Seminar focuses on quality proposals from contractors

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Industry and MICOM took a step toward improving the contracting process Oct. 13 with a one-day seminar conducted by the Acquisition Center.

More than 200 representatives from large and small companies attended the "Quality Proposal Process Seminar" held in the Rocket Auditorium. Al Reeder, director of the Missile Command's Acquisition Center, said in an open letter to the participants, "The idea for this seminar was conceived approximately a year ago. Sponsoring this seminar is just one of the many ways we here at the Acquisition Center are utilizing Total Quality Management (TQM) philosophies in our daily working environment. We wish to convey to you, our customer, what we at the Acquisition Center need from your company in the way of cost and pricing data."

The center established an executive steering committee which came up with the idea for a seminar. The committee has a pricing quality management board that developed this class to instruct industry representatives on how to properly prepare a proposal for a requirement from a single source. A process action team determined there was a need for such a class because many proposals submitted by industry require more data, according to Steve Bradford, a supervisor cost-price analyst.

"What we found in that flow-charting (by the process action team) was we had a lot of rework. What we had to do is go back to the contractor and ask for more data," Bradford said.

"I think the primary purpose of this seminar," added Fred Carr of the Acquisition Center, "is to have industry and the government work more closely together."

Dennis Thrasher, chief of pricing branch A within the cost division of Acquisition Center, conducted the morning session on Proposal Quality. He said the one-day seminar is a result of classes that were initially presented to a contractor over a year ago and were well-received. "We believe this is going to help us utilize our resources better and more effectively," Thrasher said.

Plans are to accept invitations from industry to conduct future sessions at the industry site in order to

Soldier puts training into practice at car wreck

BY SKIP VAUGHN

A Redstone soldier who assisted an injured passenger at a serious two-vehicle accident which occurred in Huntsville, doesn't consider himself a hero.

Spec. Ed Sherwood, a calibration specialist who belongs to Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, TMDE Support Group, put his Army first-aid training to good use when he comforted the injured teen-ager. The young man suffered a fractured jaw and other injuries in the wreck which occurred about 6:30 p.m. Sept. 30 on Triana Boulevard.

"I just did what I think anybody else would've done," said Sherwood, who works at the Army Primary Standards Lab for the Test Measurement and Diagnostic Equipment Activity.

He was on his way to coach his wife's softball team when he and his wife, Mary, saw the aftermath of the van-car accident shortly after it had occurred. The head-on collision had left the van in the turning lane in the middle of the road, and the car at a ditch across the road. Sherwood saw plenty of bystanders but no one offering assistance. "I was the first one to actually try to do anything," he said.

Sherwood went over to the van and saw that the driver was conscious and seemed OK. So, he went over to the black Pontiac Firebird which was about 30 yards away. The driver of the car, Austin Cottle, 18, of Huntsville, had crawled out of the vehicle. He was on his back, apparently with a broken leg, and told Sherwood that he was alright. The driver's door was open; Sherwood entered and saw the injured 18-year-old, Russell Minney, on the passenger side. The impact had been so great that it knocked the radio out of the dash and under the passenger's seat where Sherwood had to turn the blaring radio off.

"When I climbed in, he (Minney) was balled up with his arms across his chest. He was just shaking real bad, and his eyes were turned up. And he was turning blue. And right then I knew he was going into shock," Sherwood recalled. "He was wearing a real thin T-shirt and some shorts. I took off my jacket and laid it across his chest to keep him warm."

"He was unconscious when I found him. I started talking to him, asking him questions... And slowly he started coming around," Sherwood said. "When he finally regained consciousness, he was dazed; looked like he was in another world, he had no idea where he was at."

Sherwood could see blood in his mouth and a long gash on the right side of his head. He tried to sit the teen-ager up straight and keep the youngster's head straight. He talked to Minney, who was starting to

Command's yearend financial reports completed on time

MICOM and Defense Finance & Accounting Service accountants have completed their yearend financial reports on time this year despite more challenges than usual.

Maj. Gen. Joe Rigby, commander of the Missile Command, signed the MICOM certification statement for the fiscal 1993 reports Friday, Oct. 8 at building 8027. The reports were handcarried the next day to the DFAS accounts offices in Pennsylvania.

"This year has probably been a little more frustrating than usual due to various reorganizations — one of the Program Executive Offices reorganized and also a portion of the Resource Management Directorate (RMD) Finance & Accounting Division went under DFAS. There was an additional loss of experienced people due to retirement this year. All this hampered our closing certification of reports," said Aaron Walker, an accountant in RMD's Financial Management Division, Managerial Accounting Office, who served as coordinator for yearend closing. "We met our deadlines but it took a lot of cooperation between RMD, DFAS and the various activities who certified."

"We had a lot of hardships but we had few discrepancies noted during the certification considering the hardships," he said. "The various RMD and DFAS employees involved worked many long hours in the week prior to certification. We only have approximately three to four days to check and make corrections after the final reports are run and certifications take place. We then have a window of about one to 1 1/2 days to certify and another day to get the reports to the various locations they are sent to."

Yearend reports were also certified for PEOs and the tenant and satellite activities here. "There were 23 PEO project offices and 17 tenant and satellite activities who came down to review the reports and certify in addition to MICOM," Walker said. "All of us involved in the yearend closing and certification process wish to extend our appreciation to all these activities for their cooperation during the yearend closing process and throughout the year."

RMD and DFAS representatives watched as Rigby signed the yearend certification statement for the Missile Command reports. "I'd like to give you my appreciation and ask you to extend that back to the people who work with you," Rigby said.

The next day Jerri Ryan, Ron McLemore and Bruce Keeton carried the accounting reports to the DFAS Accounts office in Tobyhanna, Pa. They were to remain about one week to answer any questions which might arise. The various reports for the PEOs and tenant and satellite activities were also sent to appropriate locations throughout the country.

assist the company's people responsible for preparing proposals. This should save time from having to go back to industry to request more data during the process itself.

Attendees at last week's seminar included about 220 industry people, representing 72 different contractors or divisions of contractors, and about 50 government workers. "It's going very well," said Thrasher, during a morning break. Other presenters included Bobby Lineberry of the Acquisition Center, and Bill Hagerty of the Legal Office.

Stan M. Hughes, manager of the Huntsville district office for Hughes Aircraft Company, found the information presented to be "extremely important and relevant to the way we have to do business in the future."

"We have found that this approach that's being outlined today really does in fact work," Hughes said. "And I think we can all profit by paying close attention and applying the principles."

The Tennessee Valley Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) would like to say "Thanks" to all employees who took the time and effort to submit a slogan for this year's campaign.

The winning slogan, "Uniting to Help Others," was submitted by Georgia Walker of the Acquisition Center.

Special thanks

Editor:

I would like to thank the people that helped me Friday, Oct. 8 at the RFCU. Thanks to Cindy, Ilene Kirkland, Col. Gary Andrews, and all the other people that helped me when I was ill (I could not get all your names). I said a special prayer of thanksgiving for you all in my church Sunday. It is certainly nice to know that there are still people that do care about and help others — even when they are total strangers as I was to you. Thank you all very much and may God bless you all.

Corps SAM PM earns first star

The Army announced Thursday that Col. Richard A. Black has been selected for promotion to brigadier general. Black is the Corps SAM project manager within the PEO Missile Defense organization.

A 1967 U.S. Military Academy graduate and Air Defense Artillery officer, Black's Army missile assignments have included service with a Hawk battery in Germany and with a Hawk battalion as operations officer and executive officer. He was the Army system coordinator for MLRS in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Research, Development and Acquisition, and is a former product manager for the Patriot anti-tactical missile program.

He was assigned as the Follow-on to Lance project manager at Redstone in 1989 and became Corps SAM project manager in 1990.

Among other assignments, Black served in Vietnam as senior adviser to a Vietnamese battalion and at West Point as an instructor in the department of physics. He holds a master's degree in applied science engineering from the University of California.

The brigadier general promotion selection list released Oct. 14 contained 38 names.

Gen. Ross retiring

WASHINGTON — The commanding general of the Army Materiel Command plans to retire and will be succeeded by the officer now serving as the Army's logistics chief.

Gen. Jimmy D. Ross who has commanded AMC since January 1992 will retire early in 1994. Lt. Gen. Leon E. Salomon, the Army's deputy chief of staff for logistics, has been nominated by the president for promotion to four star rank and will head AMC.

Maj. Gen. Johnnie E. Wilson, now AMC's chief of staff, will take Salomon's place on the Army staff. Wilson has been nominated for promotion to three star rank.

MLRS Project shows firepower for foreign partners

BY SANDA MARTEL

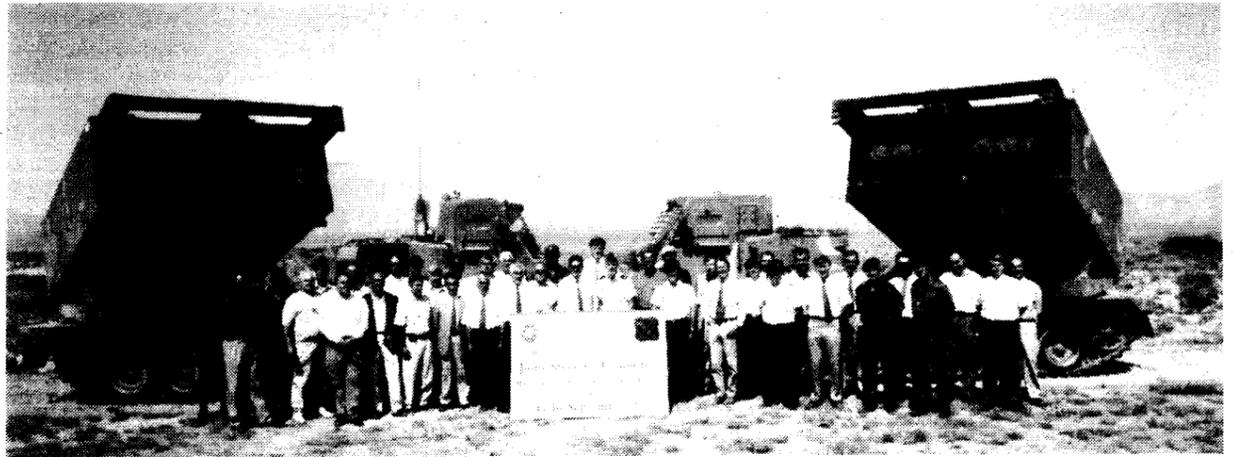

MLRS foreign co-production and fielding partners were treated to a "vision of the future" at White Sands Missile Range, N.M., when the MLRS project office hosted the Joint Steering Committee (JCS) Sept. 15-16.

JCS is a general officer level group representing the five MLRS co-production and fielding partner countries. They are the United States, United Kingdom, Germany, France and Italy. The White Sands event was not one of the scheduled semiannual JCS meetings, but an event that evolved so the partners could see what it is they manage.

"Many had never seen a MLRS rocket firing or walked up and put their hands on a launcher," said Bob Neighbors, MLRS assistant project manager for special projects.

"We saw this as an opportunity to show JCS members, who are actually the International Board of Directors for the system, what's at the other end of the food chain," Neighbors said.

MLRS firings are ongoing at WSMR, whether development testing on modifications and upgrades or production lot acceptance tests. It was a matter of looking at test schedules and pulling already planned

JOINT STEERING COMMITTEE — MLRS co-production and fielding partner countries attended a MLRS firing demonstration at White Sands Missile Range, N.M., last month.

MLRS test events together in order to consolidate them into a two-day period to produce a series of demonstrations.

"It was the first time most of the members had been at White Sands," Neighbors said. Some 50 VIPs representing the five countries, as well as Maj. Gen. John Dubia, chief of U.S. Field Artillery, attended the event.

"Throughout the two-day event, each event got better. Everything went off as smooth as silk. Every event happened on time. We had a good plan and it went off flawlessly," Neighbors said. He attributes much of the success to the close relationship that exists between the project office and White Sands Missile Range.

Col. William Taylor, MLRS project manager, singled out the efforts of Maj. Brian Sutton, from the MLRS project office, and Maj. Lyn Tronti, from the WSMR staff, for their personal efforts in pulling off such a flawless event.

"Although many people worked extremely hard to pull this series of events off, Majors Sutton and Tronti were the catalysts who brought everything together," Taylor said.

A highlight of the first day was a visit to Launch Complex-33, a historical site where the German scientists assisted in the development of the United States' evolving rocket program. Captured German weapons such as the V-2 were tested at this location.

And it was at LC-33 that the group saw an Army Tactical Missile System fired from an MLRS launcher.

"It was a unique experience, the first time Europeans have seen ATACMS fired, except in video recorded during Desert Storm," Neighbors said.

Static displays included:

- A MLRS launcher
- Terminal Guidance Warhead (TGW) submunition
- MLRS SADARM, a smart submunition for the attack of self-propelled artillery
- Fire Direction Data Manager (FDDM), the command, control and communications system for MLRS. It was released for fielding just a couple of weeks ago.
- A conceptual mockup of the High Mobility Artillery Rocket System (HIMARS), which marries the Tank Automotive Command's evolving medium tactical vehicle wheeled chassis with MLRS launcher electronics. HIMARS lighter weight makes it C130 transportable, suitable for rapid response and with the same capabilities of the basic MLRS.

On the second day the group saw a demonstration of the Improved Launcher Mechanical Launcher (ILMS). The mockup demonstrated how ILMS will reduce the time it takes for the missile pods to come to the firing point, from 90 seconds to 15, significantly increasing survivability and responsiveness to time-sensitive targets.

The second day also featured soldiers from the 3/9th Field Artillery at Fort Sill firing the Reduced Range Practice Rocket as the "first ever users." During this firing, Taylor presented Dubia and the 3/9th FA firing crews certificates commemorating the initial fielding and firing of RRPR by a tactical unit.

Longtime member of measurement community dies

Editor's note: Test Measurement and Diagnostic Equipment (TMDE) Activity provided the following article.

Malcolm Shelton, chief of the Electrical Standards Laboratory, U.S. Army Primary Standards Laboratory Directorate, TMDE Activity, died Sept. 5 from liver cancer. He was 60.

Shelton was a part of the Redstone Arsenal measurement community for many years. During that time, he was responsible for many significant contributions to specific DA requirements in the DoD primary level measurement areas of microwave, millimeter-wave and electrical measurements.

Under his direction, many new measurement services were developed and brought on-line in the areas of microwave power, attenuation and impedance. Shelton was instrumental in developing the first automated 6-port microwave measurement system in the Army and, during the last few years, he directed the development of several new millimeter-wave systems to support the next generation of smart missiles, radars and communication systems operating at millimeter-wave frequencies as high as 110 Gigahertz (GHz).

His standards laboratory was second to none in the Department of Defense in many electronic measurement parameters, such as voltage, resistance, time and frequency, microwave power, and network analysis. Shelton also served for several years as chairman of the engineering subgroup of the DoD tri-service Calibration Coordination Group. This is the organization of Army, Navy and Air Force subject matter experts who meet regularly to coordinate research and development efforts in the area of metrology, the science of precision measurements. During this time, Shelton was largely responsible for publishing the first "Brown Book," a two volume summary of tri-service measurement requirements and research projects. The Brown Book has evolved into a widely-used DoD document which is now mandatorily updated every two years.

Shelton came to Huntsville from Knoxville in 1967. While in Knoxville, he had worked at Oak Ridge National Laboratory in the Y-12 plant on several projects in high-energy physics, trans-uranium element applications and cyclotron development. At Redstone he worked for what was then known as the U.S. Army Metrology and Calibration Center (AMCC) where he eventually became chief of the Engineering Laboratory. He later became chief of the AMCC Microwave Standards Laboratory in the late 1970s, and assumed additional duties in 1991 when the Army Primary Electrical and Microwave Standards Laboratories were combined and designated the Electrical Standards Laboratory. He directly supervised 20 employees, including engineers, technicians and clerical personnel and provided technical direction to several hundreds others worldwide within the TMDE Activity.

His wife, Jackie, and his children, Jennifer and Patrick, have requested that those individuals who knew Malcolm and worked with him in his various endeavors write down those remembrances/antidotes and provide them to the family in place of donations or flowers. The Shelton family can be contacted through the TMDE Activity's Army Primary Standards Laboratory Directorate at 876-2666.

PRESIDING AT SEMINAR — On Nov. 6, 1986 Shelton presides as chairman of the Microwave/Millimeter Measurements Seminar held at Redstone Arsenal.

panic, and told him to sit still. With the help of a woman who had arrived, he carried Minney over to the grass and laid him down. "He was fighting us the whole time. He was scared, just real scared," Sherwood said.

After an ambulance arrived, Sherwood assisted the medics by strapping Minney into the neck brace and helping to put him on a stretcher. He kept talking to the teen-ager and trying to calm him down. When the ambulance was ready to depart, Minney jumped out the back. Later he tried to find out Minney's condition but was unsuccessful. The following Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 5, he received a call at work from Spec. Trina Minney of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Missile Command, who said the accident victim was her brother-in-law. She expressed her appreciation to Sherwood. She told him Minney had received stitches in the head, stitches in the leg, and treatment for a fractured jaw. Later, Sherwood went to Spec. Minney's home where he was reunited with the teen-ager.

"I'd be willing to help anybody; that's my job. I'm a soldier and a human being; I'm here to help people," Sherwood said.

"The Army teaches us first aid, how to prevent shock, how to look for symptoms of shock. We do it so much in training that it became natural. Never second guessed a move that I made; it was just all instinct," he said when asked how he had been prepared to render aid.

Huntsville Police reports indicated that the accident occurred at Triana Boulevard and 14th Avenue when the van coming out of 2900 Triana Blvd. pulled into the path of the car which was southbound on Triana. The driver of the 1990 Chevrolet van was identified as James Williams, 66, of Huntsville. Occupants of both vehicles were taken to Huntsville Hospital for treatment.

Sherwood, 23, was born in Miami, Fla., but considers Houston, Texas, his hometown. He joined the Army in 1988, and arrived at Redstone in January 1992. His hobbies include hunting, fishing, skating and softball.

"I've known Spec. Sherwood a couple of years now — we were in school together — and I feel very proud of him," said Sgt. Jeff Peterson, NCO-in-charge for the Army Primary Standards Lab. "He's an outstanding soldier. And there's nothing he wouldn't do to help someone, you know, to make their life a little easier or make their situation even better."

Minney, the accident victim, was visiting Huntsville from Monroe, Mich. He learned details from the accident by talking to Sherwood because he couldn't remember what happened. "I don't remember anything except waking up in the hospital and getting stitches in my head," said Minney, who expected to return to Michigan last weekend.

He expressed his appreciation to Sherwood. "I appreciate what he did a lot. I must've thanked him about five or six times," Minney said.

LOGSA organization begins its total-quality journey

Editor's note: Brown is a Total Quality Management specialist at the Logistics Support Activity.

BY UNA BROWN

The Logistics Support Activity embarked upon the TQM journey during a Quality Management Board meeting Sept. 20 and an Executive Steering Committee offsite session Oct. 4-5.

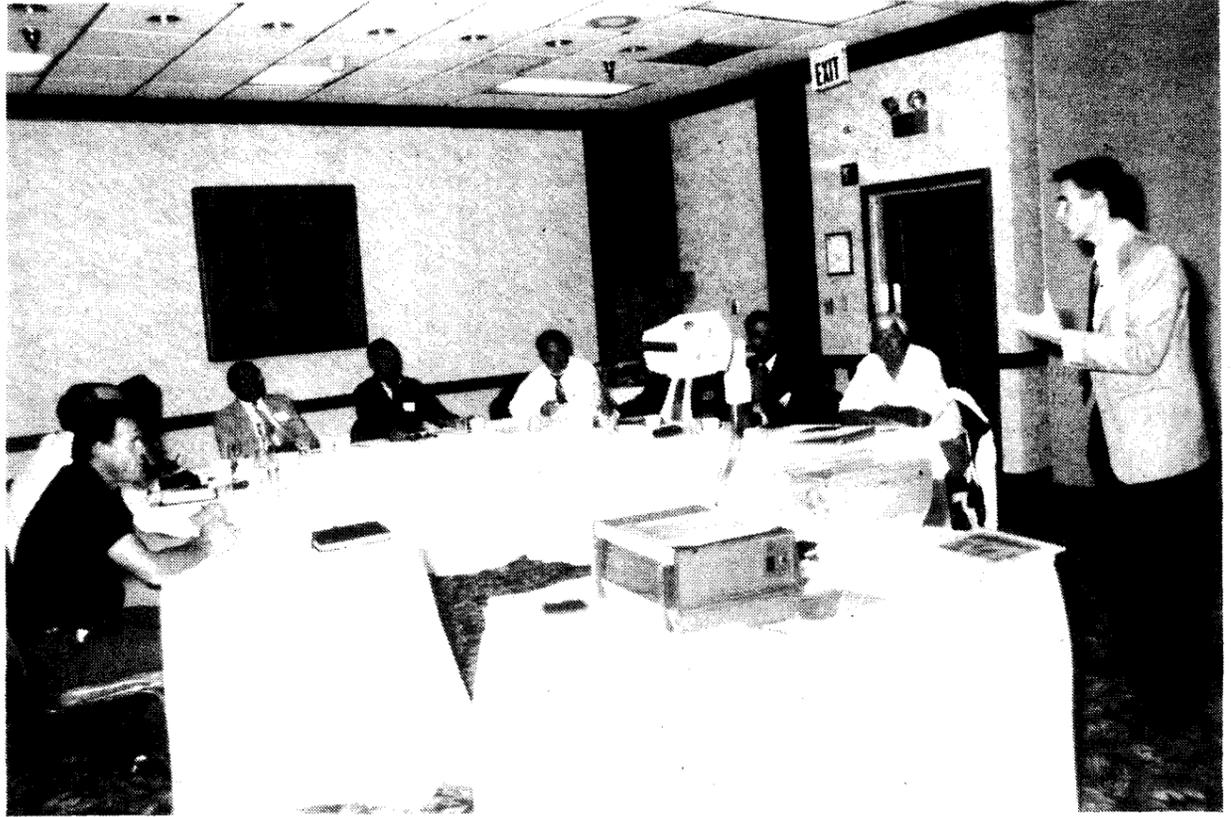

The QMB workshop was presented by Una Brown, LOGSA TQM Office, and the ESC offsite seminar/workshop was presented by Tim Overstreet, Human Resources Development Lead for the Integrated Materiel Management Center. Brown provided the Total Quality Management teambuilding emphasis while Overstreet provided the systemic focus.

While building effective teams is essential for improving quality; it is with the real-world daily operations after the teambuilding emotions have diminished that quality systems produce continuous process improvements. After the emotional high begins to decline, we need immediate experience of taking the systemic view to work toward permanent, lasting, substantive changes (i.e. based on "significant common causes") to the system. Change to the system occurs by modifying the process. Therefore, more emphasis was placed on the systemic approach to TQM. Teambuilding created the culture and forum to learn about systems; yet they worked together to achieve the desired outputs. Both sessions provided an opportunity for the LOGSA leadership to focus on their commitment to quality.

The intensive three-day session consisted of formal instruction on the concepts, fundamentals and strategy for actual implementation of TQM, including active participation by each of the leaders. The workshop sessions were productive and produced desired outputs using timely training for the executive team's needs. During the workshops the ESC/QMB identified the following:

- Major customers and outputs in key result areas
- Major improvement opportunities
- And chartered two high performance Process Action Teams to begin immediately. The focus of the PATs are LOGSA development and implementation of improvements for specific customers. We learned early on that we had to narrow our first improvement opportunities. Our recent deployment efforts to Somalia and Macedonia helped us to pinpoint the soldier in the field and Major Subordinate Commands as our initial major improvement opportunities and incrementally expand to other opportunities. Of course change is constant in the world today and current events could change our course.

Overall, the sessions were unique and revolutionary in that the workshop sessions were actually facilitated by Ronald Treusdell, LOGSA executive director, and Christopher Gardner, LOGSA deputy director, to achieve ownership, genuine commitment and involvement of top management in all quality related activities before going to the masses of employees. We believe this approach will allow the leadership to study, experience and visibly model TQM for our employees. The LOGSA top management team is observing and updating their knowledge of TQM. We realize that the Redstone Arsenal community is a leader in TQM and we will be a part of the Army community vision for excellence in quality.

Spotlight on Customer Service: Acquisition Center

BY SANDA MARTEL

The Quality Office is the Acquisition Center's focal point for organizing efforts to improve the quality of work, fix processes that are broken, and provide better customer service.

Located in trailer G-2 on the east side of building 4488, the office is run by Fred Carr. Elaine Strickland is the secretary, and others who work there include Debbie Bearden, ACOE coordinator, Wilma Reed and Pat Johnson.

The Quality Office operates a 24-hour per day customer service hotline for both internal and external customers. If contractors have questions and don't know who to call, they can call the hotline and have their question referred to the appropriate party. The hotline is also available to Acquisition Center personnel who need help on anything going on in the center and by others in the Redstone community who need assistance. The hotline number is 876-1560.

The Quality Office handles TQM training for center employees and provides training aids and materials for the training.

Bearden is the ACOE coordinator and handles restoration and landscaping projects for building 4488. She is in charge of preparing reports and evaluations for ACOE and TQM to measure progress in those areas.

The office publishes a newsletter for employees that reports on TQM success stories. For example, a dedicated team of center employees recently worked with the MICOM Managerial Accounting Office and the Defense Finance and Accounting Service to reconcile unliquidated obligations on 1,245 contracts involving $96.5 million. More than 99 percent of these unliquidated obligations were reconciled.

Another TQM success story was establishment of a reading room in the Redstone Scientific Information Center, which contractors may visit to review technical data and determine if they can be competitive in submitting a bid before going to the time and expense of doing so. Prior to establishment of this procedure, contractors had to wait for a Request for Proposal (RFP) to go out before they could request to see data.

Yet another initiative has been the Customer Feedback Loop, which has been in place for about six months. Customer surveys are placed in the bid viewing room and external customers (contractors) are encouraged to pick up and fill out these forms at any time to make suggestions on how their needs can better be served.

A revised solicitation request procedure has reduced the waiting period from 24 hours to two hours for contractors requesting bids, a change enthusiastically received by MICOM contract bidders, Bearden said.

These are only a few of the projects that have been worked through the Quality Office. "We try to be the focal point, where ideas for improvement can be channeled," Bearden said.

CFC at 38 percent after first week

One week into the annual charity drive, the Tennessee Valley Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) has reached 38.7 percent of its $1,333,500 goal.

CFC had collected $516,318.92 as of Friday. This marked the first week total for the campaign scheduled to conclude Nov. 12.

"The campaign is going very well at this point, and we're anticipating we're going to meet our goal," said George Gunter, the campaign coordinator. "I encourage all employees who haven't participated to look at the brochure and learn about the services provided by the CFC agencies. It only takes one critical illness or tragedy to make us realize that we are very fortunate to be givers rather than receivers of these services. You never know when you, your family, or neighbors will need the help of the agencies we support through CFC."

The Missile Command reported collections of $112,497 for 25.9 percent of its $433,600 goal for CFC.

AT SPORTS HAVEN — The Redstone Arsenal community is invited to come to Sports Haven Oct. 29 at 8 p.m. for a performance by the USA Express All Army Soldier Showband, which features some of the best vocal and instrumental musicians in the Army including Redstone's own Spec. Deland Lawhorne on keyboard. Tickets are $5. For more information call 876-6595/3030.

Breast cancer awareness stressed in October

Editor's note: The following article was provided by the Radiology Department at Fox Army Community Hospital.

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Oct. 19 is National Breast Cancer Awareness Day.

We at Fox Army Community Hospital would like to congratulate three of our radiologic technologists, SSgt. Gail Anderson R.T. (R)(M), Marian Hammons R.T. (R)(M) and Kathryn Norman R.T. (R)(M), who have passed the specialty registry in mammography. This is a part of our hospital becoming accredited with the ACR in mammography. We are wearing pink ribbons in honor of the breast cancer survivors and in the memory of women who have died from this disease. Please come by the Radiology Department and get your ribbon.

Self examinations

Every woman should do monthly self breast examinations. If you still have monthly cycles, it should be performed nine days after the onset of menses. If you do not have monthly cycles, you need to perform this examination at the same time every month. Set a date at the same time each month and put this on a calendar so you won't forget.

If you do not know how to do a self breast examination, find out how. Check with your physician and have him/her show you how to do it. The examination does not take very long and can be done in the shower. We have a diagram in the mammogram room that illustrates how to do the BSE.

During your BSE, check to see if anything doesn't feel right. Is there a lump? Watch it until your menses ends and if the lump does not go away make an appointment with your doctor. Some women have "lumpy" breasts and this is normal for them. Learning your breasts through BSE can help you find lumps that were not there previously. You need to know how your breasts feel and what changes are taking place. Women who practice BSE regularly can catch cancers or changes in breasts earlier than a physician who sees them once a year.

Is there any discharge from your nipples? This is something to check for when doing the monthly BSE. Sometimes a slight discharge is nothing to be alarmed about, but at other times can indicate a ductal infection or carcinoma. Look to see if one of your nipples is turned inward or inverted. If so, has it always been that way or is it a new finding? If it is new, make an appointment with your physician. Some cancers present themselves in this manner.

Cysts or fibrocystic breast are very common in younger women. Most of these cysts go away or shrink in size according to the timeframe in your monthly cycle. Some cysts are painful and feel quite large. Watch them until your menses ends and decrease the amount of caffeine you drink or eat. Surgeons sometimes drain or aspirate cysts if they are quite large or are causing a great deal of pain and concern.

Mammograms

Many things affect how often you need to get a mammogram. Age, time of onset of menses, time of menopause, not giving birth (nulliparity), hormone therapy and family history of breast cancer all play strong roles in mammography.

The American College of Radiology recommends that women ages 35-39 get a mammogram once every two to three years if there is a strong family history of breast cancer.

Women ages 40-49 need a mammogram once every one to two years unless there is a strong family or personal history of breast disease. In that event, yearly mammograms are required.

Women age 50 and up need mammograms every year and sometimes more depending on personal history and findings on previous mammograms.

Compression is a vital part and probably the most important part of mammography. It is also the part of the examination that everyone hates most.

Compression reduces the amount of radiation breasts receive for each view and keeps the breasts still so that no pictures have to be redone due to motion.

Compression also spreads the superimposed structures in the breasts apart so the radiologist can see through them to check for masses and microcalcifications that could be hidden otherwise.

Compression enables the mammographer to keep much of the breast tissue on the film so that all the breast is visualized.

Compression produces tightness to the point that breast tissue doesn't bounce back when touched. The compression should not bruise or make the breast sore. Some women have tender breasts at all times, a normal condition for them. They may experience some additional discomfort the day of the mammogram. Mammographers do not intentionally hurt patients. While the exam is not comfortable, it is worth having the mammogram rather than developing breast cancer.

Clinic guidelines

Why do mammogram clinics ask patients not to wear body powder, lotion or deodorant the day of the examination? Some deodorants contain powder that can show up on mammograms as microcalcifications. Some microcalcifications are cancerous and some are not.

Powders contain talc and some have zinc or glittery particles, which may show up as microcalcifications.

Lotions can make the breast slide off the mammogram and thus make the mammographer miss part of the breast, rendering the mammogram inconclusive.

Some women worry about getting too much radiation from mammography, but today's way of doing mammograms shouldn't cause women to worry. Registered mammographers practice radiation safety and all use low dose radiation.

Mammography is not the cure-all for breast disease, but mammography combined with self breast examination and a yearly physical by your doctor are the best resources we have today in fighting this disease.

MLRS

Also on the second day, some dignitaries in the grandstands might have considered sitting less than two miles from the impact area and watching 10 tactical MLRS rockets fire to be the highlight of the event.

"You looked over your shoulder and saw the rockets coming over; then you saw the air burst above the target area, the sky above was saturated with 'steel rain,' there was a rumble and a dust cloud rose from the desert floor," Neighbors said. "You had to have been there or been an Iraqi soldier to have ever seen something like that."

During the 1991 Gulf War when Saddam Hussein's Iraqi army faced U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia, Iraqi soldiers upon whose positions the MLRS power was directed coined the term "steel rain." Each MLRS tactical rocket contains 644 grenade-type bomblets.

In addition to the business end of things, the foreigners were entertained with dinner at a dude ranch. Because of the non-stop pace of the two days, a group of very tired and sunburned Europeans returned to El Paso, Texas, at the end of the event.

PLS — The Palletized Load System vehicle has plenty of proposed applications.

Palletized Load System is designed to enhance battlefield logistics.

Besides ammunition distribution, other proposed PLS functions include: disabled vehicle recovery, tank refueling, and potable water delivery. These plus more usages make the PLS the vehicle of the future through rocks, mud or sand.

Features include a 10-wheel drive central tire inflation system, and a 500 horsepower engine. It has a maximum payload of 33 tons — 16.55 truck and 16.55 trailer.

"The current acquisition of the PLS is scheduled for 2,707 vehicles, 1,083 trailers and 30,719 flatracks for Class V distribution," said Willard Brooks, a combat development specialist in the Directorate of Combat Developments at the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School.

With speed and convenience of loading and unloading, the PLS is a force that will improve the readiness of today's Army.

Redstone team wins award in Army 10-Miler road race

BY SKIP VAUGHN

WASHINGTON — The Redstone Rockets running team from Redstone Arsenal placed fourth in the military mixed category at the ninth annual Army 10-Miler road race held Sunday.

The average time for the top three male and lone female members of the team was a nifty 61 minutes and 36 seconds. Spec. Couretta Sirmans, the female member, also placed third in her age group, 20-24. Her time was 67:29.

Capt. Bryan Fahy led the Redstone runners with a 57:14; Capt. John Quinlivan, the team captain, finished in 59:37; and Capt. Steven Hester completed the course in 62:05.

All seven members of Redstone's team finished in under 68 minutes. The others included Cpl. James Bailey, 64:05; Sgt. Maj. Robert Cothran, 64:54; and SFC Willie Williams, 67:10.

"This was the largest Army 10-Miler ever," said Capt. Lance Obra, an assistant operations officer for the Military District of Washington. The race has grown each year; there were 7,300 registered runners this time. Ages reportedly ranged from 14 to 96.

"We had 200-plus kids who participated in a one-mile run which was the first time they had a little run for the kids. And all the kids received a medal. They ran a small course, about a mile," Obra said.

More than 300 teams participated in the 17 team categories. The flat, fast and scenic course began and ended at the Pentagon. Gen. Gordon Sullivan, the Army chief of staff, gave the starting command.

"The race went really well," Obra said. "There were no significant problems."

In the military mixed category, the 8th Army-Korea won with a team average time of 58:27. U.S. Army Health Services Command placed second with 58:39; the U.S. Army Information Command at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., was third in 59:05; the Redstone Rockets team was fourth in 61:36; and the 24th Infantry Division came in fifth in 64:55.

Gen. Jimmy Ross, the commander of Army Materiel Command, placed third in his age group (55-59) with a time of 67:57.

The top three male finishers overall included Jim Hage of Lanham, Md., 50:37; Mark Donahue of Virginia Beach, Va., 50:49; and Rob Lee of Fort Lee, Va., 51:02. The top three females included Callie Calhoun of San Antonio, Texas, 59:29; Carol Schultze of Bethesda, Md., 60:15; and Elizabeth Ludwigson of Cranbury, N.J., 61:25.

The Commander's Cup award for the top military team went to the military open men's team of the 101st Airborne Division from Fort Campbell, Ky., with a time of 52:58. In accepting the award, the team captain dedicated the victory to freed pilot Michael Durant as he returns to Fort Campbell, after being held captive in Somalia, and to members of the air assault unit who were killed in Somalia.

Arrow test conducted

An Arrow anti-tactical ballistic missile (TBM) attempted to intercept a surrogate TBM in a flight test conducted in Israel on Oct. 14. The Arrow interceptor was launched and was guided to the approaching target missile. The Arrow interceptor acquired the target with its onboard sensor and steered to close proximity of the target. The interceptor warhead did not activate and the target missile was not destroyed. Flight test data analysis is continuing.

The test was the sixth Arrow flight and the second missile-against-missile engagement.

The Arrow program is a joint U.S./Israeli effort to develop an interceptor missile for Israel. The information gathered from the program has a potential application in several United States missile defense programs.

Arrow is jointly funded by the United States and Israel with Israeli Aircraft Industries (IAI) as the prime contractor. U.S. participation is directed by the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization within the Department of Defense. The U.S. Army Program Executive Officer (Missile Defense) manages the U.S. effort.

Bowling center offers top of the lane equipment

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Anyone who hasn't been to the Redstone Bowling Center lately wouldn't recognize the place. The wooden lanes have been replaced with modern synthetic ones; and automatic scorers have replaced the old manual system.

"Business is booming," says John Howard, manager of the bowling center. The automatic scorers arrived in February, and the synthetic lanes opened in June. More improvements are planned, according to Howard.

Plans include adding bumper cushions for young bowlers; these can be snapped in place to cover the lane gutters, so youngsters won't roll gutter balls. Also planned is a new lane-walker, a computerized machine which takes care of the lanes and keeps them clean. The lane walker has already been approved for the budget, and is expected by early November. New carpeting has also been approved and should be in during November.

Money for these improvements comes out of the Morale, Welfare and Recreation Fund which is nonappropriated money raised by the Redstone community activities themselves. The lanes alone cost $93,000, while the automatic scorers cost $100,000. "We're one of the major revenue producers for the MWRP right now," Howard said.

"In '91 we only did about $1,200 in profit; and then in fiscal year '92, our revenue doubled and our profit was about $32,000," he said. Howard added that he expects this year's profit to be even greater.

He attributes the increased revenue to the bowling leagues, the automatic scorers and synthetic lanes, and an improvement in the operation of the snack bar. "They work in conjunction with one another: the snack bar and the bowling center," he said.

Features of the bowling center include 16 lanes, a game room, snack bar, and a party room. The bowling center no longer has a pro shop; it ended that contract operation about a year ago. Plans are to start a small pro shop — offering small necessities such as bags and gloves — soon. "Probably about the first of November," Howard added.

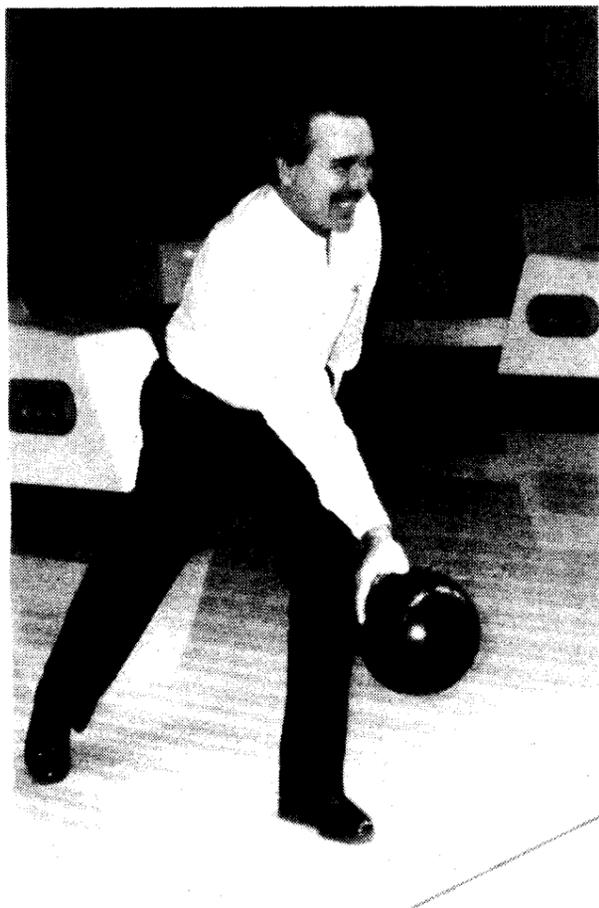

The bowling center, located at building 3707 off

Patton Road, is open every day. Hours include Tuesday through Thursday from 3-10:30 p.m.; Friday from 3 p.m. to midnight; Saturday from 11 a.m. to midnight; Sunday from 1-10 p.m.; and Monday from 5-9 p.m. Cost to bowl is $1.50 before 6 p.m., $1.75 after 6 p.m. Youth league bowlers pay $1; and senior citizens pay $1.10. The center's phone number is 876-6634.

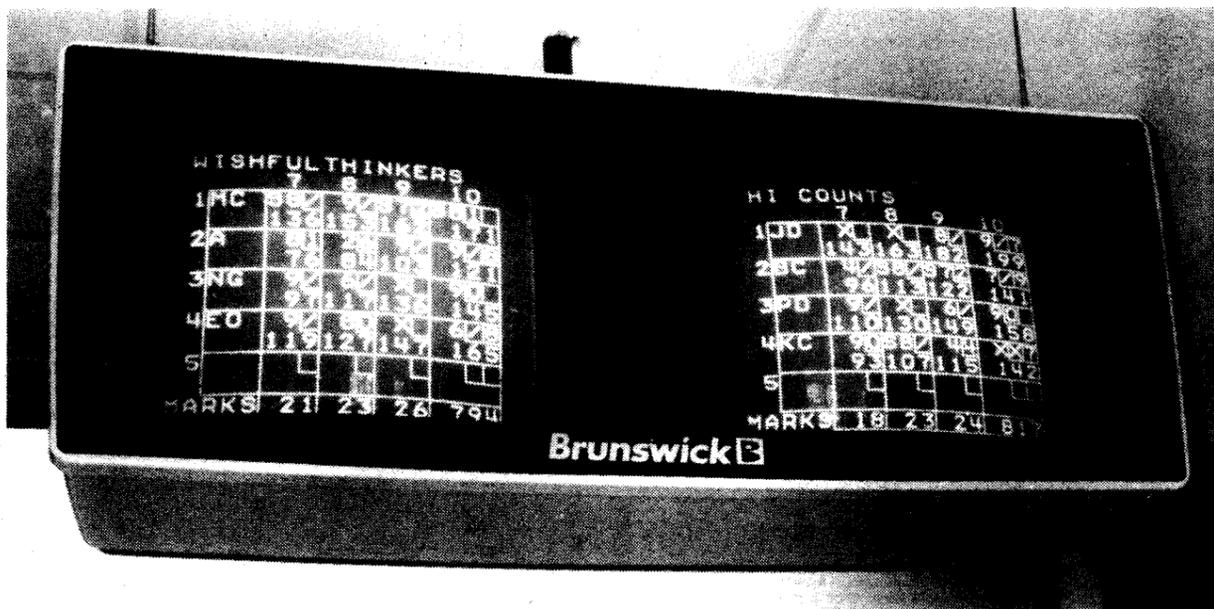

"We have the most modern facility in the Huntsville area," Howard said. "It's a great sport for the whole family."

A no-tap tournament for Redstone league bowlers and their spouses will be held Saturday, Nov. 20. As a show of appreciation to its patrons, the bowling center will have drawings during this tournament to give away 10 turkeys for Thanksgiving.

"We just appreciate the support that all the people on Redstone have given us the last few years," said Howard, who worked at the bowling center from 1975-84, returned in 1988 and is in his third year as manager. "Their support is what makes it go. Without them it wouldn't be where it is today. We've got a real good bunch of people that bowl here."

CENTER MANAGER — Howard is in his third year as manager of the bowling center.

AUTOMATIC SCORERS — The automatic scorers, which do all the figuring for bowlers, include overhead monitors.

ARM PAINS

WHY LIVE WITH THESE CONDITIONS?

Let's Correct The Cause!

Headaches and migraine headaches can be due to nerve pressure. The head and/or neck will hurt occasionally or constantly. The pain may be localized behind the eyes, at the temples or begin at the base of the skull in the neck and lead over the top of the head. Other times the pain may radiate from neck to shoulder blade or down the shoulder and into the arm. The only solution is to get to the cause of the problem not just cover up the pain with medication. The Russell Chiropractic Center is a local clinic that specializes in locating the underlying cause and correcting it. If you or anyone you know suffers from recurring headaches call THE RUSSELL CHIROPRACTIC CENTER. Approved insurance accepted.

The Redstone Arsenal-Huntsville Military Operations Research Section hosted the special annual

Cancer

In conclusion, there has been a 30 percent reduction in the mortality rate of women who have regular mammograms. Mammograms can detect most cancers before they can be felt.

Before scheduling a mammogram, make sure your physician examines your breasts. Your mammogram request must also contain information about your doctor's physical exam, family history and personal history. It should mention any specific findings about your breasts, i.e., if you have had surgery, breast reduction, breast augmentation (implant), and notation of any scars or moles.

The above information is provided by the mammographers of this installation with the hope that you will be better informed about mammography and what we must do to help you be healthy.

If you have other questions contact Kathryn Norman, 955-0370 or 876-1652.
