Federal Women's Program

Government agencies try to enhance women's career opportunities

Editor's note: March is Women's History Month.

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Women in the Missile Command work force have made advancements through the years, but there is still room for improvement at the higher grade levels.

A government program, the Federal Women's Program, continues to work toward providing employment and advancement opportunities for women at MICOM and other federal agencies. Cathy Gant, of the MICOM Equal Employment Opportunity Office, is the Federal Women's Program manager for the Missile Command and serviced organizations.

"It provides an outlet for information on opportunities, training and job assignments; provides career development counseling and training; brings job inequities to managers' attention; and we work with employees who feel discriminated against because of sex, to attempt to resolve the problems or refer them to the EEO counselors," Gant said.

"A primary area of concern now is sexual harassment," she added. "We have worked with the training division to set up computer-based instruction on how to handle sexual harassment. And we also do a lot of counseling with people regarding sexual harassment either with people who feel they are subject to sexual harassment, or managers who feel it may be going on in their organization. We give guidance on how to address that kind of problem."

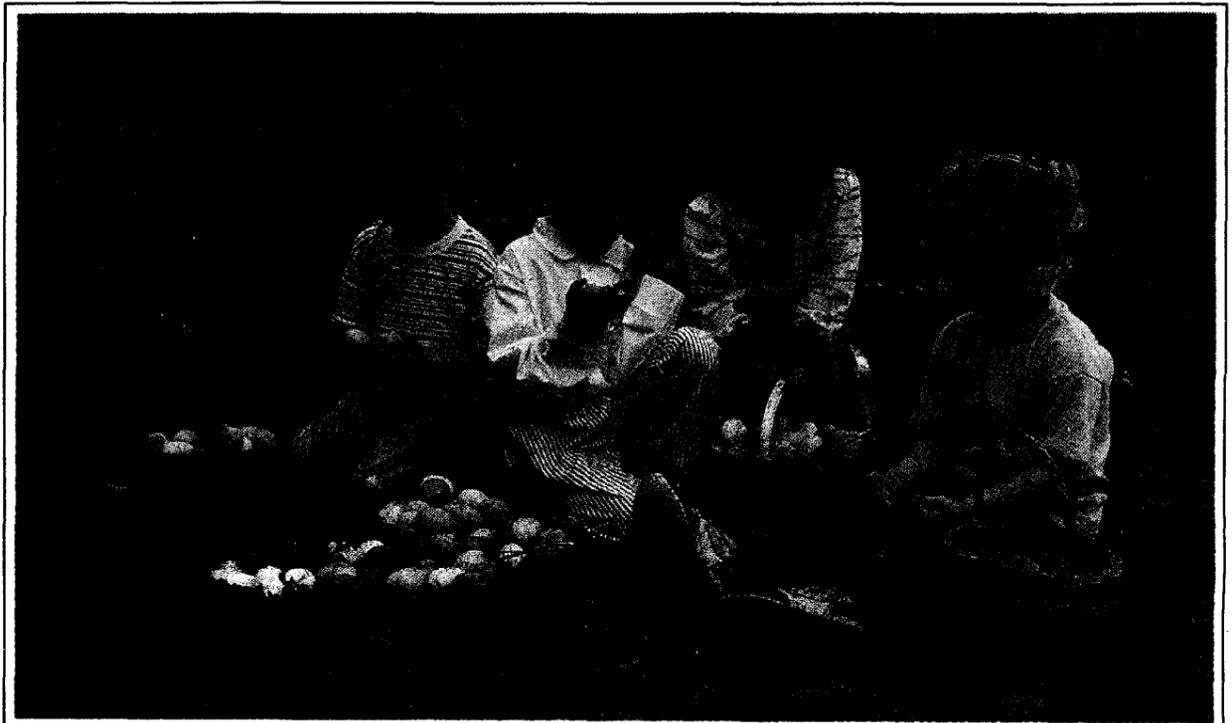

The program also maintains information on status of women in the work force, and advises managers on how to obtain appropriate representation of women.

"Primarily women are well-represented in the Missile Command work force, but there's still a problem with women, as well as minorities, in higher grades (GS-12 and above)," Gant said. "And right now there's considerable emphasis from Department of Defense to bring women and minorities into those higher grades."

Some 3,200 or about 45 percent of the approximately 7,000 civilian workers at MICOM are women. In the higher grades, women represent 31 percent of the GS-12s, 17 percent of the GS-13s, 8 percent of the GS-14s and 2.5 percent of the GS-15s.

With the low percentages of women at higher grades, 45 percent of the GS-11s are women. "The (See Women, cont'd on page 2)

Prep school deadline approaching

FORT MONMOUTH, N.J. — Redstone Arsenal soldiers interested in applying to the U.S. Military Academy Preparatory School, Class of 1990, should keep in mind the May 1 deadline for submission of their completed file.

The purpose of the Prep School is to prepare young soldiers to qualify academically and physically for entrance to the U.S. Military Academy and to increase their potential for success while there.

Since 1945, the Prep School has existed to give Regular Army soldiers the opportunity to work toward an officer's commission by attending West Point. Of the approximately 1,000 applications received each year, an average of 165 soldiers will be accepted at the Prep School for an intensive 10-month program of academic, military and physical training.

Due to the competitive nature of the admissions process, soldiers should complete their application file as soon as possible.

To qualify, a soldier must be a U.S. citizen or able to become one prior to entering West Point, single, medically qualified, a high school graduate or possess a GED equivalent, of high moral character and under 21 years of age prior to July 1, 1989.

A soldier must fill out a standard U.S. Military Academy Preparatory School application form for a

Rush hour

Editor:

I would like to direct this letter to the person/persons in charge of traffic control for Redstone Arsenal.

I am writing in reference to the "rush hour" traffic on Patton Road. During the morning rush hour, there are supposed to be two southbound lanes and one northbound lane. I am constantly seeing, and sometimes dodging, northbound cars using the center lane as a turn lane. The same also happens in the afternoon when the flow of traffic northbound has the use of two lanes. I wonder if the drivers of these vehicles understand the meaning of the red "X" in the lights above the center lane.

Since the drivers do not seem to understand the lights, a sign should be installed showing the times of lane usage for the center lane. Redstone Road has signs showing the times of usage for its center lane.

Is it going to take an accident to get the attention of the person in charge of traffic control? I hope the problem is resolved before an unattentive driver causes serious injury to another driver.

Credit card policy

Editor:

Something is extremely unethical about GS-7s and up and E-7s and up having to acquire a Diner's Club card to attend government training.

I'm traveling to Boston, Mass., and received only $170 in advance pay to be used for a taxi to and from the airport, meals and hotel costs for a five-day convention. The taxi itself will cost $20 each way.

The travel office and travel pay do not provide a list of hotels/motels or restaurants, in the TDY area, that will accept the Diner's card. Majority of restaurants that do accept the card are very expensive—so the government is forcing me to eat out at an expensive restaurant. McDonald's does not accept the Diner's card.

My other option is to take my earned money out of my savings account to attend training for my job, meanwhile affecting my savings interest rate of 6 percent on my account's balance. I had to borrow $400 from savings to go to Boston. The policy is extremely higher you go, the lower the representation rate," Gant said. "They should have that same (45 percent) representation at all those grades."

Compared to 12 years ago, the numbers look great. Since 1977 women GS-11s have more than doubled, and women GS-12s have more than tripled. There are eight times as many women GS-13s and six times as many women GS-14s. In 1977, there were no GS-15 women here.

"So MICOM has made considerable progress," Gant said. "And there's considerable emphasis by MICOM to bring women into the GM (general manager) and the SES (senior executive service) grades now."

The main problem faced by women in the work force today is "the difficulty in moving from clerical fields into professional fields," she said. "Women in general have more education now than they've ever had and more to offer their employer, and they're not content to stay in clerical positions for the most part. Even though MICOM has many opportunities to progress through the upward mobility programs, paratraine programs and other bridging kinds of programs, there are so many more applicants for those programs than there are available positions that many women get very frustrated trying to reach their professional goals."

In 1967, President Johnson signed an executive order for the Federal Women's Program. Subsequently, FWP coordinators were designated for all government agencies. Later, their designation changed to FWP managers.

The FWP manager at the Missile Command is assisted by a committee appointed by the commanding general. The mostly civilian 25-member committee includes members from all serviced organizations. They meet monthly. The chairman is Mary Kerg, of Air Defense Program Executive Office, and the co-

The public service will be behind the Post Chapel, Patton Road. Rain location would be Bicentennial Chapel, Goss Road.

Other Holy Week activities include the following:

- Holy Saturday Easter Vigil will be held at 7 p.m. at Bicentennial Chapel.

Toll-free calls procedure given

For making toll-free calls, workers should not use the Ultra WATS access code, according to the communications officer here.

Bill Dortch, communications officer in Information Management Directorate, said: For toll-free 800 calls they will either dial 9 plus 800 plus the number, at Redstone, or 9 plus 1 plus 800 plus the number, at Research Park.

"We had suffered some confusion in that area ourselves," Dortch said.

chairman is Myra Bice, of Information Systems Command-MICOM. If interested in serving on the committee, call Gant at 876-3436.

"I believe that the Federal Women's Program has served a very good purpose in the government work force," Gant said. "It's provided a sensitivity to the problems women face in regards to employment and progression; it provides a non-threatening avenue for women to address their problems or to address discriminatory practices; it provides resources for employment opportunities and advancement opportunities; and the program attempts to educate the women of the work force on all areas of employment through our quarterly newspaper and our annual training and through other publicity avenues."

And contrary to a popular misconception, you don't sign up for or enroll in the Federal Women's Program. "All government workers belong to the FWP," Gant said. "It is a government program that serves the work force."

Longtime worker dies

Jean Walker, 64, who worked in the Visual Information Branch of the U.S. Army Information System Command - Redstone, died Tuesday, March 14.

Walker began her career at Redstone in 1951 as a photographer in the photography laboratory. In 1970, she became a motion picture production specialist. Most recently, she held the position of contracting officer's representative.

She is survived by her husband, Latham "Doc" Walker, her mother, Curtiss Warden and a sister, Mary Holder.

A graveside funeral service was held last Thursday at Maple Hill Cemetery. The family requests that memorials be made in the form of charitable contributions.

General salutes 'bridge builders' for women

BY GERDA SHERRILL

"While yesterday's women gave us pride, today's women have gained enthusiasm, which will lead to tomorrow's women's confidence," Brig. Gen. Sherian Grace Cadoria told more than 300 persons on March 15 at the Officers' Club. The event was the second Women's History Month luncheon sponsored by the Federal Women's Program of the Strategic Defense Command.

The top-ranking black female general officer in the armed forces, Cadoria, encouraged women to "build bridges" for women of the future, just as earlier women wrote, spoke, petitioned, and went to court to fight for women's suffrage, because "they had a vision and, as is written in Proverbs, 'Where there is no vision, the people perish'."

Cadoria admitted that women are still fighting uphill to overcome the perceptions "that they have to work twice as hard to be half as good as men," and that they are destined only for clerical or homemaking occupations.

Cultural conditioning led to this type of stereotyping, which is evident also in the roles the Bible assigns to women, the general said, and she observed: "Even if women go the extra mile, they often still don't receive the proper credit. But if we appreciate the lessons of the past and look into the future with determination, we will succeed."

"In the mid-19th century, women were the legal property of their husbands; they could not vote, sign a contract, or be sued. But women like Victoria Woodhull, a controversial newspaper publisher, or Elizabeth Cady Stanton, who organized the first women's rights convention in 1848, or Susan B. Anthony, who started local suffrage groups, paved the road toward today's improved situation. They were often threatened, but progress came, ever so slowly," she said.

Cadoria cited several instances where the military failed to honor women's contributions to their cause. "During the Civil War, women served as nurses, but when the war ended, guess what? They were sent home," she said. In fact, women were not allowed to serve as doctors in the military, only as nurses, until Dr. Mary Walker became the first female doctor in the Army toward the end of the Civil War. "Until 1973, women in the Army were not permitted to have children," she said.

Her advice to all women: "Hang in there, ladies! Don't give up! Seize every opportunity to achieve success. Opportunity is the magic word. There may be many Einsteins out there, but if they are not given the opportunity to use their abilities, they are of no consequence, and our country will never be all it can be."

She also recommended the following guidelines for seizing opportunities: "Be responsible for yourself; take risks; maintain a healthy attitude about being female; and pace yourself—have pride in yourself." She summed up "pace" as consisting of professionalism, attitude, character (or competence, commitment, candor, courage), and enthusiasm (or excellence).

Cadoria concluded with advice "to follow successful women as role models, women from all walks of life who seized the opportunities and built bridges for women today and in the future, just as our female heroes of the past have contributed to the success of our country through their strengths and visions."

Following her remarks, luncheon host Brig. Gen. Robert L. Stewart, SDC deputy commander, presented a plaque to Cadoria showing "the Army's newest crest"—SDC's unit insignia which visually depicts the SDC mission to "shield" the United States from a ballistic missile attack.

A native of Marksville, La., Cadoria is the deputy commanding general and director of mobilization and operations at the Total Army Personnel Command in Alexandria, Va. She received a direct commission in 1961 and is a graduate of Southern University and A&M College, Louisiana, with a bachelor's degree in business education and has a master's degree in social work from the University of Oklahoma.

The luncheon audience included representatives from the mayor of Huntsville and the area's civilian and military communities.

Champus eligibility limited for some former spouses

Congress has placed some additional limits on which divorced former military spouses are eligible for Champus benefits.

Here are the current conditions under which the former husband or wife of a member or former member of the uniformed services is eligible for health care under Champus:

- The former spouse must not have remarried;
- He or she must not be covered by an employer-sponsored health plan;
- He or she must have been married to a service member or former member who performed at least 20 years of active duty which can be credited toward determining retirement pay;
- He or she must meet the requirements of either Category (1) or Category (2) below (not both):

Category (1)—Must have been married to the same member or former member for at least 20 years, and at least 20 of those married years must have been creditable in determining the member's eligibility for retirement pay. If the date of the final decree of divorce or annulment was on or after Feb. 1, 1983, the former spouse is eligible for Champus coverage of health care which is received after that date. If the date of the final decree is before Feb. 1, 1983, the former spouse is eligible only for Champus coverage of health care received on or after Jan. 1, 1985.

Category (2)—Must have been married to the same military member or former member for at least 20 years, and at least 15— but less than 20 —of those married years must have been creditable in determining the member's eligibility for retirement pay. If the date of the final decree of divorce is before April 1, 1985, the former spouse is eligible only for care received on or after Jan. 1, 1985. And here's the new limitation:

If the final decree is on or after April 1, 1985, and before Sept. 29, 1988, the former spouse is eligible for Champus from the date of the divorce or annulment through Dec. 31, 1988— or until two years from the date of the final decree, whichever is later. Former spouses in Category (2) who were divorced (or whose marriages were annulled) from active or retired military members after Sept. 28, 1988, are not eligible for Champus.

During the period of eligibility after the divorce that's described above, the former spouse may enroll in the new U.S. V.I.P. insurance program that's being offered by Mutual of Omaha.

Champus eligibility

Former spouse rules apply only to a single marriage. A former spouse who was married to two service members, with each marriage totaling less than 20 years, but both together adding up to 20 years or more, would not be eligible for Champus even if all other conditions were met. As mentioned earlier, former spouses who are covered by an employer-sponsored health plan aren't eligible for Champus benefits, regardless of any limitations in coverage that the employer's health plan may have.

A former spouse who has remarried loses Champus eligibility permanently, regardless of whether the new marriage ends for any reason. The only exception to this is when the new marriage is annulled because it's illegal in the state in which it occurred. In such cases, Champus eligibility is reinstated as of the date of the annulment.

If the remarriage is to a military sponsor, the former spouse will again be eligible for Champus as a result of the new marriage; his or her status as a "former spouse" will no longer matter.

$50 deductible

An eligible former spouse must pay the first $50 of what Champus determines are reasonable charges ("allowable charges") for covered outpatient services and supplies received from an authorized civilian provider of care in any one fiscal year.

After the $50 "deductible" is paid, he or she must (See Champus, cont'd on page 17)

Worker named outstanding Alabama educator

BY PAM ROGERS

A Missile Command worker has been recognized as an outstanding educator in the State of Alabama.

Dr. Katie Blanding, a university liaison specialist in the Research Directorate of the Research, Development and Engineering Center, won the Education Award in the Governor's Salute to Great Black Alabamians held in Montgomery March 8.

The program, part of the Alabama Reunion celebration, also honored Alabamians in the fields of arts, civic work and religion. There was also a youth award presented.

Blanding was recognized for her role in developing the Missile Command's Science and Engineering Apprenticeship Program, which is an effort to interest young people in careers in research and development, thereby enlarging the pool of future scientists.

"We're aware of the deficiency in the pool of U.S. scientists and engineers. We're trying to correct that starting as early as possible, even in elementary school, and continuing through the post-doctoral level," she said, adding "the problem is a national one that we are addressing from several perspectives."

One of the ways of generating interest in science among young people is through the apprenticeship program, which is open to students in grades 9 through 12.

Blanding is quick to point out that credit for the success of the program shouldn't go to her alone.

"This program is dependent on the willingness of scientists to volunteer to act as mentors. If that element didn't exist, the program wouldn't exist. These folks volunteer to spend eight weeks with a student. I developed the program only with the help of other folks. Nobody does anything alone," she said.

Blanding's hometown is Hatchechubbee, Ala., a small town southwest of Phenix City.

"I grew up on a farm, and have five brothers and one sister," she said. Her father, Baker Blanding, still lives there. All her siblings have moved to the Atlanta area, but one brother would like to get back to the farm, she said.

Blanding has bachelor's degree in social work and a master's degree in student personnel services from Tuskegee Institute, and has a doctorate in educational administration from the University of Wisconsin.

Before she came to Redstone she worked with contracts and grants at Alabama A&M University. Her job here is different, she said.

"I'm pleased to be in this position where I can interact with so many different people. I hope I can do something positive and worthwhile. So far it has been, and I hope it continues."

Contractors chosen for seeker program

The Army has selected Texas Instruments and Hughes Aircraft to develop and demonstrate an imaging infrared seeker, one of several seeker technologies being considered for the Army's new Advanced Missile System Heavy.

AMS-H is a candidate antitank weapon system to replace the Tow.

Hughes and Texas Instruments got approximately $5.1 million and $7.9 million, respectively, under a basic 18-month cost-plus-incentive fee contract to design, develop and demonstrate imaging infrared seeker technology.

Both contractors will conduct ground tests and captive flight tests at Redstone Arsenal and the Army has the option to order flight tests of each seeker design using Hellfire missiles.

IIR seekers can operate at night, during foul weather and in adverse battlefield conditions.

The IIR seeker program is managed by the Advanced Antitank Weapon Systems project office under Col. Earl Finley. Lt. Col. James McCullough is AAWS-H product manager and Capt. Todd Campbell is his assistant for the seeker program.

Intelligence worker didn't expect to stay this long

BY SKIP VAUGHN

After nearly 36 years of government service at Redstone, Mary B. Goodwin has decided to call it quits.

Goodwin, a library technician at Army Missile & Space Intelligence Center, is looking forward to Friday, March 24, her last day before retirement.

"I spent over half of my life on this arsenal. I think it's time to do something else," she said, smiling. "I found out the stores are open during the daytime and you can shop during the day, you don't have to wait till weekends. And there's a whole new world out there so I'm going to become part of it."

A Huntsville native, Goodwin worked here as a secretary from 1942-45. A reduction-in-force after World War II sent her home to finish raising a family.

She returned in September 1956 with plans to work four years while her daughter attended college.

"I put my daughter on the plane to go to college and came out here— this is the same day —came out here for an interview, and planned to work for four years. And I'm still here," she said. "I was going to work till she finished college. By that time, I thought it wasn't going to be too long till the boys go to college and we were used to two salaries and I enjoyed it, so I stayed. I still enjoy it, but I think it's just time to quit."

About 26 of her 36 years of government service have been spent in Missile Intelligence. "I like Missile Intelligence," she explained, laughing. The other 10 years included the three she worked as a secretary in Chemical Warfare Service during the war, and the seven she spent in the Signal Office. When the Signal Office was abolished in 1963, she and several co-workers went to Missile Intelligence. Carl Duckett, the first director of Missile Intelligence, had served as technical adviser of the signal office.

She and her husband, William (who died in 1976), had four children: a daughter, Mary Gray Nelson of Holland, Mich.; and three sons— Pete of Atlanta, Jack of Muscle Shoals, and Joe of Muncie, Ind. "They all have at least two (college) degrees," she said. "Jack has four, Joe has three, Pete has two and then he has some hours on the third one, and Mary Gray has two. Now you know why I stayed longer than four years," she added with a laugh. "They never did get through."

Goodwin, 69, enjoys doing needlework, playing bridge, reading, and of course shopping. "I don't like to do housework," she said. "I used to like to cook, but I don't anymore. It's cheaper to eat out, and when I cook I usually burn it."

She has "loved" working at Redstone Arsenal, she said. "You know, when you stay with the same people for so long you get to be like a family. We've watched each others children grow up, we've been through tragedy. So many of us have been together for so long, it's a close-knit community."

"They're the greatest," Goodwin said, referring to her co-workers. "Missile Intelligence is the best place in the world to work; 26 years with Missile Intelligence— I have to think that or I wouldn't have stayed."

SDC deputy commander sees Army's future in space

BY MARIANNE CLINEDINST

If another war takes place, it may very well be fought in space.

Brig. Gen. Robert Stewart, deputy commander of Strategic Defense Command, spoke with soldiers from the 832nd Ordnance Battalion recently at the NCO Club.

Stewart was an astronaut in the U.S. space program for eight years before going to work for SDC. He talked to the students about his career, mainly dealing with the work he has done in space. Stewart was on two Space Shuttle flights—once in 1984 and again in 1985. While on the 1984 flight, using manned maneuvering, he was involved in two extravehicular activities. His time in space for these two flights totaled 289 hours.

He told the students some interesting information about flying in space. For instance, the shuttle was traveling at a speed of 17,500 mph. Everyone grows approximately 1 1/2 inches in space because the force of gravity is not present.

One of the reasons for Space Shuttle flights is satellite deployment. Stewart said he and the others on the crew also repaired satellites on their mission.

"I wish everyone could have the chance to go into space. The pictures taken from the Shuttle are nothing compared to what you can see with the naked eye," Stewart said.

"The Army is just beginning to move back into the space program after what happened with the Challenger," he said.

Stewart believes the future of the next generation of soldiers is going to be in space. "Soldiers will be doing maintenance, engineering, etc. on satellites instead of CUCV's and deuce and a halves," he said. "The best way to support soldiers in the 21st century will be from space."

He believes what the Army eventually wants or needs is to have a balance of offensive and defensive weapons.

Stewart encouraged young soldiers who were interested in becoming an astronaut to try for it. "The odds are about 35 out of 8,000, but if you don't try the odds are zero," he advised.

Some of the basic qualifications to become an astronaut include a bachelor's degree, a lot of discipline and an engineering and scientific background.

"Protecting and defending the United States in the 21st century will be the same as it is now, except with a different perspective," Stewart said.

He was commissioned in 1964 through the ROTC program at Southern Mississippi, where he was a distinguished military graduate. Stewart had 1,033 hours of combat time as an Army aviator in Vietnam. He has had experience with 38 types of airplanes and helicopters, and has logged approximately 6,000 hours of total flight time.

Technical library here hosts successful conference

A regional conference hosted last week by Redstone Scientific Information Center was a success, according to the RSIC director.

Some 61 information specialists from defense agencies and contractors attended the regional conference for users of the Defense Technical Information Center, said Sybil Bullock. Attendees included users from California, Florida, North Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky and Alabama.

The Defense Technical Information Center is the storehouse for documents used by Defense Department agencies and contractors. Some of the conference attendees toured the Redstone Scientific Information Center, one of DTIC's larger users.

"Kay Grigsby of DTIC said several participants said they had attended a number of user conferences and this was the best one they had attended," according to Bullock. Grigsby is program analysis officer of user services and marketing for DTIC.

Based in Cameron Station, Va., the Defense Technical Information Center was formerly called the Defense Documentation Center. It stores such documents as technical reports, management information summaries of work unit, independent research, and program planning efforts; and has special collections such as a referral database and World War II (Air Technical Index) documents. The technical report database, one of its four databases, has more than 1.6 million documents stored in microfilm of which more than 1.3 million are under computer control.

The regional conference was held March 14-16 at the Holiday Inn, Space Center. A group toured the Redstone Scientific Information Center on the afternoon of March 15.

Each year there is a fall meeting in Alexandria, Va., and five regional conferences throughout the country. This was the first time RSIC has hosted one of the conferences. A committee at RSIC did most of the planning. Committee members included Dorothy Ward, chairman; Doris Cornett, Beth Price, Nancy Stilson, Rose Sidick, Yvonne Stewart, Betty Ingram, and Martha Knott. Knott, a reference librarian, was elected last October by the 4,000 user elements as president of the DTIC users' advisory council.

Group seeks donations for memorial to armored forces

WASHINGTON — A memorial honoring soldiers and Marines who have served in armored units since World War I will rise soon on Arlington National Cemetery's Memorial Drive in Arlington, Va. "It's a long overdue salute to the 'Men of Steel,'" said retired Col. Duke Wolf, executive director for the Armored Force Monument Committee.

The memorial will consist of a 3-foot wall around a 30-by-40-foot oval, and an 8-by-10-foot polished black granite engraving depicting the evolution of armor from the horse cavalry to Vietnam. It is scheduled to be dedicated on Veterans Day 1990.

Maps and the armored history of World War I, World War II, Korea, and Vietnam will be depicted on the walls around the memorial. The monument's centerpiece will be the engraving of the evolution of armor.

The memorial will be located adjacent to the Arlington National Cemetery Visitors Center. About 4 million visitors will see it annually, according to Wolf.

The Armored Force Monument Committee is soliciting donations from veterans and friends of Army and Marine Corps armored forces. The memorial is being financed through donations, not public funds.

"This is a gift from veterans to the American people," Wolf explained.

Retired Gen. Bruce Palmer, who formerly served both as deputy commander of U.S. Army, Vietnam, Army vice chief of staff, is the committee chairman. Retired Gen. Glenn K. Otis, a Vietnam veteran and former commander of U.S. Army, Europe, is senior vice-chairman.

In a recent letter to veterans and friends of Army and Marine Corps armored units, Palmer wrote, "I urge each of you...to help erect a grand monument dedicated to the 'Men of Steel' who fought so gallantly in World War I, World War II, Korea, and Vietnam."

Those interested in contributing to the memorial may write to the committee at P.O. Box 1146, Fort Myer, Va., 22211, or call Wolf at 703-532-0776.

The committee needs $400,000 to erect the memorial. Funding must be completed by November 1989 to dedicate the monument on Veterans Day 1990, the 50th anniversary of the establishment of U.S. Army Tank and Destroyer Forces during World War II.

Sponsoring organizations for the memorial are the U.S. Armor and Artillery Associations; World Wars Tanks Corps Association; Veterans of the Battle of the Bulge; 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment Association; Tank Destroyer Association; 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, and 16th Armored Divisions Associations; Council of Armored Divisions Associations; and National Association of Uniformed Services. "We're very excited about the project," Wolf said. "More than four million visitors to Arlington will see the memorial. We are sure it will inspire soldiers and marines serving in armored units now and in the future." (Arnews)

Insurance advised for mobile homes

WASHINGTON — Do you have enough insurance to protect your mobile home in case of damage?

Regardless of whether your loss of property stems from fire, flood, vandalism or theft, the Army does not pay for damages to trailers, mobile homes, campers or vans that are used for living quarters while parked on military installations.

Army legal officials point out that all mobile home owners should ensure that they have adequate private insurance to protect their property from loss. Renters' insurance is also advisable for residents of military housing.

If you need more information, you may direct your queries to your installation staff judge advocate's claims office. Their advice is free. (Arnews)

Annual Rocket Run scheduled Saturday

Area runners have a choice of a challenging 10-miler or a quicker paced 5-kilometer (3.1 mile) race at the 14th annual Rocket Run on post this Saturday morning.

Both races, and a one-mile fun run, will begin and end at Pagano Gym. Registration starts at 7 a.m., the 10-mile run at 8, one-mile fun run at 8:15, and the 5K at 10. There is race day registration only, with no preregistration required.

Fees are $2 for adults and $1 for students. The fun run is free. The races are conducted by Huntsville Track Club.

"It's generally a flat course," said Ron Clements, the race director. "There's only one significant hill—but it's not that hard—on the 10 mile. The 5K is as flat as a pancake."

"There are no T-shirts, but we do give three trophies in each age division. We have men's and women's divisions," he said.

Male and female age divisions for the 10 mile include 19-under, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, and 50-plus.

The 5K male and female age divisions include 14-under, 15-19, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, and 50-plus.

For more information about the run, call Clements at 883-9871.

Outdoor recreation center has makings for summer fun

BY PAM ROGERS

All federal employees who work on Redstone Arsenal are now eligible to use the facilities and equipment of the Outdoor Recreation Center.

The change has come just in time to take advantage of the assortment of boats the center has for rent, as well as camping and picnic equipment.

The newest additions to the Outdoor Recreation fleet are two Snark sailboats which can hold two people. They rent for $6 per day to military customers and $8 per day to civilians.

Other boats include bass boats, jon boats, canoes, and two pontoon boats. All equipment is available by the day or week for reasonable rental rates. The center can give prices on the equipment you're interested in.

If you're looking for a place to use the things you rent, you don't even have to leave the arsenal. There are two picnic areas with playgrounds on the Tennessee River. There is also a campground with 23 sites.

At the Outdoor Recreation area there are trap and skeet ranges, an archery range and a small picnic area with a covered pavilion.

You can fish in the river with just an Alabama fishing license. If you want to try one of the arsenal ponds you need an Alabama license plus a Redstone permit, which can be purchased at the center.

Williams reminds hunters that turkey season is coming up next month and will be open to military members and their guests only.

Other things to look forward to later on this summer include the Take a Kid Fishing Rodeo and the opening of the post swimming pools, Williams said.

"We're just trying to tell everyone what's going on," she said.

FOR RENT — Shelby Williams and Bill Moreland pose with just some of the equipment you can rent at the Outdoor Recreation Center.

Top basketball team has Redstone ties

A Huntsville boys' basketball team with Redstone Arsenal connections has won the state championship.

The Lakewood 76ers 10-and-under team, coached by Redstone workers James "Mooney" Battle and Charles Hosea, won the state tournament for 10 and under boys March 11 in Hartselle. Thirteen teams from throughout Alabama participated.

Lakewood beat Vestavia Hills 57-37 in the semifinal, and clobbered Taylor Park of Mobile 64-22 in the final. "I had an awesome team, man," said Battle, a supply technician at Missile Logistics Center. It may be an understatement for his team that sports a 27-0 record, the city championship, the Alabama Recreation Parks Society (ARPS) district two championship, and now the state title.

This was Battle's second year of coaching this team. Last year they were runner-up in the city, didn't fare all in the district, and didn't make it to the state tournament. Still, they were 19-2 last year.

"We're on our way to the Junior Olympics which will be in July in Kansas City—they say it might possibly be moved to Washington, but right now it's Kansas City," Battle said. Hosea, the team's assistant coach, is a supply technician at the Research Development and Engineering Center.

The team, which represents Lakewood Recreation Center, is sponsored by Earl Fitcher, a budget analyst at Material Management Division in Missile Logistics Center.

Several Lakewood 76er players are sons of Redstone workers. The players include Brad Phillips, Corey Battles (whose father, Ezra, works for the base support contractor), Quinton Collier, Bryant Toney (whose mother, Carolyn, is a keypunch supervisor at building 4488), Chris Gaines, Rodney Rogers (whose father, Walter, works at building 4722), Edward Ford, Kenya Hambrick, Chauncey Ford, Jason Gholston, Bernard Smith (whose mother, Linda, works for Servicemaster), Jerry Kellum, and Jermaine Kent.

Officers wives explore 'cottage industry' opportunities

Members of the Officers Wives Club learned just what it takes to operate a business from home during a recent meeting which spotlighted club members who are involved in cottage industries.

There were 19 exhibits by club members who have their own businesses, including crafts, home party sales, travel services, custom-designed gifts, gourmet foods and exercise instruction.

Maj. Greg Taylor of the Missile Command's Staff Judge Advocate office gave a talk on the legal aspects of small business ownership, concentrating on the laws governing operating a business from government quarters and the state and federal tax laws.

Patricia Perry of the combined UAH/Alabama A&M Small Business Development Office gave a talk on how to start a small business.

Judy Link, vice president of the OWC, coordinated the event, and was delighted with the outcome.

"I'm amazed at the amount of talent we have among our members. I hope that we can make this an annual event," she said.

She added that anyone who is thinking of starting a business can get help from the Small Business Development Office at 535-2061.

TRAVEL CONSULTANTS — Nancy Hecker (left) and Sally Shepard will plan tours for any group. They have already planned European tours for the Officers Wives Clubs of Washington, D.C. and Redstone.

BASKET BUSINESS — Emily Parsons and her daughter, Monica, pose with some of Emily's custom-made gifts she creates for her business, The Basket Gourmet.

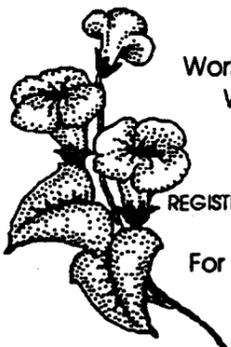

AEROBICS INSTRUCTION — Ann Patterson discusses her business, the Aerobic Dance Company, with Trina Maxwell.

Misfits return to winning groove in MLC bowling

BY JUANEZ ALEXANDER

The Misfits halted their seven-game losing streak by taking three games from the Alleycats in Missile Logistics Center bowling.

The pressure could be felt as the Cats made their bid for first place, but, alas, it wasn't meant for the Cats to defeat the league leaders. Misfits, led by Rob Ruiz with a 220 game and 587 series, retaliated under the pressure. Teammate Juanez Alexander shot a 503 series. Substitute bowler Jim Owens bowled a 527 series for the Cats.

Lanes 3 and 4 proved to be a battle of skill as the Spoilers and Comic Relief squared off. Ken Brooks led the onslaught for the Spoilers with a 203 game and 584 series, while teammate Lorenza Elliott shot a 208 with 556 series. Comic Relief countered as Butch Norckauer rolled a 513 series, Sheila Norckauer bowled 23 pins over her average and substitute Beverly Smith shot 39 pins over her average. These two teams split with two games each. As a result, the Spoilers advanced into second place over the Alleycats by 1/2 game.

The hot spot of the alley were lanes 5 and 6 where the Luckies beat the Bounty Hunters three games. Five 500-plus series were bowled on these two lanes. They were bowling an almost scratch game since each team's handicap was almost identical. Rodney Crawford rolled a 533 for the Luckies while teammates Don Cunningham shot a 527 series and substitute Bobby Browder bowled a 202 game with 573 series. Roy Brown shot 33 pins over his average for the Bounty Hunters while substitutes Ted Gerard shot the high game of the night with a 224 and a 577 series and Don Slagle had a 503 series.

Betty Grymonprez bowled 27 pins over her average and Art Nottingham shot 26 pins over his as Art & the Honeybees snatched three games from the Challengers.

Mickey's Crew grabbed three games from the Pollaks as every member of the Crew bowled above their averages for the night. Pacing the Crew was Jack Klein who shot a 201 with 585 series. Teammates Mike Polka rolled a 559 series while Celeste Klein bowled 46 pins over her average and Juli Polka shot 30 pins over hers. Not to be outdone and giving the Crew a lot to worry about, Hank Lemke rolled a 211 game with 558 series for the Pollaks. Teammates Edie Lemke rolled 26 pins over her average and substitute Ray Ebersole shot a whopping 61 pins over his average for a 516 series, but even this good bowling couldn't stop the Crew.

Melanie Johnson bowled 21 pins over her average, substitute Mary Doss shot a 201 game with 501 series and hubby Bill Doss rolled a 519 series as the Family whipped up on Behind the 8 Ball and took all four games. Tom Robertson shot 43 pins over his average for Behind the 8 Ball.

The Avengers stomped Papa Smurf & Smurfettes as they took four games. Roosevelt Readus broke his low-rolling by shooting a 512 series while teammate Ellis Hambrick shot 38 pins over his average for the Avengers. Smurfette Karen Caraway bowled 40 pins over her average.

Tommy Miller shot 56 pins over his average for the Screwballs while teammates Tracy Tipton rolled 26 pins over hers and substitute Sonya Son bowled a 506 series. Results from this match were not available at presstime since the Pinheads will have to make up their game. But, guys, you'd better be up to par if you want to beat the Screwballs in these games.

Here are the MLC league standings after last week's games: Misfits, 61 1/2 wins, 30 1/2 losses; Spoilers, 56 1/2 wins, 35 1/2 losses; Alleycats, 56 wins, 36 losses; Comic Relief, 54 1/2 wins, 37 1/2 losses; Luckies, 53 1/2 wins, 38 1/2 losses; Art & the Honeybees, 51 1/2 wins, 40 1/2 losses; Bounty Hunters, 51 wins, 41 losses; Mickey's Crew, 45 wins, 47 losses; Family, 44 wins, 48 losses; Challengers, 43 1/2 wins, 48 1/2 losses; Pollaks, 43 wins, 49 losses; Behind the 8 Ball, 38 wins, 54 losses; Avengers, 37 1/2 wins, 54 1/2 losses; Pinheads (pending makeup), 36 wins, 52 losses; Screwballs, 35 1/2 wins, 52 1/2 losses; Papa Smurf & Smurfettes, 25 wins, 67 losses.

Local 'Crime Stoppers' program helps solve crimes

A local program in which citizens can get rewards for tips leading to solving crimes has resulted in more than $1.5 million in recovered stolen property and narcotics.

Huntsville Area Crime Stoppers has resulted in $1,527,077 in recovered stolen property and narcotics recovered since its inception in February 1984. Some 586 cases have been solved and $37,045 in rewards have been paid out through February 1989.

Redstone Arsenal was represented at a Crime Stoppers board meeting last Thursday in which monthly and annual reports were given.

"We also have a pretty good crime prevention program (at Redstone Arsenal), so it'll either be myself or someone from the crime prevention program but we'll have a representative here from now on," Capt. Wayne McGurk of the Provost Marshal Office told board chairman Ray McDaniel.

Bobby Smith, executive director for Crime Stoppers, read a list of nine cases solved and their recommended rewards for March. These included a parole violation, credit card theft, fugitive, three auto theft cases, and three worthless check cases. In each case, a source will be receiving a reward for his or her helpful information. Rewards ranged up to $150.

As of March 14, the Crime Stoppers reward and operations fund had a balance of $7,814. "It looks pretty good," said Bruce Gardner, treasurer. "We're significantly ahead of where we were last year at the same time."

In Crime Stoppers, crimes are reenacted on television and viewers are given a telephone number they can call with information. The board viewed a 30-minute tape of a prototype national Crime Stoppers show. It voted to give WAAY-TV 31, which airs the local reenactments, the go-ahead to pursue airing the national show.

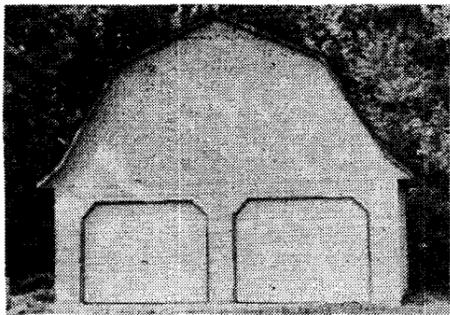

Besides McGurk, the 14 attendees at Thursday's meeting included Charles Thorpe of Investigations Branch, Provost Marshal Office.
