. You name it and it went up.

"Fortunately, when I was out-processing, someone asked me if I wanted to make some extra money with a local Army Reserve unit, and I said yes.

"It's good I joined right away, because it took me a couple of months to find a good full-time job.

"Even with a regular job, the extra $1,300 I earned with the Reserve came in handy. It was the difference between barely making ends meet and being able to put a little money away.

"By going direct from Active into the Reserve, I was also able to keep my rank of E-4. I'm now an E-5, pulling in over $1,600 a year. Not bad for a weekend a month and two weeks annual training.

"I'm also taking advantage of some other benefits.

I buy a lot of my auto supplies at the PX.

I carry low-cost government life insurance through the Reserve.

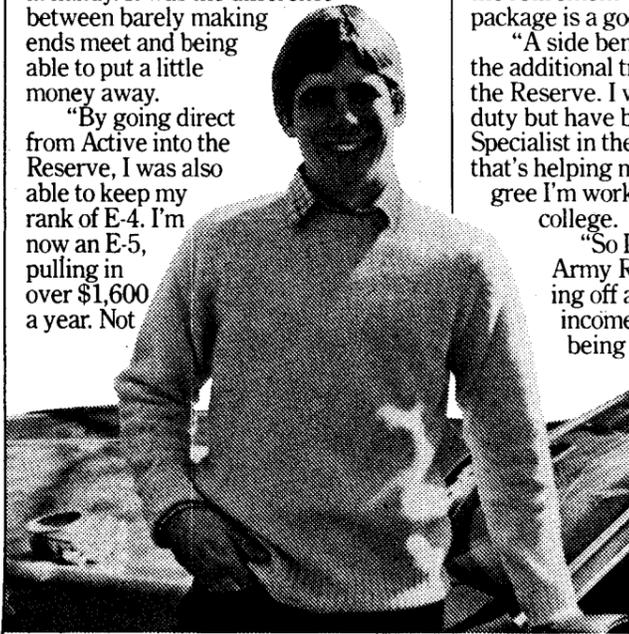

I also think the retirement package is a good deal.

"A side benefit that's helped me is the additional training I've picked up in the Reserve. I was an MP on active duty but have become an Accounting Specialist in the Reserve. Right now, that's helping me with the business degree I'm working toward at a local college.

"So I can recommend the Army Reserve to anyone coming off active duty. The extra income is good, and it's nice being with people who can appreciate what you achieved in the service."

DUMP THE BUMPS!

With the Norelco Black Pro™ razor bumps go away. And stay away.

"In a study conducted at a leading black university, black men suffering from razor bumps tested the Norelco Black Pro™ Rotary Razor™ in daily shaving. In almost every case, black men were able to shave regularly with the Black Pro™ without creating razor bumps, and a majority found that the Black Pro™ actually reduced or eliminated razor bumps entirely?"
A leading Professor of Dermatology

A built-in Razor Bump Brush™, custom-designed for the black man's beard, surrounds three floating heads. It brushes whiskers up and away from your tender skin, setting them up for a comfortable shave.

Inside three floating heads, expressly designed for the black man's beard, are 36 blades that shave your whiskers off without a nick or cut. And without encouraging razor bumps.

The Norelco Black Pro™ stands whiskers up and away from skin, into the blade.

Fox, UAH agreement

'Realistic, practical' exposure to medical field

BY SKIP VAUGHN

A student may go through four years of pre-med, or even be in medical school, before deciding he doesn't want to be a doctor after all.

To avoid such cases, Fox Army Community Hospital and the University of Alabama in Huntsville offer a course for select pre-professional students. The course started this month for 12 UAH students in pre-med, pre-dental and pre-optometry.

It's the second part of a cooperative effort between Fox Hospital and the UAH School of Primary Medical Care. The first part started in 1977 when the hospital agreed to help train UAH medical students and residents.

"The original program was clinical training for post-graduate students. This newer program is pre-clinical exposure for these undergraduate students," explained Dr. Hugh Bell, one of three doctors who'll grade the pre-professionals.

Students in this three-month course for college credit will spend 16 laboratory hours in each of five clinical settings. They rotate through the laboratory, emergency room, allergy and immunization clinic, pediatric clinic, and EKG (heart tracing).

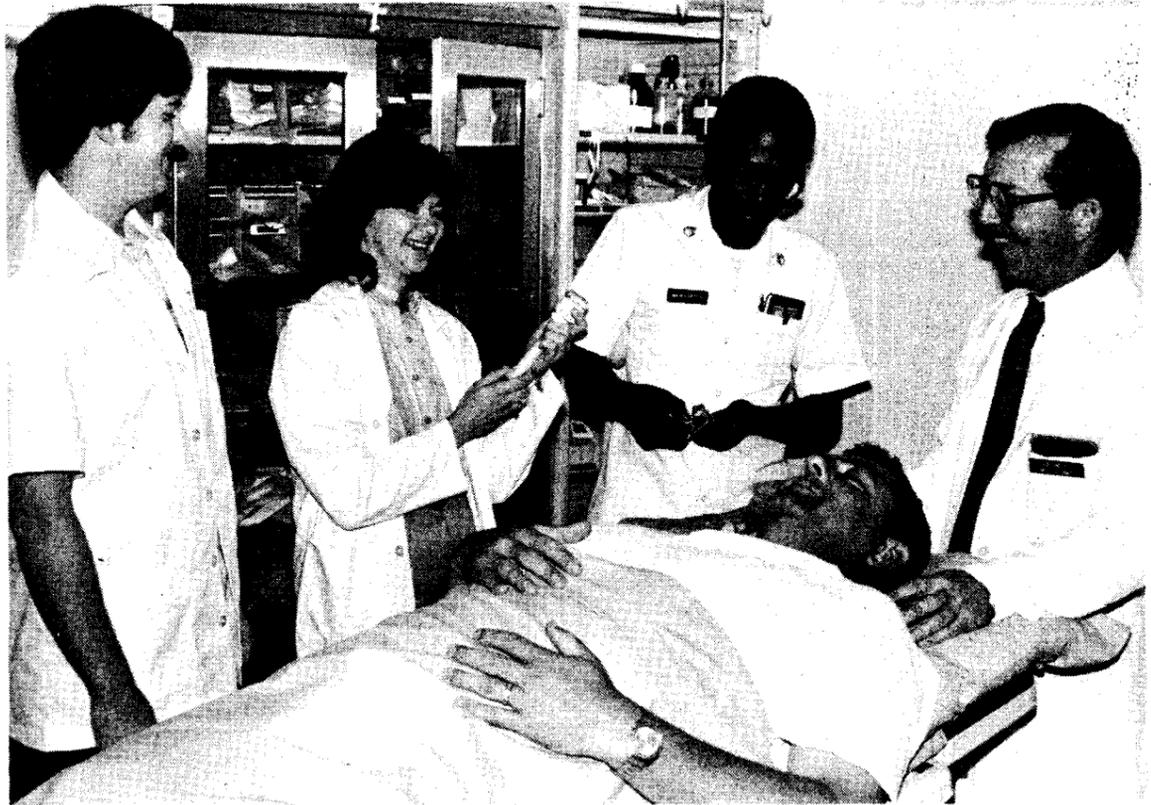

Besides eight hours a week at Fox Hospital, the students get lectures one hour each week at the UAH Clinical Science Center and at Fox.

"The pre-clinical students in this program are serving as volunteers and assisting in the various clinical settings," Bell said. "They are not directly responsible for patient care nor are they administering any treatments or therapy. . . They're not doing anything but being volunteers and observing."

The students, all undergraduate juniors and seniors, are academically selected and their enrollment is approved by the faculty. They are required to successfully complete a basic cardio-pulmonary resuscitation course before receiving a final grade.

"They are always under direct supervision of a qualified staff member," Bell said.

He described the course's purpose as providing "realistic and practical exposure to the demands and expectations in the various health science fields."

Observing

The course will be offered twice a year, in both the fall and spring quarters. It resulted from a pilot program started several months ago and is "one of the few such programs instituted in the country in cooperation with a military medical facility," Bell said.

Randy Posey, a junior from Ardmore, Ala. majoring in chemistry, describes the program as interesting. "It's a good course for anybody who wants to go in a health field," he said.

Dianna Osborn of Athens, Ala. is a senior majoring in biology. "I worked in a hospital before and this lets me see different areas of the hospital whereas working in one area kind of limits you," she said.

Besides Bell, Drs. Don McCalister and Robert Moore are responsible for grading students taking this "Introduction to Clinical Medicine."

Capt. Jim Hughes, Fox Hospital adjutant, said "I think it's an excellent program as far as giving them an idea of medicine before they go into it as a career."

"Some people might find it's a little bit different than they expected."

Tide an easy pick; Auburn hard to call

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Alabama's Crimson Tide should have an easy roll over Vanderbilt's Commodores in major college football action this weekend but Auburn versus Tennessee is harder to call.

This picker says Auburn's War Eagles will nip Coach Johnny Majors' Volunteers.

Here's a fingers-crossed forecast for selected major college games Saturday:

- Vanderbilt at Alabama — Bama by 20
- Tennessee at Auburn — Auburn by 3
- Fla. State at Miami of Fla. — State by 10

- LSU at Rice — Louisiana State by 7
- TCU at Georgia — Georgia by 20
- Nebraska at Penn State — Nebraska by 7
- Army at Washington State — State by 10
- Baylor at Texas Tech — Baylor by 3
- Tulane at Ole Miss — Mississippi by 10
- Maryland at North Carolina — Carolina by 10
- Bowling Green at Kentucky — Kentucky by 20
- Mississippi State at Florida — State by 7

Retiree Day set

A Retiree Activity Day with guest speakers, door prizes and information program is being held here on Saturday, Sept. 27.

Retired services officer Frank Adair said that a morning agenda of speakers that includes the PX and commissary managers and representatives of post hospital and dental activities will be followed Saturday afternoon by "a county fair-type information program" at the Recreation Center in building 3711. Information booths will be set up with representatives to talk and answer question "on all areas of interest", said Adair.

Information booths will include Army Emergency Relief and Army Community Services, Social Security, state employment office, veterans affairs, post craft shop, retired officers association, Champus, legal services, NCO wives club and AUSA. There will be a refreshments booth too.

Lunch will be available in dining hall no. 3. The PX and commissary will hold special retiree day sales, Adair said.

Retiree Activity Day is held here annually for retiree information and social purposes. Adair said 250-300 people are expected to attend. Active duty military nearing retirement are "especially invited", said Adair, since the information program could be especially useful to them.

Col. (ret.) Leonard Flank, chairman of the Redstone retiree council, said the activity day is a good opportunity for retirees to learn "what's there for them — like what medical care they can get, how much they can get and how they can get it."

CHAMPUS claim form change

Several changes are planned in CHAMPUS claim forms and filing procedures that are designed to improve accuracy in initial claims submission, thus reducing the number of claims that have to be returned.

Revised versions of forms used by the American Medical Association and the American Hospital Association will be used when the provider of medical services fills out and submits the claim. These forms, already widely used by the medical professions will be used for other government programs as well as CHAMPUS and are expected to greatly simplify claim filing procedures for physicians and hospitals.

When a beneficiary submits the claim, one form, a revised version of CHAMPUS Form 500, will be used for all CHAMPUS claims — for services of both individual and institutional providers and for benefits under the CHAMPUS Program for the Handicapped. The form required completion of only eligibility information and the attachment of the provider's itemized bill.

CHAMPUS officials say the changes will be phased in over a period beginning Oct. 1, when the new claim forms are expected to be available.

Army computer expert keynotes international meet

Dr. Charles R. Vick, director of data processing research for the Army's Ballistic Missile Defense Advanced Technology Center, has been selected to keynote "Euromicro 80," an international conference on computer microtechnology.

Vick's work in developing a testbed capable of hundreds of system configurations for distributed data processing, in part made possible by the revolution in microtechnology, has made the Advanced Technology Center in Huntsville Research Park a leader in the field.

He plans to tell the scientists and engineers at the London conference that lessons learned on the large-mainframe, multi-processor "supercomputers" during the 60's also apply to the distributed microsystems under development today.

In an address entitled "A Next Generation of Supercomputers: From Mainframes to Micros," Vick says that the need to solve "superproblems" has led to the development of continually more sophisticated "supercomputers." In tracing the evolution of data processing systems, he refers to the 60's as the "Age of the Multis" when "super-technologists" increased computer input-output capacity by linking large mainframe units together. In the long run multiprocessing proved costly, unreliable, complex and only limitedly effective.

During the 70's, tremendous breakthroughs in microtechnology and software engineering opened up many new possibilities for handling "superproblems," including the now realistic option of distributed data processing.

Vick defines distributed data processing as a multiplicity of interconnected computers able to cooperate under system-wide control on a single problem and yet have only minimal reliance on centralized procedures, data or hardware. The computers can be located one next to the other or scattered in widely separated locations.

According to Vick, distributed systems still face some of the same problems encountered by the earlier multiprocessors. Means of interconnecting computers, whether micro or mainframe, still limit the effectiveness of a multiple system. Vick contends that "super-technologists" can learn from the past and avoid some of the earlier pitfalls found during the multiprocessor-era in setting up distributed microsystems.

Microtechnology has given the new distributed systems many advantages over their mainframe predecessors. Vick maintains that microminiaturization of computer hardware has given "super-technologists" greater flexibility in designing effective data processing systems. This is important since it allows the engineer to structure the data processing system to fit the problem.

Vick also outlines several other advantages brought about by microtechnology. Since computer hardware is now smaller and considerably less expensive, it is now practical to use redundant units to increase reliability and survivability. A breakdown in one computer module will not cripple the entire system.

The relatively inexpensive, modular microhardware also makes possible a lower initial system cost as well as the option for low-cost growth since more modules can be cheaply added to the system as required. Vick also notes that since tasks are now broken down into smaller chunks, the microcomputers also require less complex software.

For the past ten years, Vick has headed up the Army's data processing effort to devise ways to provide computer support for advanced anti-missile systems to defend the United States against an intercontinental ballistic missile attack. Prior to that he was involved in developing data processing systems for air defense and air traffic control systems. He holds a PhD in electrical engineering from Auburn University.

Vick chaired the first international conference on distributed computing in Huntsville last fall and has lectured at several universities both in the U.S. and abroad.
