Vehicle decal an entrance requirement

Driver patience requested during increased security

By SKIP VAUGHN
Rocket editor

If you tried to drive through the Redstone Arsenal gates lately without a decal, you already know this.

It's a lot easier when you have a current decal.

"A person who lives or works on a military installation or often uses the facilities is required to register their vehicle," Maj. Dave Dunn, the provost marshal, said. "That's the registration policy."

Military or government civilian employees can get a decal good for three years, expiring in their birth month. Contractors can get a decal good for six months to a year, depending on the length of their contract.

And you have another obligation if you leave the government, get assigned elsewhere or sell your car. Scrape the decal off the windshield.

"If they sell the vehicle or trade the vehicle, they must remove the DoD decal and return it to the vehicle registration office," Dunn said. This will enable his workers to remove the vehicle from their registration system.

"If you've got a permanent job here at Redstone, you need to have a Redstone sticker," Dunn said. "If you're here on temporary duty, we'll recognize that because you're only here for a short period of time. For example, if you're from Fort Gordon (Ga.) and here for a weeklong conference, we wouldn't require you to get a new decal while you're here."

Pineapple Open benefits families of Pentagon attack victims

Golf tournament held under overcast skies

By SKIP VAUGHN
Rocket editor

This year's golf tournament sponsored by the Officer and Civilian Women's Club had special meaning in light of current world events.

Net proceeds from the seventh annual Pineapple Open, held Friday at Redstone Golf Course, will benefit the Pentagon Victims Fund sponsored by Army Emergency Relief.

Some 188 people participated in the tournament under overcast skies. Everyone received a souvenir golf ball inscribed with a drawing of the Pentagon and the words "In memory."

"It's been great," Maj. Bob Leonard, husband of tournament co-chairman Linda Leonard, said. "This is about as good as it gets here at Redstone Golf Course. They had to actually go out and rent carts because they had so many (golfers). And it's good of the golf course to let us do this."

"And this is a very worthy cause. They're donating the net proceeds to the Army Emergency Relief's Pentagon Victims Fund and that fund is earmarked directly to help the families of victims of the terrorist attack on the Pentagon Sept. 11."

The OCWC is accepting donations to the Pentagon Victims Fund through Oct. 31. To contribute call Linda Leonard at 890-0771.

Letters to the editor

Golden Rule applies at guard gates, too

This is for the gentleman in the big white Navigator who showed the true American spirit who rolled his window down and said to the lady in the green van, why after I had passed 30 or so cars that I should get in line ahead of those cars. First of all, I had not passed that many cars; there were only a few cars in the left lane and I was in the right lane. For the week, I had been coming in that gate and there had been two lanes open. On Friday, Oct. 5, I had no idea the line was down to just one lane coming in the gate, so when I realized it, I turned my blinker on to merge. I did not ask you to let me in since I could see you had no intention of doing that because of you being so close to the car ahead of you. Did you have to roll your window down and blast me? You did not know the circumstances of the situation — you just assumed I was trying to get ahead of everyone else. The other cars ahead of you let people merge when they saw there was only one lane. Do you treat your co-workers the same as you treated me that morning or your wife? Would you have liked for someone to say to your wife what you did to me or for that matter, treat her the way you did me? Think about it and true to my word what I said about praying for you — I did just that.

Early bird weekday shopping hours to begin Oct. 23 at Redstone Commissary

Customers with up to 15 items can check out from 8-10 a.m.

By SKIP VAUGHN
Rocket editor

Some shoppers at the Commissary have complained about how long it takes to get through the gates on weekends during the heightened security. Now they have another option.

Early Bird Shopping Hours will be held from 8-10 a.m. Tuesdays through Fridays beginning Oct. 23. This consists of one register open for shoppers with 15 items or less.

"In addition to that, kind of like a senior hint, if you plan to buy more than 15 items it still gives you an opportunity to come in before 10 a.m. and be ready to check out when the big registers open at 10," store director Lee Wainwright said.

"We're trying to frontload our business a little bit. The mornings have really been hurt since all this security. And the afternoons are killing us. It'll take a while for this to catch on but I think it'll be a widely used service."

The Commissary's regular hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 8-5 Saturday and 11-5 Sunday. The store is closed Monday.

"As far as the customer's concerned, it's an added convenience," Wainwright said of the early bird hours. "From my point of view, also it'll even out our business a little more and allow us to give better service during the day."

This will mostly benefit retirees who shop weekday mornings, according to Ellis Andrew, a retired Navy chief who works at Army Community Service.

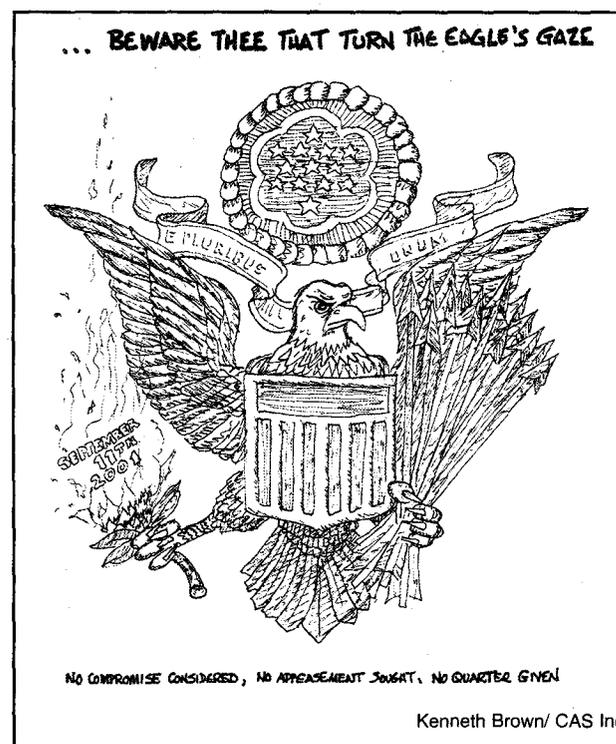

"Anytime the hours are lengthened, that makes it better for customers," Andrew said. "Evening hours would be better but if they're going to extend the hours at all it does help somebody."

Workers' union helps 13 families affected by explosion at mine

AFGE Local 1858 president Jim Brothers encourages contributions to help families of victims in a Sept. 23 explosion at the Blue Creek No. 5 mine of Jim Walter Resources in Brookwood.

"This is as fully devastating to the families of 13 miners who lost their lives as it is to those in New York and Washington who suffered such a tremendous loss," Brothers said in a prepared statement. "Nine of the 13 who were killed went into the mine in an effort to rescue their fellow workers.

"Thirteen families will be without their primary breadwinner, and to ease the burden while they try to get on their feet and attempt to go on with their lives, they will need help from their fellow Alabamians. Please be as generous as you can and send your check to: Miners Memorial Fund, c/o Eddie Blake, financial secretary, UMW Local 2368, P.O. Box 99, Brookwood, Ala., 35444. For those who would like to make a contribution, this will be a tax-deductible contribution," Brothers concluded.

Flu shots planned for November

FOX ARMY HEALTH CENTER RELEASE

The Fox Army Health Center influenza vaccination campaign is being planned for November.

Doses received prior to November will be used to protect those persons most vulnerable to the effects of the flu. Priority will go to military beneficiaries at greatest risk for severe influenza complications and health care providers. DoD civilians and contractors at high risk for influenza can only get their vaccine from their civilian health care provider.

The following persons are at high risk:

- More than 65 years of age.
- Patients with diabetes, heart ailments, respiratory illness, kidney dysfunction, weakened immune systems, and women in second or third trimester of pregnancy.
- Health care providers and family members of those in the high risk category.
- Soldiers deploying or preparing for deployment.

Persons not sure about their risk status should contact their primary health care provider.

Mass vaccination will begin when ample vaccine supply is received. Dates will be announced through command channels and in future editions of the Redstone Rocket and other local news media. Direct your questions to the Public Health and Education Center at Fox Army Health Center 842-0196.

Sparky teaches fire safety to children

Redstone firefighters visit
Child Development Center

By BETH SKARUPA
Staff writer

Even increased security at Redstone Arsenal couldn't keep Sparky the Fire Dog from getting his message out to youngsters at the Child Development Center and area schools last week.

Sparky traded in his firefighter hat for a baseball cap to "cover the bases and strike out fire" for Fire Prevention Week 2001. Although group visits to the Arsenal's fire station were canceled, some firefighters took Sparky's message to the children at their schools. They covered the fire safety bases to teach them about three of the main causes of fire in the home — cooking, heating and electrical.

"The main message we try to get to children is 'Don't play with fire, don't play with matches or lighters.' The second thing is 'If your clothes catch fire you need to stop, drop and roll.'" Jim Hughes, a Redstone fire inspector, said. "We also have a firefighter dress up in his gear and tell the children 'Don't be afraid if you see him, don't hide in bed or in a closet and if you can't get out of your room, go to a window.'"

Sparky and his friends Freddie the fire engine and Pluggie the fire hydrant, both remote-controlled toys, visited the CDC Oct. 10. The children donned firefighter hats, talked to Sparky, climbed aboard a fire engine and chased the friendly toys.

"It's amazing. These kids and their caregivers have a fire drill once a month here and they're quicker than anybody on base," Harry Hollingsworth, a Redstone fire inspector, said. "They get out (of the building) in less than one minute and they have three different areas they go out to. These ladies have a tough job. Even in the rain they have to get the kids out and they have to keep up with everybody, too. They tell us on the radios that they have all the kids. They do a great job."

Some children in the toddler classes were afraid of Sparky, but they warmed up to him after a few minutes. Others chased the toy fire truck and fire hydrant, hugging them and smiling. Does all of this help them to understand fire prevention?

What would they do if they saw a fire?

"The fire truck will come and I get in," TaMaya Godfrey said. "Then I say 'Cheese.'" Although she was still excited about having had her picture taken in the driver's seat of the fire engine, she knew that if there were a fire the firefighters would be her friends.

Army recruiting soldiers to join ranks of recruiters

Team seeks volunteers during visit Oct. 24-25

ARMY RECRUITING COMMAND RELEASE

FORT KNOX, Ky. — Two recruiters are visiting Redstone Arsenal Oct. 24-25 to dispel the myths about recruiting duty and encourage soldiers to join the winning team of recruiters who have achieved their Army and Army Reserve missions for the past two fiscal years.

The Recruit the Recruiter Team is presenting briefings on the challenges, benefits and opportunities that come with serving as an Army recruiter.

"Soldiers' anxieties about recruiting duty — 'Can I make it on recruiting duty?' — are often compounded by negative word of mouth. That's why we are conducting these installation tours and have established a Recruit the Recruiter web site at www.usarec.army.mil. We want to give soldiers factual information to dispel the rumors in a non-threatening environment. We think that when soldiers have more information, they will be pleased at what recruiting duty can offer them," said MSgt. Jack Miracle, the NCO-in-charge of the Special Missions Recruiting Team for the Army Recruiting Command.

This fiscal year, the Recruiting Command must identify about 2,600 new detailed recruiters through Department of the Army selections, or through soldiers volunteering for recruiting duty.

To entice more soldiers to volunteer, there is also a new incentive this year. Volunteers can identify their top three choices for their recruiting company assignment from the more than 200 recruiting companies across the states.

Soldiers who volunteer for recruiting duty serve a 36-month tour.

They first attend the Army Recruiter Course at Fort Jackson, S.C. The 53-day course has five major segments: introduction to recruiting, management, eligibility, prospecting and sales techniques, and communications skill.

Following the Recruiter Course is a nine-month nonrated new recruiter program, during which the new recruiters sharpen the skills they learned in the course.

Recruiting duty involves long hours and hard work, but the rewards are worth the effort.

Recruiters live and work in the civilian community. They build networks with schools, universities, local government agencies and other organizations. They interact and network with community leaders and become very experienced in sales and management.

Promotions are faster for recruiters than for peers without this experience. Recruiters who convert to MOS 79R have much higher promotion rates to sergeant first class than the Army average.

Opportunities for personal recognition are great. In addition to the Army awards program, recruiters are eligible to earn the Recruiter's Silver Badge with gold stars, the Gold Badge with sapphires, the Recruiter Ring, and the Sergeant Major of the Army Glen E. Morrell Medallion. Recruiters can also compete for induction into the USAREC Sergeant Audie Murphy Club.

Recruiters receive an extra $375 each month in special duty assignment pay and up to $75 per month in allowances for authorized expenses.

Currently 23 percent of detailed recruiters are volunteers; the Army selects the remainder. Volunteers will receive their recruiting company assignment before reporting to the Army Recruiter Course; DA-select recruiters do not learn their recruiting duty assignment until about the fourth week of the course.

Miracle encourages soldiers to attend the volunteer recruiting briefing at Heritage Hall or visit the web site. Either way, soldiers can learn more about the eligibility requirements to become a recruiter and the benefits of recruiting duty.

For more information, call MSgt. Billy Sanders at 842-0870.

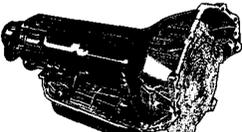

Soldiers may also call the Recruit the Recruiter Team at (502) 626-0271/0215/1860, DSN 536-0271/0215/1860, or go to the USAREC web site at www.usarec.army.mil and follow the link to Recruit the Recruiter.

Use or lose leave at fiscal yearend extended for soldiers

Increased military tempo brings change in policy

By JOE BURLAS
Army News Service

WASHINGTON – Soldiers may carry up to 80 days worth of leave into the new fiscal year because of the increased military tempo created by the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks on the Pentagon and New York World Trade Center, according to Defense officials.

Normally, servicemembers may only carry over 60 days leave from year to year. Unless special circumstances exist, leave in excess of 60 days is usually lost at the end of the fiscal year.

The Department of Defense directed all services to allow the special leave accrual of up to 80 days in a memorandum dated Sept. 18. The Total Army Personnel Command issued special leave accrual instructions for soldiers Sept. 27.

"DoD is doing this because it's just the right thing to do," said Lt. Col. Nobel Lugo, a finance action officer with the Army's Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel. "A lot of military leaves were canceled immediately following the attacks due to a significant need to increase force protection at all Army installations. This special leave accrual authority will allow those soldiers to take up to an additional 20 days excess leave they've earned in FY 2001 and use it by the end of FY 2004."

The reason why an additional 20 days was selected, rather than another number, is because 20 days is all the leave that someone could have scheduled between the day of the attacks and the end of FY 2001 – Sept. 11-30, he explained.

Earned military leave accrues at the rate of 2.5 days per month of active federal service. Reservists only accrue military leave when called to active-duty for periods of 30 days or more.

Civilian leave is based on the calendar year, instead of the fiscal year that ends Sept. 30.

Neither the Office of Personnel Management nor the Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Manpower and Reserve Affairs has implemented a blanket authorization for Department of the Army civilians to carry over any excess annual leave into 2002 above the normal caps. However, existing OPM guidance on restoration of annual leave provides some opportunities to do so based upon exigency of public business or sickness. That guidance can be found on the OPM web site at <http://www.opm.gov/oca/leave/html/restor e.htm>.

Focusing on positive leads to progress

Visually impaired man sees what's important

By BETH SKARUPA
Staff writer

When Curtis Tucker's youngest daughter Rebekah was 3 years old, she discovered she could hide from him just by staying still and being quiet. Rather than getting upset when she used this technique to get out of doing chores, Tucker took her behavior in stride and turned it into a game. In the same way, he takes his being visually impaired as something to be dealt with positively.

Tucker, a personnel staffing specialist in the South Central Civilian Personnel Operations Center, doesn't like to dwell on the negative. He explained that even the word "blind" has a negative connotation because people think in terms of what the visually impaired person cannot do.

"But if you focus on what you can do and look for opportunities and do that, it changes things," he said. "It's like that with anyone, if you focus on the positive you find a way to do more."

That's why Tucker ended up taking care of his three children, Brian, Katrina and Rebekah, during the summers when they were 11, 8 and 3 years old respectively. He was attending the University of Louisville while his wife Marsha worked full time. It just made sense for him to play "Mr. Mom."

"That's really what it was," he said, laughing about being his children's primary caretaker. "You know, you can be a part of things and be productive and have some added value. It's what you choose to do. I enjoyed it. It worked out well and the kids did well - except for my youngest hiding sometimes."

Tucker grew up in Louisville, graduating from high school in 1971. He married Marsha, his high school sweetheart, in 1972 but didn't start college right away. He said that was partly because the rehabilitation for the blind didn't really open up in Louisville until 1974. Because there was a lack of information available to him, he worked in a department store for 13 years before pursuing his degree.

He explained that he was born with toxoplasmosis, a condition that left him with scarred retinas. Although he was visually impaired, he was able to attend a "regular" school until he had a retina detachment when he was 16 years old. Since he could no longer read textbooks or the chalkboard, he went to a special "sight saving" school where students with disabilities were considered to have special needs.

Tucker attempted to continue his education after high school, but was not successful. He was still able to see well enough to get around by himself, so he worked at a department store until he developed cataracts in 1985. At that time, the danger of getting injured caused him to lose his job. He had considered going to college while working, but never did anything about it until he lost his job.

"I did not want to be unproductive and at that point I had the opportunity (to go to college)," he said. "The Department for the Blind provided me with information and the university had a disabled student coordinator who provided me with a reader service."

He earned his bachelor's degree in business management in 1992 and started working for the government as a personnel management specialist for the Corps of Engineers in Louisville in 1993. He moved to Huntsville with his wife and youngest daughter in 1997.

When he's not busy working, Tucker enjoys spending time with his family and playing with his guide dog Gordy. Although Gordy works hard during the day making sure Tucker gets where he needs to go, he becomes the family pet at home. The dog also allows Tucker to do something he loves - spend time outdoors.

HOW DO YOU HANDLE STRESS?

Stress can be activated by our work, family, or upbringing, along with many ingredients to this condition that must be addressed to successfully overcome the feelings of anxiety, panic or nervousness. Typically, however, the medical approach has been to hand the patient one or more mood altering drugs that are designed to alter the chemistry of the brain and nerve system so that the person "handles" life better. In some cases, this is the right answer, but in so many others, there are more conservative helps: Relaxation methods, exercise, drinking more water, taking B-Complex vitamins, family counselling, financial counseling, addiction controls, and of course, looking to the control mechanisms of the nerve system through Chiropractic care. Chiropractic seems to help control or eliminate much of the underlying cause of stress by helping to eliminate chemical imbalance, structural imbalance in the spine and nerve system, along with the help that comes by relaxing the musculoskeletal parts of the body through adjustments and therapies in our offices of chiropractic. Pressure caused by the misalignment of the upper two vertebrae of the neck can often cause these imbalances, and the only way to correct these misalignments is to have proper care at a competent chiropractic office. Give us a call today at 650-0051. You should ask for a preliminary talk with the doctor prior to beginning your care. Our treatment costs less than you think, so...relax.

New law makes information technology accessible

AMCOM web sites, kiosks, other technologies reviewed

By BETH SKARUPA
Staff writer

Curtis Tucker and his guide dog Gordy are walking to the Corporate Information Center's technology applications area. Once there, Tucker puts headphones on and sits at a computer while Gordy lies at his feet. Gordy's work is over for now but Tucker's has just begun.

Although Tucker usually works as a personnel staffing specialist for the South Central Civilian Personnel Operations Center, today he's helping CIC determine whether some Aviation and Missile Command web sites are accessible to the visually impaired. He uses a software program called a screen reader to learn what information is available on a web site, testing each to hear whether it reads right. His work is just one of many things being done to ensure that AMCOM is "Section 508 compliant."

Section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act requires federal agencies to give disabled employees and members of the public access to information that is comparable to the access that's available to others. It applies to all federal agencies when they develop, procure, maintain or use electronic and information technology.

The law was enacted June 21 to encourage development of technologies that would eliminate barriers in information technology and make new opportunities available for people with disabilities.

"I personally think this Section 508 is great because it's going to make a lot of things more accessible," Tucker said. "We have a lot of (software) programs within personnel that don't work well - they are functional but not totally functional with the screen reader. Although Section 508 only applies to new programs - anything purchased before it was enacted is not covered - it's good. People who write these programs make them pleasing to the eye and sometimes they don't make them work well for someone who's blind ... with Section 508 things will evolve."

The law applies to all federal departments and agencies. Contractors that provide services or products to federal agencies must provide Section 508 compliant deliverables. Section 508 standards cover various types of technology including software applications and operating systems, web-based Intranet and Internet information and applications, telecommunication products, video and multimedia products, self-contained, closed products such as information kiosks, calculators and fax machines, and desktop and portable computers.

"We have an AMCOM Section 508 team with representatives from the Acquisition Center, Legal, CIC, AMRDEC, IMMC, EEO and CPAC, making sure word gets out," Carol Smith, AMCOM Section 508 program manager, said. "A lot of people are not aware of the law yet."

Federal agencies are not required to "retrofit" existing technologies, Smith said. However, anything purchased after June 21 has to be Section 508 compliant. Web sites and kiosks with touch screen displays are being reviewed to ensure they are compliant. Videos produced after the implementation date must be closed-captioned. Smith explained that several things have to be done differently to ensure information is available to everyone and that they're compliant with the law.

"Financially we're just now feeling the pinch. It is costly," Smith said. She noted that her best guess for the costs incurred at Redstone Arsenal alone may be over $3 million.

CIC has developed an "in-house" training video on accessibility and technical site requirements that will be available on CD once closed captioning is completed. Web developer training sessions were conducted throughout the summer for the technical community. CIC also has developed a test center with three types of software to ensure screen reader compatibility for web sites, mainframe and client server applications. A calendar is available to schedule AMCOM users.

"The main thing is trying to get people educated here at Redstone," Smith said. "Some managers think if they don't have anyone in their work area with a disability, it doesn't affect them. We have to re-educate people and let them see what they need to do."

For more information about Section 508, access the Internet at <http://www.section508.gov> or the AMCOM 508 Resource Center at <https://intranet2.redstone.army.mil/amcom508>. The CIC test center can be scheduled via e-mail at webreq@redstone.army.mil.

"Just two weeks ago we went up on Green Mountain. It's so neat, I don't have to do it with anyone else. Gordy and I can do that," Tucker said. "We walk around the whole lake and he stops at tree roots to show me caution. He puts his head against my knee if he sees something that I need to watch out for, sometimes he'll put his head or his whole body around my leg to get me to stop."

Tucker also enjoys surfing the Internet and chatting online with other guide dog owners. He travels back to Louisville often to visit his two older children and their families. He has four grandchildren ranging from 10 years to 4 months old.

NEW DIRECTION— Michael Lyon joins the Senior Executive Service as the new director of the Propulsion and Structures Directorate in the Research Development and Engineering Center. Lyon served as acting director of the organization for two years before being selected for the permanent position in August.

New senior executive ready to make changes

By SANDY RIEBELING
Staff writer

Most Americans remember exactly where they were and what they were doing when news of the terrorist attacks Sept. 11 spread around the globe. Michael Lyon is no different.

Lyon, newly named director of the Propulsion and Structures Directorate at AMCOM, was enjoying the first day of his vacation in Mexico when he heard the news.

"We were touring Copper Canyon near Chihuahua when we passed a backpacker that told us what had happened," Lyon said. "Of course, it set the tone for the whole trip. Information was sketchy. When we had electricity, all we had were these small TV's and most of the reports were in Spanish. Everywhere we went, the Mexicans were expressing their condolences and utter shock about what had gone on."

With America's borders closed and air traffic shut down, Lyon and his wife, Caroline, couldn't have returned to the states if they tried.

"We kept up with the events as much as possible and still tried to relax," he said, pointing out the irony of his first vacation in a year and a half. "When we were ready to come home, it took us less time to cross the border into America than it did to get through the Arsenal gates on the first day back to work."

Getting back to the job was important to Lyon, who served as the acting director two years prior. Reorganization within the directorate had been in the planning stages for a couple of years.

"The SES process took about 80 weeks," Lyon said. "There was always the lingering issue that if I made a decision about the organizational structure and I wasn't selected as the new director, would someone from the outside stick with it. I didn't want to put the organization in turmoil if a new director was selected.

It was only four years ago that the Propulsion Directorate and Structures Directorate were merged into one organization. Now with the planning nearly complete, Lyon is ready to begin implementing changes.

"We are going to put a focus on materials within the organization," Lyon said. "Technology is pushing us to higher performance, we can't achieve our goals without research and understanding of emerging materials. I also want to move in the direction of increased activity in collaborative design environments. We want to take the best practices out of the organization and incorporate them into our operation to allow us to dovetail propulsion and structures more tightly into the overall research development and engineering center process."

Customer service is another focal point for the organization — to make sure the technologies developed by the organization will have a home. As with many military organizations, there is increased scrutiny at all levels to answer the questions of why the technology is needed and where it will be applied. Lyon's customers help identify new uses for existing technology and the need to develop new technologies for the future.

Lyon will increase emphasis on modeling and simulation for design and analysis with special attention on integration of weapon system onto platforms. Future Combat System and what it means to the Army is another aspect of the organization's mission.

"Our mission elements are not changing but being remapped into a new structure with the goal of posturing the organization for growth," Lyon said. "We've already begun to see growth for new platform integration."

With growth comes the expectation of a new facility for the organization, which is spread among five buildings on post.

"There's discussion under way for construction of a new facility," Lyon said. "We manufacture rocket motors and work with explosives. We really need a more remote facility because of the nature of our job but now especially because of events of last month."

With the recent world events, Lyon is spending a little more time behind the desk but that only makes his spare time more precious. He tries not to miss his weekly jam session with Good Fortune, a Celtic music group in which he plays the bagpipes and Penny Whistle. He also likes to read — at least two books concurrently. His favorites are John Grisham and Tom Clancy.

"I also like to travel with my wife," Lyon said. "I love to see and experience other cultures. It gives me a new appreciation for America every time."

One of his most memorable trips was to Moscow. "I grew up in the Cold War. I never dreamt I would be standing in Red Square," Lyon said. "I would like to spend time in Ireland — a couple of weeks, maybe rent a car and go from bed and breakfast to bed and breakfast. But no, I wouldn't take my pipes."

Writing bad checks on or off Redstone just doesn't pay

Fines, jail time can result under state criminal law

By Capt. ANDREW SINN
Legal Office

Every year people are writing bad checks on Redstone Arsenal. Those persons are committing a crime.

Despite the proliferation of credit and debit cards, the paper check is still a viable and well-known method of making payment for goods or services. Many consider checks convenient and frequently use checks to make purchases at various activities on Redstone Arsenal. Unfortunately, consumers often intentionally or negligently pass a check that has insufficient funds in the account to cover the check, commonly known as a bad check. Writing bad checks is not only financially irresponsible, but it is a crime that is being prosecuted here at Redstone Arsenal.

Whether written in the civilian community or on Redstone Arsenal, writing a bad check is punishable under the Criminal Code of Alabama as a Class A misdemeanor. A Class A misdemeanor is punishable by a fine up to $2,000 and/or confinement up to one year. Persons who write bad checks in the civilian community are subject to prosecution in Alabama state court while offenders on Redstone Arsenal are subject to prosecution in the U.S. Federal District Court. The Alabama laws regarding bad checks are applicable to offenders on Redstone Arsenal through the Assimilative Crimes Act. This law permits a U.S. attorney to "adopt" state criminal laws to prosecute offenders in federal court for crimes committed on Redstone Arsenal. Typically, an Army JAG Corps officer assigned as a special assistant U.S. attorney prosecutes the offenders in Federal Magistrate Court in Huntsville.

Servicemembers who pass bad checks are also subject to adverse administrative action (such as a letter of reprimand in one's official personnel file), Article 15 (non-judicial punishment) and court-martial for writing bad checks. The maximum punishment under the UCMJ for writing a bad check is dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances, and confinement for five years.

In addition to potential criminal conviction, passers of bad checks also damage themselves financially. Banks will typically subject the offender to a bad check processing fee that could run as much as $20 or $30. Often, an offender will pass multiple bad checks in a short period of time that further increases the total fees. In addition, victims of bad checks can generally sue the bad check writer for damages. In Alabama, the amount of damages a victim may recover includes court costs, attorneys fees, and any damages that the court deems appropriate. In short, a bad check written for even a small amount such as $20 may end up costing the offender hundreds of dollars.

The Alabama laws regarding bad checks are applicable to offenders on Redstone Arsenal through the Assimilative Crimes Act.

Bad checks written at AAFES will result in further negative consequences for the offender. Within days of writing a bad check at an AAFES outlet, the offender's check cashing privileges will be suspended at all AAFES outlets worldwide until such time as the debt is paid by the offender. If not paid in a timely fashion, AAFES can collect from military personnel by involuntary deductions from their pay. If involuntary recoupment from pay takes place or the offender habitually writes bad checks, AAFES check cashing privileges will be suspended indefinitely. Given that bad checks totaling $130,000 were presented at Redstone Arsenal AAFES outlets last year, many installation soldiers and dependents have personally experienced the impacts of these policies and perhaps have reassessed their willingness to pass bad checks.

If you are ever tempted to write a bad check, do the responsible thing and do not do it. Consider all of the negative civil and criminal consequences of bouncing a check. If you are feeling financially overwhelmed, then seek out the assistance of financial counselors. If you are a military member, you may benefit from the quality counseling services provided by your local Army Community Service. If you are a civilian, check the yellow pages and your local Better Business Bureau office for reputable counseling service providers. If your financial woes result from a specific dispute with a creditor concerning a transaction, then you may benefit from meeting with a Legal Assistance attorney in the AMCOM Legal Office if you are eligible for services per AR 27-3 (call 876-9005 for an appointment). For general legal information, check out the AMCOM Legal Office web site <http://www.redstone.army.mil/legal/> or the Army JAGC Public Legal Services web site <http://www.jagcnet.army.mil/Legal>.

Recreation cards are here to use the facilities so they are also entitled to entry on post.

"My focus is to have people that use our facilities to register their POVs (personal vehicles)," Dunn said. "That's the focus of the vehicle registration system."

As a preventive measure, he asks that any incident of tampering with a vehicle decal be reported to the military police desk at 876-2222. He also wants people to report anyone offering to buy a vehicle with the decal remaining on the windshield.

"We're just asking people to be alert and let us know," Dunn said. "It's not been a problem. It's just preventive to keep people aware of what's going on out there and to help us out."

The vehicle registration and badge office, building 3423 on Gray Road, is open from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Its phone number is 876-5770.

Dunn has some parting advice for Redstone drivers during these times of heightened security due to world events. "Just be patient when you're coming in," he said. "We're trying to get through our security measures and just be patient with us."

Army Ten-Miler, AUSA meeting canceled

ARMY NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON – This year's Army Ten-Miler Race scheduled for Oct. 14 and the Association of the U.S. Army Annual Meeting slated to start Oct. 15, both slated to have been held in Washington, were canceled.

In light of the ongoing operations, and plans being developed for the "War on Terrorism," it has become impractical, if not impossible, for the Army to support the largest gathering of the Army family at the annual AUSA meeting in Washington, according to an AUSA press release.

The decision to cancel both events was made in conjunction with senior Army leadership discussions.

Retired Gen. Gordon Sullivan, AUSA president, stated that it was imperative that there be no distraction for Army leaders as the execution of "Operation Enduring Freedom" continues and enters a new phase for America's Army. Instead, the Association's full focus and energy will be in support of the troops and families from the Army and the other services in this campaign, he said.

"We hope that all our runners will understand our support of Operation Enduring Freedom, our heightened awareness of the current situation, and our concern for the security of everyone associated with the race," said Jim Vandak, Army Ten-Miler director. "This move also allows the U.S. Military District of Washington to concentrate its soldiers and resources on supporting Operation Enduring Freedom."

Editor's note: This article was compiled from Military District of Washington and Association of the U.S. Army press releases.

Apprentice program

The Department of Defense initiated the Science and Engineering Apprentice Program in 1980, at the direction of the Executive Office of the President, to involve academically talented high school students in hands-on research activities and student-mentor relationships during the summer. This program is designed for students who have demonstrated aptitude and interest in science and engineering courses and careers. A major benefit of the program is the pairing of students with university and professional research and engineering mentors. The high school program is designed for students who are U.S. citizens and 15 years old by the beginning date of the program, June 10, 2002. The College Apprentice Program is designed for undergraduate students who have completed the SEAP and are enrolled in a scientific or technical college major. Other criteria are stated on the applications. Both programs are fast paced and require disciplined professional work habits. Junior and senior scientists and engineers gain additional experience by serving as mentors through the process of guiding first time students through interactive research processes. The points of contact for applications include the senior counselor at all public, private and parochial high schools and the college placement services. Possible career placement areas at the Aviation and Missile Command include physics, chemistry, computer science, engineering and mathematics. The deadline for postmarking applications is Jan. 31, 2002.
