Redstone Arsenal office buildings going smokeless

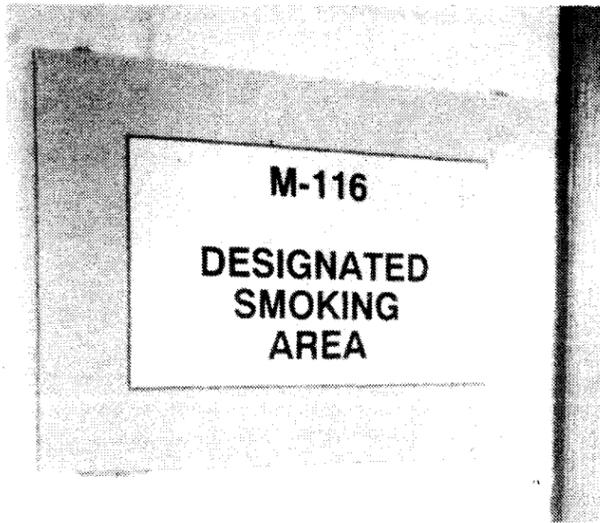

Smoking is now prohibited in all Redstone government office buildings, and MICOM-leased administrative facilities, in accordance with a policy issued Friday by the post commander.

"Effective Monday, May 16, I have instituted a policy that prohibits smoking, installationwide, in all Redstone Arsenal government office buildings to include post restaurant facilities in these office buildings," states the open memo from Maj. Gen. Joe Rigby.

"Existing smoking areas located in Redstone Arsenal government office buildings will be closed with all smoking area signs removed as of close of business May 16," the Smoking Policy continues. "This policy will be reviewed and amended upon release of DA smoking policy expected late May."

The new Department of Army smoking policy, when it is issued, is expected to tighten restrictions on smoking in places like clubs and recreational facilities that were not addressed in Rigby's policy statement.

The office of the deputy post commander, Col. Ross Sanders, transmitted the general's memo command-wide by electronic mail. Sanders was listed as the point of contact for implementation of the policy.

THING OF THE PAST — Designated smoking areas, like this room in Missile Command headquarters building 5250, will be used for other purposes under Redstone's new smoking policy.

In April the Department of Defense issued a policy which banned smoking in DoD workplaces worldwide. The DoD release stated in part, "The policy is intended to meet three objectives: The first is to provide a safe and healthy workplace for all DoD employees. Both the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health and the Environmental Protection Agency have reported that secondhand smoke from the burning of tobacco products is a major source of harmful indoor air pollution and a known cause of lung cancer, respiratory illness, and heart disease.

"The second objective is to contribute to the readiness of the armed forces. Military personnel will be healthier, and money will be saved through reduced health care costs, fewer hours lost to sickness and reduced maintenance expenses for many DoD buildings," the DoD policy continued. "The third objective is to be a leader in creating a smoke-free workplace. Last year, the EPA recommended that every company have a smoking policy that effectively protects nonsmokers from involuntary exposure to tobacco smoke."

MLRS launcher modification program a success story

BY SKIP VAUGHN

A massive upgrade of first-generation MLRS launchers will be completed June 17, thanks to a team effort which started in 1992.

All 363 of the Army's basic Multiple Launch Rocket Systems will be able to fire the latest MLRS submunitions as a result of this effort. Those in the tactical fleet have already been upgraded; and some prepositioned launchers overseas should be finished in mid-June.

"The first launchers that were created could only fire our basic round which is M77 rockets. Of course there've been other rockets and missiles developed that had to be fired off of this platform," said Tony Adams, chief of the logistics division in MLRS Project Office. This upgrade will enable these earlier launchers to fire the entire suite of munitions, such as Army Tactical Missile System, Extended Range MLRS, Sense and Destroy Armor, and Terminally Guided Warhead.

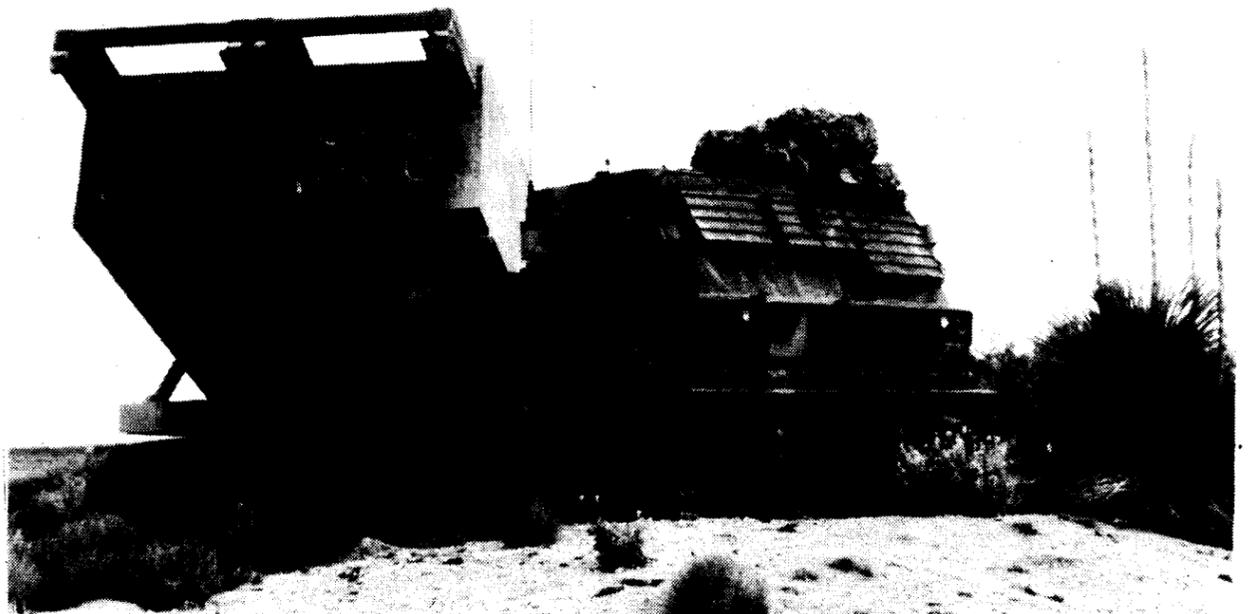

"There were only 363 basic launchers produced. We just finished fielding the 723rd vehicle (at Fort Sill, Okla.). All the other vehicles came off the production line with the capability to fire all the other rockets," Adams said. On June 17, the basic launchers will have this capability, too.

The team responsible included members of the project office, the Acquisition Center, the Integrated Materiel Management Center, Product Assurance Directorate, and Red River Army Depot. The depot provided machinists, electricians, mechanics and welders. In addition the NATO Maintenance and Supply Activity in Capellen, Luxembourg, did the depot modification work for some of the vehicles in Germany. "The launcher is reconfigured and reassembled, is what it amounts to," Adams said.

It takes about 160 hours of work to upgrade one vehicle. Some $164 million worth of hardware was involved; and the peak year was fiscal 1992 with $46 million worth of contract actions to execute.

Col. Bill Taylor, the MLRS project manager, said he sees several benefits from this upgrade: one, the logistical burden will be reduced since there will only be one type of launcher to support in the field; two, every launcher in the Army can fire the entire suite of MLRS submunitions; three, the improved launchers are more versatile than the basic version; and four, the improved launchers are more reliable.

"What you do is open up your tactical capability to every launcher," Taylor said. In addition to the hardware that changed over, the improved launcher uses software which is uploaded in cassettes. The older or basic launcher did not permit changing the software. Historically, with the basic version, any changes to the system had to be made by changing the hardware (See Launcher, cont'd on page 2)

No such customer

Editor:

Recently Ms. Gail Lumbus, 190 Lime Quarry Road, Madison, Ala., 35758, no telephone number provided, wrote a letter to the editor on rude service at the Officers Club.

As they always do when a complaint or less than satisfactory service is rendered a customer, they checked on a membership application and wrote a letter of apology with complementary meals.

Ms. Lumbus is not a member and never has been; and enclosed is the letter which was returned.

Those of us in the day-to-day people business know and expect to deal with dissatisfied customers but to take hits from "made-up" individuals does not seem fair to us.

We appreciate your efforts to keep such letters out of your paper and hope in the future that bogus letters are not published.

Editor:

Well, the time is closing in for very good friends and neighbors to leave: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kendall and family. I want to tell all of you how much you'll be missed. I hope Maryland is as interesting as Redstone Arsenal was. I want to congratulate you for winning "Yard of the Month" and "Post Yard of the Month." You deserved it for such hard work. And last but not least, thanks for all your volunteer work at Williams Elementary. Being room mother for two classes was a handful but you succeeded while helping with the RIF (Reading is Fundamental) Program for second graders, also managing time with various other projects at school.

Good luck and Godspeed, Debbie, Joe, Joey, Jolynn and Krystal.

Smoker's view

Editor:

I'm responding to the letter from Capt. Rine regarding the RSA Bowling Lanes (Rocket April 20). First off, let me say if it wasn't for us smokers the lanes would cease to function. When they allowed smoking, the lanes started to fill up with leagues for almost every night of the week with two nights of leagues back to back and three-fourths of people who bowl are smokers. When the order came from Command about smoking in the pit area, we all complied without complaining. We now smoke behind the pit area on the carpet, leaving that area smoke-free. To all smokers who bowl on the RSA Bowling Lanes: Fight for your rights.

Knowing that the building was a smoking building, I would not have taken a child with breathing difficulties into the building. As a smoker, I do feel really bad about the incident with the child from the bowling alley. I do hope the child is doing well. There are smoke-free buildings around Huntsville.

AER drive tops goal, extended to May 31

Friday the 13th proved to be a lucky day for Redstone's annual Army Emergency Relief fund-raising campaign.

"We made our $45,000 goal as of Friday. Our total now is $45,303," said Kaye Donovan, AER coordinator.

The campaign, which began March 1, was originally scheduled to end May 15 but it was extended to May 31 by AER headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Army Emergency Relief provides no-interest loans and grants to soldiers and their families during times of emergency need. Active duty and retired military can contribute to AER through cash or check donations or by allotments, and by participating in fund-raising activities. Civilians can contribute through cash and check contributions, and participating in the fund-raising activities.

For more information, call Donovan at the AER fund-raising campaign headquarters 842-8938.

Random vehicle checks conducted postwide

The military police and Land Defense Force conduct periodic random vehicle inspections throughout the installation in an effort to deter criminal activity and enhance security of Redstone, according to the provost marshal.

"These inspections are approved by the commanding general and are designed to locate and seize unlawful weapons, contraband, and government property," states a news release from the Provost Marshal Office. "Inspections of vehicles will include the entire passenger compartment, trailers, glove compartments, consoles, boxes, bags, receptacles, containers, clothing, and luggage either in the passenger compartment or trunk.

"To date, we have had numerous weapons violations and several unlawful possessions of controlled substances. We ask you for continued support and assistance in keeping Redstone Arsenal a safe place to work and play," the release concludes.

Army chief of staff congratulates post

Editor's note: The Army chief of staff sent the following letter to Maj. Gen. Joe Rigby, commander of the Missile Command and Redstone Arsenal.

Congratulations on the selection of Redstone Arsenal as a runner-up in the 1994 Army Communities of Excellence (ACOE) awards competition.

The men and women of Redstone Arsenal are making a difference every day in everything they do to provide excellent customer service, facilities and environment. The true winners are the soldiers, civilians and families who train, work and live at Redstone Arsenal. They have made a visible commitment to the process of excellence.

Taking care of your customers by meeting or exceeding their expectations has set a positive paradigm for all to emulate. You have set standards in the ACOE process and I encourage others to follow your leadership.

Please convey to every member of the Redstone Arsenal community my enormous pride in your contribution to the readiness of America's Army. It has truly been a team effort, and I thank you all for a job well done.

Gen. Gordon Sullivan

which is more costly. With the improved version, users have what amounts to a cassette player open to any of the latest cassettes or software. "The versatility is tremendous in this thing," Taylor said.

The credit for this success story is shared, the colonel said, by the Program Executive Office Tactical Missiles/MLRS Project Management structure; the Missile Command, including the Integrated Materiel Management Center and the Acquisition Center; and the Depot Systems Command, including Red River Army Depot. "To me it was the attitude of those three organizations and agreeing on a mutual goal; that we said: Hey we're going to have obstacles as we go through this thing — you always do — but nobody threw up their hands and said hey we can't do this," Taylor said.

"A good effort, it's been a long effort though. Back in February '92 when we first started it, we set a mark on the wall that we wanted to have the tactical fleet done within 24 months," he said.

This goal was accomplished with all the launchers in the tactical fleet upgraded by March 30. They include launchers at stateside installations, five battalions in Germany, a battalion in Korea, and a divisional battery in Korea. Also completed are nine launchers in the prepositioned stock in Italy. Due to be finished June 17 are the 27 prepositioned launchers in Coevorden, Netherlands.

The upgrade effort enables the project office to "take on the future challenges of the MLRS mod program," according to Adams, the MLRS logistics division chief. The MLRS modification program has a total budget of more than a billion dollars, with the work done from now until 2005. "I guess from a team concept, we've gotten past our training wheels and we're ready to take on that challenge," Adams said.

Primary members of the work group team for the launcher upgrades include Anita Whitaker, Dwayne Montgomery, Mike Barber, Cindy Johnson, Arto Whitman, Lee Chapel, Barbara Hebert, Jo Barnett, Bruce Reed, Jo Percer, Stan Seymour, Myra Farr and Steve Bruens. "The team that actually did the planning and executing was probably 12 to 14 people; but it took a total of 151 people to accomplish the task," Adams said.

The United States is about to complete its launcher upgrades, but the foreign military sales customers and MLRS co-partners are just starting theirs. The goal is to eventually have only one MLRS launcher configuration worldwide.

"There's one configuration of MLRS in the United States Army fleet," Taylor said. "Now every launcher in the United States Army can fire the entire suite of submunitions we have in the MLRS family of munitions."

Defense Megacenter formally opens at Redstone

BY SANDA MARTEL

The Defense Megacenter Huntsville marked its official opening Thursday with a ceremony at the Sports Haven. DMC Huntsville is the result of the Department of Defense consolidating its mainframe computer processing activities at 16 locations.

Clyde Morris, director, and his 153 employees provide computer processing services for most Army installations in the southeastern United States. The 24-hour per day, seven day per week facility located at building 5201 has its own climate control system and an uninterruptible power system to maintain operations during power outages.

Brig. Gen. John Watkins Jr, director of Defense Information Services Organization, Arlington, Va., the parent organization of DMC Huntsville, was here to open the sixth of the 16 centers. Joseph Insinga, deputy director of computer operations, DISO, was also here for the event.

The Huntsville facility previously operated here under the name Multifunctional Information Processing Activity. The past three years have been a period of transition while DoD consolidated operations and merged 194 centers into 16. Huntsville was chosen as one of the 16, Watkins said in his message to employees at the ceremony Thursday, because of its attitude of satisfying the customer and because Huntsville has been on the leading edge of technology for a number of years.

The center provides a wide range of data processing services using Amdahl 5890-600E IBM compatible mainframes and Sun 690 UNIX minicomputer systems to process information for retail logistics, finance, manpower, non-appropriated fund management, military and civilian personnel payrolls.

Data is transmitted by linking computers and telephone lines. Eight silos house 48,000 tapes each; each silo represents approximately 1,200 gigabytes of storage. A robotic arm in each silo retrieves a tape upon a command from the computer, an operation that takes about 11 seconds. Previous to an equipment upgrade that brought the Huntsville facility up to Megacenter status, a human manually retrieved a tape from a library, an operation that took about five minutes.

Megacenter designation has brought a 500 percent increase in work load, while the number of personnel has remained constant.

The consolidations will save taxpayers $750 million between now and 1999, Watkins said. Other places were not as fortunate as Huntsville in this consolidation process, as some 178 operations were closed and 3,500 people were taken off the rolls DoD-wide, Watkins said.

"Change is upon us. We'll master it or it will master us. Because you're customer oriented, I know you'll satisfy (Maj.) Gen. Rigby (MICOM is one of the Megacenter's largest customers) and you won't have to worry about losing the Megacenter here. It's a great day for you, but you've only just begun," Watkins said.

National Guard gets rapid response van developed here

BY PAM ROGERS

A MICOM-developed system used for keeping missiles ready in the field will now be used by the National Guard for delivering humanitarian aid and disaster relief during emergencies here at home.

The In-Theater Missile Readiness Activity was created in response to lessons learned during Desert Shield and Desert Storm, when the facilities for testing and repairing missile systems were often far away from the systems themselves. It is contained entirely in eight vans that were once used in support of the Pershing missile system, and were obtained through the Weapon Systems Management Directorate's reuse program, according to Gary Hunter, an equipment specialist with the Integrated Materiel Management Center.

The ITMRA is a deployable and tailorable mini-depot facility equipped to provide maintenance, supply, preservation and packaging, communication, tracking and identification functions required to sustain and reconstitute contingency forces. Its modular configuration allows it to deploy and set up quickly.

It was the command and control van, with its state-of-the-art communications equipment, that caught the attention of the Army National Guard's 167th Support Command. The 167th is the senior logistics command not only for Alabama, but the entire Army National Guard. It has provided logistics support for humanitarian aid/disaster relief operations several times, most recently during the flooding in the Midwest last year.

"The first thing that goes down is communication — phone lines. The C and C van has everything; the latest in ADP equipment, fax capability, a Xerox machine, an FM radio net link, computer stations, and satellite communications," Hunter said.

With an ITMRA command and control van, the 167th could move into an area devastated by a natural disaster, say a hurricane, and within one hour have phone lines set up, either by tapping into existing lines, or through a satellite uplink, according to Hunter. It can run from commercial power or it can be powered from its own generator.

Other modules in the ITMRA could be adapted for use by the 167th. If there is a need to distribute non-perishable food, the repair parts van and the preservation and packaging vans could be used.

MICOM entered into a Memorandum of Understanding/Memorandum of Agreement Friday with the Army National Guard to provide training for National Guard members and the ITMRA equipment itself to the 167th for use during disaster operations.

The agreement follows the new Army doctrine of forward contingency deployment operations, and humanitarian aid/disaster relief missions, both of which rely on a force structure composed of active duty and reserve soldiers.

Residents urged to keep property secured from theft

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Theft is the most common crime on Redstone Arsenal, residents were told at last week's town hall meeting.

"The most prominent crime on Redstone Arsenal right now is larceny and larceny of unsecured property," said Ray Clift, chief of the law enforcement branch in Provost Marshal Office. He also said there has been no significant increase in crime on post since the guards were removed from the perimeter gates in April 1993.

Crime prevention inspections and surveys are conducted by request. Other programs offered by the Provost Marshal Office include property identification through inscribing tools plus ID forms for logging serial numbers; educational seminars; increased patrols; and bicycle registration.

A Military Police Substation opened in the housing area last year to increase MP visibility in the community. The substation is open from 3-8 p.m. Monday through Friday, and can be reached at 876-2752.

"What we ask you to do to assist us: very simple; we ask you to educate yourselves and your family members as well," Clift said. Residents were also advised to secure their property, and to report suspicious activity by calling the MP desk 876-2222.

Since the civilian guards were removed from the gates because of funding constraints, MPs are conducting random vehicle checks on post to maintain security. "We do as many as five or six decal checks every day all over the arsenal," said Lt. Col. Randy Holloway, the provost marshal.

Other highlights during the town hall meeting included the following:

- Reducing the GSA (General Services Administration) fleet by 43 vehicles has saved $79,082 in fiscal

FINAL MEETING — Rigby, left, and Sanders talk to attendees after the town hall meeting held last week. The meetings are held about every three months, so this was the final one for Rigby, who is leaving for a new assignment in June, and for Sanders, who will retire in June.

1994, reported Redstone transportation officials. "This is just one example of one area that we're trying to conserve the dollars that we have," said Col. Ross Sanders, the deputy post commander.

- A $3.8 million project to renovate and expand sales space in the Commissary is being accomplished in four phases, and should be completed by Dec. 14.
- The Army family housing account, reeling from a nearly 50 percent funding cut this year, has resulted in an end to most preventive maintenance. The only maintenance or repair services offered are those that affect health, safety or security. Also in the area of housing, the Army has issued a new policy: Effective May 4, soldiers may have the option of living off post when they report to an installation — unless they are considered key and essential personnel. "We think it means you have the option to move off post now; but we don't know. We're trying to get clarification," Sanders said. "This is a major change to the Army family housing policy. Big change."

More than 60 people attended the meeting held 6-8 p.m. May 10 at Bicentennial Chapel. The town hall meetings are held about every three months; and this was the final one for Sanders, who will retire in June, and for Maj. Gen. Joe Rigby, the post commander, who is leaving for a new assignment in June.

General encourages continued total-quality efforts

Redstone's Total Quality Management team should forge ahead with its TQM efforts during the next administration at the Missile Command, advised the commanding general who will leave in June.

Maj. Gen. Joe Rigby, the MICOM commander, will leave for a new assignment at the Pentagon next month. He told members of the Total Quality Management Cadre that the next commander, Brig. Gen. James Link, also supports TQM.

"He knows how important TQM is to the Army and this command," Rigby said during the cadre's in-service day May 11 at the Officers Club. During his two years as commander, 11 cadre groups have graduated from training which brings the total to 21 so far.

"I will always look at you as one of the greatest assets that I had when I had the pleasure to be your commander," Rigby said.

Total Quality Management means improving processes to better serve your customers. The theme for in-service day was, "Together Everyone Achieves More Success (TEAMS)."

Scheduled speakers included: Quality panelists — Harry Blake, Cheryl Wise, Chris Gardner, Marilyn Phillips and Capt. Peter Altavilla; and Middle Management panelists — Tom Shaw, Jodie Massar, Bernice Collins, SFC William Pennington and Dan Rhodes. Mel Waters, executive director of the Missile Command's TQM Office, discussed the MICOM White Paper which ties together various TQM efforts implemented at the command.

"This was a team effort to put this (event) on today," said Marcella Mathis, a Total Quality Management specialist in the command's TQM Office. Committee members included Mathis, Charlene Coke, Gary Bell, Romy Bayuga, Kathryn "Becky" Akin, Una Brown, Ken Gurley, Anita Hughes and Brenda Meeks. Mathis presented a plaque to Rigby for "continuing the TQM journey," and a plaque to Akin for "the good cadre team spirit."

About 65 people attended the morning activities, and others were expected for the afternoon events.

The fourth annual Quality Forum and Business Exposition is scheduled Oct. 17-18 at the Von Braun Civic Center. This will include exhibits, workshops and seminars. For more information, call Mathis 955-6703.

Extended Air Defense Testbed capability delivered

BY GERDA SHERRILL

The Space and Strategic Defense Command has received the first delivery of operational software for its newly developed Extended Air Defense Testbed (EADTB).

The product of five years' work by SSDC's Testbed Product Office, EADTB is designed to enhance the simulations used to portray the interactions between air defense systems and today's anticipated threats of ballistic and cruise missiles and aircraft.

Until EADTB, users of air defense simulations had to depend on the software developer to make changes in the computer code for any new or different element introduced into the defensive system or the threat. With EADTB, the user will be able to design his own system using the generic models it provides.

The first release of EADTB operational software addresses active defense against tactical ballistic missiles and air breathing threats, according to Lt. Col. James Relyea, SSDC's testbed product manager. Ultimately, EADTB will be able to simulate the entire spectrum of the air defense battle, in real time, with hardware and humans interacting during the simulation to permit full fidelity analysis.

Simultaneously, EADTB can model specific friendly and hostile elements of the air defense battle. EADTB also offers quicker and easier experiment preparation and additional measures of effectiveness and performance. EADTB will include human-in-the-loop capability to support training and wargaming.

Next to receive the operational software will be EADTB nodes established at the Air Defense Artillery School at Fort Bliss, Texas, and SHAPE Technical Centre in The Hague, Netherlands. Future software deliveries will incorporate the capability to assess friendly and hostile battle management capabilities and portray Navy air defense capabilities, and model boost-phase missile intercepts and attack operations to destroy hostile missiles before they are launched.

According to Jeannine Williams, an electronics engineer in the product office, current plans call for additional EADTB nodes to be established during fiscal year '95 at the National Test Facility in Colorado Springs, Colo.; Air Force Theater Air Command and Control Simulation Facility in Albuquerque, N.M.; and at a Navy facility in Virginia.

The EADTB nodes consist of a CONVEX super-computer for experiment execution, Silicon graphic workstations for experiment preparation and analysis, and extensive video and display equipment.

Hughes Aircraft Company in Huntsville is the prime contractor, and TRW is developing the software.

In addition to the EADTB, the product office has developed the Extended Air Defense Simulation, an earlier and less powerful predecessor of EADTB, which is given credit for saving lives and aircraft during the Desert Storm air war. The product office also developed the United Kingdom Extended Air Defense Testbed and the Israeli Testbed jointly with those countries, to simulate issues specific to their situations.

SOFTWARE TEST — Dan Yates, of the Air Force Reserve and Teledyne Brown Engineering, tests the new EADTB software.

AER CONTRIBUTION — CWO 3 Steven Wade, left, AER chairman for the Ordnance Missile and Munitions Center and School, accepts a check for $532.50 from SFC Susane Willis, small group leader for the 55B20 course at the Noncommissioned Officer's Academy. This represented proceeds from NCOA's annual car wash for Army Emergency Relief.

Last 12 mths	1.52%	1.50%	2.24%	2.38%	6.01%

Percentages in () are negative. *Through 1990 the F Fund was invested in the Wells Fargo Bond Index Fund. The C Fund is invested in the Wells Fargo Equity Index Fund which tracks the S&P 500 stock index. The F Fund is invested in the Wells Fargo U.S. Debt Index Fund which tracks the Lehman Brothers Aggregate bond index. The G Fund is invested in special issues of U.S. Treasury securities.

The monthly C, F, and G Fund returns represent net earnings for the month, after deduction of accrued administrative expenses. The C and F Fund returns also reflect the deduction of trading costs and accrued investment management fees.

The C, F and G Fund monthly returns are dollar-weighted: They reflect net earnings on the changing balances invested during the month. The C, F, and G Fund returns for the last twelve months assume, except for the crediting of earnings, unchanging balances (time-weighting) from month to month and assume earnings are compounded on a monthly basis.

The C and F Fund returns vary from the Wells Fargo returns because of C and F Fund expenses and changing balances in the C and F Funds. The Wells Fargo returns are time-weighted; they assume constant dollar balances invested during each month and throughout the period.

Future performance of the three funds will vary and may be significantly different from the returns shown above. See the "Summary of the Thrift Savings Plan" for detailed information about the funds and their investment risks.

Thrift Savings Plan signup under way

Federal employees can sign up for the Thrift Savings Plan during TSP open season which began May 15 and continues through July 31.

The Thrift Savings Plan is a retirement savings and investment plan for federal workers which provides the same retirement savings and tax benefits offered by many private corporations. Employees covered by the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS) and the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS), or equivalent retirement plans, are eligible to contribute to the Thrift Savings Plan.

People eligible to participate include the following:

- All current employees previously eligible to enroll
- FERS and CSRS employees first employed or re-employed between July 1, 1993 and Dec. 31, 1993, inclusively, who were never previously eligible to participate in TSP

• Employees who did not terminate their contributions after Dec. 31, 1993.

A TSP open season pamphlet and election form should be distributed to workers through their administrative offices. Submit the completed form by 4 p.m. Aug. 1 to AMSMI-PT-CP-TS-DM, room 6, building 7444. Questions regarding the Thrift Savings Plan should be addressed to the personnel assistant assigned to your organization or call 842-9280.

Officers Wives Club installs leaders, presents awards

BY SKIP VAUGHN

Looking forward to an exciting year, the new president of the Officers Wives Club encouraged members of the OWC to express their program interests for 1994-95.

Debbie Behel and the other officers of the club were installed during its annual Merit Awards/Officer Installation brunch May 10 at the Officers Club. Behel asked the members to fill out a questionnaire at their tables to express their interests for the coming year.

"I am excited to have the opportunity to serve as president of this OWC to which I have grown so fond," Behel said. She thanked the outgoing president, Joann Andrew, "for setting such a fine example for me."

The other officers for 1994-95 include Jo Ann Sturms, first vice president; Nancy Wilbourn, second vice president; Sherri McPheeters, recording secretary; Jeanine Majewski, corresponding secretary; and Mary Galvin, treasurer.

The OWC presented Merit Award scholarships to the following high school seniors and college undergraduates:

• High school — Mary Elizabeth Cothran, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Robert Cothran of Harvest; Jennifer Yates, daughter of retired Lt. Col. and Mrs. Gary Yates of Huntsville; Christopher Zegley, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ray Zegley of Huntsville; and Karen Rader, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Marcus Rader of Harvest. Cothran received the top OWC high school merit award.

• College undergraduate — Steve McPheeters, son of retired Col. and Mrs. L.B. McPheeters Jr. of Huntsville; Andrew Carter, son of retired Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard Carter of Madison; and Amy Carter, also daughter of retired Lt. Col. and Mrs. Carter. McPheeters received the top college undergraduate honor.

Officers Wives Club, during the brunch attended by more than 140 people, also announced $14,789.70 in contributions for 1993-94 to local community organizations. These welfare disbursements represent proceeds from the OWC's various fund-raising activities.

Recipients of contributions include:

— Army Community Service (ACS) Food Locker, $300; ACS Space Camp, $1,250; Action Impact Female Auxiliary Inc., $50; Adopt-a-Ship, $50; Army Emergency Relief, $250; AIDS Benefit, $50; Alliance for Mentally Ill of Huntsville, $50; Alzheimer's

Army's top recruiting battalion based in Montgomery

The Army Superior Unit Award was presented to the U.S. Army Recruiting Battalion, Montgomery by Gen. Gordon Sullivan, Army chief of staff, during a ceremony held April 20 at Maxwell Air Force Base.

The award was presented to the battalion for its record of superior accomplishment from Oct. 1, 1992 through Sept. 30, 1993.

"What a great performance — terrific," said Sullivan during his opening remarks to the audience composed of the battalion's recruiters and their families. He praised them for exceeding their recruiting goals for two consecutive years.

The battalion earned the award for exceeding its goal by enlisting 115 percent of its Regular Army and 122 percent of its Army Reserve missions. This is the second year in a row that the battalion has received this award and the second year in a row that it earned honors as the top recruiting battalion in the Army.

"You are important to the Army, you are important to America," Sullivan said. "Be proud of yourselves — you done good."

The battalion, headquartered at Maxwell AFB's Gunter Annex, is responsible for Regular Army and Army Reserve recruiting in a 60,000 square mile area encompassing the state of Alabama and the panhandle of Florida. The battalion includes five company headquarters located in Birmingham, Dothan, Huntsville, Mobile and Montgomery plus 32 recruiting stations located throughout the area.

"This is a terrific Army, this is the best Army the United States of America has ever had," Sullivan said. "And it is best because of the young people, the young men and women who serve in uniform. It's a great story but it begins right here in the Montgomery Recruiting Battalion."

He challenged the recruiters to continue their outstanding performance. He reminded them that the other services as well as private industry are competing for the same high-quality young men and women that are vital to the success of the Army.

Other senior officials who attended the ceremony included Lt. Gen. Jay Kelley, commander of Air University; Maj. Gen. James E. Moore, adjutant general of the Alabama National Guard; Maj. Gen. Richard

Burleson, commander of the 121st Army Reserve Command in Birmingham; and Montgomery Mayor Emory Folmar. (News release from U.S. Army Recruiting Battalion, Montgomery.)

Recreation area renamed in memory of WWII assembly-line worker

BY SKIP VAUGHN

The rumble of distant thunder could have been, during another era, the sound of guns. The parting clouds with the sun shining through could have represented, during another era, the celebration of a war won.

On May 10, Redstone dedicated an existing recreation area in the name of Easter Posey, the first woman killed on a wartime assembly line at Redstone Arsenal in the 1940s. Among the many attendees at the ceremony on the former recreation area 1 — commonly called the military rec area — was Stacey Posey, 79, who recovered from burns in the same mishap that killed her sister.

Easter Posey is remembered as "someone who died in the line of duty serving their country and Redstone," said Maj. Gen. Joe Rigby, the post commander. "They served their country and gave their lives the same as the thousands of soldiers, airmen, sailors and Marines that didn't return from World War II."

Women represented the vast majority of Redstone's assembly line workers during the war years, doing the "hard, dangerous and unforgiving work" of making munitions, Rigby said. "Their starting pay was $3.60 a day.

"Eleven of them — six men and five women — gave their lives in the performance of duty. The first was Miss Easter Posey, 22 years old," he said. "We dedicate this site to the memory of Miss Posey and the four other women who died in industrial accidents at the beginning of the war."

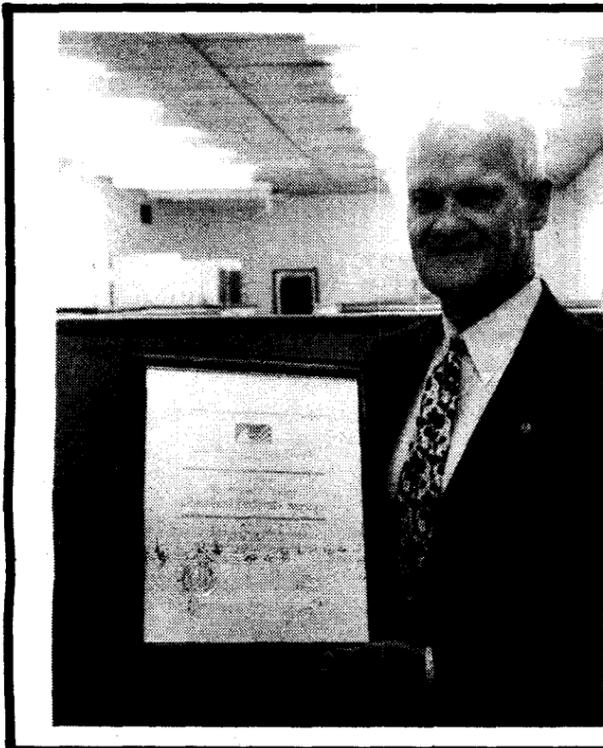

Joined by Stacey Posey, he unveiled a large rock — 3 feet high, 3 feet at the base — with a plaque mounted in its 16-inch wide top. The inscription reads, "Easter Posey Recreation Area, dedicated to the women workers of Redstone and Huntsville Arsenals who gave their lives in service to their country."

Easter Posey died from wounds received in an explosion April 21, 1942 on an incendiary bomb production line at what was then Huntsville Arsenal.

The recreation area, located off Shields Road, was adopted in 1993 by the Logistics Support Activity. Chris Gardner, deputy director of LOGSA, asked the approximately 200 attendees at the ceremony to "take a few minutes to remember all the women who gave their lives in behalf of the nation."

REMEMBERING HER SISTER — Stacey Posey stands next to the rock unveiled in dedication of the Easter Posey Recreation Area.

NATIONAL CFC AWARD — George Gunter, 1993 chairman of the Local Federal Coordinating Committee, displays the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) Combined Federal Campaign award which the local CFC received May 5 during the observance of Public Service Recognition Week. The award for the highest percentage dollar increase over the previous year in campaigns between $1 million and $2 million was presented to Gunter by Lorraine Green, OPM deputy director. The award was among only 12 awards OPM presented nationally. The 1993 Tennessee Valley CFC raised a record $1,477,339.

Redstone gives a hand with environmental education

LOOKING FOR BUGS — Chase Henderson dips his net in the water in an attempt to snare water-dwelling insects.

BY PAM ROGERS

The Col. Carroll D. Hudson Recreation Area was the site of an outdoor class when the entire fifth grade of Ridgecrest Elementary School visited last week to learn about wetlands.

The field trip was part of a cooperative agreement between the MICOM Environmental Office and the Huntsville City Schools. Dave Brotherton and Jim Fanning, both environmental resource educators with the Huntsville City Schools, led the group in collecting and identifying water insects that live in a small creek near the recreation area. Earlier in the day the group visited the Beaverdam Creek Boardwalk in a section of Wheeler National Wildlife Refuge adjacent to Highway 20 between Huntsville and Decatur.

This is the second year Huntsville school kids have visited Redstone for the wetlands portion of their environmental education curriculum, according to Carolene Wu, wetlands program manager for the MICOM Environmental Office. The program is going over so well that Redstone will be providing an interpretive trail and outdoor classroom structure late this summer. The trail and pavilion will be for the use of the entire Redstone community, and for the school children who visit on wetlands field trips. The project is being funded through Army Communities of Excellence money and by the Defense Department's Legacy Program, according to Wu. The Legacy Program funds projects that preserve natural, cultural and historic resources on DoD lands.

"The interpretive trail will have 25 metal photo signs, and will lead through a tupelo gum swamp, a bottomland hardwood stand and a shrub-scrub swamp," Wu said.

Academic talent search taps Army youngster

An Army family member in Huntsville has qualified for a national program for academically talented seventh-grade students.

Daquita Goodrich, 13, daughter of SFC Kenneth and Donna Goodrich, became eligible for the Duke University Talent Identification Program (TIP) through her scores on the American College Testing (ACT) assessment test. Goodrich is a seventh grader at Valley Fellowship Christian Academy in Huntsville.

Through Duke's Talent Search Program, TIP identifies academically talented seventh graders across a 16-state region using standardized test measures.

Every summer TIP gives middle and high school students from across the country the opportunity to develop their academic potential through accelerated academic courses. Goodrich will participate in the Advance Summer Residential Program for Young Scholars at Northwestern State University in Louisiana to begin the first phase of a multi-level education sequence designed for academically gifted youth. Students select one intensive three-week course in which they have expressed an interest. For three weeks, Goodrich will study Precalculus Mathematics which includes Algebra I and II, Plane Geometry, Trigonometry, College Algebra, and Analytic Geometry. Classes will last six hours per day, Monday through Friday, and three hours on Saturday.

On June 4 at Samford University in Birmingham, Goodrich and family will attend the Duke University Talent Identification Program 1994 Alabama Recognition Ceremony honoring students with high ACT or SAT scores. The following day, she will travel to Louisiana to begin the Advance Program. The program will end with a closing ceremony June 25.

Hatch Act reform relaxes political rules for civilians

Editor's note: David Points, of the Missile Command's Legal Office, provided the following article on congressional reform of the Hatch Act.

On Oct. 6, 1993 the president signed the Federal Employees Political Activities Act of 1993 reforming the Hatch Act which controls the political activities of federal civilian employees. This does not apply to active duty military personnel. The DoD Directive 1344.10 controls the political activities of active duty military personnel.

The reformed act allows greater political participation for federal employees. Under the new law, all Senior Executive Service employees and employees of most intelligence, investigative, and law related agencies continue to be barred from most political activity.

Allowed activities

However, under the new law during off duty time federal employees may do the following:

- Register and vote in any election

- Take an active part in political management or in political campaigns, such as distributing campaign literature or participating in phone banks

- Run for office within party organizations and affiliated groups, such as to be a convention delegate

- Solicit contributions to political action committees of the organization to which both the employee and the donor belong

- Attend, in an individual capacity, a political convention, rally, fund-raising function, or other political gathering

- Sign a political petition as an individual

- Participate in an individual capacity in connection with a question which is not specifically identified with a political party, such as a constitutional amendment, referendum, approval of a municipal ordinance, or any other question or issue of similar character.

Barred activities

Federal employees are still barred from:

- Running for the nomination or as a candidate for election to a partisan political office (i.e., one may not be a candidate in an election in which individuals are running under the banner of the Democratic Party, Republican Party, or Ross Perot's United We Stand Party)

- Soliciting campaign contributions from the public

- Using your official MICOM or U.S. Army position to influence colleagues and election outcomes

- Wearing political campaign buttons while in government buildings or on duty

- Wearing a uniform or insignia that identifies one as a government worker while engaged in political activity

- Using political recommendations in hiring or promotion decisions for career civil service employees.

The point of contact for Hatch Act matters is David Points who can be reached at 876-8921.

Florida Tech grads urged to continue their education

The newest recipients of master's degrees from Redstone's extension of Florida Tech were congratulated May 6 by the Missile Command's director of personnel and training.

Col. Christopher Stratton, the commencement speaker, told the 62 graduates that this was not the end of their education but a mile post in their educational journey. He challenged them to continue their quest for education.

"Knowledge is power," Stratton said during the ceremony held Friday night, May 6 at the Officers Club. The graduates included 36 men and 26 women; most worked during the day and attended classes in the evenings. They came from the Army, Air Force, Marine Corps, NASA, Missile Command and local industry.

Florida Tech has about 250 students taking some 350 courses offered in the evenings. It is licensed to teach in the state of Alabama and is fully accredited by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Here are Florida Tech's spring graduates:

- Master of Business Administration — Robert Aldridge, William Boggs Jr., Trisha Bori, Paul Fileger, Leigh Gentzel, Gail L. Jackson, Lisa Gwendolyn Kirchner, Richard Kruczek, Benjamin Lee Jr., Cynthia Pollard, Paige Prozan, Jacquelyn Walters and Kay R. Ward.

- Master of Science in Contract and Acquisition Management — Eileen Broady, Phillip Crane, Maxine Doherty, Marion Klingeberger, Kimberly Maze, Marvin Leon Robinson, Donald Scott Sanders, Cameron Sinclair and Vicki Winters.

- Master of Science in Engineering Management — Kevin Bywaters, Robert Ellis and Don Reynolds.

- Master of Science in Management — Douglas Wade Baldwin, Rhonda Barrett, Charles Basham Jr., Ginger Carroll, Antoine Cheatham, Scott Fabozzi, David Geiss, George Kenyon, Selenia Kilpatrick, Gregory Alan Lang, Vilma Lopez, Janet McMicken, William McNeill, Harry Conrad Meyer IV, Charles Patton Jr., Carolyn Rice, Bobbie Lee Saccuzzo, James C. Sharp, Melodie Brier Wade, Larry Alan Weinert and Harold Wiley.

- Master of Science in Systems Management — L. Jeff Payne, James Tinkham, Vanessa Weissman, Lisa Wolfe and Kenneth Yarberry.

- Master of Business Administration with Concentration in Contract Management — Daniel Ames, Michael Curtis, Donna M. Ford, Michael Lalla, Pamela Lynne Ridge and Kenneth Snow.

- Master of Business Administration with Concentration in Data Processing — Sandra Sandlin.

- Master of Business Administration with Concentration in Human Resources Management — Don Burlingame and Raymond E. Rice.

UAH business school gains national accreditation

The College of Administrative Science at the University of Alabama in Huntsville has joined an elite group of business and management schools earning accreditation for its degree programs from the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB). Dr. David Billings, the college's dean, accepted the accreditation at the national meeting of the AACSB held in Orlando, Fla.

UAH is the only university accredited by AACSB in North Alabama and South Central Tennessee: between Birmingham and Nashville and between Memphis and Atlanta. Other business schools nearby accredited by AACSB include the University of Alabama, University of Alabama at Birmingham, Auburn University, Vanderbilt, and Georgia Tech. The nation's premier management colleges are accredited by AACSB. Approximately 1,200 colleges and universities offer undergraduate business degrees but only 284 are accredited by AACSB, less than 25 percent. Of the more than 600 master's degree programs nationally, AACSB has accredited only 282.

"This significant accomplishment recognizes UAH's quality business and management programs as among the strongest in the nation," Billings said. "AACSB accreditation represents a prestigious external validation of the quality we have all known to be the case for the past five years." In accepting congratulations from AACSB President Allan Bailey and AACSB Director of Accreditation Milton Blood, Billings praised the faculty, staff, students, alumni and the Business Advisory Council (BAC) for their commitment to this process.

The Business Advisory Council is composed of business and government leaders. At its initial meeting May 4, 1983, the BAC set a goal for the college to achieve AACSB accreditation. The BAC supported achievement of this goal in several ways: endowment of an eminent scholar chair in management of technology; design assistance on the college's state-of-the-art corporate training facility; a computer lab; faculty internships; student scholarships; and contracts for faculty and student teams.

"AACSB accreditation strengthens UAH as a partner with business and government in the economic development of the region and in meeting the challenges of a global economy," Billings said. (Adapted from a UAH press release)

Chaparral workers cook up AER contributions

BY SKIP VAUGHN

A sign on the front of building 3206 directed folks to the AER barbecue at the Chaparral System Management Office, but the visual aid wasn't necessary. The aroma did the job just fine.

The 26-civilian office did its part to raise money for the Army Emergency Relief campaign and shared a good meal, too. Its fourth annual barbecue May 11 raised $370.36 for AER, according to Linda "Pumpkin" Moore, the office's AER coordinator and chairman of this event.

For $5 you could enjoy a barbecue sandwich, potato salad, baked beans, cole slaw, iced tea, and your choice of cake for dessert. "Everybody's really pleased," said Kenneth Gurley, the office's Total Quality Management coordinator. "I just delivered to (two) fire stations — 18 people — and they were just raving over the portion."

This event represented part of the office's three-part effort to raise money for AER. A recycling program raised $92.81, according to Beverly Humphrey who headed that program. "Since the first of the year, we've taken a total of 4,981 pounds to the recycling center," she said. Items included white ledger, tab cards, newspaper, aluminum cans, various cardboard, and manila folders.

A Dec. 6 fish-fry, led by Len Gibbs, raised $190 for Army Emergency Relief. Altogether the three fundraisers — the barbecue, recycling and fish-fry — raised $653.17 for AER. "We just do this out of the goodness of our heart for the military," said Ted Gandy, the Chaparral system manager.

"All 26 (members) chip in just about," Gurley said. The system management office, under Weapon Systems Management Directorate, is located in buildings 3206 and 3208. Its members are to move into the Sparkman Center upon completion of that massive office complex.

"If it's permitted in the (Sparkman Center) facility, we'll do some type of activity next year for the AER," Gandy said.

Chaparral was deactivated from the Army, but remains deployed to Army National Guard and through foreign sales.

Community activities adjust plans to meet demand

Editor's note: Jenness-Stults is a marketing assistant at Directorate of Community and Family Activities.

BY MICHELLE JENNESS-STULTS

The Directorate of Community and Family Activities has made MWR (Morale, Welfare and Recreation) business revisions for the betterment of the Redstone community.

The Challenger Club is one of two profitable NCO clubs in the Army Materiel Command. Bingo is a great contributor to the Challenger Club's proceeds as well as a popular source of entertainment at Redstone. To better accommodate customer requests, beginning May 16, the Challenger Club now offers bingo seven days per week.

Another welcomed amenity favored by the community is the Soldatenstube. A brand new facility is scheduled to be operational in July, in the same location (corner of Gray and Vincent roads). The Soldatenstube is a part of the Challenger Club program, offering authentic German cuisine, four nights per week, served to you by our friendly German staff. Open to the entire Redstone community, the Soldatenstube offers fine German dining Wednesday through Saturday evenings.

Officers Club

The Officers Club has been the major revenue contributor to the Installation MWR Fund for the past seven years. To continue providing these financial subsidies in the midst of Army downsizing of manpower and resources, the Officers Club lunch program will close on Mondays, beginning July 1. However, the Officers Club offers a great working lunch program with private rooms at no cost. Each room is provided with complimentary iced tea, iced water and coffee. No fee, no tax, and the convenience we offer our Redstone customers makes working lunches beneficial to them. Another new amenity, currently under construction, is a gazebo located at the front entrance to the club. This new feature can accommodate couples wishing to hold outdoor services such as weddings or renewal of vows.

Additional food services will soon be available to the Redstone community. Upon completion, the Sparkman Center Complex will offer a one-story cafeteria attached to building 5302. On the northwest end of the post, a great new cafeteria will be completed in the August/September time frame at the new Golf Course Clubhouse. Food services will be available seven days a week.

Golf course

The new Golf Course project is on schedule with the new clubhouse and driving range completion date expected in August/September. The new nine-hole development is expected to open in the late spring or early summer of 1995, making the Redstone Golf Course a 27-hole course. Beginning July 1, golf rates will be adjusted to offset the additional expenses incurred due to the new construction, such as labor, maintenance and utilities. Additional revenue will ensure that the golf course remains profitable. Rates for grades E1-E5 will not be affected in the adjustments. We want to retain our customers and provide them with an innovative course and a modern facility with all the conveniences.

For more information about the Challenger Club, Soldatenstube, and Officers Club programs, call Lee Hicks, chief of Community Operations Division, at 876-9677. For more information about the new Redstone Golf Course project call Chip Enlow, pro/manager, 876-6888.

The Directorate of Community and Family Activities brings these great new programs, facilities and revisions to the Redstone community, to better the quality of customer service while responding to customer demand.

Announcements

Appreciation night

Attention: military and government employees. On May 23 from 6-8, Sam's Club will have an Appreciation Night in your honor. "Please bring your ID badges so we can identify you as our special guests." This offer includes retired military and retired government civilians, too. Sam's is a warehouse which is normally open to members only, but on Appreciation Night active or retired military and civilian employees are welcome. The store is located at 3418 North Memorial Parkway. For more information call the store 852-8791 or Deloris Whitman, marketing coordinator, 859-1642.

Asian Pacific Heritage

The annual Asian Pacific American Heritage Month festival is being held at the Recreation Center, building 3711, on May 26. The festival will have food tasting, entertainment and will feature retired Maj. Gen. William Chen as guest speaker. The event is free, open to the public, and will begin at 3 p.m. For additional information call Kate Love 876-8015, MSgt. Griffith 876-8648 or SFC Anton 842-2211.

Flying Activity

Redstone Arsenal Flying Activity (RAFA) is rescheduling its eighth annual open house for Saturday, May 21. All who are interested in learning to fly or want to find out more about RAFA flight training opportunities are welcome to attend. The open house starts at 9 a.m. and runs through 5 p.m. Mini flights with instructors and tours of Huntsville are available at $15 per person. Adults and youth are welcome and refreshments will be available. If you have questions about Flying Activity membership or open house call Bill Porter, RAFA manager, 880-9495 or Dorothy Hudgens, assistant, 881-3980.

Fox Army Community Hospital

Occupational Health Clinic hours are 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. To better serve employees, the OH Clinic is requesting that employees returning to work from sick leave, report to building 116 from 7-9 daily. "Reporting during this time frame will reduce employee waiting time and expedite return of employee to their worksite." Employees with an on-the-job injury/illness should report to OH, building 116, promptly from 7-3:30 for evaluation and treatment. A DD form 689, signed by the supervisor, should accompany the injured employee. Routine checking of blood pressure is not performed at OH; however, if an employee is concerned about symptoms that may be caused from elevated blood pressure, or symptoms that may reflect a heart condition, he or she should report to OH, 7-3:30. Overseas immunizations will now be given from 10-11 a.m. Reporting of civilian pregnancy is also from 10-11. For more information, call 876-8831.

Red Cross youth program

The American Red Cross Youth Program will begin on Redstone Arsenal with an orientation class at 1 p.m. May 31 in the medical classroom, second floor of Fox Army Community Hospital. Young men and women, ages 13 and older, are invited to attend and become Red Cross volunteers for the summer. Volunteers may work at the Youth Center or Fox Hospital. The minimum age to work in the hospital is 14. To sign up, call Holli Burrell 430-0755.

Thrift shop

The Thrift Shop has made additional changes for your convenience. Consignments will be taken an hour earlier on Wednesdays and Fridays beginning at 9 a.m.

Drivers
Before you separate from the service connect with a great career.
It's time for you to get in on a great career— even before you get out of the military. At J.B. Hunt, you can apply to be on the road with us for up to 6 months prior to separation. It's a professional career offering great pay, executive-style benefits and work to be proud of.
We'll help you get the training you need to get started. And, if you have previous military driving experience, we'll evaluate it for credit and a potentially higher starting salary. It all adds up to a career you should connect with right now! Please stop by and visit with our driver recruiter. Applications will be accepted. Bring any employment information.
