Modern components give old car new lease on life

Dwight Gooch's car is 55 years old but like a late model in many respects.

Among its modern features are a high-performance engine and transmission, custom suspension, interior done in tweed fabric and deerskin, chrome wheels with knock-offs and radials, multi-speaker sound system, retracting antenna and air conditioning.

Gooch describes the car as a "street rod", an antique fixed up to drive and perform like a modern automobile. And it should: He spent more than $20,000 and untold hours building it.

He started with the stripped body shell and frame of a '34 Ford three-window coupe. To that he has artfully mated mechanical components of late model cars and replaced or repaired rust-eaten sheet metal.

For the power unit he chose a Chevrolet 327 engine and turbo 400 automatic transmission, both modified for performance. A '72 Ford police car contributed the rear end. The steering is from a Vega. A Camaro supplied the disk brakes and a Mustang the master cylinder. Gooch himself fabricated the triangulated four-bar rear suspension.

The top has been chopped and its original canvas insert replaced with a ribbed roof panel from a Vega station wagon.

The deerskin door panels were done in Iowa.

The motor is covered in chrome. The engine compartment, frame and undercarriage are clean and bright and like the rest of the car show Gooch's fastidious attention to function, fit and form.

The exterior is finished in Porsche red lacquer.

"I like to be different in what I drive," offers Gooch, 42. He has worked here for 21 years and is an artist with the graphics section in building 4489. He also free lances house plans and limited edition prints. He lives in Athens.

He travels to major street rod shows in the southeast as a sales representative for Charlie Baucom's C.B.I. Street Rod Parts Company.

NEW OLD CAR — Dwight Gooch has fixed his '34 Ford to run and drive like a modern car.

Street rodding, says Gooch, "makes driving a pleasure instead of just a means of transportation." And driving, he insists, is what the hobby is about primarily. Showing is secondary.

This month he drove the street rod to Evansville, Ind. and plans to attend a meet in Pigeon Forge, Tenn.

during September. His wife, Debra, and daughters, Paige, 4, and Ellen, 2, often accompany him to shows.

This '34 Ford is Gooch's ninth street rod. It likely won't be his last. During the six years it took to build the car Paige and Ellen were born. Now he needs a two-seater.

International triathletes to compete at Redstone Arsenal

BY SKIP VAUGHN

For the first time ever, part of an international triathlon will be staged at Redstone Arsenal.

The 224-mile bicycle leg of the Double Iron Triathlon, Sept. 3-4, will be held on post. The fifth annual race also consists of a 4.8 mile swim and a 52.4 mile run.

"The race is gaining more importance all over the world now," said Inge Seen, a volunteer helper with the event and wife of Lt. Col. Bernhard Seen, the German Air Force liaison officer here.

"This year 48 people will come from all over the world. The first year, we had around 25," she said. Countries represented include the United States, Japan, France, The Netherlands, West Germany, Mexico, and Austria. There are two women competitors, one from Mexico and the other from Austria.

The international race seems to go virtually unnoticed locally. "The Double Iron Triathlon is worldwide known, all over Europe especially, but almost nobody knows about it in Huntsville — only the inside people involved in the race, but no outsiders watching the race," Seen said. "I think that's a little bit of a shame."

Dr. Raymond Sheppard, a Huntsville physician, is the race director along with his wife, Nancy. "They try to make it famous, they try to get it to the public," Seen said.

In 1987, the Seens were asked to help out by letting some of the European athletes stay in their home. They consented and one of the athletes, Sepp Resnik of Austria, wound up finishing fourth. Last year, Guy Rossi of France stayed with them and he too finished fourth. "After the race, an American came to me and said, 'Mrs. Seen, can you take care of me too because I want to be fourth in the race,'" Seen recalled.

The 4.8 mile swim has always been in the Tennessee River, but the 224 mile bicycle portion was conducted through the Labor Day weekend traffic on Huntsville's Andrew Jackson Way. "Can you believe how this works on a Sunday with all this traffic? It was dangerous and luckily there was no accident in this race for four years," Seen said.

"This year is the first year that they got the allowance to do the bicycle course on Redstone Arsenal. And I think that's great and everybody's real thankful for this opportunity to use Redstone Arsenal," she said. Col. Perry Butler, the deputy post commander, and Lt. Col. Elton R. Stephenson, the provost marshal, granted permission.

The competitors will start out with the swim at 7 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 3 at the Ditto Landing boat dock. The best swimmers should be back about two hours later. They'll leave the water and immediately begin the bicycle portion. The route goes to Buxton Road through Gate 2. They'll take a right turn onto Patton Road, proceed to Neal Road, ascend the hill on Neal Road, and turn right onto Rideout. At the end of Rideout, they make a U-turn in front of Gate 9. They will bicycle this course eight times to complete 224 miles.

After finishing the eight loops, the competitors will exit Gate 2 and go to Bailey Cove Road. They will make the transition from bicycling to running at Grissom High School. They will then run several loops between Four Mile Post and Green Mountain for 52.4 miles, the equivalent of two marathons. The competitors must be finished by 7 p.m. Sept. 4 after 36 hours. The top finishers will complete the grueling event early that morning.

"The interesting thing is this year we will have a very competitive race because the course record holder and two-time winner, Ken Wiseman of America, will be racing against the two other winners, Martin Feijen from The Netherlands and Jim Freim of America," Seen said.

Feijen won last year in 23 hours, 18 minutes and 38 seconds. Wiseman set the world record in 1986 in 22:28:12. Eiko Endo of Japan, not a competitor this year, set the women's record in 1987 with 26:33:21.

Labor Day

Editor's note: The following is a Labor Day message from the commander of the Army Materiel Command.

Labor Day will be observed on Sept. 4 this year. The three-day weekend will give us our last chance to enjoy the summer. It is also a time to be extremely careful. Our AMC family has been fortunate in that we have had no fatal or serious accidents over the summer holidays. I do not want that to change.

You can protect yourself, your family and friends by increasing your safety awareness. Take this holiday to relax with your family, don't overindulge or overextend yourself. I want you back to work on the following day — not recovering from an accident or injury.

Mrs. Wagner joins me in wishing the AMC family a safe Labor Day weekend.

Gen. Louis Wagner
AMC commander

Thanks for giving

Unfortunately, we don't have the names of all the individuals who have contributed. Even if we did, the number would be too large to list here, but we would like to list the organizations who have done so much: HHD, 269th Ordnance Brigade; C Company, 73rd Ordnance Battalion; HHD, 832nd Ordnance Battalion; A Company, 832nd Ordnance Battalion; B Company, 832nd Ordnance Battalion; C Company, 832nd Ordnance Battalion; D Company, 832nd Ordnance Battalion; German Air Force Detachment; Electronics and Technology Training Department, OM-MCS; SHORAD Division, Air Defense Training Department, OMMCS; Officers Wives Club; Redstone Arsenal Fire Department; Missile Command IG Office; Chaparral Project Office; Plans and Management Division, Resource Management Directorate; CI Division, Intelligence and Security Directorate; Procurement Division C, Procurement Directorate; System Engineering and Production Directorate, Research, Development and Engineering Center; Servicemaster.

Deer alert

Editor:

Recently, I have seen several articles and letters to the editor concerning the deer/vehicle strikes and deer kills on the Arsenal. These instances could be avoided by attaching to the front bumper of your vehicle a simple device called "Deer Alert" available for under $8 at KMart and probably other merchants. Air flowing through the device emits a sound that only animals can hear and it scares them away. It might be a good idea for the Army to require people who drive regularly on the Arsenal to have a pair of the Alert devices on their vehicles. A "Deer Alert" is a lot less expensive than body work to a vehicle or medical treatment for injury to driver and/or passengers, to say nothing of the injury to the animal.

Right to negotiate

Editor:

We have finally won the right to negotiate on the Alternative Work Schedule. If all goes well, we will begin our negotiation immediately.

I told you in my last letter that I had been to Washington and was a part of 32 civil service and post office organizations. We worked with the leaders of Congress and the heads of agencies on several different issues that affect government employees. I am happy to report on some of those issues.

Health Insurance: The House and Senate have approved a bill called the "Phantom" Plan. This plan has been sent to President Bush and he is expected to sign it. This plan will hold the insurance benefits and cost as is, except there may be a cost of living increase.

The Hatch Act has passed the House and Senate and will move to a Conference Committee.

The House and Senate will start working on a permanent solution for the Federal Employees Health Benefit Program (FEHBP), which was thrown for a loop when Aetna withdrew on June 1. The "Phantom" bill will give the House and Senate 12 months to find a permanent solution for the FEHBP.

Pay is still an issue in the House and Senate.

Both houses are working on the contracting-out practices.

I hope this information will be helpful. If you want to help, join with us and make a big noise. United we stand, divided we fall. We need you and you need us — so let's work as a team — 1991 will be a very hard year for all of us.

I want to thank the large number of members who came to our regular meeting on Aug. 14. We had a

EEO counselors still being recruited

The MICOM Equal Employment Opportunity Office has extended its recruitment period for new EEO counselors.

Recruitment for employees willing to serve as counselors was originally scheduled until Aug. 31 but will continue to Sept. 15, according to Barbara Alexander of the EEO office.

"The Equal Employment Opportunity Office has received numerous calls regarding EEO counselor recruitment," she stated. "The following information is submitted in response to the inquiries.

"The position of EEO counselor is a collateral duty position and will be so reflected in the official job description. It is not a full-time paid position physically located in the EEO Office. It is not mandatory for the EEO counselor to relocate to the EEO Office while conducting the informal counseling.

"The cost of the training will be prorated," Alexander continued. "The cost of the five-day training is good meeting. Just remember, the second Monday evening of each month at 5:30 p.m. at building 5250, main conference room. See you there.

A vital task

Editor:

I enjoyed your fine article on the "Small office with a big mission" in the Aug. 23 issue. The customer services section of CPO performs a vital task.

Mrs. Barbara Morrissey, the section chief, is exceptionally knowledgeable about her work. When I arrived in Huntsville in February 1989, I had had a problem with health insurance for two years. Two other personnel offices did not even understand the problem. Mrs. Morrissey not only understood, but took direct action to correct it.

It is a pleasure to deal with hardworking professionals who really know what they are doing like the people in the Customer Services Section at CPO.

Excellent course

Editor:

I enjoyed your article (Project office leaders complete acquisition course, Aug. 9 Rocket) describing seven students' reactions to the excellent Program Management Course offered at the Huntsville campus of the Defense Systems Management College. This superb class, under the direction of Dr. Jay Billings, brings together all of the disciplines that are needed to understand and successfully manage a weapon system acquisition in today's environment of constant change, budget restrictions, and increasing micro-management.

I was disappointed, however, to read that you totally ignored the other 28 students (of which I am one) who also labored through the very intensive coursework, including 10 others who are stationed at Redstone Arsenal. We represent the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, DOD civilians, the Federal Aviation Administration, the Government of Spain, and even one contractor.

It may have been difficult to interview us (although we all have telephones), but surely you could have at least acknowledged we were classmates of those seven "project office leaders."

approximately $300. The organization from which the counselor is selected is responsible for the payment. It is anticipated that the course will be conducted in November 1989. The course is offered by Office of Personnel Management and will be conducted on-site at Redstone Arsenal."

Any full-time permanent employee of MICOM or any serviced activity located at MICOM, with the exception of civilian personnelists/specialists, may request consideration for selection as an EEO counselor, Alexander said. Civilian personnelists/specialists are prohibited from consideration.

The memorandum requesting consideration for an EEO counselor should be submitted through the supervisor to the Equal Employment Opportunity Office (AMSMI-EO), building 5250, room A-104.

"The EEO Office appreciates the interest shown by prospective EEO counselors," Alexander said. For more information, call her at 876-8005.

Employees share opinions on alternate work schedule

BY SANDA LAGER

With the recent announcement that the Missile Command will, at the union's request, negotiate an alternate work schedule for non-supervisory employees here, some workers were asked to share their views on the subject.

Paul Bracy, a GS-13 international program manager for foreign military sales, security assistance management directorate, is in favor of an alternate work schedule.

"For those of us who like to go out of town on weekends it would be great," he said.

"Having a three-day weekend would enhance attitudes which is commensurate with better productivity," said Bracy.

"But I do support employees having a choice in the matter. For some people it may not be feasible to work long hours in one day," because of the long distances some people travel to and from work, and those people would be "burned out" by the end of the day, he said.

For others, however, this would not present a problem, he added.

"At least we should have (AWS) on a trial basis and if it doesn't work out we could always change back," Bracy said.

Impact on child care

Russ Asson, a GS-12 management analyst in the force development division, resource management directorate, also thinks if AWS becomes a reality, individual employees should be given the choice of participating.

While some may be enthusiastically in favor of it, others like himself, he said, would be negatively affected by AWS.

"Personally, if I were forced to follow a long work schedule each day, my ability to take care of my children would be affected," said Asson, explaining that beginning work early and getting off early now allows him to work out a schedule with his wife whereby one has the child care responsibilities in the morning and the other in the afternoon.

"A longer, mandatory day wouldn't meet the needs of lots of people. For many, it might increase their day care costs," Asson said.

"I think if we adopt AWS, we should allow people to choose if they want to participate," he said.

Asson, too, foresees that a longer work day may create a "fatigued" workforce. "If people are forced to work longer hours productivity may decrease," he said.

Colette Glover, a GS-7 secretary in the MICOM chief of staff's office is not in favor of AWS, neither for herself nor for the command.

"I'm in a job where we sometimes need answers at 7:30 or 4 o'clock. Even now, with flex-time we have a lot of problems with people not being in the office (early or late) when we need an answer. And that happens to be the only person who can provide the answer," Glover said.

She foresees that with an alternate work schedule, this problem would become even worse.

Glover said she would not choose an AWS for herself because "three day weekends would become equal to a two day weekend. I'd end up taking three days to do what I normally accomplish in two now," she said.

Extra day off

Barbara Alexander, works in the equal employment opportunity office where she is a GS-11 EEO specialist.

"I like the idea. The 10-hour day, four day week would be best for me because this would give me an extra day to conduct my personal business," she said.

"I don't think having a long day would bother me that much because on the occasions where I've worked overtime I find that the hours past the normal eight hours are the most productive for me," Alexander said.

While Martha Sue Binner, a GS-11 program analyst in the joint theater missile defense project office personally favors the AWS for herself, she thinks AWS should not completely replace a traditional work schedule; that people should have the opportunity of choosing what's best for them.

"If we're going to allow employees to choose what work schedule to follow, then we also have to let people choose to keep the work week they have now (eight hour day, five day week). If we didn't, then it wouldn't truly be an alternate work schedule," she said.

"It's a real morale booster to give employees the opportunity to be in control of their working hours," Binner said, adding that, in general, she believes when people are given control over their lives they want to do a good job.

"Of course with an alternate work schedule there would be problems, but we already have those problems — abusive employees and unreasonable managers. The problems won't go away but will just follow the new system," she said.

The real key to making AWS work is cooperation between employees and management, Binner said.

"Productivity would increase if employees were allowed to decide what hours of the day they're most effective," she said.

Energy saving

"I'm all for it," said Ricky Moore, a GS-5 legal clerk in the legal office.

"If the arsenal would close one day every week it would really cut down (operating) costs. It would save energy and cut out one day of driving for people who drive long distances," he said.

Moore would still favor an AWS even if his "off day" should be a day other than a Monday or Friday, he said, and while personally he would prefer the 4-10 (10 hour days, 4 day weeks), the 5-4/9 (eight nine-hour days, one eight-hour day with the 10th day off within each pay period) would be his second choice over the present eight hour, five day week.

"It would help the morale of workers to have a day off," said Moore.

Wes Stiel, a WG-13 integrated electronic system mechanic works in the missile division of the Redstone Arsenal Support Activity.

"For myself and others who travel a long distance to and from work, I'm all for it (AWS). It would mean getting off the road one day a week or a day every other week," said Stiel. Stiel lives in Albertville — a 108 mile round trip.

Stiel foresees some problems AWS would present in the shop he works in, however. He explains: "Safety regulations require that in electronics work, one person cannot work alone, we have to work in teams of two."

Even at present, problems are created when one employee takes time off. But the solution now is that employees shift around to "take up the slack" created by absences.

"But if you have one person on emergency sick leave, for instance, and you go and try to pull from elsewhere but that happens to be his day off under (AWS), then what do you do?"

"We'd have to shut down the electronics equipment," he said, and wonders how the work would ever get done.

The shop's function is to support the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School in electronic repair on all missile systems, he said. Since his understanding is that OMMCS would not be affected by AWS if the union should be successful in negotiating AWS for MICOM employees, he thinks his shop would fall behind in keeping the work up.

Stiel thinks energy costs would "go through the roof" if MICOM operated 10 hours each day, and assuming the option was to not close the post one day each week, five days each week.

Women's military service memorial a 'must'

BY PAM ROGERS

One only has to look as far as the armed services to see the battle women have fought for equality in our country through the years.

This is according to Wilma Vaught, a retired Air Force brigadier general who was here last week to address the attendees at Friday's Women's Equality Luncheon.

Vaught, who retired in 1985 after a career spanning more than 28 years, likes to explain the struggle for equal rights in terms of what women have endured in the more than 200 years of unofficial and official military service.

"It has been a struggle for equity because we started out not being paid, with no benefits, no entitlements, no rank and no privileges," she said.

According to Vaught, women's service in the American military forces began at the time of the American Revolution when George Washington petitioned the Continental Congress to provide nurses and matrons to care for sick and wounded soldiers.

"They were not members of the armed services as we think of now," she said.

"Women also disguised themselves as men, and they were officially in the Army," she said. Women also served during the Civil War, she added, but there was no official organization for women until later.

"There was no organized, official presence until 1901 with the establishment of the Army Nurse Corps. In 1908 the Navy established the Navy Nurse Corps. Women have been serving in those corps continuously since that time," she said.

There were nurses in the military during World War I, but they had no rank, and the Navy took in women for clerical jobs to free men for sea duty.

During World War II the military services took women in record numbers — about 400,000, according to Vaught.

"It got more equal, but the promotions, decorations and entitlements were not the same," she said. Women were not given allowances for dependents, and in some cases, were not even allowed to live with their husbands.

Vaught was one of the relatively few women who served in Vietnam.

"There weren't very many women — only about 7,500 — most of them nurses. From my perspective it was simply a matter of going and doing my duty," she said. She was assigned to the comptroller organization at the Military Assistance Command Vietnam headquarters in Saigon.

"I was there for a year and eight days. It's the only tour I could tell you exactly," she said.

Today's military is a much better place for women, Vaught believes.

"They're more accepted by their subordinate, peers and leaders. That's not to say everything is perfect, but it's so much better than 20 years ago," she said.

Vaught finds that women in the military today are surprised to find that many of the things they take for granted, like entitlements to family housing and dependent status for their husbands, have only come within the last decade or so.

Vaught believes the entire nation should have an opportunity to learn what women have experienced during 200 years of military service. That's why she's serving as president of the board of directors of the Women in Military Service for America Foundation.

The foundation has secured permission to build a monument to military women at Arlington National Cemetery, and construction is slated to begin in 1991. The monument will be designed to integrate the existing structure within the main gate, and will contain exhibits and a computer data bank which will provide biographical data and personal memories of each woman registered with the foundation.

"It's truly time it must be done, because of the great changes. There are women still left who experienced them and can tell their stories. There are incredible numbers of women who served in World War I who are still alive and can tell about their service. We can capture that history from the very women who lived it. (See Memorial, cont'd on page 11)

Soldier overcomes obstacles to earn college degree

BY SANDA LAGER

What a mind can conceive a person can achieve. Lofty words, indeed. But thoughts and dreams can become realities, and did for one Redstone soldier.

"I always wanted to go to college," said Warrant Officer Willie West who was awarded a football scholarship to Mississippi Valley State University after high school.

"I didn't get the chance to go, though," he said. And the month after high school graduation, he was in the Army.

West still didn't give up his idea of furthering his education and his first move was to enroll in the LaSalle Extension University where he completed enough correspondence courses to get a diploma in business management.

"I couldn't go to school because of my commitments (in the Army)," he said. "I also learned that business was good, but not my cup of tea. I started working more toward the social arena. I was attracted to people and problems; I wanted to be able to help them."

As a result, West enrolled in a philosophy course while stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C., and began working toward the completion of a four-year degree.

Then he was transferred to Germany and had to put his education on hold once more because he was taking military courses in order to qualify to become a warrant officer.

West had risen fast through the ranks — from E-1 to E-7 in approximately 10 years. It was while he was stationed in Stuttgart, Germany, that he was accepted into the warrant officer program.

During his next assignment, here at Redstone, he found he once again had an opportunity to attend college.

"I went to the Education Center and learned that I could get (college) credit for more than I realized. Taking all my military courses into account I found I had more credit than I needed for an associates degree. Of the total 96 hours I had, 45 of those were from my military education alone."

West then took five courses at Calhoun, needed to establish residency in Alabama, to get an associates degree in general education.

Next, West enrolled at Athens State and in 1987, received a bachelor of science degree in sociology.

"Despite my military obligation, I attended class two nights every week and four nights each week during the summer," he said.

West speaks highly of the Army education center and of Theresa Hamilton, director of the Redstone Arsenal Calhoun extension office there, who was instrumental in helping him put together a package that gave him degree credit for his military education.

The education center and the two colleges associated with it, Calhoun and Columbia College, will assist any soldier who wishes to continue his or her education by assessing all past courses, including military education, and giving due credit for it.

West, 37, is enrolled at Alabama A&M University and has completed one year's work toward a masters degree in counseling and psychology. He attends classes two nights each week and at his present pace, hopes to complete degree requirements by the fall of next year.

"Right now I'm not drawing up any specific plans about what I want to do with my life after the Army. That time will come when I get out. But I do want to be prepared to continue in the civilian sector as I have in the military, to do my part to protect this country," said West.

One of the possibilities might be to work with veterans in hospitals and with kids from fatherless families, he said.

"Kids need courage to cope with life — to stay drug free. I've never taken any kind of drugs and I want to be a role model. I'd like for kids to see that there are other avenues besides being an actor or athlete. I'd like for kids to have role models in education," West said.

His mother gave him a good value system which he still relies on today. "I thought she was awfully hard on me, but she was both mother and father to me and she was the one to keep the reins pulled in on me," he related.

West, who is single, lists his hobbies as basketball, weight lifting, running and an occasional game of tennis.

His "job comes first," West said, and also lists his religious beliefs as a primary emphasis in his life.

West, a native of Greenville, Miss., is assigned to the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School. He works in the command and staff department, logistics missile section.

He was selected as instructor of the month in January 1988. West has 19 years of active military duty in the Army. Two of his brothers are also in the Army: one is a second lieutenant in the military police corps and another is a sergeant first class in the signal corps.

Picker likes Notre Dame as college football opens

BY SKIP VAUGHN

It seems like Notre Dame just finished whipping West Virginia for the national championship.

Now Notre Dame will have to start down the road toward defending its mythical title as a new college football season opens this week.

Before getting down to the business of picking winners, allow me to reintroduce myself. This is the weekly "Skip's Picks" feature, the Rocket's contribution to the world of college football prognosticating.

Each week during the season, there will be some educated (?) guesses on the outcome of selected games in major college football. The point spreads only indicate how strongly I feel about a given pick; they don't count against the won-loss record. It's tough enough just trying to predict who's going to win.

Skip's Picks will be here all the way up to the bowl games. And now for the opening predictions.

Notre Dame is loaded again. The Fighting Irish have nine returning starters on offense and eight on defense from a national championship team which finished 12-0. Quarterback Tony Rice (6-1, 200) can play catch all day long with speedy receiver Raghib "Rocket" Ismail.

Virginia, their opening opponent on Aug. 31, returns nine starters on offense and on defense from a team which finished 7-4 and was runnerup in the Atlantic Coast Conference. The Cavaliers are led by quarterback Shawn Moore, who set a season record for total offense with 2,526 yards in 1988.

The Cavaliers can be tough, but hey, they're playing the defending national champs. Skip's Pick is...Notre Dame.

Here are my prognostications on selected games for the first week in college football:

- Notre Dame vs. Virginia — Notre Dame by 10.
- San Diego State at Air Force — Air Force by 13.
- Alabama A&M vs. No. Alabama — A&M by 4.
- LSU at Texas A&M — LSU by 7.
- Stanford at Arizona — Arizona by 7.
- Brigham Young at New Mexico — BYU by 24.
- Rutgers at Cincinnati — Rutgers by 14.
- Colorado State at Tennessee — Tenn. by 21.
- Duke at So. Carolina — So. Carolina by 10.
- Southern Miss at Fla. State — FSU by 7.

- Tulane at Hawaii — Hawaii by 14.
- Houston at UNLV — Houston by 14.
- Louisville at Wyoming — Wyoming by 10.
- Maryland at NC State — NC State by 7.
- Ole Miss at Memphis State — Ole Miss by 4.

- Vanderbilt at Miss. State — Vanderbilt by 3.
- New Mexico State at Oklahoma — Okla. by 30.
- Rice at SMU — SMU by 3.
- Illinois at Southern Cal — USC by 10.
- Texas at Colorado — Colorado by 7.

Military retiree families have their day Sept. 9

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Military retirees in this area will have their version of the Alabama Reunion in September at the Challenger NCO Club.

The 12th annual Military Retiree Activity Day is set for Saturday, Sept. 9. For the first time a U.S. congressman, Rep. Ronnie Flipppo (D-Ala.), will be among the guest speakers.

"This year you have a chance to renew your old friendships," said Col. Adelbert "Del" Miller, chairman of the Redstone Arsenal Military Retiree Advisory Council. "We're calling this Reunion '89."

The day for military retirees and their families is also Redstone's open house to promote communications between the retired military community and the Missile Command. This is an official function sponsored jointly by the council and the MICOM commander. It's for retired military people, their families and friends.

"Each year we get speakers to come and talk to the retired military people and their families on subjects of particular interest to them — such as status of military care, status of cost of living increases, use of Redstone Arsenal recreation facilities, and other matters we think would be of interest," Miller said. "For example, this year a new cabinet-level office was formed called Office of Veterans Affairs and we're having a representative of that office."

George Penn, deputy director of Veterans Assistance Service, Department of Veterans Affairs, will be the guest speaker from that office. Also scheduled to speak is Max Beilke, deputy chief of Retired and Veterans Affairs Division, U.S. Army Community and Family Support Center.

"The featured speaker this year is Congressman Ronnie G. Flipppo," Miller said. "We've never had a congressman participate in our program before."

Also that day, there will be a Redstone Arsenal services panel featuring representatives from the various activities of interest to military retirees. "They hold a 45-minute session in which they will attempt to answer all questions from the audience on medical, recreation, commissary, PX, etc.," Miller said.

"In addition to that, we have what we call a county fair in which approximately 30 different military-related agencies participate," he said. Booths to be set up in rooms near the main ballroom will include representatives from the Medical Department Activity, Association of the United States Army, The Retired Officers Association, Officers Club, NCO and Officers Wives Clubs, among others.

Attendees can buy their lunch at the club for $3.50. The menu includes baked chicken, mashed potatoes, green beans, bread/butter, coffee/tea, and salad.

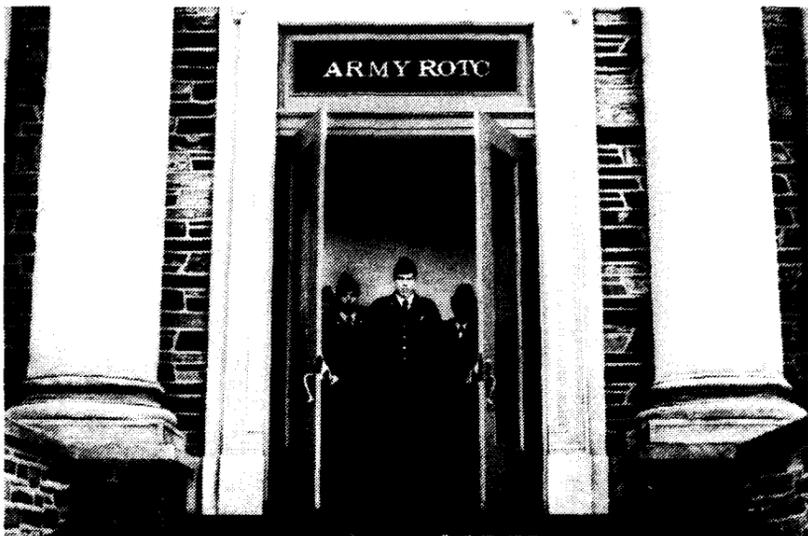

"We expect an attendance of somewhere in the neighborhood of 600 people," Miller said. "There are some 8,700 retired military personnel in the area of North Alabama serviced by the Redstone Arsenal Retirement Services Office."

Miller, a retired Army colonel, is in his fifth year as chairman of the military retiree advisory council which consists of 23 members. There are 10 members on each of three subcouncils: Marshall/Jackson counties, Hartselle/Decatur/Athens, and the Greater Shoals Area. All 53 of the participants, about half retired officers and half retired enlisted, are volunteers.

Cougars win second straight civilian softball title

There's nothing like winning a championship, especially two years in a row.

Just ask the Cougars who won their second straight Civilian Welfare Fund Softball League season-ending tournament. They came out of the loser's bracket to beat the Stallions twice, 27-10 and 29-9.

The Cougars were led by co-MVP's Joe Carter, Travis Jackson and Bo Jones. Carter hit 13 for 14, including eight home runs; Jackson was 10 for 14, also with eight homers; and Jones went nine for 14 with seven homers. Their teammates contributed 10 homers.

With a 5-1 record in the tournament, the Cougars finished at 30-2 overall.

New contractor sought for military family dental plan

The Defense Department has asked for bids on the contract to operate its two-year-old Active Duty Dependents Dental Plan.

The voluntary plan offers basic dental services to the enrolled families of active-duty members of the uniformed services in the U.S., Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Delta Dental Plan of California, the current contractor, will operate the program through July 31, 1990. Services under the new contract will begin Aug. 1, 1990, and will run for one year with four additional one-year options.

When care is obtained from a participating dentist, the Active Duty Dependents Dental Plan covers diagnostic services such as periodic examinations, dental cleanings, fluoride treatments, and X-rays at no additional cost to enrollees beyond the active-duty sponsor's monthly premium. The costs of covered restorative services, such as fillings, some crowns, and repairs to dentures, are shared by the contractor and the enrolled family.

The award of the new contract is expected to be announced in early 1990.

If the cost of adding them does not exceed congressionally mandated spending limits for the dental plan, the new contract may also include the additional benefits of cost-sharing for tooth sealant treatments, and for "alternative treatment" of teeth that have four or more surfaces needing restoration and the dentist recommends a crown as the best treatment.

If the "alternative treatment" benefit is added to the plan, with the patient's agreement a crown may be provided and the Active Duty Dependents Dental Plan would share the cost up to what it would have been for a filling. Beyond the cost-sharing for that amount, the patient would pay any extra cost for the crown.

In other improvements, the contractor operating the plan beginning in August 1990 will develop and maintain an ongoing marketing and communications program which promotes maximum participation and helps both active-duty families and providers of dental care better understand and use its benefits.

The above additions to current benefits of the plan would not be in effect until the new contract begins, on Aug. 1, 1990.

The award of the new contract is expected to be announced in early 1990.

Prospective bidders who wish more information about the Active Duty Dependents Dental Plan contract award may call the Champus headquarters Procurement Branch at (303) 361-3985. Collect calls will not be accepted.

The Active Duty Dependents Dental Plan is sponsored by the seven uniformed services. It is not a Champus program, and has no connection to any covered medically related adjunctive dental benefits that may be provided to Champus-eligible persons under the basic Champus program.

MICOM honors participants in savings bond program

Awards were presented Friday to organizations and employees of the Missile Command for their participation in this year's U.S. savings bond program.

The savings bond campaign, held during May, was a success, according to John Wright, a Finance & Accounting worker serving as Redstone's savings bonds coordinator.

"MICOM was one of three commands that was recognized (by the Army Materiel Command)," he said. "We did our share."

The percentage of employees on payroll savings at MICOM and tenant activities increased 6 percent during the campaign — from 29 to 35 percent. "Our local goal was to contact and give 100 percent of the people an opportunity," Wright said. "We contacted everyone we could contact except those people who left or were on extended leave."

Information Management Directorate received a U.S. Treasury Department "Minuteman Flag" awarded to organizations of more than 100 employees with 50 percent or greater participation. The 5-by-8-foot flag has a picture of a Minuteman in white on a blue backfield with white stars around it. IMD's 132 employees had 60 percent participation.

The following were awarded a certificate for patriotic service:

- Glenda Parker, IMD savings bond coordinator; Fire Support Program Executive Office, 25 employees, 63 percent participation; Peggy Sauro, Fire Support PEO savings bond coordinator; Competition Management Office, 10 employees, 70 percent participation; Linda Soffer, Competition Management Office savings bond coordinator; MICOM Command Group, 42 employees, 52 percent participation; 1st Lt. Constance Reese, MICOM Command Group savings bond coordinator; Integrated Logistics Support Office, 29 employees, 52 percent participation; Charles Wyman, ILS savings bond coordinator

- Internal Review and Audit Compliance, 17 employees, 59 percent participation; Robin Winkler, Internal Review and Audit Compliance savings bond coordinator; Legal Office, 70 employees, 53 percent participation; Mabel Birchfield, Legal Office savings bond coordinator; Non-Line of Sight Project Office, 43 employees, 52 percent participation; Linda Weaver, NLOS savings bond coordinator

- Sgt. Maj. Daniel Pierce, OMMCS savings bond coordinator, 147 new allotments and 21 increased allotments; Celeste D. Tucker, Missile Logistics Center savings bond coordinator, 81 new allotments and 38 increased allotments; Nancy Smitherman, Procurement Directorate savings bond coordinator, 82 new allotments and 23 increased allotments; Linda Russell, RD&E Center savings bond coordinator, 49 new allotments and 15 increased allotments; Barbara Hall, Resource Management Directorate savings bond coordinator, 33 new allotments and four increased allotments; Jerry D. Howard, MSIC savings bond coordinator, 24 new allotments and nine increased allotments; James C. Harrington, Resource Management Directorate savings bond coordinator, 33 new allotments and four increased allotments; and John Wright, Resource Management Directorate, savings bond drive coordinator.

Two Scouts receive Eagle award

Two Redstone Arsenal Boy Scouts received the coveted Eagle badge in a court of honor ceremony held Aug. 20 at the Post Chapel.

Brian Thomas and Dustin Lance, both members of Boy Scout Troop 308, were presented the Eagle award by Col. Perry Butler, the deputy post commander.

"It's the highest rank in Scouting that a Scout can attain," said Col. Dan Dalzell, Scoutmaster for Troop 308. "And roughly only 2 percent of Boy Scouts attain that rank, so it's an honor when someone does."

To attain the Eagle badge, a Scout must do a significant community service project. The son of Col. and Mrs. Stanley E. Thomas, Brian's project involved the restoration and repair of the military recreation area on the Tennessee River. This Eagle project was credited with contributing to a cleaner and safer area for military personnel and guests to enjoy the available recreation activities.

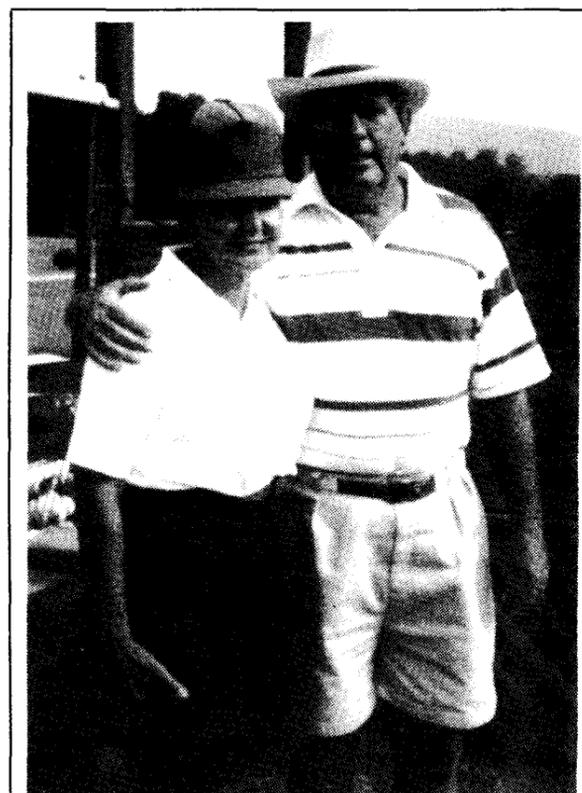

The son of retired SFC and Mrs. David Lance, Dustin's project involved the organization, planning and conduct of the Redstone Arsenal Community Volksmarch of 1987. This project involved many members of Troop 308. Many persons participated in the successful volksmarch.

Brian, a recent graduate of Butler High School, plans to attend Jacksonville State University where he will major in communications.

Dustin, 17, will attend Middle Tennessee State University as a freshman this fall. He plans to double major in international relations and multiple foreign languages.

A Troop 308 court of honor ceremony was held before the Eagle court of honor. The following Scout ranks were presented: Zack Nixon, Scout; William Schumacher, First Class; Phil Reuter, First Class; Jeremy Dressler, Star; Mike Dixon, Star; Mike Stewart, Life; and Paul Schuppener, Life. Twenty-eight merit badges were also presented to the Scouts.

GOLF CHAMPIONS — Millie and Bill Moore won the Redstone Arsenal Couples Golf Championship Tournament, the first of what is to be held annually, which ended Aug. 12 at the post golf course. This was a 36-hole, two person team, best ball with handicap tournament. Myrna and Gary Gardner placed second and Katie and Bob Messenger finished third.

"Women in World War II joined and created a whole new world for all women. Because of the country's great need to meet manpower requirements, women were allowed to do things in large numbers that only a few women had done before.

"Large numbers of women ferried airplanes and flew on special types of training missions. There were women test pilots. Nurses went in almost at the same time troops went in, and followed them all through the war. As the front line moved, they went with it," she said.

The monument's data base is open to all living and deceased veterans and women in an active duty, guard or reserve status. The cost for registration costs $25. Hispanic Heritage Month observed Sept. 15 to Oct. 15

WASHINGTON — The first ever Hispanic Heritage Month observance will take place Sept. 15 to Oct. 15. A bill passed the House and Senate in August 1988 expanding the celebration from a week to a month.

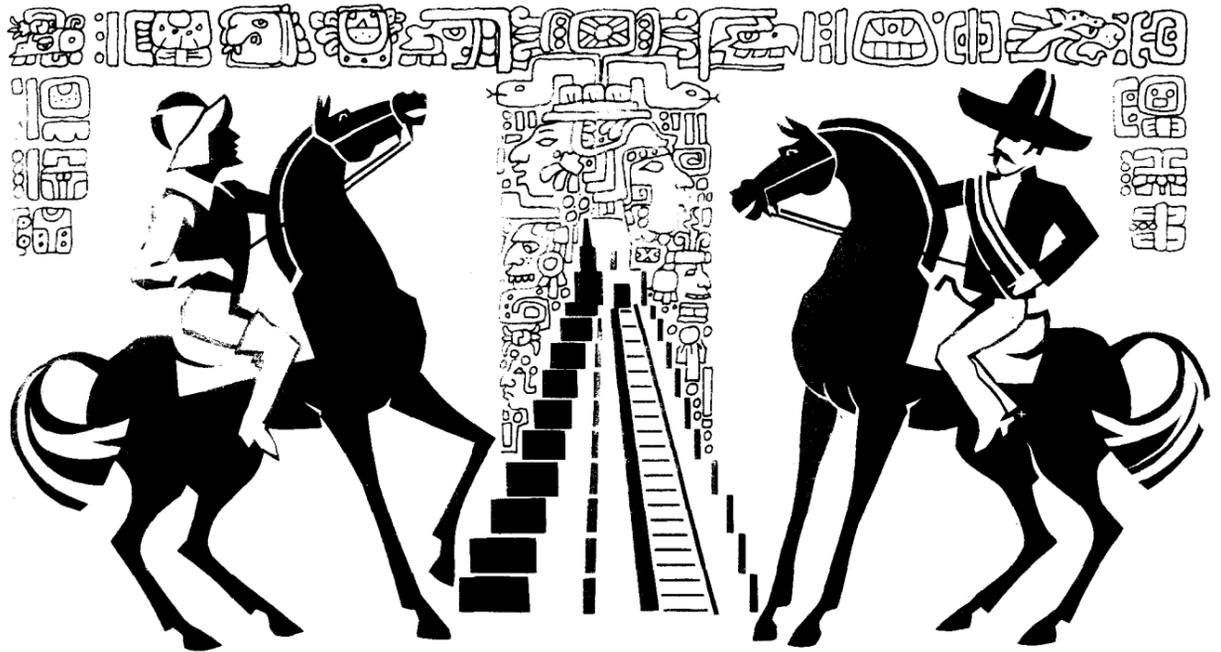

This year's theme is "500 Years of Hispanic Heritage 1492-1992...The Continuing Adventure." It coincides with the upcoming 500th anniversary of the discovery of America by the Spanish.

The Department of Defense will kick off its observance Sept. 13 in Pentagon ceremonies featuring the secretary of defense, assistant secretary of defense for force management and personnel, a Hollywood-type celebrity and possibly a state governor of Hispanic heritage. The U.S. Marine Corps Band is expected to provide music.

DoD installations worldwide will celebrate the ethnic observance with special menus, plays, skits, exhibits and guest speakers. But "Hispanic Heritage Month should be more than just having a speaker on an afternoon," said Manuel Oliverez, DoD's deputy director for civilian equal opportunity policy (black and Hispanic employment programs).

"It's more than recalling events of the past," Oliverez said. "We should examine where the Hispanic community is today and what its needs are in terms of education, employment and their roles in the military services."

"There is a place for speeches, flags, music and cheering," he said, "but those are only temporary activities. We have to focus on how to improve the lives and well-being of Hispanics as we make contributions to the American society and security of the nation." (American Forces Information Service)

Longtime range worker not overjoyed about retiring

BY SKIP VAUGHN

If you've worked on a job for about 40 years, you're bound to have mixed emotions about leaving it.

That's the case with John Oba McGhee, an electronic technician in the Test and Evaluation Directorate. "Obie," as he's known at Test Area 1, will be retiring Thursday, Aug. 31 after 40 years and one month of government service which includes two years of military time.

"I have mixed emotions about it, you know," McGhee said. "I'm looking forward to it and I hate to leave, too."

McGhee has worked at Redstone ever since March 28, 1951 when he started out as a laboratory electronic mechanic at what was then called the Ordnance Rocket Center. Through the years, his job titles have changed but his duties have stayed the same. He's been called an electronic equipment installer and repairer, an aircraft rocket servicer and tester, and finally an electronic technician. "I've done more or less the same thing since '51," McGhee said.

The job has offered variety, however. He's done everything from firing missiles to operating cameras and, when need be, "dug ditches," he said with a laugh. He last fired a missile about five years ago, he recalled. Most of his time has been spent at Test Area 1 although he has worked on other ranges here as well — including TA 3, TA 4, and TA 6.

"It's real interesting down here," McGhee said. "In R&D (research and development), we do something different every day."

The 61-year-old Hartselle native left high school to join the Army in 1946. "Really I volunteered just before I was going to be drafted," he said. "If I was drafted I'd have to serve four years, so I volunteered and served two." He got his high school equivalency diploma in 1949 and a two-year degree, in radio and television electronics, from Calhoun Technical School in 1950. He was unemployed for a while before coming to Redstone the following year.

"I think I'll miss everything — the people and the work."

"In the Ordnance Rocket Center, it was probably maybe 25 or 30 people," he recalled. "The fellow who hired me was (the late) John L. McDaniel; a lot of people will remember him. I really did like him. He grew up over there around Priceville, too, where I went to school."

McGhee and his wife, Betty, have two grown-up children and three grandchildren. Their daughter, Gayle Millsap, 39, and son, Larry, 35, both reside in Hartselle and work for Mutual Savings Insurance Company in Decatur. McGhee's hobbies formerly included bowling, hunting and fishing, but now mainly consist of golf.

"I don't think that I'll be able to go home and just sit there and not do anything," he said. He plans on finding another job and working at least four more years so that he can have his Social Security paid in before retiring for good.

"I think I'll miss everything," McGhee said, "the people and the work. I think this is probably the only place around that we do this type work."

Opinion

"Where we're now paying for running equipment, lights and air conditioning 40 hours each week, we'd then be paying for operating it 50 hours every week," he said.

"Then there would be the timecard nightmare. How could a timekeeper ever keep track of when we work," he said.

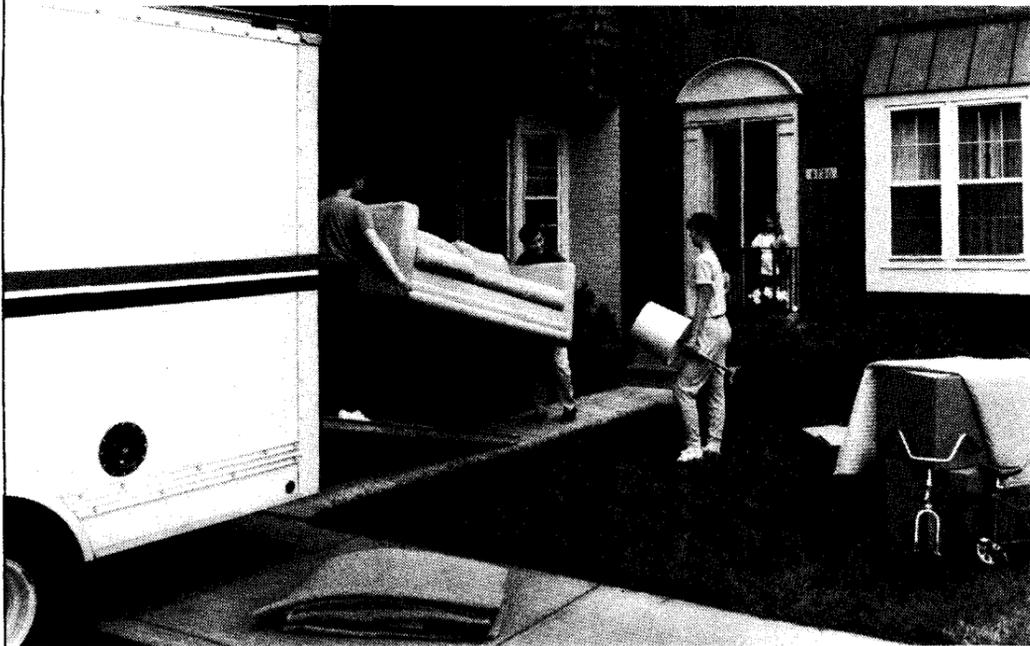

"We need to keep it just the way it is," Stiel said, referring to the office he works in and not necessarily to MICOM in general.

Cindy Whisenant, a GS-4 secretary in the Multiple Launch Rocket System project office, is also in favor of AWS.

"I think it would give you a lot of flexibility in planning your free time, in scheduling doctor appointments and other things you can't do during the week. I also think it would be a leave-saving device," she said.

"I would prefer a nine-hour day over a 10-hour day because (a nine-hour day) wouldn't be such a big adjustment to make," Whisenant said.

When You Retire...

You have 2 choices

- 1 A survivor's pension benefit is NOT tax-free. It is subject to income tax.
- 2 If you elect a reduced survivor's pension benefit and your spouse dies first, under most plans there is nothing you can do. You are locked in at the reduced retirement income forever.

Is there a way to receive your full retirement benefit and still provide an income for your spouse equal to the survivor's benefit in your pension plan?

Yes! There is. It's called Pension Maximization

"It's the only race this distance worldwide," said Martin Poetschik, 30, from West Germany. He and fellow triathlete, Frank Keil, 28, are guests in the Seens' home. Both are graduate students at the University of Duesseldorf.

There are longer races: the second annual triple triathlon in Grenoble, France — a 7.2 mile swim, 336 mile bicycle leg and 78.6 mile run — drew seven participants this year.
