Radon testing slated to start soon in housing area

Buildings on Redstone Arsenal will be tested for radon under an Armywide program which begins here May 15.

Radon is a radioactive gas which occurs in nature from the natural breakdown of uranium. Army installations worldwide are to assess radon levels in their buildings and, when necessary, reduce those levels. The only known health effect associated with exposures to elevated levels of radon is an increased risk of developing lung cancer.

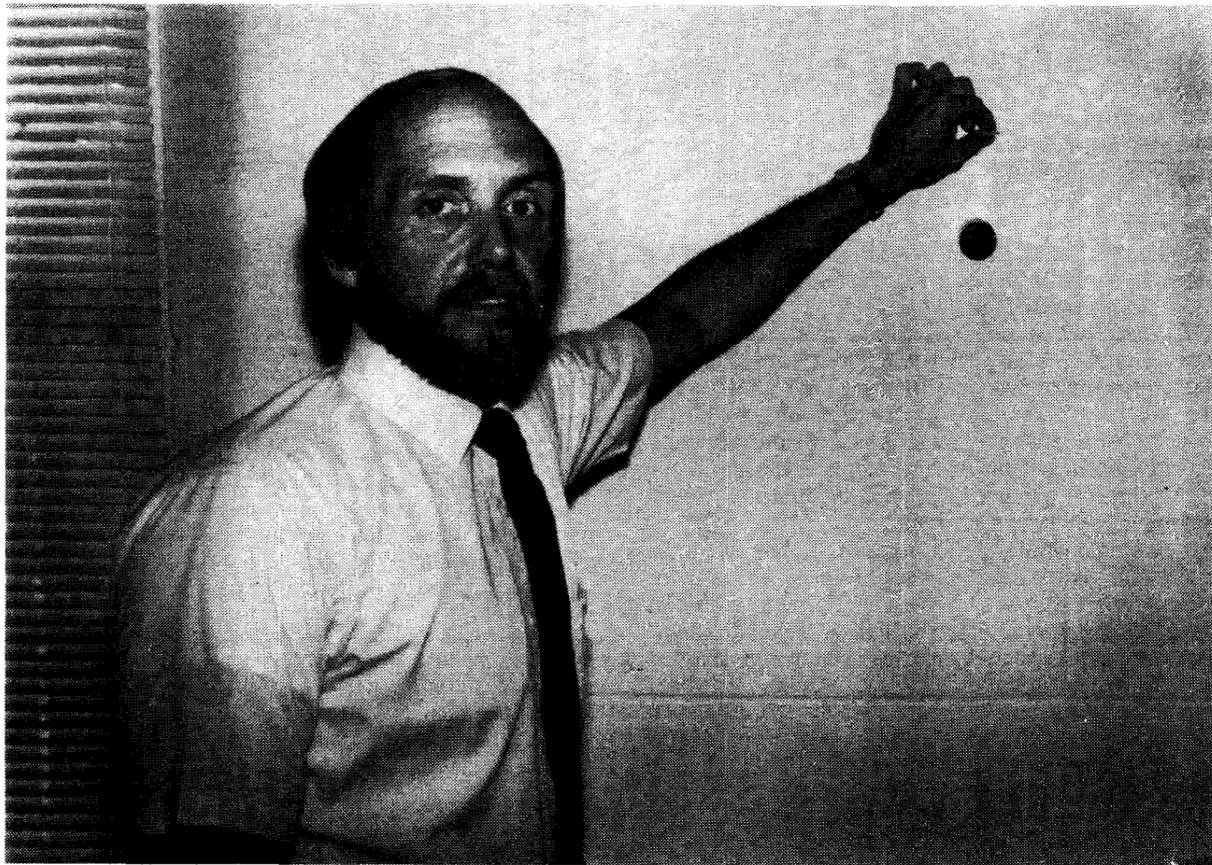

According to Army guidelines, detectors will first be placed in priority one buildings which include family housing units, day care centers, schools, barracks and hospitals. Redstone will start by hanging 2,500 detectors in such buildings which includes the 1,171 family housing units. After 90 days, these detectors will be collected and sent to a contractor for laboratory analysis.

"As soon as we get the results back, we will be notifying people immediately — good or bad," said Dan Seaver, an engineer in the Environmental Office. "Of course, we anticipate good results but good or bad we will be notifying housing residents."

Testing will then begin in the rest of the Army buildings here. Priority two buildings are those occupied 24 hours a day, such as communications centers. Priority three buildings include the remainder of the structures — the office buildings, warehouses and igloos. The priority two and three areas will generally be sampled for one year.

The Army wants to test at the ground floor of each building. In the larger buildings, this means testing at every 2,000 square feet of ground floor area. In residences, this means the lowest living area or the basement. "Fortunately we don't have any basements here on the arsenal," Seaver said. Radon can be found in high concentrations in soils and rocks containing uranium, granite, shale, phosphate, and pitchblende. Radon may also be found in soils contaminated with certain types of industrial wastes, such as the byproducts from uranium or phosphates mining. In outdoor air, radon is diluted to the extent that it is usually nothing to worry about. Once inside an enclosed space such as a home, however, radon can accumulate. Indoor levels depend both on a building's construction and the concentration of radon in the underlying soil.

"There is some concern nationwide that radon gas in homes can present a health hazard, specifically increased risk of lung cancer," Seaver said. "We just mainly want to assure ourselves there are no high readings on Redstone Arsenal and, if by chance we find that level, we can reduce that level."

An individual's risk of developing lung cancer from exposure to radon depends on the concentration of radon and the length of time he or she is exposed. Exposure to a slightly elevated radon level for a long time may present a greater risk than exposure to a significantly elevated level for a short time.

The Environmental Protection Agency has set a limit of 4 picoCuries per liter as a safe radon level. A picoCurie is a measure of radioactivity in the air, with a liter being a liter of air. "For instance, if you have a level of 15 picoCuries, this is equivalent of smoking one pack of cigarettes a day as far as increasing your lung-cancer risk," Seaver said.

Priority one buildings with 4-20 picoCuries would be retested for a year. If the retested level is above 4, Army policy would be to reduce that level within one to four years. Buildings with levels from 20-200 should have those levels reduced within six months. In the rare case of a level above 200, the level would have to be reduced within 30 days or the occupant removed.

Testing should be completed by 1991. Terradex Corp. of Glenwood, Ill., the contractor supplying the alpha-track detectors Armywide, will analyze the results in the lab. "The Army worldwide has gone to great lengths to quality assure the results of the samples," Seaver said. These quality assurance measures include the following: every 10th detector hung will have another detector nearby and both

Research center adopting city elementary school

School for young science students becomes latest addition to Army's Adopt-A-School program

BY SKIP VAUGHN

A Huntsville city school for first through fifth graders interested in science will be adopted May 8 by the Research, Development and Engineering Center.

The Academy for Science and Foreign Language will become the latest school to enter into an agreement with a Redstone organization for educational assistance such as speakers and tours. The program that encourages education such arrangements is called the Adopt-A-School program.

"It's an AMC (Army Materiel Command) directed program — actually it came from Department of Army — where Redstone as an installation is involved with the schools in the area, both high school and elementary," said Dr. Mary McGough, chief of Army continuing education and a member of Redstone's Adopt-A-School committee. "And what we do is work through the city board of education and try to identify first what the school needs are and then find an activity or organization here at Redstone that can meet the needs."

The Huntsville Center for Technology was adopted last November by the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School. On May 8, the Academy for Science and Foreign Language will enter into a similar arrangement with the RD&E center. The academy, formerly Davis Hills Elementary, is a 340-student magnet school, meaning that it attracts students from throughout the city. It basically teaches all of the elementary school courses with an emphasis on the subjects of science and foreign language. Plans are to add a sixth grade next year.

"We'll support them as best we can in promoting science and engineering thinking in the elementary school," said Dr. Katie Blanding, university liaison specialist at Research Directorate of the RD&E center.

"It helps us and it helps them too," she said, referring to the cooperative arrangement. "We're all working toward a common goal — trying to advance scientific thought in children, trying to interest them positively in the areas of science, in learning to enjoy science and learning to enjoy math."

Year's contract

The adopt-a-school arrangement is a contract for a year. "You actually sign a document saying you will support some activities defined by school officials," Blanding explained. "There are some special needs the school can identify and you agree your organization can assist them."

The RD&E center will be assisting the school through such activities as scientific lectures, tours, and missile firings. Also, the youngsters and teachers can visit on a prearranged basis to actually do some research in the laboratories and interact with the scientists here. "We do a lot of that anyway, this just makes it official," Blanding said.

Judy Kirk, the science specialist for Huntsville city schools, said the academy will benefit from Missile

Rideout drivers

Editor:

The one lane traffic entering and exiting Redstone Arsenal at Gate 9, Rideout Road really shows the true character of people. The behavior of the drivers can be classified in one of these categories:

1. The majority of the drivers are polite, considerate, and cautious. They will slow down and leave adequate space to allow cars to merge at Goss Road and Gate 9 or at Highway 20 and the overpass outside Gate 9. Thanks to these drivers for making a difficult and time-consuming situation better.

2. There are some drivers who are rude, inconsiderate, and reckless. They will speed down the right lane passing 50 or more cars waiting their turn to enter the one lane detour. After passing the cars, these drivers give a left-hand signal at the detour area and "buck" the line. This action causes everyone in the line to come to a quick stop, creating a hazard as well as delaying the flow of traffic.

If everyone would take a place in the line of traffic at the rear of the line, we would all get to work or home sooner. Maybe the MP's could be available at the merging points to stop the selfish drivers from endangering others by their reckless driving and delaying the flow of traffic.

Post golf course

Editor:

We the undersigned would like to thank the MICOM commanding general, his staff, and members of the Community and Family Activities Directorate, for their excellent presentation on March 29 in which they stated various reasons for "civilianizing" the Redstone Golf Course.

In their presentation, they carefully detailed the golf course's continuing financial problems, need for extensive renovation work on front and back nines, proposals for construction of a new clubhouse, an additional nine holes, and installation of a new sprinkling system throughout the course. They also presented in a clear and concise manner the existing membership policies of some 17 other U.S. Army golf courses in Alabama and surrounding states, as they pertain to civilian DoD personnel, active-duty Army, and retired Army personnel.

It was also during this presentation that they learned firsthand of the strong feelings the military retirees have about "their" club, and the reasons for the total disillusionment and disgust which most civilians harbor concerning the Redstone Golf Course. We believe that it is now time to move forward, that the civilians on this post send a strong message to the decision-makers that the civilian work force no longer intends to stand for being treated as "red-haired stepchildren."

Before any final decision is made, please consider the following:

— The Redstone Golf Course was built in 1957-58 with a substantially large amount of dollars from the Civilian Welfare Fund/taxpayers' monies.

— At the completion of construction of the golf course, a decision was made to disallow civilians the use of the course/membership in the facility, thus renegeing on a previously printed policy.

— In 1972, over 8,000 civilian golfers petitioned the Redstone Arsenal CG to allow civilians to join/play Redstone Golf Course or to build another golf course somewhere on the post just for civilians. A compromise was made — civilians would be allowed to play as long as they had one active-duty military type in each group, but only on certain days of the week. This firmly established a "good ol' boy" concept/private club for retirees.

— Only with recent congressional legislation requiring all NCO Clubs, Officers Clubs, and military golf courses to support themselves did the "problem" (lack of revenue) move to the front burner.

— In 1988, because of the need to raise a substantial amount of dollars to keep the golf course solvent, civilians were allowed to play, but only on certain days of the week, and with no call-in tee-time reservations allowed.

— The views of military retirees are not going to change... they have demonstrated for years that they do not care about what is fair or what is best for the Redstone Golf Course. It is our belief that they would rather see the golf course disked and turned over, allowed to go to seed, than have civilians join and be allowed the same rights and privileges as they themselves have enjoyed for some 31 years.

The Missile & Space Intelligence Center (MSIC) golfers have been sponsoring their own tournaments at Redstone Golf Course for the past 15 years. Generally, we have an average of 36 golfers participating in any MSIC-sponsored tournament, and we had six tournaments last year. With an average of 36 people participating — each paying $8 for green fees, and assuming half of these players (18) rent a cart at $12 each, and at the conclusion of the tournament each person has probably spent another $4 in tees, balls, food, beer/soda, etc., the gross revenue from our outing is from $450-$500 for the Redstone Golf Course.

Although we are but 82 golfers from MSIC, we believe that a statement must be made to the decision-makers which will get their attention. Effective immediately, the MSIC Golf Association is beginning a formal protest. Our monthly golf tournaments will no longer be played at Redstone Golf Course, we will no longer support the Officers Club, NCO Club, or Redstone Golf Course with buying of lunches, dinners, or merchandise of any sort, and we will cease playing any rounds of golf at the course until a fair and equitable decision is made. Can Redstone Golf Course afford to lose revenues, resources, and personnel, that we, or groups like us, have to offer? It does not have to happen! All anyone from the civilian sector wants is for Redstone Golf Course to get in step with the rest of the Army community by making things fair and adopting a tee-time system which would allow active-duty military a one-day-in-advance priority over civilians and military retirees.

If the Redstone Golf Course were truly civilianized, we estimate that MSIC would have from 20 to 40 personnel with annual memberships; we would play two tournaments or golf leagues each month, and a large number of us would be interested in joining the Men's Association to volunteer our time, resources, expertise in an effort to help make Redstone Golf Course a better place to play, with enough events/tournaments for all to enjoy.

We ask that a decision be made that will be fair and equitable for all, and most importantly, be beneficial to Redstone Golf Course. Your proposed membership criteria presented on March 29 was excellent; of having tee-time priorities for active-duty personnel only, and then on following days have all civilians and military retirees eligible to walk up or call in for priority tee-times. If this plan were implemented, it would certainly put Redstone Golf Course in step with the other aforementioned Army golf courses, recognize the needs of active-duty military, and support/promote the theory of a "One-Army" concept.

At this time, we will not ask any of our civilian co-workers, friends, or fellow Redstone golfers/groups to join in our protest, but we reserve the option to escalate this protest to a more significant level should a decision be made which perpetuates the present "status quo."

We do, however, encourage all our fellow Redstone Arsenal civilian golfers to attend the CG's next golf forum (not yet scheduled) and let your views be heard.

Your attention to this matter is appreciated.

National Day of Prayer observed on May 4

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. — May 4 marks the 37th consecutive observance of the National Day of Prayer. Though days of prayer are found throughout our history, and the National Day of Prayer has been in existence since 1952, this is the day's first year as a specific calendar date. Following unanimous action of both houses of Congress, President Reagan signed a bill on May 5, 1988, making the National Day of Prayer the first Thursday of every May.

The National Day of Prayer Task Force and its parent, the National Prayer Committee, urge all Americans to become involved personally in the observance. "Now that the National Day of Prayer is a specific day that can be anticipated and found on our calendars, we trust that many more Americans will join in thanking God for His many blessings upon this land and in praying for the future of our nation," stated Vonette Bright, co-chairman, with entertainer/author Pat Boone, of the National Day of Prayer Task Force.

Senator Mervyn Dymally is quoted in the Congressional Record on the day of the Senate vote as stating, "The National Day of Prayer is a celebration of the 'free exercise' clause of the First Amendment. Let us join in spirit with the Founding Fathers to acknowledge God's role in our lives and to turn to Him for personal and national guidance."

The National Day of Prayer Task Force is responsible for coordinating and distributing information and materials to interested groups and individuals around the country. The task force says its goal is to help make citizens aware of their right, privilege and responsibility to pray for our nation, its leaders and its people on this historic day.

A network of state and city coordinators and sponsoring churches from many denominations are encouraging individual and group prayer as well as special services and gatherings. Ministries represented on the National Prayer Committee include: The Salvation Army, World Vision, Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, Campus Crusade for Christ, Youth With a Mission, United Prayer Ministries, Change the World Ministries, International Prayer Ministry and Support for Action. The committee's Board of Reference includes more than 70 members.

The National Day of Prayer Task Force also has an advisory committee including Jewish, Catholic and Protestant liaisons.

AER campaign surpasses $33,000

The Army Emergency Relief campaign here has raised $33,596 so far, according to the AER fund-raising chairman for 1989.

The goal is to collect $60,000 by May 15, Lt. Col. Richard Richey said Friday.

Army Emergency Relief is a non-profit organization that provides financial assistance in times of emergency need for active duty and retired military and their families. It also provides an educational assistance program for spouses and dependent children of soldiers.

The two methods of contributing are cash and payroll deduction. Through payroll deduction, a contributor can give out of his or her check every month for from three to 12 months.

Richey welcomes calls from anyone who would like to contribute to AER; he can be reached at 876-5750/2693.

detectors will be sent to the lab to ensure they get the same results; 3 percent of the detectors will first be sent to another lab so they will have a known value beforehand; and 2 percent of the detectors sent to the lab will be unused detectors that should record a zero reading. "Fifteen percent of our detectors will be used for quality assurance — 10 percent co-located, 3 percent spiked, and 2 percent blanks," Seaver said.

Redstone expects to use about 5,000 detectors for the entire testing program. At least 2,000 of the first 2,500 detectors will be used for priority one buildings, with the remaining 3,000 used for priority two and three buildings.

"We would hope that there will be no significant (radon) levels," Seaver said. "We anticipate that we could definitely have a few that would exceed the standard by some small amount. But we would hope we would not have a significant — very high — reading that would require some mitigation within 30 days."

Reducing levels would involve sealing cracks and openings to assure radon cannot seep up from the ground into the building, and also improving ventilation so that radon gas does not accumulate. In an extreme case, radon gas might be suctioned away from a building through a simple pipe fitted with a fan; this would draw the radon gas out of the subsoil before it can enter the building.

"We're going to start canvassing the housing area and installing the detectors," Seaver said. "It's only going to take a few minutes at each home to install one of the detectors and get the information we need." The Directorate of Engineering and Housing has hired six temporary workers for the summer to help hang the detectors and later retrieve them from the priority one buildings. Seaver asks that residents cooperate by letting them inside.

Before coming to work here about 14 months ago, Seaver had worked for the state of Alabama and was involved in a statewide radon study about two years ago. About 27 percent of the homes sampled in Madison County were found to exceed the 4 picoCurie level, he said.

"It's my opinion that we're doing a good thing to test all of these houses (on post) because no one can predict where radon might be," Seaver said. For more information about the radon program, call him at the environmental office 876-6122.

Asian-Pacific American Week slated May 6-13

BY SGT. MAJ. RUDI WILLIAMS, USA

American Forces Information Service

The Department of Defense will observe Asian-Pacific American Heritage Week from May 6 to May 13. This year's theme is "Asian-Pacific American: Participation—Partnership—Progress."

May is a significant month for this segment of American society. Ceremonies to kick off the observance will be held on the National Mall in Washington, D.C., on May 6. May 7 marks the 146th anniversary of the arrival of the first Japanese immigrants to America. May 8 is the 120th anniversary of the driving of the "Golden Spike," signifying the contributions of Chinese Americans toward building the transcontinental railroad.

In the Asian-Pacific-American category, there are 28 Asian and 26 Pacific Islands subgroups. They include Japanese, Filipino, Chinese, Vietnamese, Korean, Hawaiian, Samoan and Guamanian. Members of these groups have made major contributions to the American way of life in agriculture, the sciences, medicine, commerce, government, philosophy, art, music, medicine, space and the military services.

There are nearly 50,000 Asian-Pacific Americans in the military services today, and their numbers are growing.

Easily the most famous Asian-American military outfit, the 100th Infantry Battalion, a Japanese-American unit, formed in Hawaii in June 1942. Its smaller "brother" unit, the 442nd Regimental Combat Team, was formed in 1943.

In less than two years, the two units had successfully fought in seven major military campaigns. The Congressional Record reported that they had received, among other awards and citations, "a Medal of Honor; 52 Distinguished Service Crosses; one Distinguished Service Medal; 560 Silver Stars with 28 oak leaf clusters; 22 Legions of Merit; 15 Soldiers Medals; 4,000 Bronze Stars with 1,200 oak leaf clusters; 9,486 Purple Hearts; seven Presidential Distinguished Unit Citations; two Meritorious Unit Service Plaques; 36 Army commendations; 87 division commendations; 18 decorations from allied nations."

It was called the most decorated unit for its size and length of service in the history of the United States.

There have been nine Medals of Honor awarded to Asian-Pacific Americans.

Personnel office explains files kept on federal workers

Editor's note: The Civilian Personnel Office provided the following information about the Official Personnel File/Merged Records Personnel Folder and the Employee Master Record.

An Official Personnel Folder or a Merged Records Personnel Folder is maintained on every federal employee.

An OPF contains records and documents relating to civilian employment under Title 5, U.S. Code. A MRPF contains records and documents relating to employment under both the civil service personnel system and another federal personnel system (i.e., Tennessee Valley Authority, U.S. Postal Service, Civilian Intelligence Personnel Management System, etc.).

The OPF and MRPF are the official repositories of the records and reports of personnel actions affecting an employee's civilian federal service and the documents and papers required in connection with these actions. As such, in accordance with Federal Personnel Manual supplement 293-31, the OPF or MRPF are the property of the Office of Personnel Management. The Department of Army is only the custodian of the OPF or MRPF of its civilian employees.

Office of Personnel Management has specifically designated what may be filed and what may not be filed in these folders. Some of the prohibited documents include letters of appreciation; photographs; SF 171, Application for Federal Employment other than the original copy; letters of reference; testing examination material; performance award or incentive award based documentation other than the SF 50, Notification of Personnel Action; training certificates, diplomas; resumes; complaint correspondence; school grades, etc. These are just a few of the prohibited documents.

Any civilian employee may review their OPF or MRPF by calling 876-5794 to make an appointment. Appointments are accepted from 9:30-10 a.m. and 1:30-2 p.m. each workday. No walk-in traffic can be accommodated. An appointment will be made for a return visit.

Requests by employees to have a copy of any document will be accepted, but will be accomplished at a later date. The copied material will be forwarded to the requester upon completion. A charge will not be made for the first copy.

An Employee Master Record is an automated record maintained on each civilian employee serviced by the Civilian Personnel Office. Small businesses invited to Procurement Fair

BY SANDA LAGER

Small businesses looking to land a government contract can learn how to increase the likelihood of doing so at the Small Business Procurement Fair '89 on June 15 at the Von Braun Civic Center.

One event of the weeklong activities planned June 11 through 17 during Armed Forces Celebration Week, the fair's focus will be information booths giving instructions to small businesses on how they can tailor their bids to individual governmental agencies.

Local agencies, including the Missile Command, Strategic Defense Command, Army Corps of Engineers and the George C. Marshall Space Flight Center, will provide literature outlining how bids must be submitted to their respective agencies.

This year, governmental agencies in the outlying area have also been invited to participate, said Doris Wambeke, of the Procurement Directorate's Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization Office.

The Small Business Procurement Fair, sponsored by the Alabama Small Business Development Consortium in cooperation with Senators Howell Heflin and Richard Shelby and Congressman Ronnie Flippo, has three purposes, Wambeke said.

"First, to give small businesses the opportunity to expand government contracting; second, to give small businesses the opportunity to expand into the subcontractor field; and third, as an educational event.

"Businesses already bidding one agency's contracts can find out how to bid on another agency's goods or services," said Wambeke, since each agency has a different procedure.

"It will also give small businesses an opportunity to expand into the subcontractor area," she said, pointing out that 90 prime contractors have been invited to exhibit their products and talk about subcontracting opportunities within their companies.

"Prime contractors are required by law to place at least 20 percent of its subcontracting with small businesses on any government contract they are awarded over $500,000."

The training sessions scheduled during the day include topics such as Errors and Omissions in Bidding; How and Where to do Business with the Government; Price/Cost Analysis; Quality Assurance; Regulations Addressing Defective Pricing, Fraud and Abuse; Military Packaging; Ins and Outs of Minority Contracting; and Handling Contract Disputes.

Various Missile Command elements have been invited to take to the fair samples of the things that are bought here, Wambeke said.

This is the second year the Small Business Procurement Fair will be held in conjunction with Armed Forces Celebration Week.

"The response to the fair was good last year, and we're hoping that this year the turnout will be even better," Wambeke said.

Literature tables will be set up at the civic center in the hallways with the seminars being conducted in the parlors, she added.

LITERATURE — At last June's Procurement Conference for Small and Disadvantaged Businesses, literature on how to bid on government contracts was in sharp demand. A similar exhibit will be set up at this year's Small Business Procurement Fair at the Von Braun Civic Center June 15.

A small business is generally defined as one with less than 500 employees, unless in the case of a janitorial service, for example, it would be defined by the gross income rather than the number of employees.

Brochures have been mailed to small businesses in Alabama and Tennessee presently doing business with the Missile Command, but the hope is that through word of mouth and publicity, new businesses will be reached, Wambeke said.

A luncheon has been planned that day at 11:45, also at the VBCC, and Bill Montalto, a member of the Pro-urement Policy Council for the Senate Small Business Committee, has been invited as guest speaker.

"Unfortunately, there are people here who are turned off by small business, but in so many cases the prime (contractor) goes to them, so why not go directly to them. It would be cheaper to do so, and it broadens the industrial base in the case of a national emergency," Wambeke said.

She hopes for a successful fair again this year, noting that "we have some great small businesses in this area, not just in manufacturing, but in the high tech, high level research and development type work."

Redstone Fire Department thanks training officials

The Redstone Fire Department has expressed its appreciation to two training officials for their support in providing visual training aids to firefighters.

Dr. Delia Black, chief of training and career management branch at Civilian Personnel Office (CPO), and Anne League, Army Learning Center system coordinator, were honored by Assistant Chief Willie Pope, the fire department's training officer.

"They have assisted in visual aid and we just wanted to show our appreciation in presenting the award," Pope said.

The certificate of appreciation to Black stated, "The training support offered by the Learning Resource Center has been a great asset to fire department personnel in many ways. Please accept our sincere appreciation for making the Learning Center available to Redstone Arsenal Fire Department."

The letter of appreciation to League stated, in part, "It is to your credit that the firefighters on this installation have enhanced their knowledge in having the opportunity to review training films on various subjects. Your efforts in aiding the Fire Department by making visual aids, such as safety on the job, drugs and aids in the work area, available to firefighters have contributed greatly to the firefighters increased well being."

A Huntsville-based contractor, SciTek, manages the local Army learning center system. The four learning centers are located at buildings 3349, 7446, Fox Army Community Hospital, and Strategic Defense Command in Research Park. SciTek also manages a CPO training center in Madison.

Top drill sergeants receive honors from competition

FORT MONROE, Va. — The Army's Training and Doctrine Command honored its two top drill sergeants of the year during a colorful ceremony.

This year TRADOC named SSgt. Merle P. Edington, Fort Jackson, S.C. as the active Army Drill Sergeant of the Year. Edington is a native of Medford, Ore.

SSgt. Christopher A. Baer, 95th Division, Midwest City, Okla., was chosen as the Army Reserve Drill Sergeant of the Year. Baer, who lives in Norman, Okla., is the second consecutive Army Reserve Drill Sergeant of the Year to come from his unit.

Both Drill Sergeants of the Year received the Meritorious Service Medal and the "Army Times" Eugene P. Famiglietti Award, named in honor of its late editor, at the ceremony.

During a special ceremony to be held in May at the Pentagon, Edington and Baer will receive the Stephen Ailes Award and the Ralph E. Haines, Jr. Award, respectively.

The Ailes Award, initiated in 1969, is named after Stephen Ailes, a former Secretary of the Army who spearheaded the formation of the drill sergeant corps in 1964. Haines was the former commander of the Continental Army Command, which was located at Fort Monroe until TRADOC was established in 1973.

In addition to their other awards, the two winners each received from retired Army CSM Doug Russell, a representative of the Association of the United States Army, an AUSA gold watch. The association will also invite the winners to attend the National AUSA convention in Washington, D.C., Oct. 16-18.

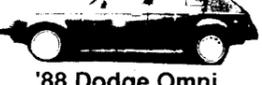

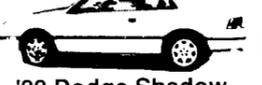

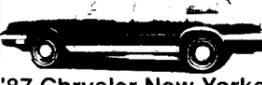

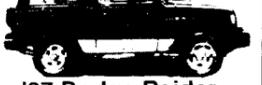

Edington and Baer will return to their units to act as advisors on initial entry training policy and Reserve issues, respectively. Both winners will serve as points of contact between the TRADOC commanding general and drill sergeants in the field.

The active duty runner-up is SSgt. Kurt D. Lugo, Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. SFC Brendan R. Toth, 76th Division, West Hartford, Conn., is the Reserve runner-up.

This year's competition featured representatives from 19 active duty installations, 12 Army Reserve training divisions and two separate Army Reserve brigades from throughout the United States. The competitors had already won preliminary, local Drill Sergeant of the Year competitions which qualified them for the Armywide competition. (TRADOC News Service)

Command resources such as assistance from scientists, speakers, and field trips to MICOM.

"We want to put a concentration on science in our school, and we feel through real-life science they can learn more rather than just through science in the classroom," Kirk said. "We want to expose them to science in real life. Many highly qualified scientists are in MICOM and we want to expose the children to these people."

The adoption contract is for one year "but we would like for it to be an ongoing thing with our school," she said.

Ceremony

A breakfast to be followed by a ceremony is scheduled to begin at 8:15 a.m. May 8 at the academy, located at 3221 Mastin Lake Road in northwest Huntsville. Buford Jennings, acting director of Research Directorate and director of the Directed Energy Directorate, is to address the group.

The annual Adopt-A-School luncheon will be held at noon May 12 at the Huntsville Center for Technology at 2800 Drake Ave., according to Darlene Davis, director of micro-computing and coordinator of the Adopt-A-School program for city schools. At least 30 organizations will be honored for their support of the program, including Redstone's participants, she said.

The Army's Adopt-A-School program began in 1984 at the direction of the White House which observed 1983-84 as the National Year of Partnerships in Education. As part of the overall national effort, the president directed all federal departments and agencies to support local Adopt-A-School programs. The program objectives include improvement in the quality of local school systems, and enrichment of school curriculum using non-traditional resources.

At Redstone, the Adopt-A-School committee is a subcommittee of the Human Resource Council which is headed by Col. Perry Butler, the deputy post commander. The committee held its first meeting Feb. 9. Members include Shirley Mohler of Child Development Services, Blanding, McGough, Sheila Wilson of Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School, Jim Vann of Strategic Defense Command, Russ Asson of Force Development at MICOM, and Judy Milner of Community Counseling Center.

"We are the committee that serves as the liaison between the schools and Redstone," McGough said, "so that the community knows they have one point they can contact to get assistance and, in retrospect, the arsenal knows they have a contact if they want to offer services. And we try to marry the two, or merge the two needs."

State safety education van on display at Redstone

A mobile teaching lab from the Alabama State Department of Education is helping the Missile Command observe May 1-5 as "Safety Awareness Week."

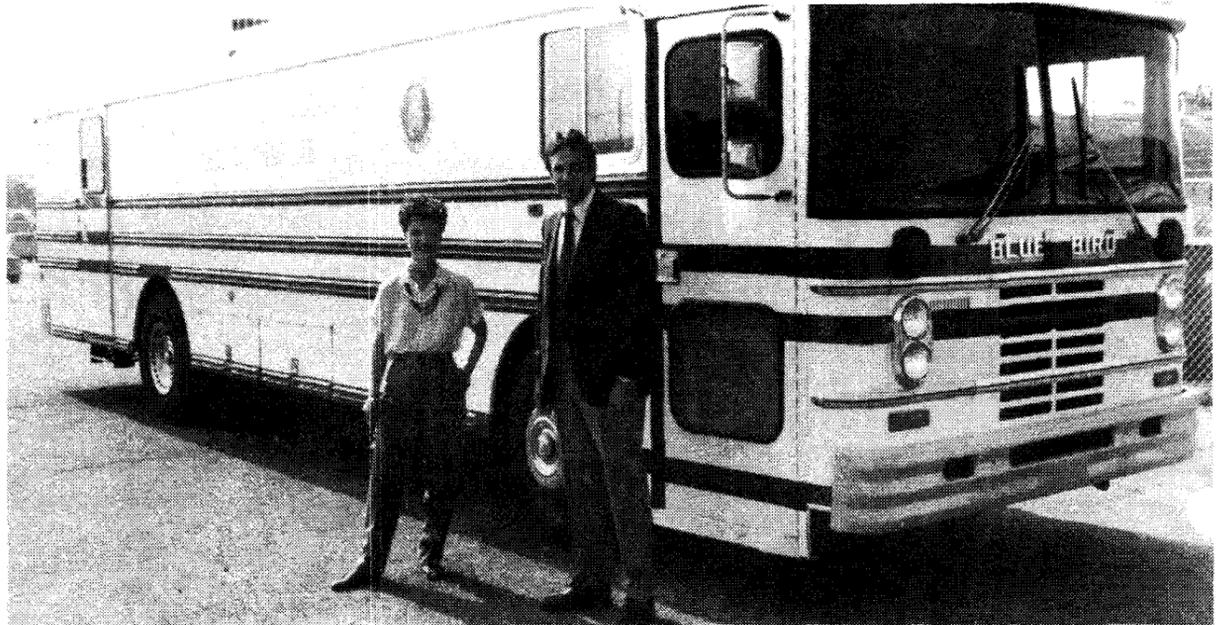

The large van will be on display to the public at the Post Exchange parking lot May 3-5, according to Dian Avery, a safety and occupational health specialist in MICOM Safety Office.

People will be able to use the van's two driving simulators and also watch motion pictures on highway safety. "They have driving simulators that create visualizations of actual road conditions," Avery said. An operator can see the same effects as if he or she was behind the wheel and had consumed a certain amount of alcohol.

"There will be people from the state there Wednesday (today) and Thursday," Avery said. "And all of this is courtesy of the state department of education; they sent the bus at their expense and they sent the personnel at their expense."

The Department of Army is observing May as "Army Safety Awareness Month." Gen. Louis Wagner, commander of Army Materiel Command, and Maj. Gen. Gus Cianciolo, commander of MICOM, have endorsed and committed their support of the program.

"MICOM is observing Safety Awareness Week, May 1-5, with kind of the culmination and a lot of activities going on Friday the 5th," Avery said.

SAFETY VEHICLE — Dian Avery of MICOM Safety Office and Jackie Hammock, an education specialist with Alabama State Department of Education, stand next to the Driver & Traffic Safety Education Mobile Teaching Lab.

Price is right in science fair

A Redstone youngster will be competing in a state science fair competition May 6 at the Montgomery civic center.

Rebecca Price, 10-year-old daughter of Maj. William and Nancy Price, took third place in district competition for anthropology. The district 9 competition was held April 22 at the University of Alabama in Huntsville's Student Center. A week earlier, she had placed second in the Huntsville city science fair, her father said.

Rebecca is in the fourth grade at Morris Elementary. The Price family, from Lubbock, Texas, arrived here in June 1988.

Drug seminar features football star

A former All-America running back for the University of Alabama will be among the speakers at an annual Drug Prevention Seminar here Friday.

Ricky Moore, now a free agent in the National Football League, is to speak at Friday's seminar set for 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the Post Theater and 6 p.m. at the Youth Center. Also on the program are four state inmates from the Alabama Department of Corrections' "Free by Choice Program" out of Montgomery.

The seminar will last an hour to an hour and a half, according to John Garceau of Provost Marshal's Investigations Branch which sponsors the annual event. State inmates have been regular speakers at the seminars since the beginning about four years ago, but this is the first time the program will include a noted sports figure.

"We try to get someone different every once in a while," Garceau said. "I figure Ricky Moore might be different for the young guys."

Moore, who is from Huntsville, played for the Alabama Crimson Tide from 1981-85. He was selected for All-America and All-Southeastern Conference in 1984.

The seminar is open to the entire community, Garceau said. For more information, call 876-2090.

Read the fine print before buying credit life insurance

Editor's note: Capt. North is chief of legal assistance at Office of Staff Judge Advocate.

BY DONALD NORTH

Many soldiers when faced with the purchase of a new or used automobile will have to decide whether to purchase credit life insurance which is offered by most car dealers.

Credit life insurance is a form of term insurance which protects the buyer in case of his/her death by paying the creditor the balance of a loan or amount owed on goods which have been purchased. Credit life insurance policies can be quite expensive, sometimes costing as much as $800. As a buyer, you should be aware of what you are purchasing. Remember, only you can determine if you need credit life insurance.

There are some important facts the buyer needs to know. Few auto sales representatives are insurance salesmen, therefore, their knowledge of the provisions of the policy is limited. You should know that the term policy is only valid on the insured obligator's life and not on his spouse's life. Most credit life policies carry a certified health statement which means that if you are under treatment for any illness, disease, or physical disability you do not qualify for coverage. Most buyers believe that they are in good health and do not consider routine medical visits as treatment for illness or disease. Although the insurance company does not conduct pre-existing illness investigations, a thorough review of the death certificate is done after a death before coverage is paid. The company will refuse payment on the policy if it discovers that the buyer was under any type of medical treatment, so the buyer in essence has no additional insurance coverage. Another fact to know is that most policies provide a suicide exclusion that prevents payment of the policy in the event that the insured takes his/her own life. Also note that most policies require an insured person to work a minimum number of hours per week in order to qualify.

Here is an example of certification which may appear in a local purchase contract: "I hereby certify to the best of my knowledge that I am in good health and I am not under any illness, disease, or physical disability. I make this statement with the intent of inducing the insurance company to issue the insurance evidenced by this certificate. I, the obligator, am gainfully employed and am working over 30 hours per week."

If the insurance company refuses to honor the policy, a soldier's spouse may decide to file a cause of action against the credit life insurer and the auto dealer for fraud and breach of contract. To protect your legal rights, here are a few tips:

- When you go to a dealership to purchase a car, be sure to carry a witness with you.
- Make sure to record all medical disclosures made to the salesman.
- Do not agree to purchase the insurance until you have read the policy carefully.
- If you have questions about the policy, contact the issuer of the policy. Record the name of the insurance agent who gives you additional information. The agent should refer you to a specific provision in the policy. The representations made by auto salesmen will not create insurance coverage for an otherwise uninsurable party. The auto dealer, acting as an agent on behalf of the insurance company, will provide you with a copy of the insurance policy. The claim that a dealership misrepresented a policy must be made before an insured buyer dies; his surviving spouse is unable to do this.

A simple comparison of the cost of credit life insurance with term life insurance strongly suggests that a soldier may purchase enough insurance to cover the balance owed on the vehicle for very little cost. For example, some insurance companies advertise the sale of term life insurance for as little as $2.50 per month for $50,000 worth of term life insurance coverage. With term life, the coverage remains $50,000 for the life of the mortgage so that the beneficiary will receive any difference in the remaining balance owed on the vehicle and the value of the policy. On the other hand, if a soldier pays $800 in premiums for $10,000 worth of credit life insurance coverage, the coverage is only for the amount he owes on the vehicle and decreases monthly.

Soldiers should become more knowledgeable about credit life insurance before they agree to purchase it. They should note that credit life insurance is offered for a wide variety of purchases in addition to automobiles, such as real estate and major household appliances. During the haste of purchasing a car or appliance is a most inopportune time to determine if you need credit life insurance.

Bass anglers winding up district season

The North Alabama military bass anglers will have their last district point tournament of the 1988-89 season on May 6 at Decatur Boat Harbour.

They will be meeting tonight at 7 at the NCO Club. "I'm going to have a surprise special guest at the meeting, and we would like to invite all the members to attend. I think they'll enjoy it," said Don Larimore, district director for North Alabama Military Bass Anglers Association (MBAA).

"Also at the meeting, the final point standings up to the date will be presented to the members so they can check their point standings and positions," he said.

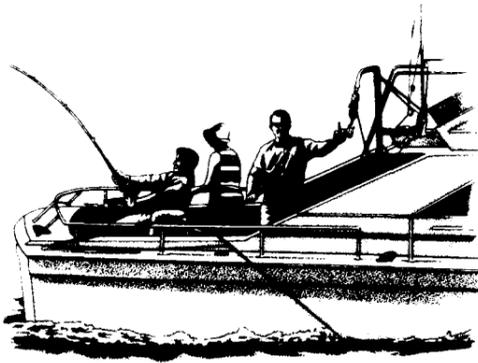

Saturday's tournament will be the fifth and last district point tournament of the season. "And we have had a fantastic year as far as participation from the members," Larimore said. "We have put double point tournaments on the water for all the tournaments so far."

Double point tournaments mean enough people ave showed up to divide the competitors into two flights; so there would be a winner for each of two flights rather than just one overall winner. "All the district tournaments so far have been double pointers," Larimore said.

And competition has been close, with only about 9 district points separating the first through sixth place anglers so far. John Brannen leads the way with 299 points, out of a possible 300, followed by Mo Sheehan with 297.

"We've had real good support and participation, and we're looking forward to an as good or better next year," Larimore said. For more information about North Alabama MBAA, call him at 876-4137/4138.

This season's district point tournaments have included Oct. 15, 1988 at Browns Creek, Guntersville Lake; Nov. 12, 1988 at Elk River near Rogersville (moved from Wilson Lake because of rough weather); March 4 at Browns Creek; and April 22 at Goose Pond, Lake Guntersville.

PAGEANT-BOUND — Joshua Pietsch, 3-year-old son of SSgt. Tim and Judy Pietsch, will be competing in the national "Cover Miss and Cover Boy USA" pageant in June at Ft. Walton Beach, Fla.
