TMDE display depicts black American history

Members of TMDE Support Group and visitors to its headquarters can read about contributions of black Americans in a display for Black History Month.

Glenda Winston, a program analyst for Test Measurement and Diagnostic Equipment, put up the display in a central walkway. There are posters depicting outstanding black Americans in various fields: speakers and writers, educators and scholars, reformers and leaders, drama and music, scientists and inventors, and athletes. Literature is available on a nearby table.

"It's an effort to educate the work force on significant achievements of black Americans," said Winston, who works in TMDE's operations and analysis division. "I think that black history is something that has not been taught, and Black History Month gives us the opportunity to educate both whites and blacks, all the races, on significant contributions of black Americans that heretofore have not been told.

"I like to think of it as a black history hall of fame," she added. The display will remain for the duration of Black History Month.

For the second consecutive year, artwork depicting the black experience is on display for Black History Month at SAMD-Patriot lobby at Research Park. About 25 pieces were borrowed from Alabama A&M University's art department, according to Ted Acklin, a management analyst at Security Assistance Management Directorate.

"It's very diverse but they all point toward the black experience, both past and present," Acklin said. Last year, the works were done by former A&M students; this year the works are by current students in the art department led by chairman Dr. Clifton Pearson. Col. Robert Hueffed is director of SAMD.

Scheduled upcoming events for Redstone Arsenal's observance of the month include the following:

- Ethnic meal, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 22 at post dining facility building 3438, military only.

- Music show featuring Cornelius Brothers and Sister Rose, a professional band whose past hit records include "Treat Her Like a Lady," 8 p.m. Feb. 23 at the Challenger NCO Club. Price is $10; call the Challenger NCO Club 837-0750 for information.

- Fashion show with latest fashions on display, 7 p.m. Feb. 24 at the Challenger NCO Club. There is no charge to see this fashion show which is open to the public.

- Annual Black History Month Luncheon, 11 a.m. Feb. 28 at the Challenger NCO Club. Dr. Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, is the scheduled speaker. Tickets, which cost $7.50, may be obtained from the following: Equal Employment Opportunity Office, building 5250, 876-3591; Bernard Collier, building 7442, 876-9598; Gay Williams, building 3300, 876-4892;

Mose Hall, building 8027, 842-7116; James Lightfoot, building 4488, 842-7586; Mozella Davis, building 5201, 876-0818; Marva Davis, building 116, 876-8831; Ted Leslie, building 4566, 876-4628; Patricia Golden, building 5681, 876-2555; Edna Sheridan, Corps of Engineers, 722-1643; Melvin Kelly, SDC, 895-4270; Beverly King, AMC MEA, 895-5430; or Barbara Evans, MEDDAC, 876-4147.

Radon retesting required for some Redstone quarters

BY SKIP VAUGHN

About 230 of the more than 1,000 Redstone family housing units tested for radon last year are being retested in accordance with guidelines for the Armywide radon detection program.

Radon is a radioactive gas which occurs in nature from the natural breakdown of uranium. Army installations worldwide are to assess radon levels in their buildings and, when necessary, reduce those levels. The only known health effect associated with exposures to elevated levels of radon is an increased risk of developing lung cancer.

The Environmental Protection Agency has set a limit of 4 picoCuries per liter as a safe radon level. A picoCurie is a measure of radioactivity in the air, with a liter being a liter of air. In the 90-day monitoring program last year, most of the 1,020 quarters sampled here tested below 4 picoCuries. About 230 were slightly above that level and must be retested. Only one housing unit, occupied by a captain, was found to exceed 20 picoCuries. Work is planned to reduce that particular level within the next two months.

"When the results came back, we found that we had about 230 of the quarters that were exceeding the 4 picoCurie level. Under Army policy these quarters should all be retested for one year and we're in the process of placing those monitors right now," said Dan Seaver, an engineer in the Environmental Office. "Those that are in excess of 4 are not at a level that is a health concern, and the Army has determined anything in the level of 4-20 would be retested for one year. And if the numbers fail to come down below 4, those quarters will be mitigated to correct the problem within one to four years.

"Plans are now to start sampling all the occupied buildings on the arsenal within the coming weeks, as we in turn continue with our long-term monitoring in the housing area."

"We did have one housing unit that was greater than 20 and under Army policy we're not retesting there, we went ahead and started making mitigation plans and we have to do something to lower that level by April of 1990," he said. "We have every intention of taking action at that unit to lower the level within the required six months deadline."

Ventilation is considered the key to lowering radon levels. Since the quarters here are built on a slab, a method called subslab ventilation is being considered to lower radon levels where necessary. This is being done at the captain's quarters, which had a level of 27 picoCuries. "Basically this involves drilling a 4-inch hole in the floor, hopefully in a closet somewhere out of sight, and putting in a pipe that runs up through the ceiling with a fan system," Seaver explained. "So you're actually putting suction on the ground. You're drawing air under the slab up through the top of the house before it has a chance to accumulate."

According to Army radon detection guidelines, detectors are first placed in priority one buildings which include family housing units, day care centers, schools, barracks and hospitals. Priority two buildings are those occupied 24 hours a day, such as communications centers. Priority three buildings include the remainder of the structures — the office buildings, warehouses and igloos. The priority two and three areas will be sampled for one year.

The 90-day screening phase for priority one buildings here was completed last year, and those results determined what structures required additional sampling. "We hope that most of these levels (the 230 quarters above 4 picoCuries) will come down on a one year average. Other installations around the country that have done one-year testing have found those numbers have come down at least a half of what the initial 90-day survey reading was," Seaver said.

Sampling has also been done on about 600 of the priority two and priority three buildings here. So far, about 11 have been above the 4 picoCurie level. "Some of those were in two or three barracks locations. They were all very low, just barely over the 4 level," Seaver said. "We think most of those will come down within a year."

Of the 241 samples above the 4 level, most have been within the 4-10 picoCurie range. "There are only a

Fed up with prices

Editor:

Once again we have been outraged — the cafeteria in building 4488 has raised its prices again, going in an upwards spiral that seems never to have an end in sight. It seems every time we turn around, another price goes up and always by a nickel at a time.

Does America no longer have pennies in their currency? It would seem not, since our cafeteria does not increase prices using pennies, but always in nickel increments. We come to work and find out the prices have been "adjusted" again. A half pint container of milk is now 60 cents — outrageous; if you add 19 cents you can buy a quart at Kroger's; for 57 cents a half pint can be received from McDonald's; and for 35 cents at Burger King you will receive a half pint. Even our school systems price lower; the county system charges only 25 cents a half pint. Almost all of these price with pennies in mind.

Every time we ask about the price increase we hear, 'we are competitively priced with the downtown market.' Needless to say, why bring this into it? They don't really have close competition out on this post. Who can run off post, have a meat and two vegetable meal, and return within their 30 minutes allowed for lunch? Where's the competition?

I get fed up with price increases — one vegetable is now 70 cents, it was 65 cents less than a year ago. Now another thing, I guess they don't want anyone to gain weight or enjoy dessert as they've increased the price on their cobbler (dessert) from 65 cents to 80 cents. Do they use expensive peaches or apples in their desserts? Come on, please give us a break! If they must raise their prices, use penny increments.

Union representation

Editor:

I believe many employees have a misunderstanding of the Union (AFGE) or the representation we provide. It is true we represent all the employees in all bargaining units — approximately 6,000 employees in Huntsville. However, we are not compelled to represent non-members who take their cases to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB), i.e., over 14 days suspension, downgrades, and removals. True, these type cases can be taken through the grievance procedure. However, the appellant must choose the grievance procedure or MSPB on the above stated situations. The Union does handle MSPB cases for Union members, but as stated above, we are not required to by law. We represent Union members only in compensation cases, equal employment opportunity (discrimination), and the Office of Personnel Management classification and court cases. This is done as a courtesy to them. The non-members who go to MSPB, EEOC, etc., must represent themselves or hire an attorney at a minimum cost of $100 per hour. The AFGE would like to be able to represent all the bargaining unit employees in all cases, but we cannot with the dues from our members. If all were members, we could do a lot more — staff and money wise.

We negotiate for all bargaining unit employees. We are now negotiating the Alternative Work Schedule for you. We work, consult, and negotiate with management on your working conditions or the conditions of employment. We represent you in all other grievances except the ones I mentioned above. We represent you in the Halls of Congress. We are now lobbying Congress for better pay, a new health insurance program, improvement in our retirement system, the Hatch Act reforms, and contracting out. We are making progress in these areas. In order to do more for all Army employees, we need you as a member. It is up to all of you to improve our representation. The AFGE stands ready to help in all matters, but we need your help to be able to help each other in a collective spirit.

What about 1990 and 1991: As you know we are in a deep freeze. DoD expects to reduce its work force by 30,000 employees. It is going to make it hard on all of you, but we have to stand together and find a way to get through 1990. The 1991 budget is facing us and here are some issues we face. President Bush has proposed a 3.5 percent pay increase, end of lump-sum annuities, 1991 freeze on retired federal and military employees. He proposes in 1991 and thereafter to give the federal and military retiree 1 percent less than the cost of living increase. He also proposes to place you under a locality pay system, which is bad news for all employees in the Southeast.

You can see we have our work cut out for us for 1990-91. Thank God we have some good friends in Congress. You should be able to see why I say we need you. As you know, numbers count when we call on Congress for help. I hope you take our problems as seriously as I do. If you don't, we will all go down together.

Also, a comment to the military supervisor who stated that civilian employees continue to abuse the system and their military supervisors with the aid of Union agreements. It appears this "military supervisor" is not knowledgeable about his duties as a supervisor. The issue is not whether the supervisor is military or civilian; the same Army and MICOM regulations apply to civilian employees — which the supervisor must comply. There are Army Regulations, Federal Personnel Manuals, and MICOM Regulations concerning insubordination, abuse of sick leave and performance appraisals, etc., which the supervisor must be sure are followed before taking any action against an employee.

The Union, via its Union Agreements and the regulations, makes sure that management has not violated the agreement(s) and regulations. Thus, ensuring the employee of due process.

As a note to management, this supervisor is in dire need of supervisory training and he/she should not be in a supervisory capacity until said training is given. This type of supervisor causes problems for both employees and management.

I am proud to be your President and representative.

Freedom for all

Editor:

Let freedom ring! Where the Lord is, there is liberty. Most of us are familiar with the phrase, 'Let freedom ring, and we know that there has been a denial of freedom for black people — only because of skin color. Why? This question has probably pondered the minds of many. I have searched scriptures and there is no scripture that supports the denial of freedom, for God has said there is neither Jew nor Gentile, neither male nor female, nor bond nor free: for ye all are one in Christ Jesus.

Since Adam and Eve, the adversary has used evil forces of sin (such as discrimination, racism, drugs, alcohol) to destroy. And black and white have been denied freedom of genuine love, which means there is torment for both races, but more so because of one's skin color. We know the greatest commandment: Thou shall love the Lord thy God with all thy mind, heart and soul. Secondly, we are commissioned to Love thy neighbor as thyself. Love fulfills — freedom.

This evil force has caused lives to be lost, homes to be destroyed, and has created a sin against God because man has denied God's commandments — love. Although blacks have been persecuted, they can yet be thankful. Yes, thankful, because they have learned to love in spite of being persecuted and above all learned to depend on God; that He is Alpha and Omega and does not change. I hear the Negro spiritual "Swing Low Sweet Chariot, Coming for to Carry Me Home," and "Precious Lord Take My Hand," and most of us know the Negro spirituals became a part of our culture through our dependence on God; I hear the great advocate for peace, Martin Luther King Jr. — Let Freedom Ring — All God's People are Free. He laid the foundation for freedom not only for the black, but to those who were destitute.

Martin Luther King's suffering, plea for non-violence and death has led the black man to many achievements. I often think of Martin as the "Black Moses" because of his cry, "Let my people go," "freedom."

Yes, all God's people are free, but it is the very act of sin that causes strife, hatred, jealousy and sometimes war. God is not the author of confusion but of peace and love. Black people are proud of their heritage, and should continue to thank God from whence they came and where they are, what He is and has been to them. Jesus was denied just as blacks have been denied, then and now. As a people, blacks should unite to stand against unfair treatment of themselves as well as mankind. I encourage blacks this month to cultivate in your hearts the greatest commandments God has commissioned to each of us, and to remember that all God's people are free, but the very act of sin creates denial.

Sincere gratitude

Editor:

I wish to express my sincere gratitude and appreciation to all the wonderful people at MICOM for the generosity and thoughtfulness shown me in the aftermath of the Nov. 15, 1989 tornado.

It is comforting and heartwarming to be surrounded by such wonderful and caring people.

Road explanation

Editor:

The turning restrictions at the intersection of Goss Road and Rideout Road have generated many questions and comments. Please allow me to explain why this intersection has been changed.

1. When Interstate 565 is completed, in about 18 months, the ramps from Huntsville and Decatur into the southbound lanes of Rideout Road will be too close to existing Gate 9 to allow drivers who require visitor passes to cross three lanes of southbound Rideout Road to obtain passes.

2. To correct this problem, Gate 9 must be relocated. Federal, state, city and local traffic officials were consulted on how best to accomplish this mission.

3. Certain restrictions and requirements had to be considered: i.e., time, local funding approval limits, safety, required turning space for large vehicles, traffic volumes, acceleration and deceleration distance, etc. Based on these considerations, the decision was made to prohibit left turns from Rideout Road to Goss Road and relocate Gate 9.

4. The Overlook Road could not be used as a u-turn location because, the north to east ramp for Goss Road was too close to this intersection. During afternoon rush hour traffic drivers could not make the u-turn, cross three northbound lanes of Rideout Road and reach the Goss Road ramps. A sight restriction (hill) on Rideout Road south of Overlook required our u-turn to be located farther south for safety reasons.

5. The existing cross over between north and south bound lanes was modified, and a traffic signal was installed to provide u-turn for Goss Road traffic. The traffic signal was necessary to stop all north bound

Pistol shoot

Editor:

On Sunday afternoon, Feb. 11, I was able to attend and participate in a most pleasant four and a half hours of practice and fun competition at the Redstone Pistol Range. This is a new program sponsored by the pistol club under the auspices of the active Army units and open to both active and retired personnel.

The range was open for practice from 1 to 3 p.m. with a range officer in charge and strict safety was enforced. Targets and support material was available though each shooter had to furnish their own weapon, ammunition and hearing protection. At 3 p.m. the range was closed to practice and a modified "bowling pin" match was held for those interested in a little competition. Three trophies were presented.

There were several ladies present and they did a commendable job of shooting. This is a unique and pleasant way to enjoy a difficult and demanding shooting sport not to mention the friendly spirit which prevailed.

My sincere thanks to the commanders of the units for their gracious support. They are: Col. Amato, commander, 269th Ordnance Brigade; Lt. Col. Lee, commander of the 73rd Ordnance Battalion, and Capt. Gulotta, commander of B Company of the 73rd Ordnance Battalion. Without their interest and cooperation, it couldn't have taken place. A special "thank you" is certainly due SFC Craven, range NCO, for the organization and conduct of the activities. His interest and control were immediately apparent to one and all.

It was announced that this is anticipated to become a monthly event with various "fun matches." There are many of us "interested shooters" with little or no real opportunity to practice our sport or compete on a friendly basis. I'm sure that my profound wishes for your continued success are shared by all that were there. Furthermore, I am also sure that if help is needed you will find ready and able hands available.

For my part in supporting the "Redstone Pistol Club" a package of pistol marksmanship manuals will be here in four to eight weeks from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit. Other materials and information on regulations, etc., have been furnished SFC Craven with my pledge for support when needed.

Thank you one and all for a new and interesting program which includes the retired community.

Payroll policy

Editor:

Within the past few weeks, Finance & Accounting Division, Resource Management Directorate, put out an electronic message requesting organizations to submit a name of a point of contact to call about information or questions regarding civilian pay. I, first of all, want to state that I disagree with this policy. For one thing, it is a violation of the Privacy Act. I do not want some person knowing my payroll situation. I should be allowed to talk with the payroll clerk who handles my Time & Attendance Card without having an intermediary. Additionally, an organization with more than 500 people would need someone assigned to this duty that did not have much to do during the course of a day.

I guess the real thing I'm upset about is that Finance and Accounting seems to be pushing their job back on the user. Finance and Accounting is a service organization, and those employees need to realize that if they didn't have us, they would not have a job.

One thing I do agree with is there needs to be some improvement in Finance and Accounting. It is extremely difficult to get an answer to anything. I have called as many as five times and never had my phone call returned. Do some improvements, but not at the expense of the Command.

Dining options

Editor:

This is not a letter of protest as is often seen in the Rocket, it is simply a letter of farewell to the 4488 cafeteria from a group of us; also to inform others of options available to you.

In 4488, two slices of bacon (cheaper brand, not well cooked), two slices of french toast, and a small carton of milk is $2.70. For an additional 89 cents, you could have the breakfast bar at Shoney's — all you can eat from fruits through jellies. At Hardee's you can have sausage, gravy and biscuit for 99 cents. Other restaurants advertise a 99-cent breakfast special regularly.

One meat and two vegetables at the cafeteria is $3.70. Local restaurants charge as little as $2.80 for the same type of meal. Even though the government employee's cost of living increase was 3.6 percent this year, our cafeteria prices have increased by as much as 45 percent.

Nightmare on Nike

Editor:

On the night of Feb. 9 at approximately 12:30, there occurred an accident on the street at 1257-B Nike St., on the Arsenal. My 1987 Red Jeep Comanche 4-by-4 was parked where it is always parked and some inconsiderate individual happened to run into it. First, I would like to let that individual know that I do not appreciate having my property destroyed and not be told about it. It is apparent that this individual has no concern for anyone but himself. The individual that hit my vehicle apparently got out and picked up pieces of my vehicle; I presume the parts he picked up had paint scrapes from his car and we would be able to determine the color of his car. However, he left much evidence from his own car scattered on the street. I notified the MPs and they made a report and took the evidence. I know what model and make of car the individual was driving and I have turned it over to the MPs. There was approximately $3,500 in damages to my vehicle not counting the inconvenience and stress it has put my family through. I am offering a reward for information leading to the identification of the individual that hit my vehicle. The individual that hit my vehicle was driving a silver 1986-89 Acura Integra. The vehicle I am now looking for has a damaged right front corner. Anyone having any information concerning this vehicle, please contact me at 837-9151. I try to believe that most people are really good hearted people but when you come across individuals like this one that hit my truck, it really makes you wonder what our world is coming to. There is an old saying something to the effect, "what goes around comes around."

Positive attitude

Editor:

Thank you for a stimulating letter on "Black History" (Feb. 14 Mailbox). I will do my part to encourage Afro-Americans to rid bitter emotions toward "all races." I support your views on black unity and taking responsibility for our own communities; however, I would like to reiterate some segments in your letter I disagree with.

Based on my understanding, you indicated since the civil rights movement was "in the past" and "we" now have great jobs and homes, car, etc., various conducts "by blacks" should have diminished with the movement. Apparently, the movement is not over since the word "we" is inclusive and indicates a group/race in its entirety "all" have the aforementioned possessions. I don't mean to disappoint you, but blacks have the highest unemployment rates today which make it impossible for "all of us" to have those possessions. Under oppressed condition, back biting, killing, robbing, and stealing is prevalent in all races. Please don't misunderstand me, I do not accept this behavior. You mentioned "economical status" is what the country is "moved" by, unfortunately you are right but don't make it appear so desirable. Economic pressures stimulate crimes.

Further, I would like to address "black management" at Redstone Arsenal. My heart goes out to all the innocent black managers especially when someone makes a generalized statement which places "all" black managers in the same category. I don't know about conditions in your organization; but in the Missile Logistics Center, black managers do reach back to help other qualified blacks (ones whose names appear on a referral list) when possible. Black managers cannot select as many blacks as they would like. In my opinion, there are constraints which most black managers are not at liberty to discuss.

Let's keep a positive attitude and lift each other up mentally as well as economically. I am not in management; however, I realize it's not easy for blacks in management to confront obstacles from both black and white Americans.

By the way, I do know Jesus.

New facility will provide six test simulators

BY SANDA LAGER

Anyone with a keen and observing eye may have noticed something different about building 5400. Near the west end, a 50-foot tower juts skyward.

The tower, however, is only the "tip of the iceberg," according to Ron Davis, deputy director of the Systems Simulation and Development Directorate of the Research, Development and Engineering Center.

Below the tower is the 113,000 square foot Millimeter/Microwave Simulation Facility presently under construction. About 100 workers are on the job three shifts each day, six days a week to meet the projected completion date of July 1990. Work began June 1988.

When complete, the MMSF will provide the RD&E Center with a total of six new simulators to accommodate microwave, millimeterwave and imaging infrared guidance system hardware-in-the-loop simulation, Davis said.

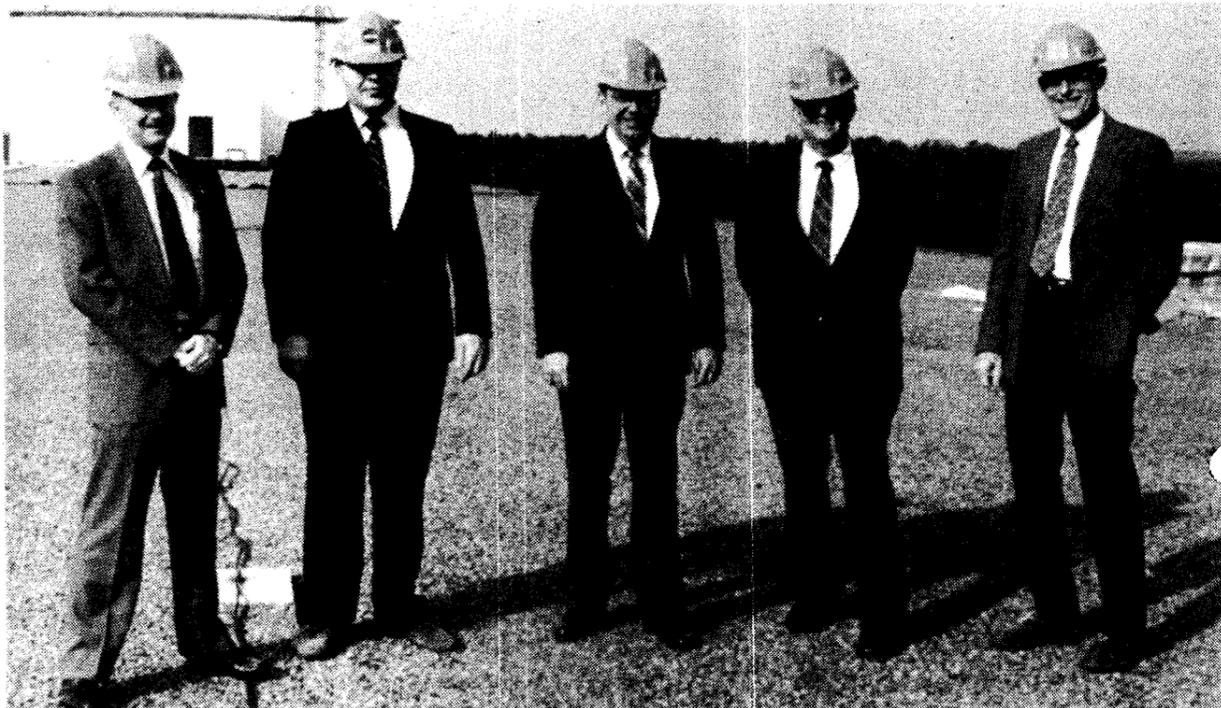

Additionally, multi-spectral guidance systems such as combined millimeterwave and infrared systems can be tested.

The MMSF will also give the RD&E Center a new capability — weapon system simulation, which will test complete missile systems including ground based or airborne radars with their command and control subsystems.

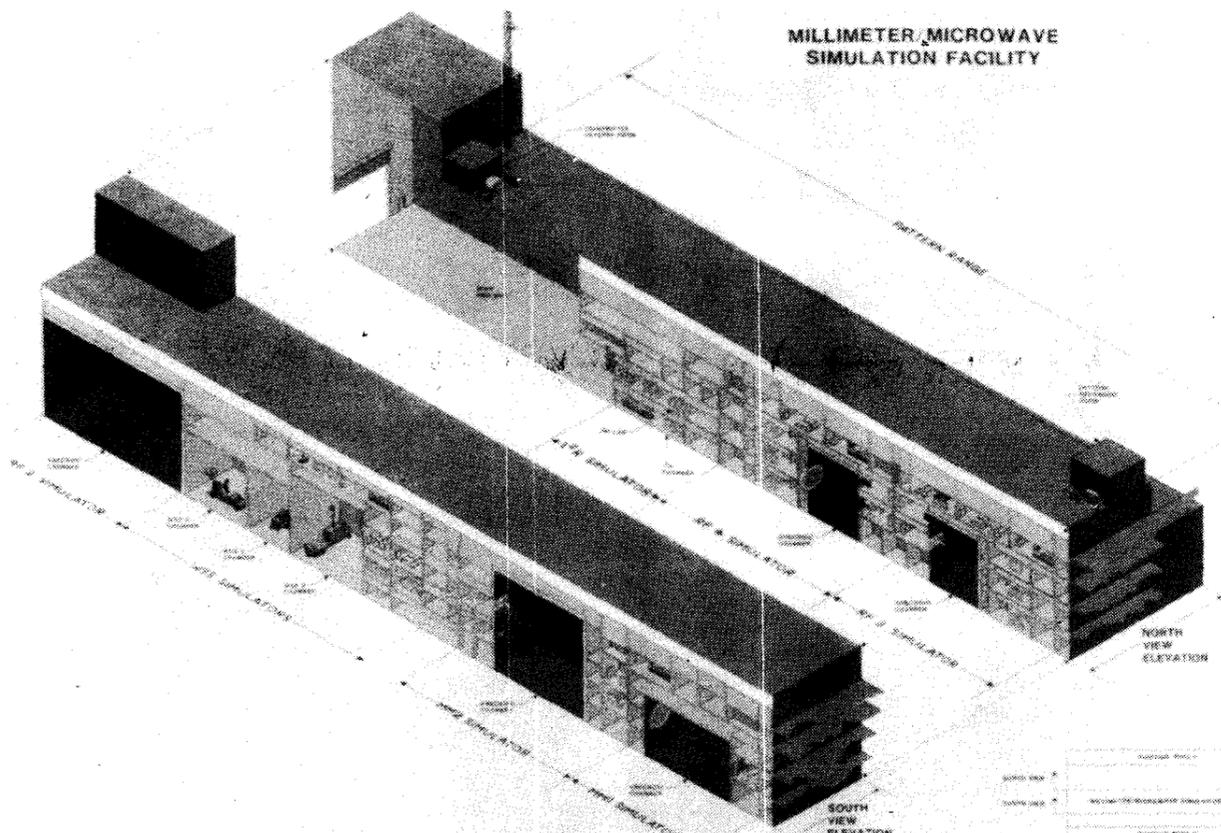

While simulation can take many forms, the RD&E facility is unique in that it is possible to exercise actual weapon system components in realistically simulated operational scenarios. This process has become known as hardware-in-the-loop simulation.

The tower atop the new facility will give the Advanced Sensors Directorate an improved capability for using pattern measurements on antennas, Davis said.

Upon completion of this military construction project, the Advanced Sensors Directorate will become the owner/operator of the antenna pattern range and use it in missile seeker technical efforts, Davis said.

March promotions for 900 officers

WASHINGTON — More than 900 officers and warrant officers will be pinning on new rank on March 1, according to figures released by the Army's Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel.

Lt. Col. Hector Rangel, chief of the officer management and sustainment branch, says promotions are scheduled for 825 officers and 92 warrant officers.

"Promotions for majors have been slowed beginning with the March list because of budget-driven strength reductions that limit the number of field-grade officers," Rangel says. "The Army has proposed legislation to Congress that would permit forced separations and early retirements.

"If the proposals are approved, promotions will get back on track for field-grades," he adds. (Arnews)

Quality of force described as No. 1 priority

WASHINGTON — Eager to share his budget-related views with representatives from the military services' internal press, one of the nation's busiest military leaders took time Feb. 2 to field questions from those representatives in a special session at the Pentagon.

Just the day before, Army Gen. Colin L. Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, had presented those views in a formal statement to the Senate Armed Services Committee. Now, before reporters from "Soldiers" magazine, and from periodicals and news services of other Defense Department elements, Powell settled down for an informal discussion of issues, plans and projections.

"People want to know whether they'll continue getting the necessary training. People want to do a good job."

— Gen. Colin Powell

Referring to his remarks on Capitol Hill, Powell reiterated that the military services' No. 1 priority is to maintain the quality of the force. He also noted the senior leadership's sensitivity to quality-of-life issues facing servicemembers and their families in these times of reduced funding.

One bright spot on the QOL horizon, he said, consists of the secretary of defense's recent decision to exclude from the DOD-wide 1990 hiring freeze those civilian vacancies sustained by non-appropriated funds.

Acknowledging the expected discomfort and apprehension over the effects of planned personnel reductions, base closures and cuts in major programs and projects, the former national security advisor to President Reagan said, "We hope to minimize the turbulence."

He added that when budget topics arise during his visits to units in the field, the troops express an interest most often in the matter of compensation. "People want to know whether they'll continue getting the necessary training. People want to do a good job. They seek job satisfaction. And, of course, they want to see that a sense of caring prevails at all levels of leadership."

Powell's remark that "we have to do these things in a sensible way" extends to arriving at the right balance of heavy-light forces. "We need both the Marines' and the Army's contingency capabilities."

That assessment found practical application in Operation Just Cause, where the Army's special forces became the force of choice because of their suitability for nighttime combat in Panama.

Noting that force interoperability in Panama was "pretty good," he added that "it doesn't necessarily cost a lot of money" to achieve and maintain flexibility and responsiveness among the services.

The chairman went on to say that besides keeping an eye on conflicts in and among nations and being mindful of the "great deal of uncertainty and instability" in world affairs, "we should continue to apply our capabilities to this effort [at waging the war on drugs]. I'm looking for ways to do more."

In sum, the general's commentary left no doubt about how he views the role of U.S. forces in a dynamic society — and left no doubt about his role in leading those forces. (Arnews)

Civil rights leader to address luncheon

The president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference will be coming to Redstone Arsenal next week to address the Black History Month luncheon.

Dr. Joseph Lowery's genesis as a national leader started in the 1950s. As SCLC president, he has led the organization he co-founded with Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and others, to new levels of visibility.

In 1982, he organized and led a 2,700-mile march through five states and 70 cities on behalf of extending and strengthening the Voting Rights Act.

Lowery has led campaigns against the Ku Klux Klan, police brutality, and has fought for increased employment, job training and economic opportunities in both the private and public sectors for blacks and other ethnic groups.

A native of Alabama, Lowery studied at Knoxville College, Payne College and Wayne University. He also studied at Payne Theological Seminary and Chicago Ecumenical Institute. He holds B.A., B.D., and L.L.D. degrees, as well as honorary doctoral degrees from several colleges and universities.

Lowery has received several honors and awards, some of which include Ebony Magazine nomination for Black Achievement Awards in 1979, 1983 and 1985; Alpha Kappa Alpha Civil Rights Award, Progressive National Baptist Convention- Martin Luther King Jr. Award, and Urban League and NAACP Leadership Awards.

He is minister of the Cascade United Methodist Church in Atlanta where he resides. He and his wife, Evelyn Gibson Lowery, have three daughters and seven grandchildren.

The Black History Month luncheon will be held 11 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 28 at the Challenger NCO Club. Tickets cost $7.50. For tickets call: the Equal Employment Opportunity Office, building 5250, 876-3591; Bernard Collier, building 7442, 876-9598; Gay Williams, building 3300, 876-4892; Mose Hall, building 8027, 842-7116; James Lightfoot, building 4488, 842-7586; Mozella Davis, building 5201, 876-0818; Marva Davis, building 116, 876-8831; Ted Leslie, building 4566, 876-4628; Patricia Golden, building 5681, 876-2555; Edna Sheridan, Corps of Engineers, 722-1643; Melvin Kelly, SDC, 895-4270; Beverly King, AMC MEA, 895-5430; or Barbara Evans, MEDDAC, 876-4147.

Commissary savings exceed $145 million

FORT LEE, Va. — Customers saved more than $145.1 million by shopping in Army commissaries in fiscal 1989, report officials at the U.S. Army Troop Support Agency.

The breakdown shows that $97.8 million in vendor price reductions accounted for the bulk of the savings total. Coupons reflected a savings of $47.3 million.

When compared to the results for the previous fiscal year, vendor price reductions grew by 11 percent. Coupons redemptions shot to a 18-percent growth when compared with the previous fiscal year.

The Fort Sheridan (Ill.) commissary had the highest coupon redemption rate; while the Fort Hood (Texas) commissary led with the most vendor price reductions.

TSA attributes the record growth of its customer savings program to increased emphasis on in-store promotional campaigns and a renewed customer awareness on the behalf of food budget conscious military families.

Commissary officials have established a goal of $159 million for its fiscal '90 customer savings program. (Troop Support Agency news release)

Know what to do in the event of severe weather

The week of Feb. 19-23 has been designated as Severe Weather Awareness Week in Alabama.

This observance is designed to provide people with the knowledge necessary to protect their lives when severe weather threatens. The National Weather Service has scheduled a statewide tornado drill for today, Feb. 21.

The drill is to give everyone, including homes, schools, hospitals, businesses and private citizens the opportunity to see if they can receive a warning during an actual tornado event from either sirens, NOAA Weather Radio or commercial radio and television stations.

Twice these devastating storms have ripped through Huntsville and Madison County. On Nov. 15, 1989, one of the most powerful tornadoes possible struck without warning, killing 22 and injuring more than 500 people. This single, large tornado did more damage than the three tornadoes that hit on April 3 and 4, 1974 when 15 persons were killed and 220 injured.

The Huntsville-Madison County Emergency Management Agency encourages citizens to learn how and where to take cover during threatening weather.

Before tornado hits

When the skies look threatening, listen to the radio, television or NOAA Weather Radio. The National Weather Service and the Severe Storms Forecast Center track all weather systems with sophisticated radar and are usually able to give adequate warnings of violent weather conditions.

When a watch is issued, listen to broadcast advisories and be ready to take cover. Under watch conditions it is wise to have ready a battery powered light and radio and have family members within earshot. Take your car keys; should a tornado hit your area, your car may still be operable — but keys would be lost in the rubble.

Inventory household furnishings and personal belongings. In case of a tornado or other disaster, this inventory will be invaluable to you in settling your insurance claim. Make sure you keep your inventory in a safe place, like a bank deposit box.

Preplan actions that you will take if severe weather threatens. This should include locating the best available protected area in your home and place of work. You should also become familiar with tornado safety rules and be prepared to take protective actions whenever necessary.

During the storm

A tornado is a spinning funnel-shaped cloud and it sounds like the roar of hundreds of airplanes. You may have trouble recognizing an actual tornado as they often occur at night and are embedded in heavy rain.

A Tornado Watch means weather conditions are favorable for the development of tornadoes.

A Tornado Warning means a tornado has been visually sighted by a trained spotter, is indicated by radar, or has actually touched down.

For your best protection, go to your basement and get under a heavy table or workbench. If you have no basement, take cover under sturdy furniture in the center of the house.

In an office building or school, protect yourself in an interior hallway on a lower floor. Avoid auditoriums and gymnasiums, or other structures with wide, free-span roofs. In open country, move away from the tornado's path at a right angle. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest ditch or ravine.

Take protective actions whenever severe weather threatens. Don't take chances — take cover.

After it passes

Closely inspect your property, including automobiles, for damage. Report any gas leaks or electrical damage immediately.

If your home is damaged, get in touch at once with your insurance agent or company.

In the meantime, secure your remaining property to protect it from further damage or theft. Take an inventory of the damage so you can file your insurance claim as soon as possible.

Notify your relatives of your safety. Local authorities may waste time trying to locate you if you don't send word. Do not tie up the telephone lines as they are needed for emergency calls.

Cooperate in the general cleanup of debris. You are responsible for cleaning debris from your own property.

Hiring freeze may affect spouses' employment decisions

WASHINGTON — The newly imposed hiring freeze on appropriated-fund vacancies throughout the Department of Defense confronts federally employed spouses of soldiers and DA civilians with the prospect of finding no job within the military community upon relocation with their sponsors to new duty stations.

Army personnel officials can tell you that even military spouse preference provides no "edge" to a spouse during the freeze. Under the new policy, persons eligible for spouse preference will be referred only for positions that have been approved for exception to the freeze.

Officials stress, however, that those eligible will continue to be registered for the Military Spouse Preference Program.

Military families who must relocate during the 1990 freeze and require a dual income will most likely feel the greatest financial hardship from the potential loss of employment, explains Carole Maiello in the Army civilian personnel directorate at the Pentagon. She adds, "If the family truly needs the second salary, a family member currently employed in the States may want to seriously consider remaining in his/her present position while pursuing the job search."

"The majority of the family members employed overseas may not choose to do this. Their appointments may not extend longer than two months after transfer of the sponsor from the commuting area."

Maiello notes that the hiring freeze is limited to the Defense Department and may not mean the end of the world. "Hiring in the federal government in non-appropriated-fund jobs and outside the Defense Department remains unaffected. So, availability of federal employment will depend upon where the family member and the sponsor relocate."

"It's imperative that family members seek out what possibilities of non-DOD employment exist before their move so that the family members can make an informed choice about continuing their federal careers during this period."

"The civilian personnel office has 'employment information sheets' that identify the major federal civilian agencies near each Army installation. Also, Army Community Service is available to assist family members in searching them out, as well as considering private-sector options."

Maiello says that the freeze is part of a plan to reduce the size of the Defense Department's civilian work force. She notes that "while there have always been more family members seeking positions than vacancies available in the Defense Department, the freeze forces family members to realistically plan and broaden their job search to encompass all possible job opportunities." APRIL 1990 COURSE SCHEDULE

Control Systems Analysis and Design Application
This course is designed for the graduate engineer who wants a brief review of control theory and an in-depth look at how to apply this theory to solve common industry problems. Participants will be presented with several systems level problems/applications and taken through solutions applying control system theory. Heavy emphasis will be placed on applications. Subsequent courses in the Control Systems Series will include computer analysis and design tools in a computer laboratory.
Course No. PD3122-01 • Apr. 9-20 • 8 a.m.-noon • Mon.-Fri. • $825

Fundamentals of Pattern Recognition and Neural Networks
Pattern Recognition concepts are increasingly used in the development of computerized systems which are capable of sensing surrounding activity and/or environment through sensors and responding with appropriate action or decisions. Neural networks, an emerging technology, are expected to play a major role in the development of robust realtime pattern recognition systems. This course is designed to provide a comprehensive overview of Pattern Recognition, Neural Networks, and the close relationship that exists between the two areas. The course covers theoretical concepts and practical problems from both areas.
Course No. PD3065-03 • Apr. 16-27 • 8 a.m.-noon • Mon.-Fri. • $795

Economic Impact of Product Improvement in the Workplace
This course will provide the working engineer with tools to help evaluate the economic impact of various productivity improvement and cost reduction techniques. Major topics include: time value of money, economic evaluation criteria, machine replacement analysis, and break-even analysis. Additional topics include the use of various cost estimating relationships for hardware cost estimates, and the use of synthetic data systems to provide labor cost estimates. Familiarity with algebra is essential.
Course No. PD3121-01 • Apr. 23-May 4 • 8 a.m.-noon • Mon.-Fri. • $750

Early release eyed for some reservists

WASHINGTON — Some soldiers in the active guard/ reserve program may face early release from active duty.

Under a recent policy change, Army reserve soldiers who are not selected by the AGR continuation boards will be released 90 days after notice of their non-selection.

Under the former policy all AGR soldiers received a specified period of assignment. Now only enlisted soldiers receive a specific period of assignment while officers serve for an indefinite period except those serving in their initial assignment. They also receive a specified period of assignment.

Officials from the Army Reserve's Full-time Support Management Center say that the following two exceptions apply to the 90-day rule: Soldiers serving their initial AGR assignment will be released when their assignments end or 90 days after being notified, whichever is later; and any soldier not selected to continue may request earlier release from active duty.

The changes made last November 1989 to Army Regulations 635-100 and 635-200 apply to soldiers considered by the AGR continuation boards held in December and January, and all future boards. Before the policy change, soldiers not selected to continue remained on active duty until their current assignment ended.

Soldiers in the AGR program go before the continuation board before the end of their initial assignment and then every five years. Boards for AGR officers are held each January and July, and those for enlisted soldiers take place in December and May of each year.

For more information, AGR soldiers should contact their personnel management officers or non-commissioned officers at the St. Louis-based Full-time Support Management Center. (From a U.S. Army Reserve Personnel Center news release.)

Homes should be kept poison-proof for children

BY EVELYN D. HARRIS

AMERICAN FORCES INFORMATION SERVICE

"One moment is all it takes — take a moment to poison proof" is the theme of National Poison Prevention Week, March 18 to 24.

"Accidents, which include poisonings, are the leading cause of death and injury to children under age 15," said George Siebert, DoD's director of safety and occupational health policy. "The health and safety of 1.5 million children of active duty military personnel is our special concern. There can be no doubt that national defense includes protecting our nation's most valuable resource — our children."

Poison Prevention Week Council spokesman Ken Giles said even people with no young children should poison-proof their homes, because accidents have happened to visiting children. Youngsters have also been poisoned at home when they took medicine carried in by visitors, such as grandparents.

The federal government requires certain products to be in child-resistant packaging. These include aspirin and aspirin substitutes, certain liquid furniture polishes, oil of wintergreen, drain and oven cleaners, lighter fluids, paint solvents, oral dosage prescription drugs and iron-containing drugs and dietary supplements. Safety packaging, however, is no substitute for poison-proofing the home.

"Children are going to investigate several ways of opening a container," Giles said. "If their fingers don't work, their teeth might. It would be impossible to make a package or closure that would prevent every child from getting into the contents under all circumstances. So safe storage is very important."

Improperly stored poisonous products can kill, and adults can accidentally poison children.

"Sometimes parents don't read the instructions carefully and give their children too much medicine, more than a small body can handle," said Army Dr. (Capt.) Peter Cellucci, an attending physician in the emergency room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D.C. Parents sometimes give children new doses before previous ones wear off, which can build up a harmful level of medicine if done over several days, he added.

Fortunately, children under 6 rarely die of accidental poisoning; only 56 died in 600,000 cases in 1986. Much credit for the high survival rate goes to poison control centers and hospital emergency rooms. Many children also can be treated at home after parents receive instructions from these medical facilities. Be prepared to give the following information to emergency personnel:

- Victim's age and weight;

- Poison involved, and whether it was swallowed, inhaled, absorbed through the skin or splashed in the eyes;

- Any first aid given;
- If the person has vomited; and
- Victim's location.

The Poison Prevention Week Council emphasizes prevention tips that can avoid a fatal or terrifying poison exposure. For example, keep household chemicals and medicines out of reach and out of sight of youngsters.

- Lock them up when not in use.
- Do not store medicines on kitchen counters.

- If the doorbell or telephone rings when using these products and children are in the house, take the product with you.

- The enticing odor of perfumes and colognes may lure a child into drinking the liquids.

- Keep products in original containers. Never put poisons in drinking cups or unmarked bottles.

- Never refer to medicine as candy.
- Throw away outdated medicines.

- Leave the light on when giving or taking medicines.

- Use safety packaging properly — close the containers after each use.

Youth Council among new initiatives at center

BY PAM ROGERS

Anyone who has ever worked with kids knows the best way to get them interested in something — anything — is to give them a part in creating that thing.

That's just what the adults who run Redstone's Youth Center have discovered. Kids are given an active role in planning activities for the center. They have formed a council and elected officers to pass along ideas for activities, help with publicity and do chores like decorating for special events. The council came up with rules for children who use the center and even suggests disciplinary action for those who break them, according to Shelby Williams, director of Youth Services.

"They have a voice in what's going on," she said.

Officers for the council are James Ziegler, president; Jay Mellon, vice president; Davine Young, secretary; and Nadia McEnroe, treasurer.

The council formed in November and is working out well so far. Some of the activities the council has suggested include rap music concerts, dances and parties for newcomers.

"When I first came, they were doing nothing. Now there are organized activities almost every day," Williams said.

Another fairly recent change in center operation is the division of center use by age, with preteen hours from 3 until 6 p.m. on weekdays and teen hours 6 to 9 p.m.

Other new initiatives include a teen volunteer program, a sponsorship program for new children and instructional programs.

The center also gets advice from a council of adults, including representatives from the Officers and NCO wives clubs, Chaplain's Office, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Child Development Services and Law Enforcement.

"Adults are our ears to what's going on outside, and the council is a channel for parental input," Williams said.

Tax refund loan can be expensive

Don't be too quick to sign up with a tax preparation company that promises a fast tax refund, according to the chief of legal assistance.

Capt. Richard Rousseau, of the staff judge advocate office, says many firms that prepare taxes have begun to heavily advertise that they will provide "instant tax refunds." These firms usually offer the consumer a loan based on the value of the anticipated tax refund. As part of the loan, the consumer assigns his or her rights in the refund to the company. The service is not free, and in many cases it can be unreasonably expensive for the consumer.

There are often hidden costs of these services. According to recent reports, the average refund from an electronically filed return is about $1,100. It takes approximately 18 days to receive the refund from an electronically filed return, but it takes only about four days to get money through the refund anticipation loan process. The consumer is borrowing the amount of the refund for approximately 14 days. If the company charges a $35 fee to process and carry such a loan for just 14 days, the annual percentage rate on the loan is actually 82.85 percent. Waiting the additional 14 days to receive the refund is clearly the preferred course of action, Rousseau said.

The Redstone Arsenal Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) Program is now in operation. Free tax assistance is available to active duty soldiers through their unit tax assisters. Retirees and dependents can obtain assistance through Army Community Service by calling 876-2859 and setting an appointment.

P11 NOW MUSEUM PIECE — CW02 Matthew Kozatek directs SFC Craig Cadwallader as he maneuvers a Pershing II trainer missile and launcher into the rocket garden at the Alabama Space and Rocket Center. Pershing II is one class of missiles which is to be eliminated under the terms of the Intermediate and Shorter-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union. Conversion to static display is an acceptable method of elimination, and last week's transfer to the ASRC marked the first time a Pershing II has been put on public display. The missile is one of seven which will eventually be used as static displays in this country and in the USSR. Other Redstone soldiers who assisted in the transfer included SFC Tommy Bradley and Spec. Mike May.

Human resource meetings open

BY PAM ROGERS

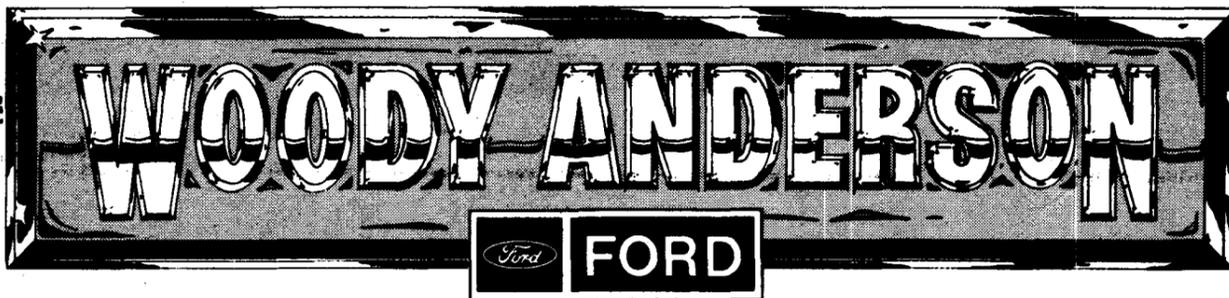

In a move designed to give Redstone community members more of a voice in community matters, the post Human Resource Council has voted to open all meetings to the public.

The council, which meets monthly, previously held only one open meeting per quarter. The change came about with a change in Army regulations suggesting that all community members, particularly military family members and soldiers with special needs (single parents, etc.), be included in meetings of installation human resource councils, according to Col. James Amato, chairman of the Redstone council's executive committee.

"All meetings will now be open meetings, and will be held in the Youth Center to accommodate primarily family members and soldiers who want to bring issues before the committee," he said, adding that open meetings will allow people both to hear issues which have been brought up, or to bring up their own issues.

The new policy will begin with the next meeting, scheduled for March 13 at 9:30 a.m. Issues scheduled for review include the Army Community Services update, Crime Prevention quarterly report, Directorate of Community and Family Activities and Housing updates on issues raised by the Army Family Action Plan II, and a progress report on the Family Symposium III.

Members of the community can bring up other issues, but they should be submitted in writing to Dr. William Resha, AMSMI-RA-CF-FS-AC, before the meeting so there will be time to research them and have appropriate subject matter experts available for discussion. Other issues can be brought before the council at the meetings, but they may not be addressed until the next month. For more information call Resha at 876-5397.

Ten-point plan addresses Decade of Disabled Persons

BY EVELYN D. HARRIS
AMERICAN FORCES INFORMATION SERVICE

Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney has issued a 10-point plan to make the end of the Decade of Disabled Persons "a resounding success." While applauding DoD's efforts already under way, he noted that, "Still, much remains to be done." The 10-year period began in 1983 and will end in 1992.

The DoD plan contains 75 action items, giving the three military departments and many DoD components specific responsibilities. The departments alternate the lead role; Army is the current lead agency. Highlights of DoD's plan include to:

- Expand educational opportunities.

One goal is to have policies and resources to ensure that disabled children of military personnel have ready access to DoD schools overseas and in the United States. No military member is to be denied advancement because the service cannot accommodate a family's disabled child.

Another goal is to ensure physical accessibility and to have sign language interpreters and readers available upon request for all training sponsored or purchased for DoD civilians.

- Improve access to housing, buildings and transportation.

Among other provisions, Cheney has asked Army to find ways to make military family housing more accessible to persons with disabilities. Cheney also wants policy developed to allow entry-level employees with severe disabilities to live in DoD housing temporarily.

This "will assist persons with disabilities such as blindness, paralysis or mental retardation for whom mobility restrictions and disability-related costs make it impossible to find affordable housing in the community at the beginning of their careers," the plan stated. Low-rent housing near work will permit them to make the transition to living in the local community.

In addition, Cheney wants to make the Pentagon "a model of excellence in modification of older buildings to provide accessibility for persons in wheelchairs and other special features for persons with disabilities."

- Expand employment opportunities.

One initiative is a DoD handbook on recruitment and employment of persons with disabilities. Also, the plan asks Navy to set up a computerized nationwide recruitment program for persons with disabilities that will serve all DoD components. The program will focus on the most populous occupations (secretary, clerk, computer specialist, contract and procurement specialist) and on hard-to-fill specialties such as scientist and engineers.

The Defense Logistics Agency has been asked to develop a disability awareness training program for supervisors, managers and hiring officials. Air Force has the lead responsibility to develop a course on how to interview applicants with disabilities.

- Expand participation in recreational, social and cultural activities.

Among other initiatives, Cheney wants to explore the idea of establishing magnet programs in Department of Defense Dependents Schools for families with special needs. Also, an action item has DoD formally providing logistical support for Special Olympics events held on DoD installations.

- Expand and strengthen rehabilitation programs and facilities.

Cheney has ordered an evaluation of rehabilitation services provided and purchased by DoD.

- Apply biomedical research to conquering disabling conditions.

The Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences will produce a report on DoD research aimed at conquering major disabling conditions. Cheney has also ordered a study of the various DoD back-injury prevention programs; the purpose is to produce a DoD-wide program that uses the most successful aspects of the individual components' programs.

- Apply technology to minimize the effects of disability.

The plan calls for Air Force to identify defense research that may help persons with disabilities and to make information about it available to the rehabilitation community. The goal is to fund and manage private sector research to apply Strategic Defense Initiative directed-energy technology for use in medicine and surgery.

- Expand international exchange of information and experience to benefit all disabled persons.

Cheney wants to clarify DoD policy on overseas assignments for military personnel with handicapped dependents and for handicapped persons who are DoD employees or applicants for employment.

In addition, DoD is supporting the activities of the Federal Task Force on Disabled Persons. The task force is working to improve opportunities for persons with disabilities through public- and private-sector initiatives and collaboration with other federal agencies.

Fort Polk welcomes home its Task Force Regulars

BY SUSIE FORRESTER

WASHINGTON — Fort Polk welcomed home their Panama fighters Feb. 9, honoring them with a division review.

During Operation Just Cause, Polk's 4th Battalion, 6th Infantry Task Force — better known as Task Force Regulars — took on the job of storming of the Comandancia, the Panamanian Defense Forces headquarters.

Saluted were troopers from the 4th Battalion and members of the 5th Battalion, which deployed in May and returned in September 1989.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. Carl E. Vuono attended the ceremony and praised the units for their efforts. "Your superb performance has demonstrated to the citizens of our great land something that you and I have known for a long time — our army is trained and ready to defend freedom wherever and whenever the nation calls," he said.

Speaking directly to the Regulars, Vuono said, "You have been through the cauldron of combat and can say with pride — mission accomplished."

Twenty-three soldiers died during Operation Just Cause, two of them from 4th Battalion — Cpl. Ivan Perez, Company B, and Pvt. 2 Kenneth D. Scott, Company A. Perez was posthumously awarded the Silver Star for his actions during Just Cause.

"Their sacrifice reminds us once again what soldiers know — that freedom isn't free," Vuono said. "It's sustained by the sweat and sometimes by the blood of great soldiers — soldiers who willingly put themselves at risk to protect the principles that we, as a nation, hold so dear."

During the ceremony, Vuono awarded a Silver Star (other than Perez's), six Bronze Stars for valor; and 14 Army Commendation Medals for valor.

Vuono, citing Task Force Regulars' performance as a part of Task Force Bayonet, said they "validated what we already knew — that the Army fights as a team. And there is no one in this world who can stand up to what we have to offer." (Forrester is associate editor of the Fort Polk "Guardian.") very few within the 10-20 range which possibly may remain high within the one year frame that may require some mitigation," Seaver said.

RECOGNITION — William Harriger, chief of maintenance branch at Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School, and MSgt. Wayne Dumais, NCO-in-charge of the maintenance branch, accept from Col. James Boddie, OMMCS commandant, a Training & Doctrine Command Certificate of Achievement. The certificate was for the branch's participation in the Army Award for Maintenance Excellence Program.

Short-term monitoring will be done in any structures in which corrective action is taken. This is to ensure within three or four days that the method is getting results.

"Plans are now to start sampling all the occupied buildings on the arsenal within the coming weeks, as we in turn continue with our long-term monitoring in the housing area," Seaver said.

Monitors were placed in about 1,100 of the 1,171 housing units here last year. Some 1,020 of those were retrieved within 90 days; some 80 monitors were missing, possibly because they were lost during change of occupancy. "I would say especially to the housing occupants: if they have a radon detector in their building and transfer to another location, to caution the movers not to bother that monitor," Seaver said. "It's important that that detector is there to benefit the survey."

On a humorous note, one woman occupant told Seaver the detector did nothing to cure her quarters' roach problem. Those with questions about the radon program can call him at the environmental office 876-6123.

Assisted Living Or A Nursing Home?

Among our seniors, only a very small percentage, approximately 5%, need the comprehensive skilled nursing care provided in a nursing home.

Assisted Living, the alternative, provides the personal help that a senior may require to continue to live independently.

- medication reminders
- assistance with dressing and bathing
- homemaking services
- fine dining
- planned social events
- transportation
- other hospitality services

Residents do not require twenty-four hour skilled nursing care. They might need reminders to take prescribed medications, or assistance with bathing and dressing.

The cost of Assisted Living is significantly less than a nursing home and all amenities are included in an affordable monthly rent.

For your peace of mind and your loved one's greatest independence—consider Assisted Living at Wyndham Park. Visit or call today for more information.

Sports enthusiast spends his workday at the gym

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Ted Compoc feels guilty sometimes. While many people may not look forward to coming to work each day, he spends his workday doing what he thoroughly enjoys — serving as sports director.

Compoc is the troop sports director at Pagano Gym. He formerly served as youth sports director at the Youth Center.

"I like paying my bills this way," said Compoc, who assumed his present position last December when Irv Lyles retired.

He loves sports; and since his playing days are behind him, he can't think of a better way to spend his time — providing a service in sports. "The bottom line is I enjoy working with people," Compoc said.

After seven years as a communications operator, he swore that he would find work in "people-oriented" areas. He spent 12 years as a probation officer and probably twice that long in various sporting capacities — mostly coaching volleyball.

Compoc, 46, sees similarities between his two and a half years at the youth center and his job now. "Over there I was providing a service and over here I'm providing a service. I feel strongly that service must be accompanied by a genuine interest in clientele. You've got to be people oriented. My staff feels that way as well," he said.

His immediate goal as troop sports director is to provide more competition opportunities for those who may not be the best athletes. Plans include a three-on-three tournament after basketball season, a "horse" basketball shooting tournament, a possible 35 and over summer basketball league, a possible powerlifting club, possible volleyball tournaments and summer league, and a possible softball league for older players. Compoc wants to "maximize what we have available to reach as broad a spectrum of the community that we can."

"There are some areas where quality prevail. I would like to maintain that quality; and in areas where we are deficient, I'd like to make an effort to attain a certain level of acceptance in the area of quality," he said.

He was one of 13 children — nine brothers and four sisters — raised in Kahuku, Hawaii. Compoc joined the Air Force after high school in 1961 and spent four years as a communications operator stationed in Tokyo, Japan. He worked the next three years for Kentron, a defense contractor in the Marshall Islands, as a communications supervisor. He then went to school for seven straight years besides serving as a full-time probation officer. Compoc earned a bachelor's degree in sociology in 1973 from Cal State University in Sacramento, and a master's degree in special education in 1975 from Southern Cal. He found time to coach high school volleyball in Sacramento until 1978-81 when he coached the women's volleyball team at Scottsdale (Ariz.) Community College; Scottsdale won the 1981 championship for the National Junior College Athletic Association. After that, he left his probation officer position in Phoenix to become full-time coach of the women's team at Weber State College.

"In Phoenix, I had 110 substance abusers on my caseload — mostly heroin addicts. And I woke up the next day and I was coaching 12 women volleyball players for a living. Only in America," Compoc said.

He coached at Weber State from 1982-84, taking a team with only six wins in the previous 10 years to three straight winning seasons including once making the playoffs. Compoc coached men's volleyball for the Saudi Arabia national volleyball program from 1985-86. He came to Huntsville in the fall of 1986 and became Redstone's youth sports director in July 1987. He and his wife, Julia, a registered nurse and staff supervisor at Huntsville Hospital, have two children: daughter, Kim, 19, a sophomore prelaw/women's studies major at Agnes Scott College for Women in Decatur, Ga.; and son, Jeffery Jerome "JJ," 10, a fourth grader at Holy Family School.

His staff of recreation assistants include shift leader Joe Reed, Michael Potter, Donald Lewis, Cliff Parker, Judy Pietsch, Andrea McNeil and Louis Edwards. Average daily attendance at the gym is from 250-300 active duty, retired military, their family members, and guests.

"I just enjoy the staff that I work with, the staff that I work for, and the people I serve," Compoc said.

Army major wins pistol shoot with perfect scores

Two soldiers and a military retiree were the winners in this month's pistol shooting match sponsored by B Company, 73rd Ordnance Battalion.

Maj. Jim Barnett of HHC MICOM took first followed by retiree Ted Angeloff in second and Sgt. David Stults of 515th Ordnance Company in third place.

Seventeen competed in the match held Feb. 11 at Shields Range on post. They first shot at regulation bowling pins, donated by Redstone Arsenal Lanes, at a distance of 15 yards. A shootoff, at 20 yards, was held for the three who shot a perfect score and the final standings were determined by the shootoff, according to SFC Steven Craven, the match official.

Barnett, total package fielding branch chief at the Missile Logistics Center, knocked down all five pins again in the shootoff. "I was ready for them to move it back to 25 (yards)," he said, laughing. "It was fun. It was good clean fun."

"I think it's great that they've got something going," said Angeloff, a training specialist in the directorate of evaluation at Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School.

Stults, re-enlistment NCO for the 515th, was also pleased with the event. "I thought the pistol shoot was great for generating more interest around here," Stults said. "I have to commend SFC Craven and Capt. Gulotta also for getting family members involved."

The monthly pistol shoots are being sponsored by B Company, 73rd and its commander, Capt. Gasper Gulotta. They began last November and matches are scheduled through June. The next match is set for March 4.

Athletes can save face with protective mouthguards

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of dental health articles provided by Redstone Arsenal Dental Activity in observance of National Children's Dental Health Month.

Protective mouthguards, long associated with football and contact sports, can prevent injuries in a wide variety of other athletic activities as well.

Whether you're surfing or skiing, gliding on a skateboard or posing on a balance beam, you run a risk of injuring your teeth, lips, cheeks and tongue — even of sustaining head and neck injuries, including concussions.

In fact, dental and sports medicine studies indicate that almost any vigorous sport can cause these injuries — not just those sports involving body contact. Hazardous falls, jaw clenching, or flying pieces of equipment can all lead to injuries — injuries that could easily be prevented with a mouth guard.

The activities include: basketball, bicycling, boxing, discus throwing, field hockey, football, gymnastics, handball, ice hockey, lacrosse, martial arts, racquetball, rugby, shotputting, skateboarding, skiing, skydiving, soccer, squash, surfing, volleyball, water polo, weightlifting, and wrestling.

The good news is that a single, well-constructed mouth protector can be used with any of these sports.

Other good news: Mouthguards are relatively inexpensive.

Three kinds of mouthguards are available: the ready-made or stock protector; the mouth-formed protector; and the custom-made protector.

They all work the same way — absorbing the impact of a blow — but there are considerable differences in comfort, fit, and cost.

Depending on the kind of mouth protector you choose, you may need or want a dentist's help in fitting the appliance.

Stock mouth protector, mass produced and sold in retail stores, are inexpensive but come in one size only. Stock mouth protectors do not require fitting by a dental professional, but are often bulky and uncomfortable. Some athletes feel these mouthguards can interfere with breathing.

Mouth-formed protectors can be fitted with or without a dentist's help. If professionally fitted, they can be worn with some braces. These protectors use thermoplastic or acrylic materials.

Custom-made protectors, the most satisfactory of the three types, provide exceptionally good fit, comfort and overall quality. In addition, they do not interfere with breathing. However, they are a bit more costly than the alternatives.

A custom-made protector is best constructed over a cast (model) made from a dental impression of the athlete's teeth. Then a resilient material is fabricated over the model.

While dentists encourage the use of custom-made mouth protectors, they emphasize that what is most important is that some kind of mouth protector is worn. This applies to girls as well as boys. Studies show that females are susceptible to injuries like those which male athletes receive in similar sports. In the worst cases, these injuries can lead to permanent tooth loss and even facial disfigurement.

So why risk it?
