Pair rescues companion from swimming pool here

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Two soldiers are credited with rescuing another soldier from drowning in a swimming pool on post.

Pvts. Andy Cannon and Paul Hunt, both of A Company, 832nd Ordnance Battalion, have been recommended for an Army Achievement Medal by their company commander.

"I think it was two heroic acts by two of my soldiers, not thinking that it also could cost not only the life of the soldier but also their own lives," said Capt. Larry Turner, commander of A Company. "And it indicated the type of high-caliber soldier we have in the U.S. Army today."

Cannon, Hunt and another member of their company, Pvt. Roy Grimes, went swimming Sunday afternoon, May 10 at the Vincent Drive recreation area. Many people were there enjoying an afternoon swim. After awhile, the three friends decided to dive into the pool. Cannon and Hunt had taken their turn on the diving board and were already out of the water when Grimes dived in.

"I hit the water too hard," Grimes said. "When I come back up, I couldn't breathe and I panicked. And I kept bobbing up and down in the water. I saw Cannon and Hunt. I started waving my hand. They thought I was kidding with them. I started waving my hand more and that's when they jumped in."

"I didn't know what to do because it was the first time I'd been in that predicament and it was scary, very scary," Grimes added. "I went down four times."

Cannon was standing by the diving board, talking, when Grimes entered the water. He turned around to look when he heard Grimes. Hunt saw Grimes jump off the diving board and wave his hands. When asked if he could swim, Grimes shook his head; then his friends knew he was in trouble. They got there before the lifeguard did.

"I swam to him, grabbed ahold to him, and Hunt was there," Cannon said. "He (Hunt) grabbed the other side."

They retrieved him from the 12 feet of water in the deep end of the pool and pulled him over to the ladder. Others had walked over to the side of the pool to see if FRIENDS— From left are Grimes and the two soldiers credited with saving his life, Cannon and Hunt.

Grimes was all right; some grabbed his arm and helped pull him out.

Cannon, 19, of Texarkana, Texas, has known Grimes since basic training in February at Fort McClellan, Ala. "I'd do that for anybody," he said, referring to the rescue. "If I'd see anybody in that predicament, I'd do the exact same thing."

Hunt, 20, of Marion, Ohio, agreed. "I feel very much the same way," he said. "I'd do it for anybody, whether friend or foe or whatever."

"If they were in trouble, I'd try to help out as many people as I can because this world would be a mess if we didn't help each other," Hunt added.

Grimes never expected what happened, was frightened by it, and learned that "if you can't swim well, stay where you can handle it." The 20-year-old soldier is from Nicholasville, Ky., about 13 miles south of Lexington.

"I feel I owe them a whole lot, more than I can ever pay back. I know that much," Grimes said.

New gate construction may cause delays, congestion

BY PAM ROGERS

Motorists who normally use Gate 8 to enter or depart Redstone may want to think of an alternate route, or get ready for congested traffic for the next few months.

Construction of a new guard house at Redstone's Gate 8 is slated to begin June 1, and while building is underway, traffic will be restricted to one lane in and one lane out of the gate, according to the Provost Marshal Division.

Primary gate

The gate, situated west of the intersection of Drake Avenue and Patton Road, is considered a primary gate for traffic entering and leaving the arsenal, according to Robert Clancy, chief of the Civilian Law Enforcement Section.

"Gate 8 is old and too small for what we need now. Over the past five years it's been struck twice. Once it was knocked 18 inches off the foundation. It took eight months to get it fixed, and about two weeks later, a four-wheel drive hit it from the other side, and knocked it off," he said.

To stay open

The new guard house will be larger, constructed mostly of glass, and will include a restroom and a water fountain.

The gate will remain open during construction mainly for the convenience of people who live in the arsenal housing area, according to 1st Lt. Walter Lynch, chief of the Law Enforcement Branch.

People who have other destinations are encouraged to use a different gate. Large vehicles (over 10 wheels) will be required to use different gates, Lynch said.

During the course of construction, traffic will be routed first to one side of the new building, then to the other. Efforts will be made to give plenty of information to motorists so traffic will flow.

"We're coordinating with the highway department and the mayor's office to make sure things go as smoothly as possible," Lynch said.

Congestion

The construction probably will affect traffic patterns at other intersections, according to SFC Steven Shaver, chief of the Police Operations Section.

"We're talking about Jordan Lane and Drake Avenue—a lot of congestion," Shaver said. "You may see a different volume of traffic at other intersections because people will be going to different gates."

Softball league

Editor:

The softball teams of the Civilian Welfare League are divided in two groups of teams: office teams (made up of people from an organization just out to have fun) and teams made up of good players from anywhere on the arsenal. I see advantages to being a member of either type of team, but choose to play on an office team. The problem lies in one or two teams whose objectives revolve around getting their names in the Rocket rather than having an interesting or fun league. The teams I am talking about are easy to pick out because they are the ones whose scores are 44-3 and 36-0.

These are the teams most people dislike because while they are winning by 30 runs, they are still taking extra bases and sliding into third. These are also the teams that the winning coach prepares a write-up on the doubles, triples and home runs their players have to give to the Rocket. No mention is made about the fact they are playing in a league made up of teams that are playing only for recreation and not for state titles.

I respectfully request that the Rocket discontinue the practice of reporting on the scores and play of the league. After all, the reports are prepared entirely by the coach of the winning team, and therefore represent a very one-sided opinion. If the records of each team were all that was recorded, I believe the Rocket would be allowing the league to become more of the recreational league it was intended to be.

Smoking areas

Editor:

I have found another occasion to say no to yes men (or women). I feel it should be publicly done. On July 18, 1986, MICOM Policy No. 1-15 (Subject: Policy on Controlling Smoking) was distributed. The yes men ran out and posted SMI Forms 1302, (No Smoking—Except in Specifically Designated Areas), and reported back to their bosses, "Yes Sir/Ma'am! We are following the new Policy on Controlling Smoking! Yes we are!"

But wait. Are we? Paragraph 1 states in part (Policy paragraph), "except in designated smoking areas that are necessary to avoid undue inconvenience to persons who desire to smoke." Discussion paragraph 'b'

Responsibilities says, "except in specified areas and for clearly identifying areas therein which have been designated for smoking." Finally, Paragraph C Guidelines, "Smoking will be permitted only in specifically designated areas which have been identified by management as sufficiently isolated to protect non-smokers from the effects of passive smoking."

It seems that the appropriate people ran around posting signs but forgot to designate general smoking areas (or smoking courts as I called them in high school) here in building 5400. I am one smoker in one office of eight people. Don't tell me to go to an adjacent "smoking" office. I don't know those occupants, they don't know me. I have found one such area here in another wing, on another floor.

I left the military because it was full of YES men (and women). I see they are still here. Well, to you I say No. No, you did not enact MICOM Policy No. 1-15. You tried to, but you couldn't finish the job. Maybe you were in too much of a hurry to post signs and tell the boss "Yes!"

Union support

Editor:

There was an article critical of an official of Local 1858 in the Rocket a few issues back. Permit me to say a few words in support of our Local. First, I don't know all the particulars of the incident which generated the criticism. However, all unit employees are entitled by law to union representation independent of union affiliation.

Our Union provides important services for all bargaining unit employees. One of these services is assisting in cases where employees have grievances against management. Often grievances cannot be settled locally to the employees' satisfaction. The Union, in certain cases, can refer them to binding arbitration by sources outside Army channels. In this context, Ms. Vicki Fuller, of the Union's Labor Relations Department, has done an outstanding job. She has achieved arbitration rulings favorable to employees in 70 percent of recent cases. Remember, this means management has been denying justice to their employees whose grievances go to arbitration at this appalling rate.

Justice would obviously be better served if all lost grievances of substance could be referred to arbitration. Unfortunately, our Local does not have sufficient resources to do this. Arbitration is expensive for the Local. Management does not have to be concerned as they have virtually unlimited funds through their access to the public treasury. Therefore, they suffer no significant monetary loss when they make unjust decisions on grievances.

Perhaps if more employees would support the Local through attending business meetings, learning of the good the Local does, and paying dues, we could make our area of government service better for all. Until then all employees should be thankful for those dedicated Union members who through their concern and generosity continue to strive for justice in the workplace.

New England had only one delegate at start of Constitutional Convention

When Americans think of the events that brought independence from England, they immediately picture incidents taking place in New England—the Boston Tea Party, the Boston Massacre, Paul Revere's Ride, Lexington and Concord, Bunker Hill.

It is logical to assume, therefore, that New England also took the lead when it came time to write a Constitution for the new United States of America. Such, however, was not the case.

The 13 former colonies—now states—were not all that united in the years immediately following independence. They were bound loosely to each other by the Articles of Confederation, which read more like a trade agreement among nations than a unifying document of neighbors.

When the Constitutional Convention finally opened in May 1787, in Philadelphia, only seven of the 13 states were represented, even though all had been asked to send delegates. (In fact, Rhode Island would send no delegates at all.) Three New England states—

Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Connecticut—were represented by just one man, Rufus King of Massachusetts.

Even after the Convention met for the first time, and had chosen George Washington of Virginia as presiding officer, King alone was present from New England. He quickly dispatched a note (or as quickly as travel conditions of the time would permit) to Jeremiah Wadsworth—a good friend in Connecticut—saying the situation was quite embarrassing and urging other New England delegates to hasten to Philadelphia.

Eventually others would arrive from New England and elsewhere. But for the time being, the chagrined King was the only delegate from the "Cradle of Democracy."

Emergency relief campaign extended

The Army Emergency Relief fund-raising campaign at Redstone has been extended to June 24.

"The campaign dates have been extended in order to give everyone an opportunity to participate," said Juanita Adams, the AER officer here. "Some organizations got contacted late in the campaign and they haven't really had the opportunity to contact all the members of their organization." Redstone's annual campaign began April 10 with a $40,000 goal.

Army Emergency Relief makes interest-free loans and outright grants to Army personnel and family members, both active duty and retired. AER is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to help the Army family meet emergency financial needs.

Redstone's AER office recently received a letter from a soldier formerly stationed here. He got a loan at Redstone last October.

"The enclosed money order should be the amount of the remainder of the payments of the AER loan I received at the beginning of October," the letter states. "I would like to express my thanks to you for helping me during my time of need. I really do appreciate the fact that the AER representatives were so professional and willing to give a helping hand. Thanks to you again for being so kind and understanding."

The letter has been framed for display in Adams' office with the following heading added in red and gray: "AER service to the soldier."

For more information about Army Emergency Relief and the fund-raising campaign, call 876-5468. The office is located at building 3491 on Honest John Road.

Armed Forces Celebration activities continue

The third annual Huntsville-Madison County Armed Forces Celebration continues with a variety of events through Sunday, May 31.

This celebration includes a display at the Von Braun Civic Center of the latest in military missile systems and technology. Military hardware on display through Thursday was slated to include the Pershing II missile and the Bradley Fighting Vehicle.

Courtesy of the Association of the United States Army, free tickets are available to the Huntsville Stars' baseball game Thursday night against the Knoxville Blue Jays. The pre-game show will feature Miss Alabama, Angela Callahan; junior ROTC drill teams; and the 389th Army Band from Fort Monmouth, N.J.

Free tickets for the game can be picked up at the Chamber of Commerce, Colonial Bank branches, the Executive Lodge hotel, both Holiday Inns, the Huntsville Hilton and Towers, Lang's Sporting Goods, the Regis Inn, the Sheraton Inn, and the Skycenter Hotel at the Huntsville-Madison County Jetport.

A retreat/retirement parade is set for 4 p.m. Friday at the Redstone parade field. On Friday night at 8, Britt Small and Festival will present a patriotic show featuring Miss Alabama and the 389th Army Band at the Von Braun Civic Center. Tickets for the show are $10 for adults and $5 for senior citizens, students and active duty military.

More than 2,000 people are expected to turn out for the Armed Forces Celebration Volksmarch Saturday morning. You can start anytime between 7:30 a.m. and noon, and can choose either a 10- or 20-kilometer route through historic areas in downtown Huntsville. Participants who pay the entry fee will receive a medal commemorating the bicentennial of the Constitution.

The "people's walk" will feature German food at the Chamber of Commerce building. The route will include the Twickenham and Old Town historic districts, Big Spring Park, Constitution Hall Park and the Huntsville Depot Museum. Pre-registration runs through Thursday and costs $3. Late registration costs $4.

The 389th Army Band will give free performances at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Chamber of Commerce Building, 5:30-7 p.m. Saturday at Big Spring Park, and 2 p.m. Sunday at Madison Square Mall.

Civil War buffs can relive their favorite era by visiting the War Between the States Living History Camp at the Huntsville Depot Museum. The camp will be open Saturday and Sunday. Re-enactments of the Union capture of Huntsville Depot will be presented both days.

A picnic in Big Spring Park just before the 389th Army Band Concert will round out the downtown activities on Saturday. Tickets for the picnic cost $3 and are available at the Chamber of Commerce.

Vietnam Veterans of America College Scholarship Awards Ceremony is set for 5:30 p.m. Saturday at Big Spring Park.

The Armed Forces Celebration continues on Sunday at the Bicentennial Chapel. The 10:45 a.m. worship service will include a special Armed Forces choral group; also, the 19th Alabama Infantry Regiment of Civil War Re-enactors is to participate in the worship service. Chaplain (Col.) Billy Whiteside said the expected attendees include the 4-year-old son of Earl Patton Ryals, a Navy signalman-seaman who is among those presumed dead following a missile strike on the USS Stark in the Persian Gulf. "I anticipate the son and the son's mother being in church Sunday," Whiteside said.

Sunday night at 7, Bicentennial Chapel will be the site of a free concert by the Huntsville Community Chorus directed by Kenneth Turvey.

Army birthday to be celebrated with military ball

The entire Redstone community has been invited to take part in a very special birthday party next month.

The Army's 212th birthday will be celebrated here June 12 with a military ball at the NCO Club. Plans have been underway since April, according to 1st Sgt. James Good, publicity chairman.

The birthday ball was canceled in the past two years because of conflicts with the Huntsville community, Good said.

"Huntsville and the arsenal are a combined community. In previous years, we thought there was more going on than the ball could handle, but this year there's been a lot of enthusiasm, and it's a chance to wear those dresses and uniforms that have been hanging in the closet for a couple of years," Good said.

Active duty and retired members of all branches of the armed forces, national guard and reserve members, and Department of Defense civilians are invited to the ball. Family members and guests of these groups are also invited.

One feature of the ball will be a Twilight Tattoo, based on Scottish custom, during which battle streamers are reattached to the Army flag. Participants in the candlelight ceremony will represent components of Redstone, and will include the oldest and youngest soldiers on post.

Music for the ball will be provided by the 313th Army Reserve Band from Birmingham.

Tickets to the celebration are $12 each, and include a souvenir glass. The menu for the seated dinner will include roast beef with baked potato or rice pilaf, green beans, corn, tossed salad, coffee or tea, and cake.

Shuttle buses will run between the post exchange parking lot and the NCO Club and between the troop barracks and the club. Taxi service to anywhere in Huntsville will be available at a reduced rate after the ball, Good said.

Dress for the ball for military has been relaxed somewhat to allow more young soldiers to attend. The military uniform is either dress blue or white, or Army green with white shirt and bow tie. Civilians should wear comparable attire.

The ball should be meaningful, especially for young soldiers and civilians who have limited experience with military customs.

"It's an observance of the day our Army came into being. It should be memorable...it's something the peacetime Army can take pride in being a part of," Good said.

He expects an enjoyable event, pointing out that planning was very detailed, with committees working on food, entertainment, publicity, ceremonies, transportation, security and traffic, guest speaker and color guard, toastmaster, and seating order.

There will be a seating capacity of 600 for the ball, and the last day of ticket sales is June 5. Tickets are available from sergeants major, first sergeants, and Birthday Ball ticket representatives.

For more information call 876-1049/6546.

Contracts worker honored by NCMA

James Reynolds, a contracts worker at the Huntsville Division, Army Corps of Engineers, has been honored for his contributions to the field of contract management.

The board of directors of the National Contract Management Association voted to elevate Reynolds to the class of Fellow, a designation bestowed on those who have made significant and outstanding contributions to contract management.

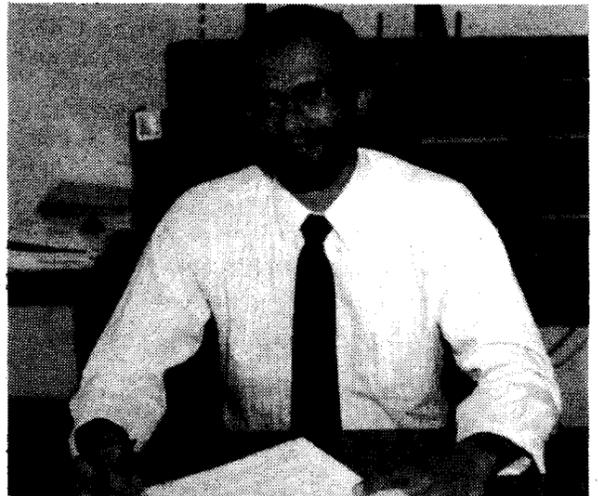

Reynolds is deputy chief of the contracts division at the Corps of Engineers. He is past president of the Huntsville Chapter of NCMA and has been active in promoting interest in the organization in the surrounding areas.

He entered the procurement field with the Missile Command at Redstone Arsenal through its local "Roads" procurement training program in December 1966. Reynolds has a bachelor's degree in mathematics from Talladega College, a master's in business administration from Alabama A&M University, and a master's in contract and acquisition management from the Florida Institute of Technology.

The Florence, Ala., native taught junior high math in his hometown before entering government service.

He is the son of Welton and Evelyn Reynolds of Florence.

He and his wife Dianne have a son, Rodney, 16. Dianne is a kindergarten teacher at the Blossomwood Elementary School in Huntsville.

Redstone drill sergeant competes for Army title

BY JEFF WATSON

A search for new challenges has resulted in one Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School soldier being recognized as one of the best in his newly-chosen field.

SSgt. Howard Nichols of Company B, 832nd Ordnance Battalion, was selected to represent Redstone Arsenal in the U.S. Army's Drill Sergeant of the Year competition held recently at Fort Monroe, Va.

During the five-day contest 14 active duty and 14 reserve component drill sergeants competed to determine who were the best within their respective components.

The winners of the competition were decided by how well they scored in three different areas of soldiering which included: the standard Army physical training test—two minutes of situps and pushups followed by a two-mile run; and the performance test, in which the drill sergeants had to teach and perform several given tasks. Finally, the drill sergeants faced the selection board, where they were questioned about their duties.

"It is a very fair and demanding competition," said Nichols, the first drill sergeant ever to represent the arsenal in the competition.

"Proper teaching techniques and task execution are really emphasized. It was quite an experience, and I would definitely like to do it again."

Enlisted at 19

The 32-year-old Waco, Texas native joined the Army when he was 19 in order to save some money to return to school. After his first enlistment, he compared the job opportunities available in the civilian and military job markets and decided to stay in the Army. Prior to graduating from the drill sergeant school at Fort Sill, Okla., in May 1986, Nichols served as a Vulcan squad leader.

"I basically got tired of the routine of a vulcan squad leader," he said. "I wanted a change with more challenge, and I also wanted the opportunity to help new soldiers."

Nichols heard a lot of stories about drill sergeant school, and didn't know what to expect, he said. There was a lot of pressure and stress, but at the end of 11 weeks, he was an honor graduate and was soon on his way to his first assignment.

Long hours and drill sergeants are synonymous. Nichols' day begins before 5 a.m. and does not normally end until after 5 p.m.—a minimum of 12 hours. According to Nichols, though, that's what he and other drill sergeants are there for—to help soldiers and keep morale up.

"In drill sergeant school I thought the hardest thing to do was to keep my military bearing while under stress," Nichols said. "But in actuality, it is keeping the motivation and morale going that you had when you first started."

Nichols is the drill sergeant for the 2nd Platoon. The soldiers assigned to the platoon are there for 17 to 19 weeks. Like all student units, the platoon is constantly losing soldiers to graduation, while at the same time receiving new soldiers ready to start school.

New soldiers coming in are usually not aware of the unit's past accomplishments—they know only what is now, according to Nichols. For this reason, he feels it is extremely important to maintain the high motivation and morale that has been established.

The rewards of accepting challenges and staying motivated are many. Nichols says that being selected Post NCO of the Quarter in October and representing the post in the Drill Sergeant of the Year competition are high honors, but not the most important.

The most important rewards, he said, are the little things. Things like soldiers who have graduated writing to thank him for things he has done for them, or when recently, his platoon presented him with a plaque naming him the Best Drill Sergeant, even though he didn't win the formal competition.

Drill sergeants 'still have that tough image to maintain'

BY PAM ROGERS

The sight of drill sergeants at Redstone may still be something of a novelty for people who don't see them very often, but they've been here almost a year now, trying to make sure OMMCS students keep the military bearing they learned in basic training.

SSgt. Howard Nichols is one of those drill sergeants who came here last summer, fresh out of drill sergeant school himself. He was an honor graduate who hasn't stopped setting goals or gaining recognition.

He was Post NCO of the Quarter for the first quarter of this year, and was selected to represent Redstone at the Army's Drill Sergeant of the Year competition last month.

Nichols tries to set examples of good soldiering for the members of his platoon to follow.

Gone is the picture of the ruthless drill sergeant who makes his point by screaming in soldiers' faces and becoming even more forceful when he deems it necessary. Being a drill sergeant these days takes more than a snarl and powerful lungs, according to Nichols.

"It takes patience, and an understanding of different personalities. The image has changed, but we still have that tough image to maintain—as far as being ruthless, that's no more," he said.

Nichols believes the new image drill sergeants strive to achieve works better, for the most part, with today's soldiers. There are always some, though, who don't respond to it, he said.

"Sometimes when you're dealing with different personalities and lifestyles, you need that toughness to get the attention of certain soldiers."

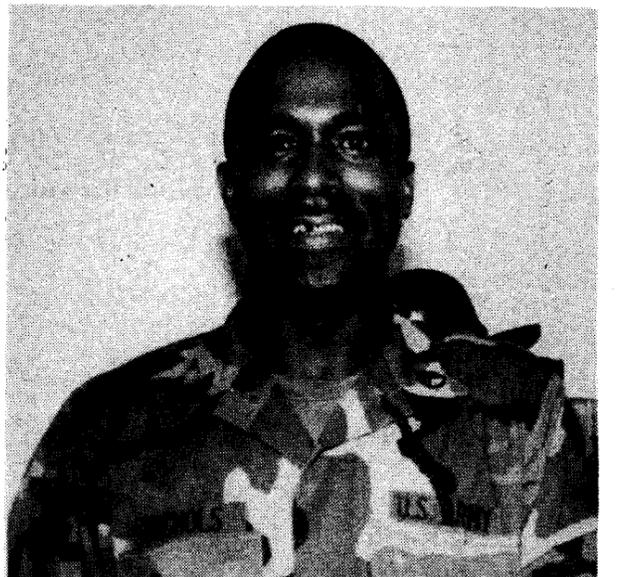

It's Nichols' job to make sure soldiers in his platoon retain the military bearing and discipline they were taught in basic training.

"Because of the longevity of the schools, without us here, they would lose that," he said.

Having drill sergeants at OMMCS is working, according to Nichols.

"We've gotten response from other commands that they can definitely see a difference in the soldiers they were getting from here before, and the ones they get now," he said.

Montana men face charges for missile contracts

A federal grand jury in Montana has indicted four businessmen for allegedly attempting to defraud the Defense Department in connection with Army Missile Command contracts.

The case includes alleged fraudulent substitution of parts on 22 MICOM contracts for the Tow missile system, according to Cheryl Lyle, procurement fraud advisor in the MICOM legal office.

A 20-count indictment was returned in Great Falls, Mont., charging the following men with defrauding the Department of Defense: James R. Jubb, former president and owner of Spectrum Enterprises, Polson, Mont.; James R. Jubb Jr., the firm's former director of purchasing; Larry D. Piper, the company's production manager; and Lloyd Pendergraft, the controller.

The indictment alleged that the Jubbs and Piper entered into a conspiracy to defraud the Defense Department by the delivery of non-conforming, defective, and substandard parts for use in the F-101 and F-106 jet fighters, Hawk missile system, Chaparral missile system, Tow missile system, military helicopters, and various radio communications systems used in the Army's main battle tank. The parts Spectrum Enterprises was producing for these systems include electronic circuit boards, regulators, battery packs and missile control boxes.

The indictment further alleged that the Jubbs, Piper and Pendergraft did willfully and knowingly submit false writings and documents containing materially false, fictitious, and fraudulent statements to the Department of Defense. This fraud resulted in a loss to the DOD of $3,661,505.

Charges include the following:

- James R. Jubb was charged with one count of conspiracy, two counts of making false, fictitious, or fraudulent claims, and 17 counts of making false statements.

- James R. Jubb Jr. was charged with one count of conspiracy and one count of making a false statement.

- Larry D. Piper was charged with one count of conspiracy and one count of making a false statement.

- Lloyd Pendergraft was charged with two counts of making false statements.

If convicted Jubb could be subject to a $200,000 fine and 100 years imprisonment; Jubb Jr., to a $20,000 fine and 10 years imprisonment; Piper, to a $20,000 fine and 10 years imprisonment; and Pendergraft to a $20,000 fine and 10 years imprisonment, for all counts.

"Trial date is set for June 15 in Montana," Lyle said. "Shermon Roberts from (MICOM's) Product Assurance Directorate is going to be an expert witness at the trial."

A two-year investigation, which was initiated by a call to the Defense Department Hotline, was conducted by the Defense Criminal Investigative Service (the investigative arm of the Department of Defense inspector general), the Seattle Resident Agency of the San Francisco Field Office, with assistance from the Air Force Office of Special Investigations, Malmstrom Air Force Base, Great Falls, Mont. The case is being prosecuted by Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Zimmerman of the Office of the U.S. Attorney, District of Montana, Billings, Mont.

Government employment eligibility expands

It may be easier now for former overseas employees to get government jobs in the U.S.

A new Executive Order revises the eligibility criteria for noncompetitive appointments and will allow more family members to qualify for employment when they return to the United States.

The civilian personnel office here provides the following specifics of the order that became effective April 30:

- It reduces the amount of overseas employment needed to qualify for noncompetitive appointments from 24 months to 18 months

- It increases the period during which the family members can be hired after returning to the U.S. from two years to three years

- And it makes family members of nonappropriated fund employees who have worked overseas eligible for stateside employment on the same basis as family members of civilian employees and military personnel.

Family members who feel they now qualify based on the new criteria should report to the receptionist, civilian personnel office, building 7442 southend, to determine their noncompetitive employment eligibility. The phone number is 876-7510.

Troop medical clinic provides many services

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Early every weekday morning, from 6 to 7 servicemembers sign in for sick call.

They do this at the Troop Medical Clinic, a facility conveniently located in the troop area. The clinic provides outpatient health care for active duty servicemembers unless they are members of the family practice clinic at Fox Army Community Hospital.

"A lot of people think that all the TMC does is just sick call, but we provide immunizations, we provide physicals," said CWO 3 Daniel Brannen, physician assistant at the troop medical clinic. "We provide multiple services in a single building."

Services of the troop medical clinic include sick call, physicals, immunizations, and maintaining the health records of active duty servicemembers. Located at building 3493, the facility is open from 6:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

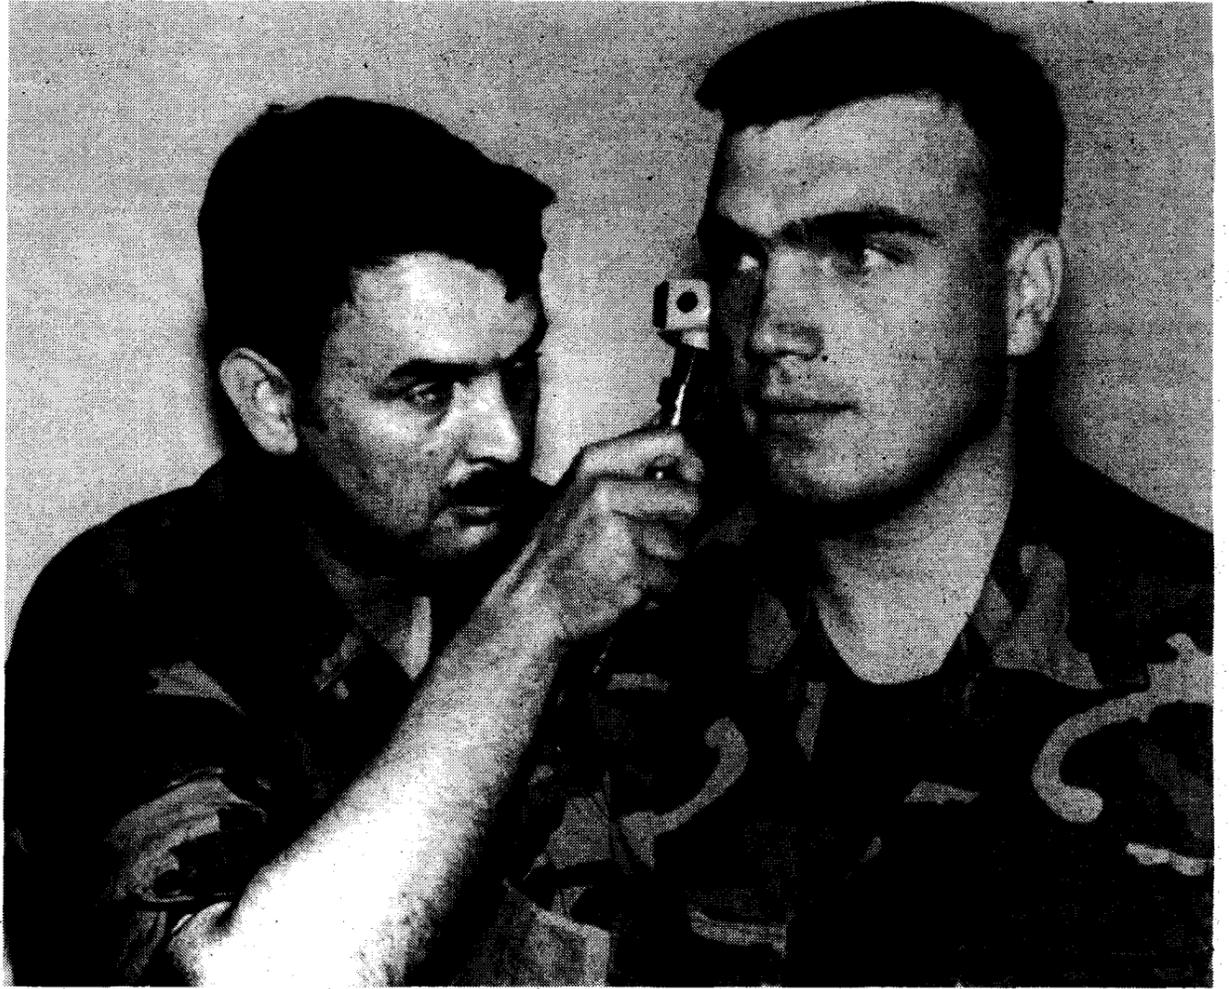

Sign-in for sick call is scheduled as follows: 6:30-7 a.m., for students; 7:30-8, permanent party; and 8:30-9, aviation personnel. "Sick call is at given times to better facilitate providing prompt service to active duty members," Brannen said.

These half-hour periods in the mornings are just for servicemembers to report for health care; normally their visit takes longer than 30 minutes, according to SSgt. Thomasina Watford, the clinic's noncommissioned officer in charge. "If we did not have specified hours and people could walk in at any time, we'd have a big problem. We do the best we can with what we have," she said.

The troop medical clinic does about eight physical exams a day. The preliminary blood work is done on Mondays-only at 12:30 p.m. And the physicals are done Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 12:45 until completion.

Shots are administered for servicemembers headed overseas. Each month about 40 to 50 individuals are immunized against such maladies as tetanus, typhoid, yellow fever, small pox, plague, and polio. Immunizations are provided from 1-3 p.m. Tuesday through Friday.

The clinic pharmacy is open from 7-11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday for active duty only. "We also have a laboratory that operates from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily Monday through Friday," Brannen said. As a free service, the lab provides premarital blood tests for servicemembers and their fiances.

"The troop clinic is located in close proximity to soldiers to provide easier access to health care for servicemembers," Brannen said. "That's why we're here— to make it easier for the soldier to receive health care closer to his workplace or location of barracks."

Most of the soldiers on student status do not have their own vehicle so they would have a difficult time getting to a medical care facility located elsewhere, said Watford. "I think the main thing we're trying to do is provide adequate medical care for the soldier," she said.

Program available to help exceptional family members

BY PAM ROGERS

Soldiers and Army civilian workers who have family members with special educational, medical, physical or emotional disorders have a good place to go when they need help with their unique problems, thanks to the Army Community Service Exceptional Family Member Program.

Services have been expanded in the past year, according to Sharon Messer, a family service specialist in charge of the program.

"We have developed a comprehensive listing of handicap services and provide an information and referral service for the handicapped family member. We also provide support, guidance and counseling for military families with exceptional family members," Messer stated.

Eligible family members include children, spouses and dependent parents who are mentally retarded, speech or language impaired, emotionally disabled, learning disabled, hearing or vision impaired, or who have other medical problems in need of special treatment.

Objectives

The objectives of the EFM Program include ensuring that all eligible family members receive information and assistance necessary to involve them with appropriate community support services, providing medical services to the handicapped family member outside the continental United States with the same priority given to active duty soldiers, and assigning soldiers to areas where special needs of exceptional family members can be met whenever possible. To accomplish the last objective, special needs are coded and forwarded to the Department of the Army for use in the assignment process.

Messer acts as an advocate for the handicapped military family member, conducting site visits and advising agencies of the military community's special needs.

How system works

She's pleased with the progress she's made with local service agencies and educational institutions, and outlined an example of how the system works.

"A concerned unit commander called from Europe. He had a servicemember on orders to Redstone who had a multiple-handicapped child. I was able to be a point of contact for the family when they arrived on post, and I knew the school, and the principal, where the child would be enrolled. I was able not only to direct the family to the proper school, but added the personal touch of introducing them to the principal, and gave them a parental reference—parents who had a child in the school. I was also able to give them names of local and national support groups," Messer said.

She believes her role as advocate for families with special needs enables those families to settle into life at Redstone much more easily and quickly.

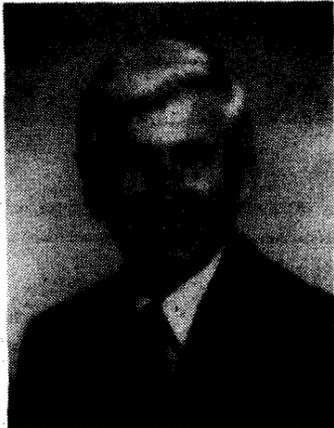

"Military families with handicapped family members, since they move frequently, need support. It saves them time, effort and emotional energy," she said.

For more information about the program, call Messer at 876-0446/5397.

Redstone girls get scout honors

Two Redstone Arsenal girls were among 16 girls in North Alabama honored for being top sellers in the 1987 Girl Scout cookie sale.

Laura Arnold and Shanika Singletary have earned membership in the Cookie Brigade by selling more than 400 boxes of cookies during the sale, according to Ellen Robinson, cookie sale coordinator for the Girl Scouts of North Alabama, Inc.

"We commend each of these girls for their achievements," Robinson said. "Through their success at cookie selling, they have learned communication skills, teamwork, self-discipline, time management and financial responsibility."

Each girl received a trophy and certificate from the North Alabama Girl Scout council.

Laura is the daughter of Col. Robert and Darlene Arnold. She is a second-grader at Morris School and is a member of Brownie Troop 51, led by Laura Charon.

Shanika is the daughter of Capt. Willie and Erma Singletary. A second-grader at Morris School, she is a member of Brownie Troop 537, led by Lisa Bragg.

Health program names deputy director

Carl Akins, a former Washington, D.C., hospital administrator and federal government health care consultant, has assumed duties as deputy director of the Defense Department's CHAMPUS program.

CHAMPUS is the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services.

Akins, 45, succeeds Army Col. Jimmy D. Helton, who was recently named director of CHAMPUS.

"I look forward to continuing the policies and program of CHAMPUS, under the direction of Dr. William Mayer, the assistant secretary of defense for health affairs, and Col. Helton," Akins said. "With the assistance of the dedicated CHAMPUS staff, I'm certain that improvements in health care for CHAMPUS beneficiaries will continue."

The new deputy director was most recently the associate superintendent for administration at St.

Elizabeth's Hospital, in Washington, D.C. He also served as a special consultant to the assistant secretary of defense for health affairs, and previously held consulting and advisory positions at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Akins has also been executive director of the National Hospice Organization and the National Association of State Alcohol and Drug Abuse Directors.

A native of Texas, Akins is a graduate of Harvard University and the University of Texas.

He has authored and co-authored numerous professional publications on alcohol and drug abuse, and holds membership in the American Public Health Association, the Alcohol and Drug Problems Association, the Policy Studies Organization, and the Southern Political Science Association.

Nichols

Nichols is drill sergeant for the 2nd Platoon in C Company of the 832 Ordnance Battalion. His is the only platoon with female soldiers, he said.

Nichols became a drill sergeant because he felt he'd done everything he could in his former assignment as a Vulcan squad leader, and he's discovered he likes being a drill sergeant.

"You are more or less your own boss, even though you have a senior drill sergeant and a first sergeant. You have total command of the platoon," he said.

Nichols' long-range goal for his military career is to make sergeant major.

"But education is a big thing. Being in combat arms, it's hard to go to school because of all the field time," he said. He plans to attend college when he finishes his tour as a drill sergeant.

His wife, Diane, had to get used to the long hours that are a part of Nichols' job.

"She's beginning to accept the hours and the total commitment—sometimes I get calls in the middle of the night. She's getting used to that." Nichols is encouraging his son, Patrick, 14, to complete his college education before entering the Army.

Nichols is rewarded for his efforts when he sees the products of his training.

"I feel like I've done a good job when it comes time to graduate, and I see soldiers walking across the stage—when they're proud and they're wearing the uniform correctly—and then they come back and say, 'thanks, Sarge, for helping me.'"

SDI-related test intercepts missile

The Army Strategic Defense Command has successfully tested its Flexible Lightweight Agile Guided Experiment (FLAGE) missile against a U.S. tactical missile as part of the Strategic Defense Initiative program.

The test which took place on May 21 at White Sands Missile Range, N.M., verified the FLAGE's guidance and control accuracy required for the intercept and destruction of tactical ballistic missile targets within the atmosphere.

The test flight was the first of three in a series known as the FLAGE Follow-on effort. The target, a U.S. Army Lance, a short-range, surface-to-surface missile, was fired toward the test area from about 32 miles away.

The 12-foot long FLAGE vehicle was launched 100 seconds after the Lance. The FLAGE's improved millimeter-wave radar locked onto the target, and the on-board computer fired some of the 216 shotgun shell-sized rocket motors in a collar behind the radar to move the speeding vehicle's nose in the correct direction. FLAGE intercepted the Lance at an altitude of 12,000 feet and both were destroyed.

The first series of six FLAGE flights, completed last year, successfully confirmed that FLAGE's guidance and control concepts could provide the accuracy needed for direct impact on targets specially constructed to have a simple radar signature. The FLAGE Follow-on refocused the project to resolve critical technology issues associated with tactical ballistic missile targets, which have more complex radar signatures, making direct-impact hits much more difficult.

A second FLAGE Follow-on mission is scheduled before the end of the fiscal year, and a determination regarding a possible third mission will depend on the outcome of the first two missions.

This experiment was fully consistent with the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty of 1972.

Retired colonel indicted

FALLS CHURCH, Va.—A federal grand jury in Norfolk had indicted a retired Army colonel and two family members on 99 counts of submitting fraudulent travel claims and other, related charges.

Retired Col. Arlie L. Gunter, his wife Betty J. and son Jeffrey L., all of Gunterville, Ala., are accused of submitting more than $150,000 in false travel claims to the government, according to Theodore S. Greenberg, acting deputy chief of the Justice Department's Fraud Section.

The events covered in the indictment occurred while the senior Gunter was assigned to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Research, Development and Acquisition in the Pentagon. Gunter retired from the Army in August 1984.

The grand jury indictment is the result of an 18-month investigation by the Army's Criminal Investigation Command.

Phone use rules eased for government travelers

Under certain circumstances, federal employees traveling on government business soon may be able to call their families at government expense.

Under a revised telephone-use policy proposed recently by the General Services Administration, the agency responsible for the government's telephones, military and civilian employees will be able to make reasonable long-distance and local calls. At the same time, they can face disciplinary action if they abuse the system.

Calls considered illegal in the past that may be allowed under the new regulation include brief daily calls to immediate families by employees traveling overnight on government business, and to locations within the local commuting area to check on minor children or to talk to the employee's spouse.

Also allowed are calls to:

- Physicians and government agencies within the local commuting area;
- A family member or a doctor to report that an employee has been injured or became ill on the job;
- A family member or baby sitter to say that the employee will have to work overtime; and
- A family member by an employee traveling on government business who has been detained by work or delay in transportation.

Other personal, long-distance calls may be made over the commercial network if they are charged to the employee's home telephone number or other non-government number, the called party or a personal telephone credit card or made to an 800 toll-free number.

The proposed regulation states that agencies should collect from employees for unauthorized calls and should charge an additional fee to cover administrative costs incurred in determining that the call was unauthorized and in processing the collection. It also states that agencies should consider disciplinary action where appropriate.

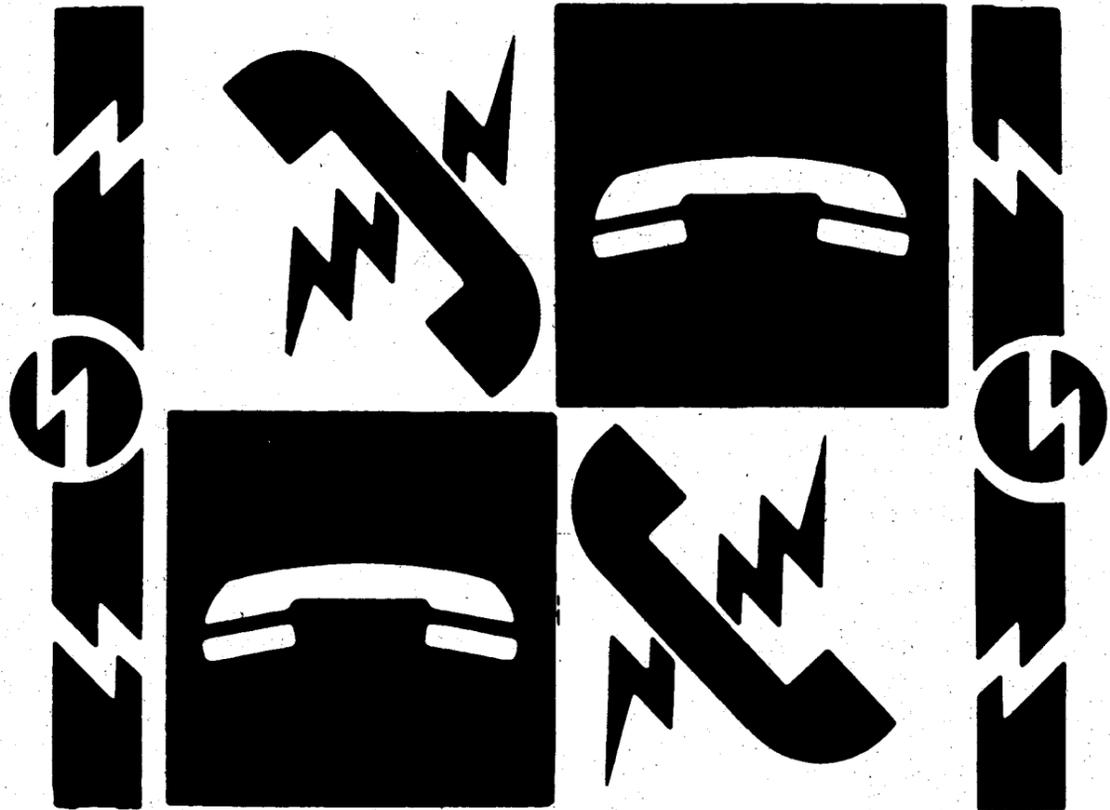

A U.S. attorney who has prosecuted telephoneabuse cases said the changes are a positive step in controlling the misuse of federal telephone systems. "It will be easier to prosecute the real abusers, if necessary, without worrying about defense claims of unfairness," he said.

An audit conducted by inspectors general at 17 federal agencies in 1985 and 1986 showed that a minimum of 22 percent of calls made in the Washington area on the Federal Telecommunications System were unofficial.

The survey also revealed that the government's biggest telephone user, the Department of Defense, was the source of unofficial calls costing more than $19 million in fiscal 1985.

SDC team wins big

The Strategic Defense Command should be proud of its SDC softball team.

Through six games, the team had outscored its opponents by a total of 128 to 24. SDC clobbered Mofeits 30-4 and whipped last year's champs, Madison Hill, 18-1. Marvese Tankersly homered in the win over Mofeits.

Paul Kulick homered twice and Walt Spodeck homered once in the victory over Madison Hill. Big plays in the game were made by Glen Meyers, Jim Shockely, Kathy Meyers, Rick Fuller and Roberta Shockely.

Chuck Hobart is coach of the SDC team which he says is the best men's and women's team he has seen in a long time.

Training support office to get new procedures

Effective June 1, the Training Support Office at the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School will no longer be the point of contact for graphic and photographic work orders.

The U.S. Army Information Systems Command here has established new procedures for all OMMCS elements to submit DA form 3903 (Training Audiovisual Work Order) directly to contractors providing services.

In order to have a smooth transition and obtain the required services, DA form 1687 (Notice of delegation of Authority-Request for supplies), must be submitted to the contractor by close of business June 1.

For photographic support, send DA form 1687 to photographic COR, ASNC-MIC-VI-PF, building 4489. For graphic support send to graphic COI ASNC-MIC-OS-VI, building 4489.

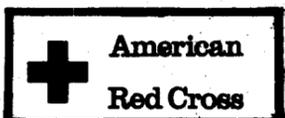

These forms require the signature of the division chief, his or her deputy or division NCOIC.

The Training Support Office will still provide the following audiovisual services: educational television production and reproduction, publication production for OMMCS, devices for training aids and a graph self-help area at building 3325.

For more information, call SFC Ronnie Owens at the Training Support Office 876-1390.

Alcohol can affect unborn babies

BY EVELYN D. HARRIS
American Forces Information Service

If you drink while you're pregnant, you're effectively giving an unborn child a cocktail. Just as the nutritious food you eat crosses the placenta to your unborn child, so does alcohol. Alcohol is in the same concentration in the baby's bloodstream as in the mother's.

Drinking alcoholic beverages to excess during pregnancy can damage the developing fetus in a number of ways. Low birth weight, reduced growth rate, birth defects and mental retardation in the new born may result.

Unfortunately, the experts just don't know what constitutes "excessive" alcohol consumption for a pregnant mother. Individuals vary in the amount of alcohol they can consume without harming their babies, which is why some experts recommend that pregnant women refrain from drinking alcohol.

After studying numerous infants born to mothers who drank heavily during pregnancy, researchers noticed a specific pattern of abnormalities, which they called the "fetal alcohol syndrome." Babies with this syndrome were shorter and lighter than average, and they didn't catch up even after special postnatal care was provided. They had abnormally small heads, several facial irregularities, joint and limb abnormalities, heart defects and poor coordination.

Most were also mentally retarded and showed such behavioral problems as hyperactivity, extreme nervousness and a poor attention span. And for every infant born with fetal alcohol syndrome, there were several born with only some of the features of the syndrome, called "alcohol-related defects."

Studies show that the more alcoholic beverages the mother drinks, the greater the risks to her baby. While high levels of alcohol consumption are necessary to produce all symptoms of fetal alcohol syndrome, alcohol-related birth defects have appeared in babies whose mothers drank smaller amounts.

Since your baby can't say "no" to alcohol unless you do, the best way to ensure a baby free from alcohol-related problems is to not use the stuff when you are pregnant.

Rocket-propelled line charge can clear minefields

FORT BELVOIR, Va.— The 9th Infantry Division recently received the first units of a new rocket-propelled mine clearing, line charge scheduled to be fielded throughout the Army.

The system, called MICLIC, is a joint Army-Marine Corps development adopted for the Army by the Troop Support Command's Belvoir RD&E Center.

It features a Marine Corps launching system and explosive line charge mounted on a standard Army trailer. In operation, a developed rocket propels the line charge across an enemy minefield from a standoff position. Command detonation of the charge causes the mines to detonate forming a vehicle wide path.

The assembled system can be towed by a light forces engineer vehicle, a tank, or an armored personnel carrier, and is designed to clear a path 100 meters long by 8 meters wide. Three new safety improvements will be incorporated in MICLIC during the fielding process: an improved fuze, an arresting cable disconnect and a trailer disconnect.

The Army plans to field about 1,400 systems. Training and Doctrine Command installations in the continental United States will start receiving theirs this summer. Fielding in Europe will begin in the fall.

Helping U.S. allies help themselves

BY DONNA BOLINGER-MILES
American Forces Information Service

A bully keeps picking on the younger kids on your street. You consider confronting the bully yourself, then decide instead to teach the kids to defend themselves so they'll be protected even when you're not around to help them.

That's not unlike how U.S. security assistance programs help friends and allies of the United States defend themselves against aggression.

Each year, the United States sells or lends hundreds of millions of dollars in equipment and services to countries around the world.

During this fiscal year alone, the United States will provide $13.5 billion in security assistance funds to more than 100 countries and regional programs. About 58 percent will be military assistance. The Economic Support Fund accounts for the other 42 percent.

For fiscal 1988, President Ronald Reagan has requested a 6 percent increase in military assistance. Among the requests are:

- Israel—$1.8 billion, the same as in fiscal 1987;
- Egypt—$1.3 billion, the same as in fiscal 1987;
- Turkey—$789 million, an increase of almost $300 million;
- Greece—$436 million, up $92 million from this year;
- Pakistan—$291 million, a $22 million cut;
- Spain—$268 million, a $160 million increase;
- Portugal—$128 million, a $45 million increase;
- El Salvador—$122 million, up $5 million; and
- The Phillipines—$133 million up $60 million.

Though these might seem like big dollars, Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger recently told congress they represent a small investment in helping countries protect their democratic ideals.

The military portion of the U.S. security assistance program takes several forms:

□ foreign military sales credit financing, which provides direct credits to countries, either at prevailing interest rates or a concessional rate, for the purchase of equipment or services from the U.S. government or directly from U.S. contractors;

□ the military assistance program, which provides, on a grant basis, financing for the acquisition of defense articles and services to eligible governments;

□ the foreign military sales program, which sells defense articles, services and training to foreign governments on a direct cash basis or through foreign military sales credits or military assistance program funds; and

□ the international military education and training program, which allows DoD to provide training and training support to foreign military personnel as grant assistance.

In his annual report to Congress, Weinberger said these programs help developing countries become better able to defend themselves. "As countries become better able to assume the burden of their own defense, we (the United States) can concentrate our defense resources in areas of critical security concern," he said.

The programs also give foreign nations the physical and economic security they need to overcome political instability. That, in turn, helps protect them from outside aggression, Weinberger said.

He acknowledged that security assistance is not a panacea for addressing all threats to U.S. security. "But when used in conjunction with other instruments of defense and foreign policy, it can be an extremely valuable policy tool," he said.

"We must remember that the United States cannot avoid its global responsibilities nor its own defense needs. Thus, we must bear the cost of security assistance or place our vital national interests at risk."

Chapel events

Protestant Women of the Chapel will have its regular monthly meeting at 9:30 a.m. May 28 at Bicentennial Chapel. Anyone needing child care is reminded to make reservations at the Child Development Center. Armed Forces Day will be celebrated at Bicentennial Chapel on May 31 with two events. The first is the 10:45 a.m. Protestant Service. The 19th Alabama Infantry Regiment of Civil War Re-enactors will participate in the worship service. An Armed Forces chorus directed by Lt. Aaron Zook will sing, and the colors of all 50 states will be posted. Chaplain (Col.) Billy Whiteside's sermon, "Our Ultimate Defense," will deal with the spiritual aspect of defense. All active duty and retired military people are asked to wear their uniforms. The second Armed Forces Day event is a concert at 7 p.m. by the Huntsville Community Chorus directed by Kenneth Turvey; there is no admission charge. The public is invited to both events. The Chaplains' display, "A Proud Heritage—History of the Chaplaincy," is one of the booths at the Von Braun Civic Center May 26-28.

Xenix users

A Xenix Users Group meeting will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday, June 3 at the Madison Square Holiday Inn. The meeting is open to all Redstone Arsenal personnel system administrators and others who use the Xenix operating system. The purpose of the group is to offer support and help in solving problems. Those planning to attend should call Terry Yancey 876-2291 or Jean Usher 876-7524 by 3 p.m. May 29.

Found property

A number of articles of clothing have been found, according to the Investigations Branch. The owner can identify and claim this property by contacting the Investigations Branch, Attn: AMSMI-RA-PM-IN, building 3649 (phone 876-2090/3449).

Bowling center

For the summer bowling program—June, July and August—there will be Red Pin Days each Wednesday through Saturday from 6-9 p.m. and all day Sunday. A strike when the head pin is red will win you a free game. Games won must be bowled during that visit. Summer discount prices of 60 cents per line will be charged during the afternoons from 2:30-6 Wednesday through Saturday. Redstone civilian employees and their guests will be able to bowl at the Bowling Center from June through August. The Bowling Center says individuals are cautioned that failure to observe all rules may result in withdrawal of the privileges. The center is located in building 3707, adjacent to the parade field. Hours of operation are Wednesday through Sunday 2:30-9:30 p.m., closed Monday and Tuesday, with holidays to be announced.

MICOM family picnic

Anyone interested in forming a tug-of-war team or participating in the horseshoe competition at the MICOM family picnic, June 6, should call SSgt. Jesse Beauford 876-1297.

OMMCS summer picnic

The Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School will have its annual summer picnic at the NASA Recreation Area from 1-6 p.m. June 27. The picnic will include a cookout, sports events for the adults, children's games, and door prizes. This function is open to all OMMCS permanent party military and civilian personnel and their families. Tickets will go on sale June 1-19 and may be purchased, at a nominal cost, through committee representatives assigned to each division or department. In case of rain, the alternate date for the picnic is July 11. For more information, call Capt. Callaway 876-1081/4354.

Child care providers

In order to give child care in government quarters, family members must be certified through Child Development Services. Call Ruth Taylor 876-2752 to reserve space in the June 10 orientation meeting.

Bicycle rodeo

The annual Bicycle Rodeo will be conducted on Redstone Arsenal by the Investigations Branch at 9 a.m. May 30 in the Bicentennial Chapel parking area. The event will consist of safety inspections and maneuverability competition. Contestants' bicycles must be registered on post, and this can be done prior to the competition. Children will be tested in three categories: kindergarten and first grade, second and third grade, and fourth through the sixth grades. Trophies will be presented to the first three finishers in each category and certificates of achievement will be given to each contestant. All dependent children are eligible to participate. "Officer Ginny" of the Redstone Arsenal Military Police will be on hand to assist. In the event of inclement weather, the rodeo would be held June 13.

Learning center

Army Learning Center offers the following in-house, self-paced courses: A Call for Dr. Redd, a one-hour videotaped course that deals with fire prevention in hospitals; A Situational Approach to Managing People, a 10-hour videotaped course; and Affirmative Action Curriculum, a 24-hour computer-based curriculum. To enroll in these courses, send a DD form 1556 to building 7446, AMSMI-CP-TC/ALC, Attn: Army Learning Center. For more information, call 876-1061/1416.

Youth golf

The annual summer youth clinics at Redstone golf course begin Tuesday, June 9. The clinics are open to boys and girls, ages 8-17, who are family members of active duty or retired military. The clinics, taught by golf pro Chip Enlow, will be held 8 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays for three weeks. After that, the summer competitive program for youths will be held Thursday mornings for the rest of the summer. To register call Youth Activities, building 114, at 876-KIDS.
