Annual Combined Federal Campaign opens Oct. 2

CFC chairman says Huntsville community's charity needs are real

BY SANDA LAGER

"I believe it's important to share what we have with the less fortunate. The need is there, and we, the federal employees, have the unique privilege to help improve the lives of others," said Tommie Lockhart, chairman of the Huntsville area Combined Federal Campaign which gets under way Oct. 2.

Lockhart, chief of the land combat branch in the Missile Systems Readiness Directorate, volunteered in February to serve as chairperson. Work started in March to form committees and to contact the 30 federal agencies in the Huntsville area which comprise the CFC effort here.

This year's campaign will be conducted in a manner very similar to previous years' campaigns during the solicitation period, Lockhart said.

Group solicitation, however, is being encouraged this year, he said, because this method is particularly effective in the smaller offices. The campaign, which continues through Nov. 3, has a goal of $890,000.

Lockhart said all employees are invited to attend the kickoff luncheon at noon Oct. 2 at the Marriott in Huntsville.

"It will give employees a chance to see and hear the representatives of some of our local (CFC) agencies listed in our brochure this year," he said. The brochure lists some 57 local charities.

"If we could somehow motivate each federal employee in the Huntsville area — all 24,000 of them — to fully believe there's a real need for this CFC drive and that we all, by giving, can positively affect the lives of hungry people, elderly people without proper care, people without adequate food, shelter and clothing, not only would we achieve our financial goals but also add to how we feel about ourselves," said Lockhart.

He explained that he has seen firsthand in the community how needy some people are. "The needs are real," he explained.

"(CFC) is an opportunity to give back a little of what we possess and take for granted. People who don't have these things can't even imagine where a life like ours comes from," he said.

Lockhart has been at Redstone since 1966, when he entered federal service as a personnel staffing specialist in the Civilian Personnel Office.

He later worked for 10 years at the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School as an electronics instructor, in the old Supply and Management Directorate for five years, the Integrated Logistics Support Office for four years, and since 1985, has worked as a logistics management specialist in the Missile Systems Readiness Directorate.

Lockhart grew up in Madison County but graduated from Trinity High School in Athens. He holds a bachelor's degree in biology and a master's degree in industrial education from A&M University. He served two years in the Army.

Lockhart was the first president of the PTA at the Academy for Academics and Arts in 1984, and presently serves as the group's secretary.

Both his children, 13-year-old Jason and 10-year-old Ginger are students there. His wife, Veronica, is a systems analyst at A&M University. He served as radio announcer for A&M football games from the early 1970s until 1986.

Lockhart has coached baseball and soccer and lists his hobbies as reading and "pretending I can sing." This, undoubtedly is a declaration of modesty, since he was well known locally as a singer in the '60s and '70s.

He and his group were a lead-on act for many famous artists, stars like Wilson Pickett and Jerry Butler, to name just two. He also appeared on stage with Sammy Davis Jr. and the highlight of his singing career, said Lockhart, was having Roberta Flack accompany him on the piano on stage.

"I did USO shows around the Washington, D.C. area," said Lockhart. "I've had a degree of satisfaction and measured success with my singing."

CHAIRMAN — Lockhart is 1990 CFC chairman for federal agencies in the Huntsville area.

Redstone plane to assist in hurricane relief efforts

The Army's last remaining Caribou aircraft departed Redstone Army Airfield on Tuesday morning to head for San Juan in order to assist in the hurricane relief efforts.

The twin-reciprocating engine propeller-type plane, which requires only a short runway for takeoff or landing, is to be used in the relief efforts for 10 days to two weeks.

"It's the only one assigned to an active Army unit," said Jim White, the pilot in command. He and the rest of the five-member crew were due to stop at Fulton County, Ga., to pick up over-water survival gear and then stop in Jacksonville, Fla., to pick up a seven-member disaster relief team from the Corps of Engineers. They planned to stop for the night in Miami and leave the morning of Sept. 27 for Gran Turk Island.

After arriving at Gran Turk about 12:30 p.m. (EST), they are to depart for San Juan and arrive four hours later. The total 1,630 mile trip is to take about 13 hours flight time (with a cruise speed of 130 knots), according to SSgt. Russ Horn, the airfield's NCO-in-charge.

"They will be flying eight hours a day, two to three flights per day, going from island to island — picking up people, taking first aid stuff around, whatever it takes," Horn said. The request for the plane came Friday afternoon from the Central Army Aviation Scheduling Operation out of Fort Belvoir, Va.

Lt. Col. Bob Kincaid, the airfield's director of flight operations, said, "Apparently the Federal Emergency Management Agency contacted the Central Army Aviation Scheduling Operation office and then they in turn called us."

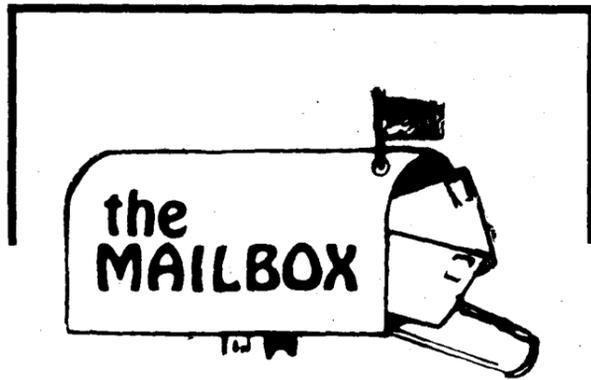

The C-7A Caribou was built in 1963 by the DeHaviland Corp. of Toronto, Canada. It can hold 32 passengers and 5,000 pounds of cargo. With full-gross weight, 28,500 pounds, it can land on a runway as short as 600 feet and take off on one as short as 900 feet, according to White.

Maj. Richard Hudgens, another member of the crew, said the plane will be supporting the Corps of Engineers and other activities as directed by the Corps. "It's hauling teams around for damage assessment, but I'm sure it's going to be more than that though," Hudgens said. Besides White and Hudgens, the other members of the crew include CWO 4 Johnny Dixon, Robert DeBerry and Ollie Armstrong.

BEFORE TRIP — The C-7A Caribou awaits takeoff from Redstone airfield.

Likes child center

Editor:

We want to take this opportunity to thank all of the employees at the Child Development Center for the wonderful job they do on a daily basis caring for this country's most precious resource, our children.

Day in and day out, the employees and staff greet us with smiles in the morning, console our sometimes reluctant children, and when we pick up our children, give us feedback on how the day went. Our children hand us beautiful pictures that they have created, sing us songs that bring back fond childhood memories, and describe exciting trips to the movies, swimming, roller skating, and picnics. Birthdays, holidays, and special events are celebrated frequently with the employees doing most of the work. Tears are dried with lots of TLC.

Questions, issues and suggestions are always welcomed by the Parent Advisory Council and the staff. We asked for early opening for PT on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and we received it. We asked for higher discount rates for those who qualify, and we received them.

As working mothers and fathers, we sometimes question our decision to work while our children are small and wonder if we will ever overcome the guilt. However, for some of us, we have to work to fulfill our children's basic needs. Although we are not with them during the work day to provide them with all the love they need, we do know that they are receiving lots of love from the CDC employees and staff.

We know you do not hear it enough, but we want all the staff and employees of the CDC to know that we thank you from the bottom of our hearts. Thanks!

SSgt. Gwendolyn K. Polk

Aerophysics facility to be moved here

A research laboratory that will give the Army missile program a unique aerophysics capability is being relocated from California to Redstone Arsenal where it will be operated by the University of Alabama in Huntsville.

The facility, which measures reentry and impact velocities of projectiles, was operational until 1988 under General Motors' Delco electronics subsidiary in Goleta, Calif.

GM donated the facility to UAH and Strategic Defense Command has contracted with the university to move it here for $9.4 million.

It will be sited near the arsenal west boundary north of Martin Road and accessed by Anderson Road.

It will be housed in a 50 foot by 1150 foot range building to be built by UAH with a $1.6 million bond issue. Adjacent will be a control building with data recorders and machine shop and other features. A third building, a powder magazine, will also occupy the 15-acre site.

The long, narrow range structure will contain a large hypervelocity launch tube and two smaller ones.

In operation, military cannon propellant is ignited to push a piston against hydrogen gas which is released under pressure to propel a model projectile down the launch tube through a series of instrumented chambers to an impact chamber where it is stopped by a series of steel plates.

Using the facility to simulate flight of military projectiles reduces the need for live missile flights and lessens the performance risks going into full-scale proof of principle flight test programs.

Expected users besides MICOM and SDC include the Air Force, NASA, DARPA and Defense Nuclear Agency.

Expected operational date is fall 1991. By one estimate, the move of equipment from California to Redstone will entail "several scores" of truckload shipments.

Fiesta features fun, food, frolic

A Spanish fiesta featuring food, fun and celebration is planned for 6-9:30 p.m. Sept. 29 at the Recreation Center.

The event is being held in conjunction with Hispanic Heritage Month which is being celebrated at Redstone Sept. 15 through Oct. 15.

Although there is no charge for the event, guests are required to bring a covered dish — vegetable, salad or dessert — to complement the main course, a 175-pound pig and 40 pounds of chicken.

Dancers in native costumes will perform the traditional dances of various countries. Pinatas will be available for the children.

This year will mark the fourth year a fiesta has been celebrated at Redstone during the annual Hispanic celebration. Last year's event drew around 200 guests.

Cianciolo approved for his third star

The Senate last week confirmed Maj. Gen. Gus Cianciolo for his third star.

Cianciolo, commander of the Missile Command and Redstone Arsenal since July 1988, will assume new duties as deputy commanding general for research, development and acquisition at the Army Materiel Command in Alexandria, Va.

Succeeding Cianciolo at MICOM will be Brig. Gen. William S. Chen who has been nominated to get his second star. A change of command ceremony is set for 2 p.m. Oct. 6 in front of MICOM headquarters.

Fund to help accident victim

A fund has been established to help pay the medical bills incurred by a young woman injured in a car accident on Redstone Arsenal in June.

Kimberly Nabors, 22, is out of a coma but faces extensive rehabilitation and reconstructive surgery on her hip. She received internal head injuries, broken ribs, a fractured tailbone, and a crushed left hip in a one-car accident June 15 when her car left rain-slickened Rideout Road at the Toftoy overpass.

She was transferred on Aug. 7 to the Spain Rehabilitation Center in Birmingham, according to Jim Cothren of the Missile Logistics Center. His daughter, Sandra, is a close friend of Nabors' helping with the fund-raising effort.

Donations to the fund can be made to Colonial Bank, Attention: Customer Service, 101 Governors Drive SE, Huntsville, 35801, or at any Colonial Bank location, account 8002497587. For more information, call Gina Walker 551-4804.

Contracts awarded for strategic defense studies

The U.S. Army Strategic Defense Command has awarded short-term contracts valued at more than $4.6 million to 15 defense and aerospace contractors for studying innovative approaches to midcourse interceptor technology for the Strategic Defense Initiative.

These contracts are expected to make significant contributions to the technology base for the Ground-Based Interceptor. The 15 studies will last four to six months each and are focusing on a full range of technologies, from interceptor components to kinetic kill vehicles, for the GBI Experiment portion of the GBI program. The results of the studies will be made available to industry for the follow-on GBI-X Concept and Technology Integration phase.

The GBI-X effort is structured to: introduce advanced GBI technologies; resolve GBI technical issues; and provide two or more competitors for the full scale development of a GBI.

An element in the Phase I Strategic Defense System architecture, the GBI is a non-nuclear interceptor that would be launched from the ground into space to destroy the nuclear reentry vehicles from strategic ballistic missiles during the long midcourse portion of their flight (sometime after their post-boost deployment in space and before their reentry into the atmosphere).

The GBI Program is currently in a demonstration/validation phase which consists of the ERIS (exoatmospheric reentry-vehicle interceptor subsystem) Functional Technology Validation and the separate GBI Experiment. The ERIS functional technology validation program will resolve critical GBI issues pertaining to target handover, endgame performance, and certain aspects of non-nuclear kill lethality. GBI-X will resolve the remaining non-nuclear kill lethality issues, as well as the GBI critical issues in discrimination and operation in a nuclear environment.

Industry comments have been received from a draft request for proposals for the GBI-X Concept and Technology Integration issued earlier this summer. The final request for proposals for the GBI-X Concept and Technology Integration phase is expected to be issued this fall and the competition will be open to all defense and aerospace contractors, as well as the firms that received the awards under the broad agency announcement.

The Concept and Technology Integration effort will procure state-of-the-art component subsystems such as kinetic kill vehicles, avionics packages, seekers, and propulsion and reaction control systems. Subsystem technology for the CTI should be mature enough to support government baseline concepts for a Milestone II decision and enhance competition for the GBI full scale development.

During the CTI, the government will develop the new GBI baseline for full scale development competition. The baseline will build on the results of the ERIS functional technology validation, the component and kill vehicle studies, and the CTI phase, as they become available.

The GBI is a major component of all current strategic defense architectures and this importance dictates that the GBI program uses the best technology available.

From 53 proposals received under the broad agency announcement, contract awards were made to the following companies:

- Boeing Aerospace, Seattle, Wash., midcourse interceptor technologies, $493,677; Rockwell International, Space Transportation Division, Downey, Calif., a study of innovative interceptor and kill vehicle concepts for exoatmospheric midcourse defense, $492,022; Lockheed Missiles and Space Company Inc., Sunnyvale, Calif., innovative kill vehicle design concepts study, $486,716; Hughes Aircraft Company, Missile Systems Group, Canoga Park,

- Calif., midcourse interceptor kill vehicle study, $462,526; Martin Marietta, Missile Systems, Orlando, Fla., innovative kill vehicle design concept for ground based interceptor midcourse defense, $405,343

- Westinghouse Electric Corp./Research & Development Center, Pittsburgh, Pa., spectral infrared imaging for midcourse interceptors, $391,325; Aerojet Techsystems, Sacramento, Calif., midcourse interceptor technologies study program for a propulsion and reaction control system, $326,000; Societe Europeene de Propulsion, En Jalles, France, GBI kill vehicle — hot gas steering systems preliminary studies and tests, $297,946; Booz, Allen and Hamilton Inc., Bethesda, Md., proof of principle data fusion demonstration for GBI on-board discrimination, $271,875; Ball Aerospace Electro-Optics/Cryogenics Division, ultraviolet and visible sensor study for

- the GBI program, $270,270; Honeywell Inc., Electro-Optics Division, Lexington, Mass., the integration of innovative engineering development technologies to produce a low-cost GBI seeker, $242,723

- Charles Stark Draper Laboratory Inc., Cambridge, Mass., rapid azimuth alignment using the wheel speed reversal concept, $149,824; Atlantic Research Corp., Liquid Propulsion, Niagara Falls, N.Y., KKV propellant tank demonstration program, $146,148; Science Applications International Corp., San Diego, Calif., visible light sensor characterization experiment, $134,507; and Thiokol Corp., Elkton (Md.) Division, the electro-optic semiconductor bridge safe/arm/fire device: an innovative initiation system for midcourse interceptor application, $113,417. Total value of the contract awards is $4,684,319.

EEO forming black employment panel

A Black Employment Program Committee is being established at the Missile Command, according to the MICOM Equal Employment Opportunity Office.

This committee will be a working group and representative of the workforce (i.e., organization, occupations and grades), the EEO office said. The committee will provide an opportunity for more people to become involved and to make a personal commitment and contribution to the Black Employment Program.

Committee members will serve as organizational liaisons to provide information about the concerns and needs of black employees in their respective organizations. Meetings are expected to be held quarterly and last no longer than an hour to an hour and a half.

Such a committee was established in 1986 for MICOM and serviced activities, but the original charter is being revised and a new committee established as the result of recent guidance from the Department of Army.

Employees interested in serving on the Black Employment Program Committee should submit a request for consideration through their supervisor to AMSMI-EO, Bonnie Kilgore. For more information, call 876-8946.

Government employment information days coming soon

BY PAM ROGERS

Employment information for military spouses will move a little closer to home next month with the establishment of a once-a-month employment information day at Army Community Service.

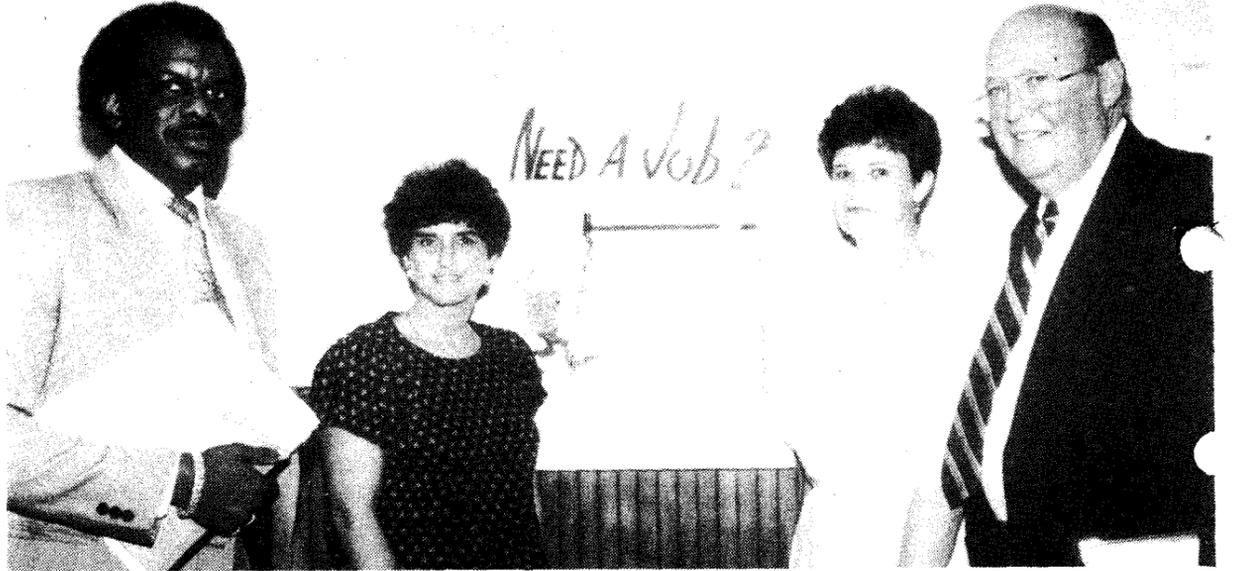

Representatives from the Missile Command Civilian Personnel Office will be at ACS, building 3491, the second Friday of each month (holidays permitting) beginning in October. Military family members can find out what programs and jobs they qualify for, and can receive assistance in filling out necessary forms, according to Bernard Collier, the CPO Family Member Employment Assistance coordinator.

He, along with a representative from the Non-Appropriated Fund, will be available to answer questions and give out information in the mornings. In the afternoons, classes on the correct way to fill out an SF-171 (Application for Federal Employment) and on resume writing will be taught.

The service is a result of requests made by members of the military community here, according to Sue Paddock, ACS Family Member Employment Assistance Program coordinator. The remoteness of CPO was raised as an issue at the Family Action Symposium held in May.

"The ACS Family Member Task Force came up with the idea to have one day out of the month designated as family member employment information day at ACS," she said.

Billy Hughes, chief of the NAF Branch of CPO, believes this more personalized service will encourage more military spouses and family members to apply for government jobs.

"By bringing it closer to them, they will think of it as their own time to get information," he said.

Collier agreed, adding, "I think it would be to their benefit to talk to one person who can tell them what programs they qualify for and what's available. That way they can get more complete information. The opportunities here are not the same as other locations. Different (employment) programs have different eligibility requirements."

The first employment information day will be held Oct. 13 from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. For more information call 876-5397.

'Freedom is not free,' says Medal of Honor winner

BY SANDA LAGER

Growing up Hispanic and poor was his first battle in life, said Roy Benavidez, retired master sergeant and Congressional Medal of Honor winner, when he visited Huntsville last week.

Speaking to about 250 guests at the Hispanic Heritage luncheon last Wednesday at the Challenger NCO Club, the orphan from a south Texas barrio who was awarded the nation's highest award for valor in Vietnam, said that for him, "education and a diploma" were the keys to overcoming poverty and achieving success.

He struggled to overcome discrimination as a child of the Depression, he said, excelled in sports and eventually joined the Texas National Guard and later the U.S. Army on active duty.

In an inspiring and patriotic talk, he told a hushed audience how, on his first tour in Vietnam, he was severely injured in combat and sent home paralyzed from the waist down, told he would never walk again.

"I sweated, begged and cried to walk again so I could go back to Vietnam and help my buddies."

During rehabilitation at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, "I struggled to walk while they (draft dodgers) burned the flag and wore it on the seat of their pants," he remembered.

Through faith, determination and willpower, Benavidez said, he did walk again. The Green Beret returned to Vietnam in 1968 and volunteered for a mission behind enemy lines to rescue trapped soldiers, during which he was wounded 28 times while holding off the enemy at point-blank range. Himself severely wounded, he managed to load 17 men into a helicopter, including three dead enemy.

It was not until 1981 that the Congressional Medal of Honor was awarded to Benavidez, five years after his retirement.

"Since 1982 I've traveled 200,000 miles sharing my story with others. The Lord spared my life so I can share with others that freedom is not free."

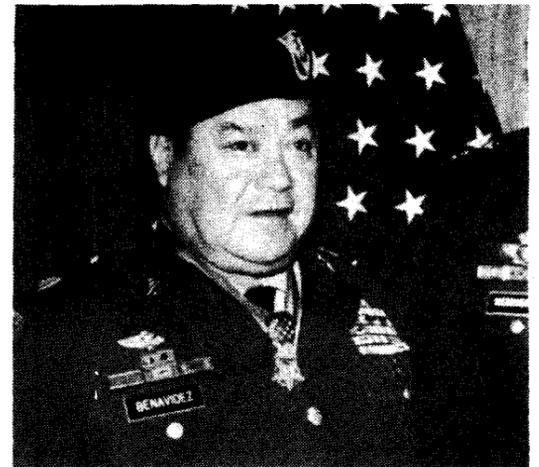

He carries that message to schools and civic groups throughout the country, he said.

President Ronald Reagan encouraged him to recount his experiences in a book and to carry his message throughout the country, Benavidez said after the luncheon.

In 1988, "The Three Wars of Roy Benavidez," was published in paperback by Simon and Schuster.

Celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month continues at Redstone through Oct. 15, with a fiesta planned for Sept. 29 at 6 p.m. at the Recreation Center, a Spanish Mass/Confession at the Bicentennial Chapel at 11:30 a.m. on Oct. 6, with closing ceremonies planned for Oct. 14 (site and time to be announced).

Auburn picked to roll past Tennessee Orange

BY SKIP VAUGHN

It's the Big Orange of Tennessee vs. the Tigers of Auburn this weekend in a key Southeastern Conference game.

Tennessee is rolling with a 3-0 record. The Volunteers opened with a so-so 17-14 decision over Colorado State, then surprised UCLA 24-6 on the road, and whipped Duke 28-6.

Auburn is 2-0 with wins over Pacific 55-0 and Southern Mississippi 24-3. Obviously the Tiger defense, which opened the season with only three returning starters, hasn't missed a beat.

Counting last year's 5-0 finish, the Volunteers have won eight straight games. And they would love to make it nine in a row Saturday at home in Knoxville. But it won't happen. Quarterback Reggie Slack and the Tiger defense will be the difference. The pick here is... Auburn.

Last week's picks brought a 30-6 record, improving the season totals to 92-29-2 for 76 percent. Here are Skip's Picks for selected games this weekend in college football:

Council addresses Redstone quality of life issues

Next open meeting scheduled for Oct. 3 at the Recreation Center

BY PAM ROGERS

Members of the Redstone community who have concerns about community issues can bring them before the Human Resource Council when it holds an open meeting next month.

Dr. William Resha, chief of the Army Community Service Office and a member of the committee, said anyone who wishes to attend the meeting is welcome.

"People are encouraged to attend if for no other reason than to observe the operations," he said. The meeting is set for 9:30-11 a.m. Oct. 3 at the Recreation Center.

Anyone who has an issue for the council to address should write Resha at AMSMI-RA-CF-FS-AC or call 876-5397. Issues which come before the committee should be in writing, but if an item comes up too late to put in writing, the submission can be made orally to the committee. In any case, anyone who brings up a concern should be present to hear the committee's decision, Resha said.

"The members are also adamant that those who present issues also suggest solutions," he said.

"There should be no gripe sessions, no personality issues. We want to address quality of life issues in a constructive way," he said.

Resha stressed that every issue will be given consideration, and those determined to be beyond the scope of the committee will be turned over to appropriate agencies.

Each month the committee addresses a set agenda, plus any other issues that members bring up. Open meetings are held quarterly.

Here is a calendar of set topics:

- January (open meeting) — Finance and Accounting, Family Advocacy Program, Junior Enlisted Club;
- February — Youth Services Council,

- Drug/Alcohol report, Month of Military Child plans; March — ACS Education Committee, Crime Prevention, Chaplain update;
- April (open meeting) — Sponsorship/Relocation, Installation Volunteer Council, Fox Army Community Hospital update;
- May — Exceptional Family Member council; Drug/Alcohol report, Inspector General update;
- June — Crime Prevention, Military Personnel report

- July (open meeting) — Family Advocacy Program, Dental Activity update;
- August — Adopt-A-School, Drug/Alcohol report, Civilian Personnel Office report;
- September — Family Member Employ-

- ment Assistance Council, Crime Prevention, Directorate of Community and Family Activities update; October (open meeting) — ACS Education Committee, Sponsorship/Relocation, Housing report;
- November — Waiting Wives, Drug/Alcohol report, Staff Judge Advocate report, Installation Morale Welfare and Recreation Fund;
- December — Health Promotion Committee, Suicide Prevention, Crime Prevention.

The committee is chaired by Col. Perry Butler, deputy post commander and commander of the Redstone Arsenal Support Activity.

Family Action Symposium update set

All delegates who participated in the second Family Action Symposium last May are encouraged to attend an update meeting to be held on Oct. 4.

The update is intended to let delegates know what is being done about the issues surfaced at the symposium, and each participant will receive a copy of the Redstone Arsenal Family Action Plan II, which was written after the event, according to Sue Paddock, project officer.

"We will take some of the major areas and ask the action officers appointed after the symposium to give updates," she said. After the update, the floor will be open to questions. Major areas which will be briefed include morale, welfare and recreation; housing, maintenance and traffic; medical; commissary and Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

Five of the issues raised during the symposium have been forwarded to the Department of Army level for action. All five are medical and dental related, Paddock said.

The update briefing will be held Oct. 4 at the Challenger NCO Club from 2 until 3:30 p.m. Active duty military members can wear their duty uniforms to this session, Paddock said. For more information, call 876-5397.

Equipment support technicians move to Ordnance Corps

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Warrant officers whose specialty is TMDE (test, measurement and diagnostic equipment) maintenance support are being welcomed to the Ordnance Corps this week.

A worldwide conference Sept. 25-27 in Huntsville is a first for these 38 warrant officers. All but two of them were expected to attend, according to CWO 3 Russ Rollins, a TMDE maintenance support technician.

Effective Oct. 1, warrant officers with this specialty will be under the Ordnance Corps rather than the Signal Corps. Their specialty will change from 252 Alpha, a signal specialty, to 918 Alpha, an ordnance designation. The Signal Corps headquarters is based at Fort Gordon, Ga., while the Ordnance Corps is out of Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

"The purpose of the conference is to welcome the worldwide TMDE maintenance support technicians officially to the Ordnance Corps," said Rollins, the senior warrant officer for TMDE Support Group. "All the calibration warrant officers in the world have been invited or are coming."

The warrant officers were due to arrive from throughout the world — from Europe, Korea, Okinawa, Hawaii, and the continental U.S. Scheduled speakers included Col. George Patch, commander, and Dr. Frank Westmoreland, deputy commander, of TMDE Support Group; Col. Dwight Hair, chief of staff, office of the chief of ordnance at Aberdeen Proving Ground; and Lt. Col. Jack Conway, director of command and staff at Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School at Redstone.

Their move from the Signal to the Ordnance Corps

WARRANT OFFICERS — CWO 3 Manuel Saenz Jr. and CWO 3 Russ Rollins are two of the four warrant officers serving as TMDE maintenance support technicians at Redstone Arsenal.

means the warrant officers will receive most of their professional development training here at the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School. Also, their proponent office will be located at OMMCS rather than at Fort Gordon.

"The primary reason for the change from Signal to Ordnance is the TMDE Support Group is responsible for calibration and repair of general purpose and select special purpose TMDE equipment for the Army," Rollins said. "Worldwide TMDE density is currently at approximately 765,000 pieces of equipment. The transfer is basically due to the fact that we are maintainers versus users. In other words, we're responsible for repairing and calibrating this equipment. The Ordnance Corps has more professional development courses on the technical side required for maintainers."

TMDE is considered a "separate commodity" throughout the Army, meaning that this equipment supports other major commodities such as weapon systems.

The 517th Maintenance Battalion supports equipment in Europe; the 74th Maintenance Battalion, located in Seoul, Korea, supports equipment in the Pacific area (including South Korea, Japan, Okinawa and Hawaii); and the 95th Maintenance Company, located at Redstone Arsenal, has detachments throughout the continental U.S. The TMDE Support Group has about 950 soldiers worldwide and approximately 1,300 civilians responsible for providing calibration/repair for the Army.

"The TMDE Support Group prides itself in being the one-stop calibration and repair support unit for customers' equipment," Rollins said.

Amateur artisans hone their jewelry-

BY SANDA LAGER

When we think of gold and silver jewelry we normally envision making a selection amid swank retail surroundings — glittering lights, lush carpets, velvet lined cases.

For those who want to fashion their own jewelry designs, who enjoy working with their hands and have sufficient patience, a new class in jewelry-making is now available at the Craft Shop on post.

Basic jewelry-making, a six-week class that meets once weekly for two and a half hours, teaches students the basic principles of working with gold and silver metals.

Cutting, soldering, grinding, mounting and polishing are some of the skills the four students who just completed the class have learned. They completed two projects, both a man's and woman's sterling silver ring with a non-faceted, or smooth, stone mounting. Roy Bruton, a shop teacher at R. L. Stone Middle School and a retired military Hawk missile instructor, teaches the new class. He is no stranger to guiding students in jewelry-making, as he taught similar classes while he was in the military.

At Stone, Bruton teaches woodworking, art, and basic metals including aluminum and copper. He holds an industrial arts degree from Alabama A&M University.

Bruton starts his students out working with silver because "silver is the cheaper of the precious metals," he said.

"A mistake with silver is only a small investment — about $2 or $3, where with the gold the same mistake would cost the student $30 or $40," said Bruton.

Students solder three kinds of silver in the class. One

CORRECTING MISTAKE — The solder did not hold, so Bill Neil refits the bezel to the ring with resoldering.

SMOOTH FIT — The bezel must be ground prior to soldering for a smooth fit. Here, Sally Smith uses the grinding machine.

SOLDERING — Betty Finley uses an acetylene torch to solder the bezel to the ring.

type is the silver which comprises the ring itself; another thinner silver, used to make the bezel, or holder for the gem; and a third type, a small, decorative-type twisted rope which is formed to surround the bezel.

Since higher temperatures are required to melt silver and gold, electric soldering guns are not used. Instead, tanks containing propane and oxygen are used as a heat source to melt silver, which requires a temperature of 1700 F to melt. Fourteen karat gold requires a similar temperature, 1645 F to melt. (Compare this to lead, used in stained glass projects, which requires a temperature of 600 degrees to melt.)

In the follow-up class, which Bruton plans to begin soon, students will learn to set faceted stones (stones with cuts that are flat and polished). The class projects will be earrings, a pendant and a silver bangle bracelet.

"Depending on the thickness, a sterling bangle bracelet can be made for as little as $3," he said.

"The style of the (silver) jewelry we make as our class projects might be described as looking like Indian, ancient or early European when they first began silversmithing," said Bruton.

The third class, when offered, will teach students how to make jewelry in the casting method. "This is the most complex of the classes," Bruton said.

Sally Smith works in the Missile and Space Intelligence Center. She said she took the class to learn a new craft.

"Taking the class really makes you appreciate jewelry," she said. "It's frustrating at times (working with the metals) but I have really enjoyed it."

Betty Finley, who works at the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School, collects antique jewelry and said she wanted to see what's involved in making jewelry. "I also like to work with my hands," she added.

Candy Brown likes medieval jewelry and can't find what she wants in stores. "My husband and I attend science fiction conventions and we dress up in costumes for them," she said. Learning to make her own jewelry has been the answer for Candy, who lives at Redstone.

"My eyes won't hold out forever," said 70-year-old Bill Neil, who said he wanted to learn jewelry-making while he could still see to do the work. He wanted a hobby he could work on at home, he said. He spent 26 and a half years in the military before retiring.

For more information on the jewelry-making classes, call the Craft Shop, building 3615, at 876-7951.

FILING — Once the bezel, or stone-holder, is cut to fit the top of the ring's surface, Candy Brown performs tedious filing to ensure proper bonding with solder.

Program enables potential sources to qualify in advance

The Missile Command has a new program in which manufacturers can be approved in advance to compete for contracts which were previously open to a limited number of sources.

This Qualification of Additional Sources Program enables companies to compete with others that are already on the restricted sources list. Potential contractors are given a chance to qualify their products in advance.

"Anytime we can broaden our industrial base, the Army is that much further ahead toward providing best value for the Army," said Bob Chalmers, secondary items team leader in the Competition Management Office. Opportunities for industries are provided in the Competition Advocate's Shopping List of secondary items procurements, including restricted source items which are planned for procurement over the next three years.

Lt. Col. Robert Gaddi, the MICOM competition advocate and chief of the competition management office, presented a cash award last week to a competition specialist for her efforts in the qualification of additional sources program. Linda Springer received a $250 on-the-spot award. "She got the program off ground zero and got the MICOM reg done," Gaddi said.

"We've had some interest in the recent past on this (program)," Gaddi said. "For example, Litton Industry has talked to us about possibly qualifying to produce a traveling wave tube for the Patriot missile. A different division of Litton is interested in producing klystron, an electron tube used in radar, for the Hawk system."

A MICOM regulation establishing policies, responsibilities and procedures for the program officially went into effect Sept. 1. This culminated a team effort initiated by the competition management office in August 1988.

AWARD — Lt. Col. Robert Gaddi presents award to Linda Springer for her work in the qualification of additional sources program.

The qualification of additional sources program is among the Army's competition enhancement initiatives resulting from the Competition in Contracting Act of 1984.

Potential contractors can receive the competition advocate's shopping list by contacting the competition management office. Linda Springer can be reached at 876-1822.

Cigarette smoking increases chance of heart disease

About 350,000 premature deaths each year can be attributed to cigarette smoking, according to the American Heart Association. Diseases of the heart and blood vessels account for more of these deaths than any other cause.

Death from coronary disease is increased two to three times in smokers compared to non-smokers, and the chances of dying from heart disease increases in direct proportion to how heavily a person smokes. The U.S. Surgeon General has referred to smoking as "the most important of the known modifiable risk factors for coronary heart disease in the United States."

The risk of cardiovascular disease in smokers is increased greatly when the other major risk factors, high blood pressure and high cholesterol, are present. For women who use oral contraceptives, smoking markedly enhances the risk of cardiovascular disease.

Approximately 4,000 substances have been identified in cigarette smoke. The contribution of each is difficult to determine. However, nicotine and carbon monoxide have been identified as the major harmful ingredients.

Nicotine, for instance, increases the heart rate and blood pressure while carbon monoxide reduces oxygen in the blood. Various substances in cigarette smoke are thought to injure the walls of blood vessels, which allows more blood cholesterol to enter and be deposited in the plaques (the waxy buildup of fats in the walls of the arteries).

Unfortunately for the smoker, lower tar and nicotine cigarettes do not reduce the risk of cardiovascular disease. This is possibly because these smokers tend to inhale more deeply or smoke more frequently.

When cigarette smoking ceases, the likelihood of developing cardiovascular disease declines rapidly. Risk is reduced within one year, and after 10 years the risk for cardiovascular disease is essentially that of a non-smoker.

After a heart attack, stopping smoking reduces the risk of heart death by 20 to 50 percent. These data provide strong evidence supporting the benefits of discontinuing cigarette smoking.

From 1966 to 1983, the percentage of American adults who smoke has declined from 43 percent to 32 percent, according to Rick Tatum, local president of the American Heart Association. This very likely has contributed to the decline in the cardiovascular death rate during the same time.

In addition to the danger of heart disease, cigarette smoking can also lead to a variety of other diseases, including cancer, emphysema, chronic bronchitis and other lung diseases. Smoking can also interfere with the effectiveness and/or metabolism of certain drugs.

People who wish to stop smoking should ask for counseling, support and guidance from their physicians. Literature is available from your local American Heart Association on how to stop smoking. For more information, call 536-0400.

Editor's note: This article was provided by the American Heart Association.

German American Day celebrated with annual dinner

The Friends of German Culture and the military representatives of the Federal Republic of Germany at Redstone Arsenal are planning a joint celebration at the Von Braun Civic Center north hall Monday evening, Oct. 2.

The dinner meeting, beginning with a 6 p.m. social hour, is to recognize German American Day 1989 and the 40th anniversary of the constitution of the Federal Republic of Germany. Guest of honor will be the Atlanta-based Consul General of the Federal Republic of Germany for the southeastern United States, Alexander von Schmeling.

In his introductory remarks, he will focus on highlights of the new chapter in German history that began in 1959 with the signing of the Basic Law establishing the democratic principles of the Federal Republic of Germany.

Dr. Henry Lane Hull, retired associate professor of history, will talk about Baron von Steuben, one of the 18th century pre-eminent German Americans and his contributions to the American Revolution.

Von Steuben's training of the Revolutionary Army and his skillful strategy helped win the American war for independence. Hull, a graduate of Georgetown University, retired from the University of Alabama in Huntsville in 1986. He now resides at his family home "Mount Pisgah" in Wicomico Church, Va. In addition to his research work and lectures, he is serving on the board of directors of Children's Aid, International. In 1986, he was inducted by the Roman Catholic Church into the Sovereign Military Order of Malta.

"A strong factor in the development of close ties between the citizens of Huntsville and those of the Federal Republic of Germany has been the presence since 1957 of members of the German armed forces at Redstone Arsenal."

— Ruth von Saurma

German American Day will be celebrated nationwide on Oct. 6, the anniversary of the landing of the first group of German settlers in Philadelphia, Pa., in 1683. The commemorative celebration was initiated in 1987 when President Reagan officially proclaimed German American Day during a ceremony in the Rose Garden of the White House. The day serves to draw attention to the multifaceted contributions of Americans of German descent to the economic and cultural life of our country. To date, German Americans constitute the largest ethnic group in the U.S. with more than 52 million claiming sole or partial German parentage. According to the 1980 U.S. census, in Huntsville and Madison County more than 25,000 persons have single or multiple German ancestors.

"A strong factor in the development of close ties between the citizens of Huntsville and those of the Federal Republic of Germany has been the presence since 1957 of members of the German armed forces at Redstone Arsenal," said Ruth von Saurma, president of the Friends of German Culture. "Today about 20 German staff officers, civilian employees, and other military personnel serve in various liaison and technical capacities on cooperative rocket and missile projects under the jurisdiction of MICOM."

Wernher von Braun and his team of German rocket scientists were brought to Redstone Arsenal in 1949 by the U.S. Army and went on to contribute greatly to the U.S. rocket and space programs.

In charge of the arrangements for the Oct. 2 dinner are Lt. Col. Bernhard Seen, the German Air Force liaison officer at Redstone Arsenal, and German club members Ruth von Saurma, president, Ulla Doane, vice president, and Brigitte Winch, reservations chairman.

About 250 people are expected to attend the third annual dinner, according to von Saurma. This is the first time the event has been co-arranged by the German military detachment, she said. The Friends of German Culture consists of more than 160 single, family, and corporate members.

For more information about the dinner, call 881-5653 or 536-7029.
