Army has a better idea for non-tactical fleet

Replacement vehicles to feature new models in an array of colors

BY SANDA LAGER

The times, they are a changin'.

The green Army sedan at Redstone Arsenal will soon go the way of the Redstone missile, the draft and the Womens Army Corps.

Come October, non-tactical Army vehicles will take on a new look here as old ones start being replaced with new models in an array of colors. How about metallic blue, burgundy wine or quick silver?

The inscription, "U.S. Army" will no longer be painted on the front door panels of the new vehicles, but "for official use only" stickers will be placed in the rear window.

It's all part of Redstone's program to transfer ownership and maintenance of its 675 non-tactical vehicle fleet over to the General Services Administration. The program, which was approved by Department of the Army in June, got under way here two weeks ago with the retagging of existing vehicles with GSA license plates.

Beginning Oct. 1, the program implementation date, Redstone will receive its first "12 to 15" vehicles from GSA to replace over-mileage and over-aged vehicles, said Ray Landman of Redstone Arsenal Support Activity's equipment management division.

"We have so many vehicles that need to be replaced. The first sedans will replace over-aged vehicles in the command group," Landman said.

Also expected in the first vehicle allocation are four or five new buses, he added.

Ron Brooks, fleet manager for GSA's Alabama fleet management center in Mobile, has coordinated Redstone's vehicle transfer for GSA. "We (GSA) operate a rainbow fleet in a range of colors. No light or dark green. The reason for this is that we strive to get top dollar on vehicles when we sell them at public auction. The dollars go back to buy new ones. Different colors don't limit sales," said Brooks.

"Over the next five-year period, we'll bring all vehicles (in Redstone's inventory) up to GSA replacement standards," Brooks said. The present criteria for vehicle replacement is the same for all type vehicles, six years and 72,000 miles.

Under the GSA replacement criteria, however, it varies for different type vehicles. For basic sedans, replacement comes at every three years or 60,000 miles, whichever comes first. Light trucks will be replaced every six years or 60,000, whichever comes first. On large equipment, the standard varies.

"This will be a cost-savings to the government," said Brooks, pointing out that the Department of Defense will save $548,608 the first year by transferring its vehicle purchase and maintenance program to GSA.

This figure represents what Redstone will pay GSA compared to what it would cost Army Materiel Command to buy and Redstone to replace and maintain vehicles.

In the past, Redstone has received vehicles free issue from AMC central procurement. Recent changes, however, instructed all subordinate installations to do cost comparison studies with GSA to determine what method of procuring official vehicles would result in the highest cost savings to the government.

In addition to buying replacement vehicles, GSA will also be responsible for the maintenance, operation and upkeep of the fleet.

"RASA will still maintain the dispatch responsibility," said Landman, adding that there will be no changes in the way vehicles are dispatched, serviced, trip tickets issued or gasoline accounted for.

The Redstone fleet of official vehicles includes all those used on post by the Missile Command, the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School, and the Strategic Defense Command, said Landman.

"We (the Army) will retain some special purpose vehicles such as fire-fighting equipment and utility and

Detour at Rideout Road Gate 9 starts next week, to stay a year

Beginning next week, traffic into and out of Gate 9 will pass through signal lights on Rideout Road and Highway 20. At that time the old highway will have been closed, along with the ramps onto and off Rideout Road, and traffic moved onto a detour road.

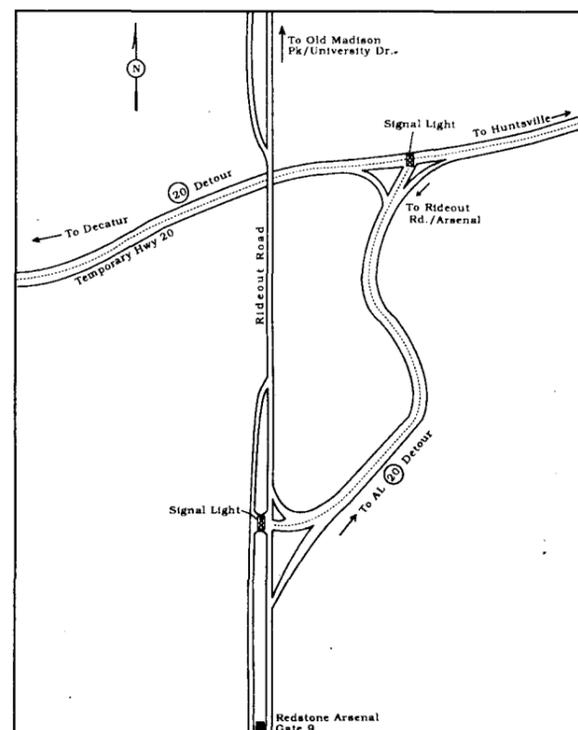

There will be a signal light on Rideout just outside Gate 9 and another on the highway east of the overpass.

Gate 9 traffic will be affected as follows:

- Entering from north: Cross overpass in single lane; encounter signal; proceed to Gate 9.
- Entering from east: Encounter signal on highway; left turn to Rideout; encounter signal at Rideout; left turn to Gate 9.
- Entering from west: Channelized (no stop) right turn at highway signal; encounter Rideout signal; left turn to Gate 9.
- Exiting northbound: Encounter Rideout signal; cross overpass in single lane.
- Exiting eastbound: Channelized (no stop) right turn at Rideout signal; channelized right turn at highway signal.
- Exiting westbound: Channelized (no stop) right turn at Rideout signal; left turn at highway signal.

Jerald Ferris, I-565 project engineer for the State Highway Department, said that, barring a weather delay, the new traffic pattern will be in effect Monday and remain in place for about a year.

It will worsen already bad congestion at Gate 9 and people who can should use an alternate route or consider ride sharing, said Bobby Noles, Redstone Arsenal's traffic program coordinator.

Cost of living

Editor:

This is a follow-up to the Aug. 16 letter "Retired Pay."

The president's budget proposals to cancel the cost-of-living adjustment will affect COLAs for members of the Civil Service Retirement System, the Foreign Service Retirement System and military retirees (including Coast Guard) in 1990 and reduce it every year thereafter by 1 percent below inflation.

With the freeze on COLAs (above) — the freeze equates to $1.413 billion savings in outlays — military retirees are saddled with $617 million or 43 percent of the total amount.

To combat this budget proposal, we need to get behind S.416, a bill introduced by Senator Pete Domenici. This legislation would ensure that every federal retiree and military retiree would receive the full cost of living adjustment due under current law.

In short, I'm asking the workers here on Redstone Arsenal to act by: dialing Western Union's toll free "hotline" number, 1-800-325-6000. Ask for "hotline" operator 40. Give the "hotline" operator your full name, address, zip code and telephone number. Tell the operator you want to send The Military Coalition's Mailgram to your representative and both senators. Operators can help you identify your elected officials.

Total cost for three messages, charged to your telephone bill as a "telegram charge," will be $6.50.

Why should we support one group of people to be penalized? Why penalize a group of Americans who served and defended their country?

Official travel

Editor:

As you know, a lot of jobs require personnel to go on TDY. Why do the supervisors and other personnel want to go on the TDY trips? You are working on a project, and it requires a TDY trip to obtain data, but the supervisor is the one who decides who goes. During the trip, this person participates on a very limited basis and when they return their dissemination of information is little to none.

People come out of the woodwork when a choice TDY trip is scheduled. All you hear is "I want to go." Many times the person has little knowledge of the project, yet they are permitted to go rather than the project officer.

The purpose of the TDY trip is official, and should not be used for vacation, leave time, or a good time to visit old acquaintances or family.

Terrific job

Editor:

Jobs often become routine and taken for granted so

I would like to take this opportunity to thank three people for doing their job in an outstanding manner: Shirley Mohler of the Latch-Key Program, Lynn France of School Bus Transportation and Mr. Woodard of Contracts in building 3780. Their helpfulness, friendliness and professional manner enabled me to enroll my granddaughter in the latch-key program and on the school bus with very little effort on my part. It may have been an everyday occurrence to them but it was a terrific job to me!

MICOM completes annual report on internal controls

The Missile Command has provided its annual report to higher headquarters on its safeguards against waste, loss, unauthorized use or misappropriation.

The comprehensive report, entitled FY '89 Annual Assurance Statement on Internal Controls, was signed by the commanding general and sent to the Army Materiel Command.

"MICOM identified nine internal control deficiencies in 1989, and we also furnished an updated status of those reported in prior years," said Fay Zanaty, the MICOM internal control administrator. "We also gave a detailed description of how the program was conducted at MICOM in 1989."

All the Missile Command organizations, the program executive officers, and the project managers provided input to the commanding general's report. "You have to analyze what you have in order to do the CG's report," Zanaty said. "There are other factors you have to consider, like how many internal control review checklists were scheduled and completed; how many managers had internal control responsibilities identified and how many actually had internal controls in their job standard.

"We identified 462 managers; we had a total of 458 that actually had it in their standards, so we've got four more to go, four more in process," Zanaty added. "Of course we exceeded the goal of 90 percent, the AMC goal of 90 percent."

The Missile Command identified several initiatives it had implemented to improve internal controls. Last year's report from MICOM was used in both the AMC commander's report and the secretary of the Army's report, according to Zanaty.

the network of points of contact to expedite the guidance; MICOM reviewed audit and investigative reports to ensure that corrective actions had been taken; the command completed more checklists than were required; MICOM issued a new command policy statement signed by the commander; and the command developed a briefing for internal controls in the supervisory development course which is offered by the civilian personnel office.

The report was sent via computer and mail to the Army Materiel Command on Aug. 28. AMC will in turn take the input from major subordinate commands and staff those reports to decide what will be sent to the secretary of the Army.

Association promotes role of Ordnance Corps

Editor's note: Capt. Melissa Degnan, an instructor at the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School, is the Ordnance Corps Association representative for Redstone Arsenal.

BY MELISSA DEGNAN

"Ordnance Corps Association? What's that?" you say. I thought so... Read on, McDuff.

The full name is United States Ordnance Corps Association. Its main office is located at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

The purpose of this association is as follows:

- To promote the development, production, acquisition and support of weapon systems, ammunition, missiles and ground mobility materiel through research, quality education and the dissemination of research, educational material and knowledge of the military arts and sciences, with special attention to the role of the Ordnance Corps in ground warfare;

- To promote the professional educational development of its members, and to foster and preserve through educational and scholarship programs, the spirit, traditions, heritage, and history of the Ordnance Corps.

Types of members

Membership is open to just about anyone; all you have to do is apply. Categories of membership include active members, associate members, corporate members, corporate associate members, and honorary members.

Active members include officer, warrant officer, and enlisted personnel E-7 and above, active and Reserve Component, retirees, cadets of the service academies, military schools and ROTC programs, and civilians who subscribe to the purpose for which the association is formed. Privilege of membership is extended to family members of dues-paying members.

Associate members include enlisted personnel in the grade of E-6 and below, both active and Reserve Components, who subscribe to the purpose for which the association is formed. Membership privilege is extended to family members of dues-paying members.

Corporate and corporate associate members are those businesses and/or corporations that subscribe to the purpose for which the association is formed.

Honorary members are persons distinguished in military, civil service or the civilian sector, who are deserving of such recognition for their support of the Ordnance Corps and are elected by a majority vote of the general membership. Honorary membership can be for life. Such members will not be subject to association dues.

Offers scholarships

All members receive the Ordnance Association distinctive membership card, a personal copy of each edition of The Ordnance Magazine, and a newsletter.

The association offers scholarships which literally anyone may apply for, including the "man on the street." The cutoff date for our first grant was June 30; we will announce soon the names of the grantees as a result of this first effort. Since this is our first year for the grants, and we got off to a late start, we will keep the application submission period open until Dec. 31. Thereafter, grants will be offered by the association yearly on a regular basis. We have four levels of grants. At the present time, they are one each of $250, $500, $750 and $1,000. So pass the word! Information and applications can be obtained from The Ordnance Corps Association, P.O. Box 377, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. 21005.

If you have any questions about the association, call me at 876-2981/6867. I am located at building 3305, room 115. Come by and see the Ordnance Corps display case in the foyer of the building. Membership applications and other materials may also be obtained in the foyer.

Redstone reaches out to help one of its own

BY SANDA LAGER

When tragedy strikes, it's comforting to know others care.

People at Redstone have contributed $9,500 to show how much they care for the young soldier who was injured in a tragic accident on July 12.

Members of the 515th Ordnance Company set up a fund at the First Alabama Bank to help the Spec. John S. Sanchez family meet its financial needs after the 27-year-old soldier was injured on a return trip to Redstone from Fort Campbell, Ky.

Sanchez was struck by a car as he stood outside an Army vehicle and attempted to roll up the back window.

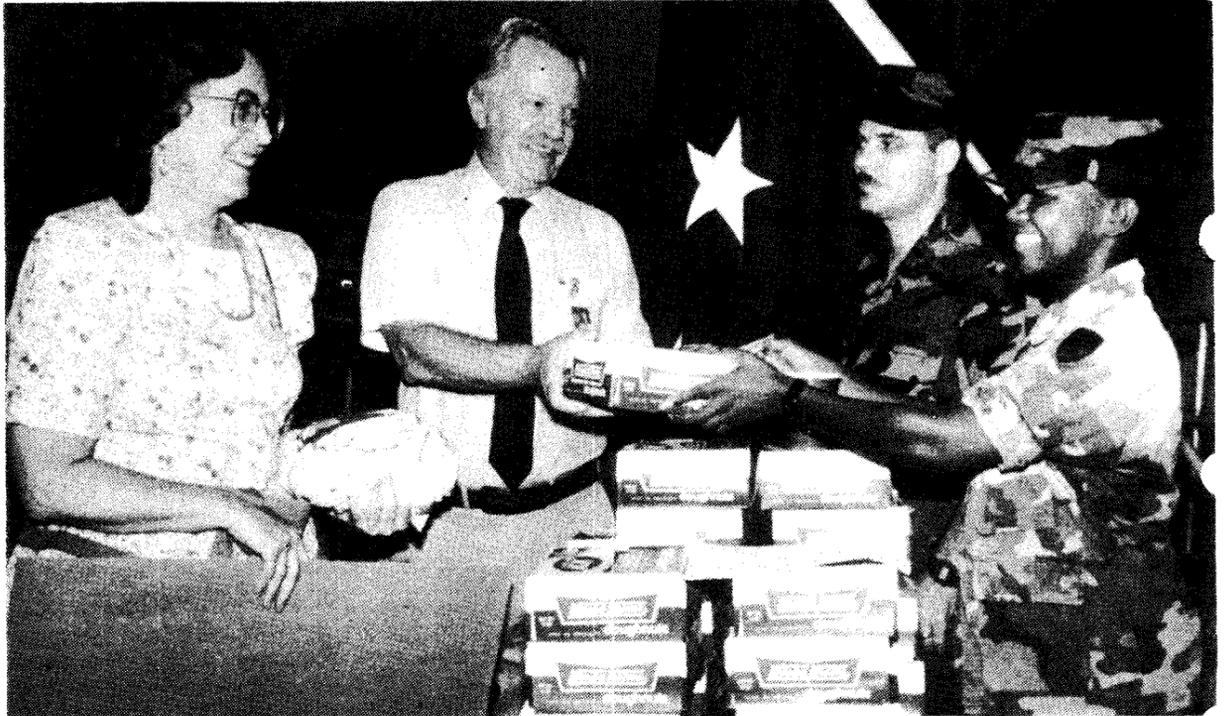

The driver of the civilian car that hit him was charged with driving under the influence of cocaine and with possession of cocaine.

As a result of the accident, Sanchez lost both legs below the knees.

In addition to the numerous individuals and organizations of the Redstone Arsenal community who have contributed to the fund, the family has received assistance from the American Red Cross and the Army Emergency Relief fund.

Sanchez is now at home on convalescent leave awaiting rehabilitation and being fitted with artificial limbs, according to Capt. Ed Dickens, adjutant of the 269th Ordnance Detachment.

"It's a good feeling to know so many people care," said Dickens.

DOUGHNUTS FOR A GOOD CAUSE — Cindy and Robert Vanderzyl make a purchase from SSgt. James Stewart, 73rd Ordnance Detachment and Spec. Alida Pugh, HHC, MICOM. Proceeds will be used to support troop military functions and to make a donation to the Spec. John S. Sanchez fund.

Doughnut sales have been among the fund-raising efforts. Redstone's military and civilian personnel bought 560 dozen doughnuts last Thursday at entrances to several buildings on post.

On Aug. 21, members of HHD, 832nd Ordnance Battalion delivered some 425 dozen doughnuts they sold for the Sanchez fund. This successful effort cleared more than $400.

Joan Chrisman spearheaded a fund-raising effort in the Missile Logistics Center where $1,435 was collected for the Sanchez fund. "I think the response was very good in the Log Center. We've helped lots of other people before. It seems like our employees always come through when people are in need. Some people may think soldiers are taken care of, but we don't realize how many needs in a situation like this won't be met," said Chrisman, a supervisory management assistant in the support operations office.

Military to get paid on Sept. 29

WASHINGTON — To avoid financial hardship for active duty service members, Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney has waived the September-October military payday rule and has directed that September military pay be paid on Sept. 29.

This year's payday would, by law, be Monday, Oct. 2. Any other time of the year, payday is the first day of the following month or the last working day of the month if the first falls on a weekend or holiday.

The law specifies that the Oct. 1 payday not be a rollback because it is the beginning of the new fiscal year operating budget.

Nevertheless, the secretary has authority, allowed by Title 37 of the U.S. Code, to modify military pay schedules.

In a memorandum to the service secretaries, Cheney wrote, "The Oct. 1 payday was not advanced last year when it fell on a Saturday. Even that small delay in payment was an inconvenience to many service members and for some, a financial hardship. This year... unless the payday is advanced, many of your personnel will not receive their pay until Monday, Oct. 2."

The next time the fiscal juggle could occur is 1994, when Oct. 1 falls on a Saturday, and, by law, payday would be Monday, Oct. 3. (American Forces Information Service)

Hospital workers learn principles of total quality

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Like industry, members of the medical and dental professions can find ways to do their job better.

That was the message a California lawyer brought last week to employees of Medical Activity and Dental Activity at Redstone Arsenal. Half the MEDDAC and DENTAC people attended the "In Search of Excellence" seminar Aug. 29 and the other half attended the next day. The daylong event was held at the Challenger NCO Club.

The purpose was to serve as a commitment to Total Quality Management, according to Mary Jane Reumann, who served as seminar coordinator for Fox Army Community Hospital. She is in charge of quality assurance at the hospital. "The seminar fostered enthusiasm and provided inspiration for personnel," Reumann said. "MEDDAC and DENTAC are making a concerted effort to provide training for personnel to improve patient care which is the ultimate goal of total quality management."

John Dolan, a lawyer from Newport Beach, Calif., presented the seminar for a seminar company called CareerTrack. He gave examples of how companies improve the service they give to their customers and how the medical and dental people can use the same principles in their professions. The principles included superior customer service, people involvement, and in-touch leadership.

"You can show people the way you want them to act, and that's the kind of in-touch leadership that can make a difference; and that's much better than just ordering people around," Dolan said.

Everyone can do their job "a thousand percent better by doing 1,000 things one percent better," according to Dolan. "Little things can make big differences," he said. "We can do a lot of little things a little bit better and we can get a gigantic return in the output."

Involving the people who do the work — through such things as employee suggestion programs — is beneficial, Dolan said. He gave examples of how car manufacturers have benefited from ideas of their workers. "The best answers to the problems, the best plans to accomplish what we need to do, come from us — come from the people we have on the front lines," he said. "We need to recognize that. We need to let them shine."

Better service pays off in customer satisfaction in the professions as well as in manufacturing, according to Dolan. "The idea is if you give high quality service, you get a better return," he said. He recommended devising a way to rate the services provided.

"It's a simple concept. What gets measured, gets done. What we pay attention to, we do something about," Dolan said.

SFC Mike Whitmarsh, NCO-in-charge at the hospital's department of pathology, was among the workers attending the seminar Aug. 30. "Basically it boils down to as far as our line of business, the better outlook you have on your job and what you do, that attitude will extend over to applying the best possible patient care and possibly sitting down and explaining things in more detail to your patients," Whitmarsh said. "And getting more involved in your job will probably be the best form of patient relationship."

Celebration of bicentennial continues

Sept. 17, 1987, marked the beginning of a five-year commemoration of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

A Presidential Commission was established to oversee the national commemoration through 1991. Headquarters, Department of the Army, has executive agent responsibility for the Department of Defense program.

This year's observance focuses on the Establishment of the Federal Government and National Defense. In 1789 the first Congress was convened, George Washington was inaugurated as the first president and commander in chief, the Department of War was established, as were the Department of the Army and the U.S. Supreme Court. This year's commemorative theme focuses on the presidents who served in the armed forces.

Bicentennial dates for September include the following:

- Sept. 2, 1789, Congress establishes the Treasury Department
- Sept. 22, 1789, the Office of the Postmaster General is established
- Sept. 24, 1789, Congress passes the Federal Judiciary Act which establishes the Supreme Court, 13 district courts, three circuit courts, and the office of the Attorney General
- Sept. 25, 1789, Congress passes 12 amendments to the Constitution and sends them to the states for ratification
- Sept. 29, 1789, Congress establishes the Department of the Army.

Defense agencies planning new way to send messages

BY TOM JOYCE

AMERICAN FORCES INFORMATION SERVICE

Sending out a message is an administrative ritual well-known to the military. Countless messages are sent around the world each day, so how this is done is important, since they can move troops and authorize money to be spent. Improving the way messages are sent out, obviously, will work to everybody's benefit.

Since January 1988, working groups representing all military services and defense agencies have been planning the architecture and implementation strategy for the Defense Message System — which is designed to be a more efficient system to send messages. The Defense Communications Agency is project coordinator.

"The Defense Message System, when fully implemented, will allow individuals to prepare and send messages from their desks without having to go through a telecommunications center," said Oma Elliott, a staff assistant for data communications with the DoD Office of Information Systems. "And they will be able to do so with a high degree of assurance that the message will get to where it is supposed to with the right degree of security."

The Defense Message System will not require a dramatic influx of new equipment. As currently envisioned, the system will operate using existing data communications equipment and will evolve as new technology enters the market. "DMS is not a network," said Elliott. "It's a service."

To the degree possible, the Defense Message System will eliminate as much of the "sneaker net" as possible. "The sneaker net is all the coordination currently required to get a message off to someone," said Elliott. "It includes all of the coordination and manual handing of a message. It will also eliminate the need to have the message sent to a communications center."

The Defense Message System will also have an impact on the electronic mail process widely used throughout DoD. "The problem," noted Elliott, "is that there is no formality to it. Most of the systems have no record of what has been sent. That usually means there can be no assurance that a message sent by electronic mail has been sent or received. That results in low credibility."

Since the Defense Message System is a command and control system, each message, whether it is organizational or individual, will have to have authentication for the sending organization. "There are certain messages that can move troops or spend money," said Elliott. "It is imperative that the receiver continue to know with absolute certainty who the sender is."

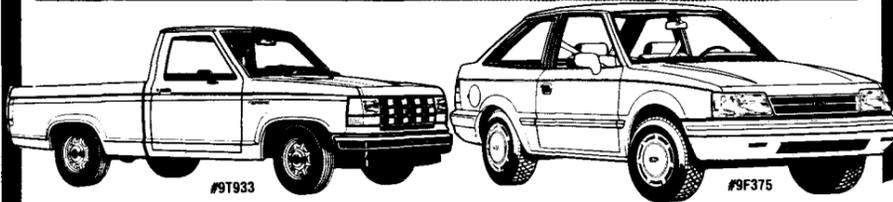

Although telecommunications centers should be a thing of the past by the year 2008, very-high-level messages and those with high precedence will continue to receive special handling. "Those messages will be channeled off to a duty officer, where they will receive immediate attention," said Elliott. "But we do not want to create a bureaucracy to handle only 2 to 3 percent of the message traffic."

Elliott cautioned that much remains to be done. She noted that message protocols, mailbox addresses and directories will have to be standardized. "We will also need to develop some of the items we need," she said. "However, we are optimistic. There is a very high degree of cooperation between the services. Everyone recognizes the importance of what we are trying to do."

Congressman to address military retiree families

A U.S. congressman will be among the guest speakers at the 12th annual Military Retiree Activity Day this Saturday at the Challenger NCO Club.

Rep. Ronnie Flippo, D-Ala., is the featured speaker at the event set for 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. "We've never had a congressman participate in our program before," said Del Miller, a retired colonel who serves as chairman of the Redstone Arsenal Military Retiree Advisory Council.

Other guest speakers include George Penn, deputy director of Veterans Assistance Service, Department of Veterans Affairs; and Max Beilke, deputy chief of Retired and Veterans Affairs Division, U.S. Army Community and Family Support Center.

In accepting Miller's invitation, Flippo wrote: "I know this event is well attended and I certainly appreciate your kindness in again remembering me for the activity day. I will be delighted to join you on Saturday, Sept. 9 at the Redstone Arsenal."

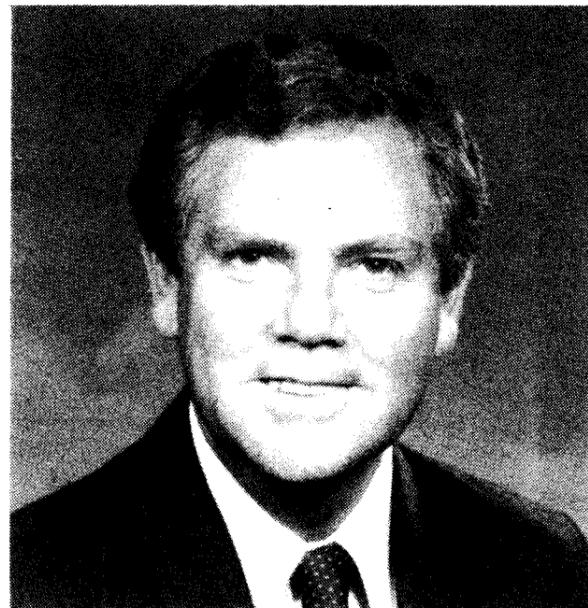

Flippo, 52, is a native of Florence and a certified public accountant. He represents Colbert, Jackson, Lauderdale, Lawrence, Limestone, Madison, and Morgan counties in the Tennessee Valley area of North Alabama. He was elected to the 95th Congress in 1976, and re-elected to his seventh term in 1988.

Besides guest speakers, the day for military retirees and their families will include a Redstone Arsenal services panel featuring representatives from the various activities of interest to military retirees. A "county fair," in which about 30 military-related agencies provide informational booths, will also be held. Attendees can buy their lunch at the club for $3.50.

The schedule of events is as follows:

- 8-8:30 a.m., social/coffee/registration, Army Band Combo; 8:30-8:45, opening ceremonies, Del Miller; 8:45-9, welcoming address by Maj. Gen. Gus Cianciolo; 9-9:10, announcements/ acknowledgements/introductions, Miller; 9:10-9:50, DA/Retiree Update by Max Beilke, Department of the Army; 9:50-10:15, break; 10:15-10:40, VA Services Outlook by George Penn, Department of Veterans Affairs; 10:40-11:20, Redstone Arsenal Services Panel, Lewis F. Spencer, retirement services officer; 11:20-11:30, awards presentation, Miller; 11:30-noon, Congressional Update by Rep. Ronnie Flippo; 12-12:30 p.m., lunch; 12-2 p.m., county fair exhibits and services; 12:30-2 p.m., awards/door prizes, Lynn Flank, Brandon Parker and Billy Hughes.

Army civilian receives direct commission in Reserves

BY MARIANNE CLINEDINST

An Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School civilian employee has received a direct commission in the U.S. Army Reserves.

Phillip Palmer was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Reserves and will be a missile materiel management officer.

Palmer, 30, a native of Livonia, Mich., is a combat developments specialist at OMMCS. He has a second job as a drug and alcohol addiction counselor at the Charter Retreat Hospital in Decatur.

He served in the Army from June 1978 to March 1984. Palmer, who got out as a sergeant, spent his Army career as a Hawk continuous wave radar repairman at Fort Riley, Kan., Fort Bliss, Texas, and Korea. He was also a military electronics instructor here for almost two years before getting out of the military.

Since leaving the military, Palmer has been working here as a civil service employee. He also went to college by attending night classes.

"I decided to go back into the Army right before getting my college degree," Palmer said. "I really enjoyed the time I spent in the military. I decided to come back in the Army for career stability. I also liked the camaraderie, travel, and job challenges that are associated with being in the Army.

"I liked using teamwork to get a job done, especially overseas, and I liked having the opportunity to travel and see things I had never seen before."

Palmer is in the process of being assigned to a Reserve unit. He will be required to go to Officers Basic Course and become branch qualified before going to work in missile materiel management.

RECEIVING RANK — Col. Richard Raymont, direct of combat developments, and Sgt. Maj. James Jordan, directorate sergeant major, pin second lieutenant bars on Palmer.

Community to rally at the chapels this Sunday

BY SKIP VAUGHN

The Redstone Arsenal chapels will have their annual rally for members of the chapel community on Sunday, Sept. 10.

"Rally Day" will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Bicentennial Chapel. It will feature religious education, sign-up for various chapel activities, and a picnic.

A similar event, geared more toward the soldiers of the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School, will be held the same day at the Post Chapel. "We would like to gear things toward the school, OM-MCS, and the brigade needs," said Chaplain (Maj.) Dave McLean, the senior Protestant chaplain at Post Chapel. The Post Chapel's activity begins at 9 a.m. for Protestants, and 11 a.m. for Catholics.

"We'll have a service designed to highlight religious education," said Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Fred Maddox, the Bicentennial Chapel's Protestant parish pastor. After registration for Sunday school at 9:30, the service begins at 10:45. Patty Wilson, the director of religious education at Bicentennial Chapel, is to present a history of the religious education movement.

Maddox is to deliver a sermon on the theme of the day, "We are God's People." Songs will be provided by the chapel choir with an additional selection by Our Sunday Night Lights, a singing group at the chapel.

Various speakers will present information on groups they represent such as Protestant Women of the Chapel, Widows Or Widowers, and Waiting Wives, among others. Following the service, a picnic is to be held on the chapel grounds — indoors in case of inclement weather. Information tables will be available "to allow people to sign up to participate and also to allow people to be informed," Maddox said.

"We would be hopeful to have persons who'll be volunteering for the choirs, usher teams, and acolyte teams," he said. Acolyte teams usually consist of fifth through eighth graders who light candles for services. There is also still a need for volunteer teachers in the Sunday school classes. Every class is staffed but the chapel would like to have team teachers, a minimum of two teachers per class, who would assist in teaching adults and children, Maddox said.

Retired members of the military community will also be recognized at Rally Day. "We'll have one cake honoring our retirees, and one cake honoring our Rally Day," said Maddox.

"That day is sort of the kickoff Sunday for our fall program in the chapel," he said. "The point of it is we want to get as many people involved in religious education as we can."

Rally Day is the first of four celebrations, according to Wilson, the religious education director. She said the others include Advent celebration, Dec. 3; Lenten celebration, March 18, 1990; and celebration of Pentecost, June 3, 1990.

People should attend Rally Day because "it's a rejuvenation of the spirit of the church," Wilson said. "And since the people are the church, it's important to be together."

"They need to also come and meet their new teachers (for Sunday school)," Maddox added. He said 388 people attended Rally Day last year and he expects from 350 to 500 this year.

At Post Chapel, Rally Day will be held from 9-10:30 a.m. for Protestants and from 11 to 12:30 for

READY FOR BIG DAY — Patty Wilson and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Fred Maddox discuss Rally Day.

Catholics. Cake and other refreshments will be available in the activity room. Activities will be geared more toward the young soldiers who frequent the Post Chapel. "We've got some families here but we've got all the basic trainees, a lot of the officer basics, a lot of the people who are not married yet," McLean said.

The Post Chapel does provide transportation and/or information for its people who would like to attend activities available at the Bicentennial Chapel — such as Waiting Wives, choirs, Protestant Women of the Chapel, Widows Or Widowers, prayer groups, and Bible studies.

Calibrators make plans for year 2000

When the year 2000 arrives, Army calibrators will be ready — if advance planning has anything to do with it.

This summer the Test, Measurement and Diagnostic Equipment (TMDE) Support Group held a two-day symposium in Huntsville entitled "U.S. Army Test Technology and Calibration Concept 2000."

The idea was to bring together experts from the Army, other government agencies, and private industry to discuss TMDE calibration and support in the year 2000. The more than 160 attendees included representatives and speakers from the National Institute of Standards and Technology (formerly the National Bureau of Standards), Korean Standards Research Institute, the Navy test equipment vendors, and academia.

TMDE Support Group's Engineering Directorate was responsible for developing and hosting the symposium. James R. Miller III, a physicist who is acting chief of the physical engineering group, served as project chairman.

"A number of existing proposals were discussed that will impact calibration in the next decade and beyond," Miller said. "There are only 11 years left till the 21st century."

The Army calibration program was developed between the end of World War II and the beginning of the Korean Conflict. Technical management of the program was moved from Frankfort Arsenal, Pa., to Redstone Arsenal in 1967 and was known as the Army Metrology and Calibration Center. The current organization, the Army Test, Measurement and Diagnostic Equipment Support Group, has the mission to calibrate and repair all Army TMDE and to develop and field the necessary standards and equipment to accomplish this mission. The group, commanded by Col. George Patch, supports more than 700,000 items of TMDE annually, and has a staff of 2,400 people dispersed throughout the world.

Florida State Seminoles should tame Clemson Tigers

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Some teams like to take care of the big tests early in the season... or at least their schedule makers do.

The Florida State Seminoles and Clemson Tigers, both consensus top 20 teams, play each other this weekend at Florida State.

The Seminoles entered this season after two consecutive 11-1 finishes. Their only loss both years was to intrastate rival Miami. With four returning starters on offense and five on defense, the Seminoles opened with a surprising 30-26 loss to Southern Mississippi last weekend.

Clemson, a powerhouse in the Atlantic Coast Conference, has four returning starters on offense and seven on defense from last year's 10-2 team. The Tigers opened by blanking Furman 30-0.

Rate this week's game a virtual tossup because Clemson plays well in enemy territory, but the Seminoles are hungry for a win. The edge in this big matchup goes to...Florida State.

Skip's Picks got off to a slow start with a 12-7-1 record. Here are the predictions for selected games this weekend in college football:

- Clemson at Florida State — Fla. State by 7.
- Tennessee at UCLA — UCLA by 6.
- Wyoming at Air Force — Wyoming by 3.
- Ala. A&M at Jacksonville State — Jax by 7.
- Arizona at Texas Tech — Arizona by 4.
- Kansas State at Arizona State — ASU by 21.
- Pacific at Auburn — Auburn by 30.
- Baylor at Oklahoma — Oklahoma by 14.
- Pittsburgh at Boston College — Pitt by 7.
- Washington State at Brigham Young — BYU by 3.
- California at Oregon — Oregon by 7.
- Colorado State at Colorado — Colorado by 21.
- Northwestern at Duke — Duke by 14.
- Ole Miss at Florida — Florida by 6.
- Ga. Tech at NC State — NC State by 10.

Wiseman sets new record in Double Iron Triathlon

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Most people would not want to spend their Labor Day weekend by swimming 4.8 miles, riding a bicycle 224 miles and running 52.4 miles. But that's exactly what a field of international triathletes did.

Ken Wiseman, 34, of Lakeville, Conn., set a new world record and became a three-time winner in the fifth annual Double Iron Triathlon held Sept. 3-4 in Huntsville. For the first time ever, the bicycle portion of the event was held at Redstone Arsenal. Wiseman's overall time of 21 hours and 46 minutes broke the previous record of 22:28:12 which he set in 1986.

"It was confidence and experience, I think," Wiseman said. "And the fact I had my whole family here. I've got the best support crew in the world. I had a new bike, too."

Wiseman, food service director at the Hotchkiss School in Lakeville, took the lead in the swim and never relinquished it. He covered the 4.8 miles in 1:56, and increased his lead to 30 minutes with a 10:46 bicycle leg. He ran his first marathon in 4:11 and his second in 4:45.

Wolfgang Erhart, 28, of Austria, finished second in 22:44 followed by Dominique Callard, 36, of France, in 23:40. Erhart was among 11 Austrians in the 46-member international field which included two women. "I'm a little bit nervous and I will start very slowly," he said before the race. "I hope to have no problems during swimming and no problems during biking, and then we will see what happens. I hope to use very little energy during swimming, so I won't push during swimming because I think this race will be decided during the second marathon." He did the swim in 2:08, the bike in 11:25, his first marathon in 4:20 and his second in 4:40.

Thirty-three of the 46 competitors finished the race, including 40-year-old Will Shipley of Nashville who finished 32nd in 35:36. "I've been more into total fitness training but this is something I really enjoy doing, being able to compete in an international event run near home," Shipley said.

Gisela Kaltenhofer, 33, of Austria, was the lone female finisher in 34:46 for 30th place. Sylvia Andonie, 33, of Mexico, dropped out during the run.

Two Huntsvillians competed: Stephen Spanogle, 29, finished 11th in 25:55; Mark Dummer, 27, dropped out during the run.

Among the competitors was Army Col. John Dooley, 52, of Omaha, Neb. He was forced out by dehydration during this second marathon. In the Army for 34 years, Dooley has done the Ironman Triathlon in Hawaii three times. "I participate in things like this, the problem here was the humidity," he said. "And of the 50 people who started, there were 14 who were pulled off the course because they were dehydrated to the point of being medical areas. I would emphasize the right decision was made, the doctor was in the right position to objectively make the decision."

"From my objective, Redstone Arsenal was very generous in providing facilities for the race. My three sons (John Jr., Chris and Tim) — all of them are commissioned officers. It was a family get-together; the old colonel and three lieutenants get together trying to beat the odds. The odds beat me, the weather did. I ran 42 miles after biking 224 and swimming 4.8, I don't apologize," Dooley said.

His support crew — which he said "really did well" — included SSgt. Rick Williamson and SSgt. Deborah Swindle, both of C Company, 73rd Ordnance Battalion; Spec. Mike McGinnis of HHC MICOM; SSgt. William Fleming of A Company, 73rd Ordnance Battalion; and Todd Nicholson of Boeing.

Marines from Redstone Arsenal turned out to cheer on one of their own: Gregory Meacham, 40, a police officer from Lynchburg, Va., who served in the Marine Corps from 1967-71, including two tours in Vietnam. "About a mile away from the finish line, they fell out in formation and sang cadence," Meacham said. "They really made a big to do on it. It was a very emotional, fitting end to a long, difficult endurance event."

Meacham finished 25th in 31:27. It was his second Double Iron Triathlon; he did his first in 1987. "It's probably the toughest race I've ever done," Meacham said. "By far, it gives me the most satisfaction."

TMDE doesn't wait for Fire Prevention Week

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Fire Prevention Week came more than a month early for the workers at building 5435.

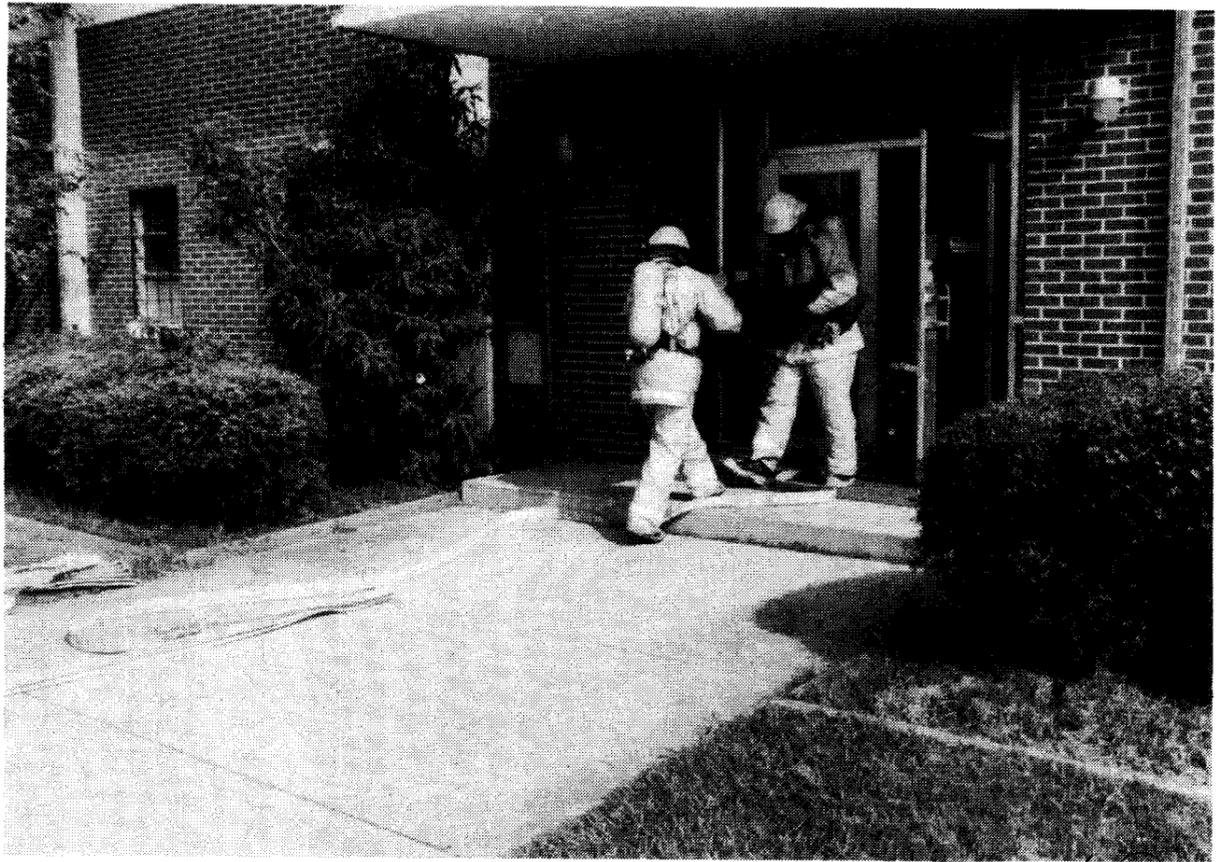

Occupants of that building — the headquarters for Test, Measurement and Diagnostic Equipment (TMDE) Support Group — were evacuated Monday morning, Aug. 28 for a fire drill. Fire Prevention Week is scheduled Oct. 8-14.

"We've got a very complex facility here. We've got hidden rooms, several of those — they're actually rooms with rooms. And our philosophy is that we don't wait until Fire Prevention Week before we have any of these drills or practices," said Art Parrow, facility coordinator for building 5435.

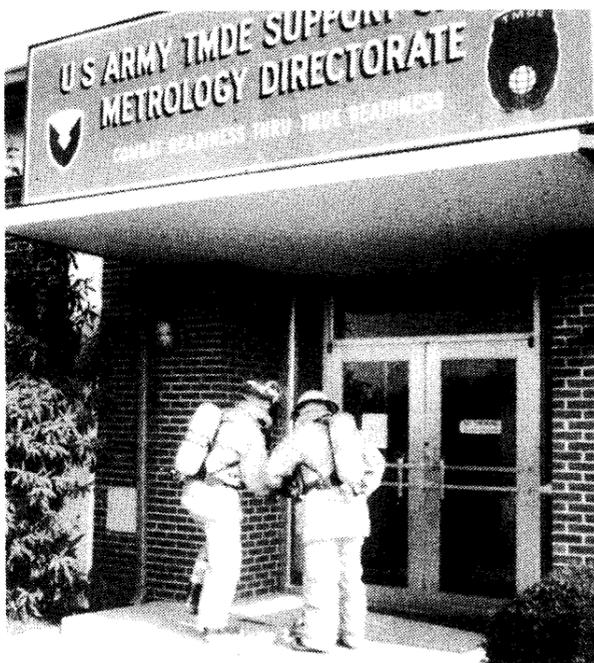

He pulled the alarm about 9:20 a.m. and the TMDE workers, about 180 total in the building, went outside.

The exercise called for informing firefighters that two workers remained in hidden rooms. These were really mannequins which were placed into position before the exercise. One mannequin was in room 43 near the front of the building, and the other mannequin was in room 24 toward the back of the building.

A command post was set up across the street. Three fire crews responded — including engine companies from stations 1 and 3 and a ladder company from station 2. The exercise was over in about 20 minutes.

"It went excellent," said station 3 Capt. Bobby McFarland, who serves as the fire department's training instructor. "We're real pleased with the performance from the building occupants as well as the fire department personnel."

Two aspects of the exercise included evacuating the people from the building, and setting up a command post. Simulated calls that went out included a request for air-conditioned buses for the building occupants because of the hot weather. "It was a command post exercise for us and a fire drill for the building personnel, and in both respects it went real well," McFarland said.

James Hughes, the fire inspector who does monthly fire inspections in building 5435, appreciated the response from the TMDE workers. "The fire department would like to thank the people of building 5435 for their cooperation during this exercise," Hughes said. "We realize it's hot out there and I didn't hear anybody complain. We'd like for them to know we do appreciate their cooperation."

Fire drills are held periodically — at least once a year — at TMDE headquarters, according to Parrow. One was held in October 1988 and another was held last March.

"We're not waiting till Fire Prevention Week to practice fire safety," Parrow said. "And we want to cooperate with the fire department every way that we can. We depend on them, and we want to be able to help them all we can. We don't want to have anybody's life lost because somebody didn't know how to get to them."

maintenance trucks," he added, also noting that none of the tactical vehicles will be affected by the GSA transfer.

Under the terms of the GSA agreement, that agency will replace 30 percent of the fleet the first year, 30 percent the second year, 30 percent the third year, 5 percent the fourth year and 5 percent the fifth year. Following this schedule, all Redstone vehicles will be "up to operating under (GSA's) replacement criteria" after five years, Brooks said.

The cost comparison study showed that 65.9 percent of the Redstone fleet were over age, 42.6 percent were over mileage, and 38.8 percent of the vehicles were both over age and mileage.

Brooks said all vehicles purchased by GSA are American made. "We operate under the 'Buy America' program. We purchase Fords, Chevrolets, Chryslers. No Toyotas," he said.

NEW VEHICLE — Ron Brooks, GSA's Alabama fleet manager, exhibits one of the replacement vehicles Redstone will soon begin receiving.

NEW TAG — All vehicles in Redstone's non-tactical fleet have now been retagged with new GSA license plates. Redstone will transfer all its vehicles to GSA ownership effective Oct. 1.

Frederick W. Robbins*

INTERIOR BALLISTICS

Theory, Modeling & Problem Solving including Hands-On Computer Work

September 22, 1989
The Holiday Inn at Research Park, Huntsville, Alabama

*This unique one-day seminar provides an outstanding opportunity for both beginners and experienced armament professionals to meet with and learn from a leading expert on interior ballistic modeling. In addition to engineers directly involved with weapon system design, project managers and specialists in other fields will also benefit by gaining insight into the capabilities and limitations of currently available modeling techniques and how these techniques interact with their particular area of expertise.

*You will gain an in-depth understanding of the basic theory of interior ballistics with an emphasis on how this theory is applied to the solution of everyday interior ballistics problems. You will understand the equations implanted in a lumped parameter code, the data required to run the code, and how this data is obtained.

*You will have the opportunity to use seminar concepts in the solution of some typical interior ballistics problems as computers will be available for hands-on work. You will also receive a PC compatible source and object image of the code on diskette for use back on the job.

*So join us at our comfortable and private conference room at The Holiday Inn on Friday, September 22, from 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. A Continental Breakfast will be served in the conference room at 8:00 a.m.; lunch will be served in the hotel at noon. Workbook, Interior Ballistics Code, Follow-Up Software Package, breakfast and lunch are included in seminar fee.

Anti-acne arsenal available to military doctors

BY EVELYN D. HARRIS

AMERICAN FORCES INFORMATION SERVICE

Severe or moderately severe acne that interferes with wearing military equipment can keep a prospective cadet or midshipman out of the military academies.

Severe acne on the shoulders can also keep a recruit out of the regular Army because it makes carrying a backpack extremely painful.

Although few people suffer from acne so severe it forces them to choose new careers, even mild acne can leave men feeling less than dashing and women less than beautiful.

People can suffer from severe acne well beyond their teen-age years — even into their 30's and 40's. Fortunately, it is treatable.

As associate professor of dermatology at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, Dr. Kim Yancey helps train the military doctors who will treat service members and dependents for acne and other skin problems.

"Before talking about treatment, I'd like to talk about the causes of acne," said Yancey. "Acne is linked to many different factors including hormonal changes such as those which occur in adolescence," said Yancey.

He explained that acne starts when the cell layer lining in the pore around the hair follicles changes, giving them a tendency to become plugged. These plugged follicles fill with sebum (oil) and are called comedones. Open comedones are called blackheads because the tips turn black when exposed to air. Closed comedones are called whiteheads.

The follicles may eventually rupture and produce "inflammatory pustular lesions" — pimples on the skin's surface or cysts underneath the surface. Bacteria in the plugged follicles breaks the trapped oil down into irritating material that further adds to inflammatory reactions at sites of ruptured follicles.

"All acne therapy is preventive medicine," said Yancey.

Unless acne is severe, most doctors prefer to start with treatments that can be applied to the skin. For mild, superficial acne, Yancey suggests applying a product containing benzoyl peroxide to the skin. Benzoyl peroxide has anti-bacterial action and also causes mild peeling of the skin, which prevents plugging. Various concentrations of benzoyl peroxide are available in over-the-counter acne treatment products.

Another effective medication is Retin A. Applied to the skin, Retin A keeps plugs from forming within the hair follicles. However, patients must be careful to protect themselves from the sun when using Retin A, said Yancey, because it make the skin more sun-sensitive.

For patients with more severe acne, antibiotics remain the mainstay of acne treatment, said Yancey. A doctor may begin therapy with topical antibiotics so the rest of the body is not exposed to these agents. If topical antibiotics don't work, oral antibiotics, such as tetracycline or erythromycin, might.

"Tetracycline should not be give to younger patients (whose teeth are not fully formed) or to pregnant women (because it can stain their babies' teeth)," said Yancey. "Tetracycline also makes some patients skin more sensitive to the sun. Oral antibiotics can also make women more prone to yeast infections."

Oral antibiotics kill bacteria within the hair follicles and keep it from degrading the oil, thus reducing inflammation. Antibiotics have other anti-inflammatory effects as well.

The biggest gun in the anti-acne arsenal is Accutane. "Accutane cannot be taken by pregnant women — it produces birth defects," said Yancey. "It is very important to emphasize this problem with all female patients. But for somebody with severe cystic acne, Accutane would be a reasonable first choice."

A course of Accutane treatment usually lasts 16 to 20 weeks.

"Accutane actually changes the skin — and it works in such a way that there is no recurrent acne once therapy is completed," said Yancey.

"There are some predictable side effects of Accutane treatment — dry skin, chapped lips, dry eyes and perhaps joint pain. But for people who can tolerate it Accutane can be an excellent choice," said Yancey.

Phone call policy revised by DoD

BY TOM JOYCE

AMERICAN FORCES INFORMATION SERVICE

The Department of Defense has released its long-awaited policy regarding use of government telephones for personal reasons.

Under new rules effective June 21, personal calls (such as those to speak to a spouse or minor child or to arrange for emergency repairs to a residence or automobile) are now in the best interest of the government if they:

- Do not adversely affect the performance of official duties by the employee or the employee's organization;
- Are of reasonable duration and frequency; and
- Could not reasonably have been made at another time.

The rules also authorize long-distance calls, but they must be charged to an employee's home telephone or other non-government number, such as a collect call or to a personal telephone credit card or be made to a toll-free 800 number.

The DoD policy is generally consistent with General Services Administration guidelines published in January 1988. However, those rules allow agency heads to authorize employees to make long-distance calls in some instances and charge them to the government.

"It would have cost the department more than $200 million a year to allow the same thing," said Ray Lecuyer, staff assistant for base and support communications, Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence. "We have the largest work force in government. To allow those calls would be a tremendous burden to the services and the Defense Department."

Unlike the General Services Administration's Federal Telecommunications System, which has access to the public telephone system, DoD's command and control system and principal voice network, AUTOVON, is a closed system. "To enable this system to access or be accessible from the public network in order for an employee to make long-distance calls home would just be too costly," said Lecuyer.

The new rules are only added guidance to DoD's overall policy on the use of government telephones. It is stated in DoD Directive 5500.7, "Standards of Conduct":

"All DoD personnel are responsible for using office telecommunications services for official use only. The term 'official use' means service directly in support of government business or as otherwise approved by DoD component authority, as defined by the DoD component, who is in the supervisory or managerial chain of command, as being in the best interest of the government."

The new guidance, said Lecuyer, will appear in the next revision of DoD Directive 5500.7.

A DoD committee is reviewing guidance for making personal calls home while on temporary duty. Lecuyer said any changes to the current policy — which prohibits it — will be reflected in updated Joint Travel Regulations.

HOW TO PLACE A REDSTONE ROCKET CLASSIFIED AD

The Redstone Rocket provides the Rocket Classified section as a free service to active duty military personnel and army civil service personnel at Redstone Arsenal.

To place a Rocket Classified ad:

Type or legibly print a brief description of what you want to sell on an 8 1/2 x 11 inch piece of paper (no 3 x 5 cards or torn paper will be accepted).

Only home numbers will be listed in the advertisement. No office phone numbers will be accepted. Sign the ad, and list some type of identification, such as a building number, badge number, etc.

The deadline is 5 p.m. on Friday before the Wednesday publication. Ads will run for one week only. You may resubmit them.

The Redstone Rocket will not accept classified ads for business. A business classified ad or for those who are not military or civil service is $5.75 (1 column x 1 1/4 inches, bordered, about 20-30 words).

If you submit more than one classified at a time, place each one on a separate piece of paper.

Mail Rocket Classified ads to: Sara Grant & Associates, Attn: Redstone Rocket Classifieds, P.O. Box 5351, Huntsville, Alabama 35801.

The Redstone Rocket will not accept any classified ads by telephone.

The Redstone Rocket is not responsible for typographical errors or for omissions in this section. Classifieds will be published as space permits. First come, first served basis.
