Volunteers' coordinator plans council, placement pool

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Redstone Arsenal now has an installation volunteer coordinator whose job is to promote volunteerism and to stress the importance and acknowledge the voluntary efforts in this community.

Sue Paddock works in the family services division of the Directorate of Community and Family Activities. She is Redstone's first and the Army's 35th installation volunteer coordinator, a paid position that was initiated from the Family Action Plan.

"My duties include coordinating with all the volunteer agencies on post, and identifying all the volunteers in the community," Paddock said. "And then I will be coordinating with all the volunteer supervisors of these agencies to form an installation volunteer council. That council will identify job vacancies in the community. We will be identifying volunteer issues that need to be discussed, and sharing successful volunteer program techniques among the supervisors.

"And then based on the needs of these volunteer agencies, I'm going to establish a volunteer placement pool to match the needs of the agencies and the skills and needs of the volunteers," she said.

Volunteer agencies she has contacted so far include Youth Activities; Army Community Service, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Red Cross, Child Development Services, and the Thrift Shop. "I'm already impressed with the volunteer coordinators of all the volunteer agencies and the way their programs are working at Redstone; and it will be part of my job to make use of their expertise," Paddock said. "Many of these organizations have been established and running for a long time, and I'd like to use their expertise as examples for the new volunteer programs that are being implemented in the community."

People are contributing their time at Redstone in various capacities— from serving in office jobs to helping at the hospital, working in the schools, or assisting with youth programs.

"I think volunteers are the backbone of any community for they provide support to community functions," Paddock said. "And this is an old concept. This has been going on forever, especially in the military communities. There are always volunteers somewhere in the background of community activities. And without these volunteers, the morale and quality of life in any community would suffer tremendously."

Paddock, 37, knows about volunteering; she has served as a volunteer throughout the 16 years her husband has been in the Army. This includes contributing her time at various military posts to the Red Cross, Army Community Service, thrift shop, Boy Scout councils, youth soccer, and officers wives clubs. This past spring, her family received the "Great American Family Award" at Miesau Army Depot in Germany.

By attending school part-time, the New Jersey native earned an associate degree in business administration from Northeastern University and a bachelor's degree in management studies from the University of Maryland. She and her husband Maj.

Joe Paddock, who is on a training program with the Defense Contract Audit Agency, have two sons and a daughter. Jeff is 14; Jason, 13; and Amy, 11. This is the Paddocks third tour at Redstone Arsenal and "hopefully we'll be here for a long time," she said. She would like to hear from members of the community; her phone number is 876-7391.

CFC campaign continues here

The local Combined Federal Campaign has exceeded $730,000, according to a tentative total for collections through five weeks.

A tentative sum Oct. 30 was $737,407.02, according to Eric Thomas, chairman of the local federal coordinating committee for CFC. This included $665,407.02 through the fourth report week and $72,000 in "pre-computer cycle raw collections" for the fifth week.

The charity campaign, which has a $850,000 goal, has been extended to Nov. 10.

"Caring and Sharing—the Tradition Continues" is the theme for the annual drive that benefits voluntary human health and welfare agencies.

America's veterans honored on Nov. 11

A Veterans Day Parade and updating of the Hall of Heroes are among the activities planned locally for Veterans Day, Nov. 11.

The parade is set for 11 that morning in downtown Huntsville.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Thomas Turnage has announced that this year's Veterans Day theme is "Veterans, You are America."

The VA chief urged Americans to pay tribute to the more than 27 million living veterans who have served their country in uniform, and to the more than one million who died during wartime service.

"While the Veterans Administration embodies the spirit of Veterans Day year-round," Turnage said, "it is on this special day that all Americans can gather to voice our thankfulness and appreciation."

VETERANS' DAY

WELCOME - Maj. Gen. Thomas D. Reese welcomes Vice President George Bush, who arrived and departed Redstone Army Airfield on a visit to Huntsville last Thursday. The vice president's local activities that day included a speech at Marshall Space Flight Center.

Commander's message

I am using this letter to bring to the attention of all the command our exceptional achievements in the procurement arena for FY87 and to congratulate, and most of all, personally thank, everyone for a job well done.

Through a team effort that involved a lot of hard work, numerous overtime hours and much selfless service on the part of many people, we have completed a highly successful business year and have positioned the command for another good year in FY88.

Almost every measurement we have attests to the accomplishment. In FY87 we placed on contract approximately $3.5 billion for supplies, services and spares. Contractual goals were exceeded for Army Stock Fund, National Maintenance, RDTE and Lab & Base Support obligations. We also were able to obligate a high percentage of the available missile systems money.

We achieved 99 percent of goal for competitive awards ($786.2M) and for awards to small disadvantaged businesses ($85.2M) and substantially exceeded other socio-economic contracting goals. Small business awards for the year, for example, totaled $336.6M, 170 percent of goal.

UCAs, the undefinitized contractual actions that have accounted for as much as 73 percent of total obligations in recent years, were held to only 8.3 percent in FY87. What's more, the undefinitized balance at year's end was $214M or barely half the not-to-exceed goal of $425M from AMC.

We should be particularly heartened that we are beginning a new year essentially unburdened by UCAs and consequently won't have to spend a lot of time definitizing contracts and de-obligating funds nor do we run the risk of losing control of costs because firm prices weren't fixed at the time of contract award.

Finally, I want to commend the true team effort that brought about this achievement. MICOM stands or falls on how well we work together. In this particular case we saw literally hundreds in Procurement Directorate, the project offices, the Log Center, the RD&E Center and the many supporting elements all working together to a common end. The team that shared the work now shares the achievement. Again, congratulations and many thanks for a job well done. Be proud of yourselves and what you have done to support our soldiers.

Short paycheck set for local civilians

Don't be surprised to see half your normal paycheck in the mail on Thursday.

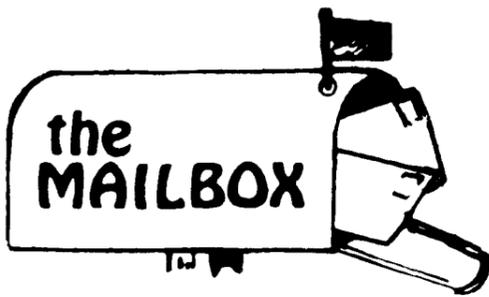

Local Army civilian workers are being paid for a one-week pay period as a way of complying with a regulation change. This 40 hour pay period, for Oct. 18-24, means civilian workers will get their checks on Thursday, Nov. 5. After that, they will return to biweekly pay periods of 80 hours.

For this particular pay period, the workers will get half their normal check amount and half of their entitlements. "Since this is a 40 hour pay period, each employee will accrue only half of their annual leave for the pay period and half of their sick leave accrual," explained Mona Moorer, chief of the pay examination branch for Finance and Accounting Division.

"We will withhold half of their deductions— with exception of a bond deduction which will not be withheld, and the reason behind this is we do not want to have to make a refund at a later date," she said.

A policy change to the Army regulation governing pay of civilian workers requires all Army civilian employees to be paid on the same day using the same pay and leave period. All installations must comply by Jan. 2, 1988. The one-time 40 hour pay period is the Missile Command's way of meeting this requirement. Some 11,176 Army civilian workers paid by the MICOM Finance and Accounting Division will be affected.

Normal paychecks will resume Thursday, Nov. 19 for the 80-hour pay period of Oct. 25 through Nov. 7.

Local union president addresses legislation

There may be changes in the contracting out policies, according to Dennis Garrison, president of AFGE Local 1858.

The local union president said he has been advised to that effect by Kenneth Blaylock, national president. The House and Senate included in their appropriation bills a section on contracting out which states that the local commanders will have the authority to contract out or not to contract out.

On other issues, Garrison reported the following: "We have some good news for the temporary employees. AFGE Fifth District has negotiated a comprehensive major medical insurance plan with Diamond Benefits Life Insurance Company, home office, Bar, Calif., affiliated with Adventist Health System. There is a $100 deductible per year. It pays 80 percent of doctor services, chiropractic, hospital, and hospital miscellaneous services. For more information, call the AFGE Office at 881-7430 or 876-4880.

"Hatch Act Reform Bill, HR 3400, is now on a fast track. It was reported out of the House POCSC with 22-0 vote which included all Republicans on the committee. This is a bipartisan Hatch Act Reform Bill. Discussions are now being held with both the Senate and the House. The Reform Hatch Act will give you the right to participate or refrain from participating in political activities without being coerced or intimidated by any individual," Garrison continued.

The Federal Pay Reform Act of 1987, HR 3132, is legislation that would "mandate a variety of pay experiments while ensuring that the rest of the federal workforce does not fall further behind private sector pay while the experiments are being undertaken," he stated.

BEST COMMISSARY— The Redstone Arsenal Commissary has been named the Army's best large commissary. With a certificate of achievement from the post commander are, from left, Dwight James, produce manager; Gay Williams, management assistant; Bill Penney, commissary officer;

Bob West, deputy commissary officer; Harold Meeks, store worker leader; and Joe Shamblin, a store worker. The world-wide large commissary award was scheduled to be presented Nov. 3 in Orlando, Fla.

Trees may keep record of DDT in atmosphere

Do trees serve as watchmen of the environment, silent sentries that quietly maintain a record of the pollution in the air we breathe?

That intriguing possibility recently brought an environmental scientist to Redstone Arsenal to study trees in the DDT area. Dr. Mark Hermanson, an Indiana University research fellow whose studies have shown that airborne PCB is absorbed by trees, is trying to determine if DDT, a related compound, is transported and absorbed in a like manner.

Hermanson and an associate, Jim Brozowski, a University of Wisconsin graduate student, recently spent a week here taking bark and core samples from pine trees downwind of the old DDT factory.

"What we're looking for is DDT or its residuals that have gotten into tree bark through the atmosphere," said Hermanson. "We've seen other compounds in tree bark, PCB in particular, near contamination sites."

PCB at a Bloomington, Ind. dump vaporized into the air and was absorbed into nearby trees in heavy concentrations, Hermanson said. Lead from exhaust fumes has been found in trees along roadways.

DDT was made at Redstone Arsenal for 23 years. People who were here say that the plant emitted smelly fumes and powdery fall-out into the atmosphere. A strong insecticidal odor remained in the factory area years after the plant closed in 1970.

"DDT and PCB," Hermanson explained, "are complex, industrial, organic compounds with a lot of similarities." These include persistence in the environment and tendency to accumulate in the tissue of humans and fish and, apparently, trees. "We're trying to see if this trend we've seen in humans and fish holds

GETTING TO THE CORE - Dr. Mark Hermanson, right, and Jim Brozowski, extract a core sample from a 22-year-old pine. Growth rings in the sample will be analyzed to see if DDT accumulates in the tissue of trees as it does in humans. Samples of outer and inner bark were collected also.

up in a terrestrial organism," Hermanson said.

Research has shown that three kindred, carcinogenic compounds — PCB, DDT and chlordane (like DDT an insecticide) — concentrate in that order in the fat of exposed fish and humans. "We want to find out will a non-migratory terrestrial organism (tree) show the same characteristics," Hermanson remarked. "We want to see if the samples here, along with PCB and chlordane samples from elsewhere, show absorption in trees in the same relative concentrations as we find in fish and humans."

"If we determine that they are absorbed in trees in this way, we will have a better understanding of the distribution of pesticides and organic compounds in the atmosphere and of how much of a threat atmospheric distribution presents."

If trees locally absorbed DDT, then they may preserve some sort of record in their growth rings and bark of how much of the insecticide was in the air that people at Redstone Arsenal breathed over the years.

At Redstone, Hermanson and Brozowski took more than 400 samples of bark and inner cores with growth rings from 30 trees. The samples will be analyzed at Indiana University and the findings published.

For comparison purposes, a control group of pines with little exposure to DDT is being studied on Isle Royale National Park in Lake Superior near Thunder Bay, Ontario.

As a result of the Redstone work, Hermanson said, "we expect to know a lot more about how DDT behaves atmospherically and how trees handle it. Not much is known about the atmospheric movement of a lot of industrial chemicals. If they're transported atmospherically we can expect to see them all over to greater or lesser degrees depending on how close to the source we get. And if they are transported atmospherically, then humans are getting constant exposure."

HARDWOOD PEG - After the auger is withdrawn, a hardwood peg is hammered into place by Jim Brozowski to close the hole and protect the tree.

Leader of federally-employed women sees progress

BY SKIP VAUGHN

The national leader of an organization representing federally-employed women is pleased with its recent accomplishments.

Freda W. Kurtz, who works at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland, was at Redstone last week taking a program managers briefing course. It was the first visit here for this national president of Federally Employed Women.

"We represent the 900,000 women who work for the federal government," said Kurtz, a GM-14 operations research analyst for Headquarters Air Force Systems Command at Andrews. She is serving her second term as president of FEW.

"We've had several very big successes recently," Kurtz said. She listed these as follows:

- Federally Employed Women made its voice heard in the new five-year plan for the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. "This new five-year plan is to promote women and minorities that were recruited in the first five-year plan," she said, adding that statistics show the average grade for women is 6.7 compared to 10.4 for men.

- There is a planned change to permit government funding for "mission related" training, according to Kurtz. This would change the requirement that government-funded training be "job related," thus enabling more women to move into a professional career, she said. An example would be a typist, who in the past could only take typing classes, but with this change could take other government-funded training.

- FEW has been recognized by Congress as the only nationwide organization representing women who work for the federal government, Kurtz said. As a result she, the national president, serves on a 14-member advisory council overseeing the thrift savings plan for the new federal retirement system.

A northern Alabama chapter here is among about 200 FEW chapters throughout the U.S. "We have chapters in Europe, Japan, Okinawa, the Philippines, and Korea. And we are in the process of organizing one in Guam," Kurtz said. The national group was organized in 1968.

"My most important goal is to help women receive the support of supervisors and management. As I've talked to chapters and at regional meetings, I have emphasized that the goal of Federally Employed Women is to improve the productivity of women in the workplace so that they can achieve promotion. And as we make supervisors aware of our goals, we help them to increase their mission effectiveness," she said.

"I want to emphasize that we want to work with management to achieve our common goals and we as women need the support of management if we are to receive upward mobility within the federal service and job satisfaction within the workplace."

The Missouri native has a bachelor's degree in business from Northeast Missouri State University and a master's in economics and public administration from the University of Kentucky. In the early 1970s, while working at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio, Kurtz was affected by a reduction-in-force. She had been a temporary GS-14 but, as a result of that rif, she found herself reduced to a GS-5 typist. She still had two school-age children and a disabled husband to support. (After three months, she finally was picked up in a GS-11 job.)

"At that time (of the rif) there was no woman in a position to help me or give me advice," Kurtz recalled. "Now when that happened to me, all the men were taken care of through the buddy system, the old boys network as it's called; but there was no old girls network to help me."

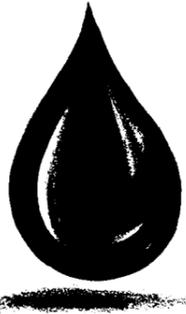

A short time later, she heard about Federally Employed Women. She became instrumental in organizing the FEW chapter at Wright-Patterson, and has been active in FEW ever since.

Kurtz encourages federal women— civilian and military —to join Federally Employed Women. "It provides an organization that helps women to focus on our common goals because traditionally women have not been team players and have not realized the importance of an organization or a team to achieve objectives which cannot be achieved by an individual," she said.

ACS volunteers honored for their 'unsung' efforts

Volunteers at Army Community Service play an increasingly important role, according to the deputy post commander.

Speaking at the annual ACS volunteer awards luncheon, Col. James A. Hall cited the recent reduction of $1.4 million in appropriated funds for Redstone's recreational activities. "As a result, we're going to count more on volunteers," Hall said.

"Your volunteer efforts are probably the most unsung of any efforts here at Redstone," he said, adding that volunteers make a very meaningful contribution.

"On behalf of every soldier and every soldier's family here at Redstone," Hall said, "I'd like to give you our deepest appreciation and hope you are able to continue what you've been able to do so far."

About 40 people attended the luncheon held Oct. 27 at the Officers Club. Attendees included volunteers, ACS staff, and staff from the Directorate of Community and Family Activities.

"I just want to tell you how lucky I am and how lucky other soldiers are," Hall said. "First of all, I'm lucky to be an American, as we celebrate the 200th year of the Constitution. I'm lucky I'm a soldier."

"Thirdly, I'm lucky I'm a soldier stationed at Redstone," he said.

"I'm lucky I'm at Redstone because we've got some wonderful volunteers and for that I am thankful."

Certificates of appreciation and awards for time of service were presented to the ACS volunteers. A special certificate was given to Chaplain (Capt.) William Meyer for his work with the Total Tots Program.

Volunteers honored included Ann Drolet, Rosemary Finley, Nancy Nimmons, Carolyn Presley, Mary Stewart, Janie Thomas, Ruby Hill, Joyce Arrington, Pat Goree, Rita Redoblade, Colette Petty, Cathy Ryan, Anita Wall, Ann Hurst, Judy Link, Martha Laslo, Lillian Kawano, Odessa Miller, Cindy Meyer, Col. Arthur Hadley, Dorothea Madry, Nancy Johnson, Catherine Schorr, G.G. Todd, Jeannie Ennis, Cheryl Winand, Sharon Walker, Deborah Steenbock, Pat Brown, Kathy Cook, Lt. Col. Mike Moran, and Regina Trimble.

"Our single goal is to enhance the quality of life here at Redstone," said Cathy Ryan, the ACS volunteer supervisor.

Teens praised for their work at Army hospital

Each summer some Redstone Arsenal youths contribute their time at Fox Army Community Hospital as junior Red Cross volunteers.

Twenty-one youngsters, age 14 to 18, worked a total of 2,244 hours at the hospital this year, according to Marge Kunhart, Redstone's chairman of Red Cross volunteers. "That's a lot of hours," she said.

Kathleen Lynch received a plaque for working 425 and a half hours in outpatient records while school was out this summer. Lynch, 15, is the daughter of SFC Dennis and Bonnie Lynch.

Others singled out by Kunhart included Jennifer Louthan, 14, daughter of SFC Phillip and Barbara Louthan. She spent 364 and a half hours in outpatient records. Jackie Law, 14-year-old daughter of Sgt. Robert and Shirley Law, worked 210 hours in physical therapy during her second summer at the hospital.

"We had 21 volunteers for the entire youth program and the majority of them had over 50 hours," Kunhart said. "Our youth do a good job. I just feel the youth are not recognized enough."

The boys and girls help themselves as well as the hospital, according to Kunhart. "They really get to work with the public and have a good rapport with the public, and also they get to work in a professional atmosphere before they go on to a regular job," she said.

Areas where the junior Red Cross volunteers served in the hospital included physical therapy, pediatrics, family practice, outpatient records, pharmacy, medical surgical clinic, GYN clinic, radiology, and the laboratory. Also, some of the teen-agers worked in some of the offices at various times.

What Specialist Hales has been aiming for during his off-duty time.

Specialist Four Jason Hales has been aiming for the best. As a soldier, and as a student. He's an Infantryman at Fort Myer, Virginia, as well as a B.S. candidate in Mechanical Engineering at Park College. And he's just one of the over 100,000 soldiers who are building brighter, smarter futures through the Army's Reaching for Excellence education program.

It's a terrific opportunity that's available to each and every soldier, at virtually every Army post around the world. Reaching for Excellence covers everything from basic educational skills and technical skill development to undergraduate and graduate studies at the college level. And it's a chance to have at least 75% of your college tuition paid for by the Army.

Continuing your education is a commitment that's fully supported by the Army leadership. You can start taking advantage of this commitment at your post's Education Center. There, you'll find a professional education counselor who can help you set short- and long-range goals which fit both your educational and career plans.

Drop by your Education Center and find out, as Specialist Hales did, how you can turn some off-duty time into a lifetime of rewards. If you want to get ahead, now's the time to get started.

ARMY EDUCATION.
BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

THE BIGGEST DECISION A SOLDIER MAKES IS TO KEEP ON BEING ONE.

Reenlisting is as big a decision for us as it is for you. That's why there are Army Career Counselors ready to help you with information about all of the benefits, options and bonuses for which you are eligible. Talk to an Army Career Counselor today, and get the facts about staying in.

Witches, ghosts and others surface as Missile Command workers dress for Halloween

CURIOUS BUNCH — Procurement workers get a head start on the trick or treating. Working with this bunch is a trick, or is it a treat?

CO-WORKERS — More Procurement workers take time out to show off their Halloween costumes.

High Flying

DRESSING FOR SUCCESS — Maude Johnston, Odessa Robinson and Lynn Brothers, are among many Procurement workers celebrating the Halloween season by dressing up.

EXTRA TOUCH — Lunch in the MICOM cafeteria takes on a new meaning when served by vampire Molly Ponder, pirate Debbie Sharp, and hillbilly Debbie Seymoure.

GUESS WHO — This Halloween raisin is none other than Denise Gray of MICOM's EEO office.

TOUR — A tour of Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School was recently given to two ROTC units. About 60 advisors and students from Alabama A&M University and Mississippi State University participated. OMMCS hosts these tours for ROTC units to encourage the selection of Ordnance Corps when the students go on active duty. Normally, two tours are conducted in the fall and two are conducted in the spring.

VISITING STUDENTS — A group of high school students look over Army hardware during a visit at the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School. About 300 students from the Huntsville Center of Technology visited on Oct. 23. The students were taken on guided tours of the FTX site, land combat, air defense, munitions and electronics and technology training departments.

Morrell addresses senior NCOs at Redstone

BY KENNETH R. HAMILTON

More than 30 senior non-commissioned officers from Redstone Arsenal got a chance to talk to recently retired Sergeant Major of the Army Glen E. Morrell, during a luncheon held in the NCO Club.

Invited by Redstone Arsenal Support Activity's command sergeant major, CSM Charlie Miller III, Morrell, now a special assistant to the president of the Non-commissioned Officers Association (NCOA), in charge of public relations, explained that it's his job to inform soldiers of what benefits, opportunities and programs are available through NCOA membership.

Topics discussed by Morrell were: voter registration, retirement preparation, CHAMPUS supplement programs, the Army's club system, job fairs and NCOA support.

"It all comes down to two things if we expect our voice to be heard," said Morrell, "they are: voter registration and NCOA chapter membership."

"If we expect Congress to do anything for us or even to listen to us, it has to be done in a voice they understand, VOTES. If we don't vote, how can our voice be heard?"

Morrell went on to say that a group is only as strong as the number of registered voters it has in its membership, and that politicians base most of their decisions about issues by how many voters are behind or against an issue.

Reminiscing about his own preparation for retirement, Morrell gave out some advice about getting ready for retirement. Morrell suggested that a CHAMPUS supplement be obtained at least one year prior to retirement, because CHAMPUS will only cover 75 percent of medical treatments.

"The 25 percent not covered could be devastating for a retired family," said Morrell, "if a long illness or hospital stay is involved and military medical facilities are not available."

Morrell also stressed the importance of a will and having an autopsy performed upon death, to determine if there are any service-related complications or causes for the death.

"Make sure that a copy of your medical records are sent to the state VA office of residence and that a copy of your DD Form 214 is also forwarded, to ensure that benefits are begun in a timely manner," Morrell said. He also stated that the retirement physical and a complete listing of all medical problems is included in the file.

Soldiers planning to retire need to talk to their service representative and to receive a complete briefing on retirement benefits and the transition process.

Soldiers getting ready to retire should also take advantage of NCOA-sponsored job fairs. These fairs take place throughout the United States and give soldiers an opportunity to "market" themselves for new jobs upon retirement from the Army.

Morrell said that support of our own club system needs to be improved, especially with Graham/Rudman/Hollings budget cuts facing the services. "If the cuts go into effect, one of the first things hit will be the club system. Remember, a percentage of the profits goes back into the Morale, Welfare and Recreation Fund and is channeled back to the soldiers."

"If we fail to support them (the clubs), then we stand a chance to lose them, and that's another benefit lost."

The Non-commissioned Officers Association has representatives in Washington, D.C., who lobby for soldiers on a daily basis. This lobbying effort is done in the best interests of active-duty, retired, reservists, guardsmen and veterans and their families.

Diabetes Month a good time to learn about the disease

BY EVELYN HARRIS
American Forces Information

Diabetes can lead to kidney failure, heart disease, blindness, nerve damage and other complications. An estimated 11 million Americans have diabetes, but about 5 million of them don't know they have it, according to the American Diabetes Association.

November is National Diabetes Month—a good time to learn about the disease. Although there is yet no cure for diabetes, the disease can be controlled.

Diabetes causes elevated glucose (sugar) levels in the blood. Glucose, formed when food is digested, is the main fuel humans use for energy.

People with diabetes do not produce or properly use insulin, a hormone produced in the pancreas. Insulin "unlocks" cells, allowing sugar to enter and nourish them. Without insulin, sugar stays in the blood instead of nourishing the body.

Army Maj. (Dr.) William E. Duncan, an endocrinologist at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., and an assistant professor at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Services, in Bethesda, Md., treats diabetics. He said that diabetes is extremely complex, with many associated conditions. But for treatment, it can be classified into two main types.

Type I, or insulin-dependent diabetes, was once called juvenile-onset diabetes because it occurs most often in children and young adults. Type I diabetics must take insulin daily because their bodies produce little or no insulin. Type II diabetes, once called adult-onset diabetes, occurs most often in individuals over 40.

Eighty percent of Type II diabetics are obese. These individuals cannot use effectively the insulin their body produces. Type II patients can often control their disease with diet and exercise, although many of them must also have oral drugs or insulin included in their treatment plan. Type II is the most common form of diabetes, accounting for between 80 and 90 percent of all cases.

A less common but important type of diabetes is gestational diabetes, which appears when a woman is pregnant and disappears after she gives birth. Between 25 and 50 out of every 1,000 women develop diabetes during pregnancy. Because the disease can endanger a woman and her baby, Duncan recommended that pregnant women discuss diabetes screening with their doctors. Diabetes screening involves testing the level of glucose in the blood.

Blacks, Hispanics and Native Americans have higher rates of diabetes. Blacks are twice as likely to get diabetes as whites, and Hispanics are three times more prone to the disease. One in three American Indians is at risk for developing diabetes. Researchers believe the higher risks for these groups result from both genetic and lifestyle factors.

How is diabetes diagnosed? Type I diabetes appears suddenly and requires prompt attention to save the person's life. Type II diabetes develops very gradually, so a patient could have it for years without knowing it.

In fact, many Type II patients first learn about their diabetes when they seek treatment for other problems.

Because excess sugar is excreted in the urine, taking with it a lot of water, early symptoms of diabetes include constant thirst and a frequent need to urinate. If you have these symptoms, see a doctor, particularly if you're obese or have a family history of diabetes.

Some obese diabetics see a significant improvement in their condition after losing weight. For others, medical care can help slow or prevent diabetes complications. For example, nearly half of all people with diabetes develop kidney disease. Some develop end-stage kidney disease, requiring dialysis or kidney transplants to survive. Nearly 25 percent of all new dialysis patients are diabetics.

Diabetics are also more likely to develop heart disease or stroke. One factor in this is that diabetes increases the risk of high blood pressure.

Diabetes is also the leading cause of blindness in adults between the ages of 20 and 74. According to Duncan, most long-term diabetics experience changes in their eyes even if they don't suffer vision loss.

Nerve damage, leading to pain, numbness and other problems is common. Gangrene infection, which can lead to loss of a leg or foot is another problem for diabetics. According to Duncan, this problem is still more common than you might expect. In fact, diabetes causes 45 percent of all non-traumatic leg and foot amputations in the United States.

Picker expects Air Force to cruise by Army

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Air Force will have football bragging rights among the service academies if it can get past Army this weekend.

The Falcons, with a 6-3 record, have already whipped Navy 23-13. Its other victims include Texas Christian, San Diego State, Colorado State, Utah, and Texas-El Paso. Air Force lost to Wyoming, Notre Dame, and Brigham Young.

Army has had a disappointing 3-5 year. The Cadets have beaten Kansas State, The Citadel, and Temple. They lost to Holy Cross, Wake Forest, Boston College, Colgate, and Rutgers.

Last year Army whipped Air Force 21-11. But that was last year. This time, bragging rights will belong to...Air Force.

Skip's Picks last week resulted in a 28-8-1 record, making the season totals 232-81-6 for 74 percent. Here are the predictions for selected games this week in major college football:

- Army at Air Force— Air Force by 10.
- Alabama at Louisiana State— LSU by 3.
- Florida State at Auburn— Auburn by 2.
- Georgia vs. Florida— Florida by 4.
- Kentucky at Vanderbilt— Ky. by 7.
- Tulane at Miss. State— Tulane by 1.
- Louisville at Tennessee— Tenn. by 21.
- Washington at Arizona— Wash. by 3.
- Oregon at Arizona St.— ASU by 14.
- Baylor at Arkansas— Arkansas by 7.
- Boston College at Notre Dame— ND by 17.
- San Diego St. at Brigham Young— BYU by 10.
- Clemson at North Carolina— Clemson by 4.
- Missouri at Colorado— Colorado by 7.
- Duke at Wake Forest— Duke by 1.
- Temple at E. Carolina— E. Carolina by 3.
- Virginia at Ga. Tech— Virginia by 4.
- Texas at Houston— Texas by 7.
- Illinois at Indiana— Indiana by 6.

- Iowa at Northwestern— Iowa by 14.
- Penn State at Maryland— Penn State by 10.
- Miami (Ohio) at Miami (Fla.)— Miami (Fla.) by 28.
- Michigan at Minnesota— Mich. by 13.
- Purdue at Michigan St.— MSU by 7.
- Syracuse at Navy— Syracuse by 21.
- Iowa State at Nebraska— Nebraska by 40.
- Ohio State at Wisconsin— OSU by 17.

- Oklahoma St. at Oklahoma— Oklahoma by 13.
- UCLA at Oregon State— UCLA by 14.
- Pittsburgh at Rutgers— Pitt by 3.
- Stanford at Southern Cal— USC by 10.
- Texas-El Paso at Utah— UTEP by 4.
- Texas Christian at Texas Tech— TCU by 3.
- Virginia Tech at W. Virginia— W Va. by 21.
- Alabama A&M at Clark College— A&M by 14.

The Society of Women Engineers Interest Group will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 10 in the community room of the 1st American Federal Bank, 4008 University Drive NW. Scheduled speaker Dr. Frank Tatom, of Engineering Analysis Inc., is to discuss engineering opportunities in Huntsville. For more information, call Virginia Woods 895-0881, Alicia Allen 895-5440 or Carolyn Pardue 876-8639.

City schools

A member of the Huntsville city school board, Bill Kling Jr., will hold a public meeting at 6 p.m. Nov. 11 at the city schools administration building, 714 Bob Wallace Ave. Kling is interested in hearing from parents concerning school-related issues.

Education seminars

The Education Center, building 3222, offers the following seminars to kick-off the American Education Celebration: "How to be promoted in the armed forces," 11-noon Nov. 4, in room 9; "How to study in college," 1-2 p.m. Nov. 4, in room 10; "Taking and passing standardized tests," 9-10 a.m. Nov. 5, room 10; and a "mini-series on Basic Skills Education Program, English as a Second Language, and Citizenship Classes," noon to 1 p.m. Nov. 5 in room 9. Everyone is invited to these free seminars.

Motorcycle course

Education Center will offer a motorcycle safety course on Nov. 7 for anyone who operates a motorcycle on Redstone Arsenal. The course, which lasts six and a half hours, is needed before riders can get a vehicle pass. Civilians must pay $14 to attend; and military members who signed up previously but did not attend without canceling must also pay $14. For more information, call Shirley Sisk or Reita Perry 876-9761.

Logistic engineers

Tennessee Valley Chapter of the Society of Logistic Engineers will kick-off its annual membership drive with a complimentary cocktail party on Nov. 6 at the Rustic Lodge in the civilian recreation area. All present and prospective members of SOLE are invited to participate in this "fun evening of free drinks and hors d'oeuvres." Make reservations today with Marsetta Bearden 876-1950/7789.

Officers wives

Officers Wives Club will have its next function Tuesday, Nov. 10 at the Officers Club. At 10:15 a.m., the OWC starts this year's series of mini lectures. Col. Arthur Hadley, chief of Fox Army Community Hospital, is to give a lecture on AIDS. At 11, immediately following the lecture, the wives of SDC are hosting a luncheon. Scheduled speaker is Harvie Jones, a local architect and "national leader in historic preservation." His topic is to be the historic progress in Huntsville's architecture. Reservations for the mini-lecture and luncheon should be made by Friday, Nov. 6 to one of the following: A-E Shelley Fargo 895-9609, F-L Betsy Green 721-1357, M-R Mary Elizabeth Marr 721-1452, and S-Z Nancy MacKenzie 882-9376. Newcomers should call Janie Thomas 721-0415; and, for cancellations, call Debbie Windhorn 837-5628.

Chemistry day

The North Alabama Section of the American Chemical Society has invited local high school and college chemistry classes or clubs to participate in National Chemistry Day, designated by Congress as Friday, Nov. 6, by designing a display that addresses the NCD theme. Dr. Sam McManus, professor of chemistry at the University of Alabama in Huntsville, has announced these displays may be viewed by the public from 2-8 p.m. Nov. 6 at Madison Square Mall.

Youth orchestra

The Metropolitan Youth Orchestra of Huntsville will present its premier performance under Music Director and Conductor Gary Parks at 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 8 in the Von Braun Civic Center concert hall. Single tickets for this concert are $4 each. Season tickets for all three METRO concerts are $10. Senior citizens pay half price and students are admitted free. Tickets may be purchased at the door, or in advance by writing METRO, 1019A Old Monrovia Road, Suite 129, Huntsville, Ala. 35806; or call 881-8848/1902.

Christmas bazaar

Officers Wives Club is sponsoring its annual Christmas Bazaar Saturday, Nov. 14 from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Bicentennial Chapel. "This is a great chance to get a head start on your holiday shopping." There will be numerous vendors, baked and handcrafted items, and a "kiddie korner" where children may buy gifts for mom and dad. The bazaar is open to the public.

Susie Knows A Secret But She's Not Telling!

She Can't.

She has impaired communication skills. She is unable to satisfactorily express her wants and needs.

There is a light at the end of her tunnel. There is hope, understanding and love. Help is available through the Institute of Logopedics' programs for children with handicaps and language delay.

Like Susie, each child has an individualized program designed for their special needs. The goal of the Institute's educational program is to prepare as many children as possible for eventual placement in the public school system.

Without the guidance of Institute of Logopedics speech-language pathologists, audiologists, music and adaptive physical education, occupational and oral-muscular therapists, we may never know her secret.
